FLYING FROM CAIRO TO CAPE TOWN OVER WILDERNESS.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—First attempts to fly from Cairo to Cape Town will be watched in England with an interest equal to that taken in the flight of Capt. Ross Smith from England to Australia. This is largely due to the fact that much of the country to be traversed is of the wildest character, and is very remote from civilization.

The Daily Times already has a big airplane at Cairo, to which city it has flown from England. It will start on Friday on the first lap on the southward journey, which will take it to Assuan, 870 miles up the Nile. It will carry a crew of five and a scientific observer.

Peter Chalmers Mitchell, astronomer and Secretary of the Zoological Society of London since 1903 was a passenger in a 'plane which left Wednesday morning for Cape Town, rising from an aviation field near this city. There is no suggestion of a race between these two machines. The Times particularly disavowing any idea of competition.

Construction of landing places and accumulations of gasoline and stores throughout the route to be followed has just been competition after a year's work, but the isolation of some of the stations amidst dense forests of immense extent will necessitate especial care and daylight landings. Dangers in the event of accident from wild beasts, savages and lack of communications, appear to be great.

A FEW SALARIES.

The salary of the President of the United States is $75,000 a year; the salary of the Governor-General of Canada is $50,000, and that of the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland $100,000. OFFICIAL ENDING OF CONFLICT

JANUARY 10TH HAS BEEN SET APART BY A ROYAL ORDER

VICTORY FOR DANES

Canadian Press:

LONDON, Feb. 11. — Announcement was made to-day that January 10 was the official date upon which war with Germany terminated. This date was fixed by a Royal Order.

Canadian Press:

APENRADE SCHLESWIG, Feb. 11.—An overwhelming victory for the Danes in this zone of the province of Schleswig, the future states of which is to be determined by plebiscite, is indicated by incomplete returns received here. Country districts showed large majorities for Denmark, while the vote in towns showed larger figures than Danish estimates. Donder Apenrade and Sonderberg, however, have been carried by the Germans.

LIVE STOCK RECEIPTS

TORONTO, Feb. 11. — Cattle receipts light, trade a trifle more active. Heavy beef steers, $13.50 to $14.25; butcher steers, choice, $12.50 to $13.25; butcher cows, medium, $8.50 to $9.50; calves, $18 to $22; ewes, $8 to $12; lambs, 17 to $20. Hogs, fed and watered, selects, $18.25 to $18.50.

BORDEN GETTING READY TO RETIRE

MYSTERY SURROUNDS HIS MOVEMENTS IN ENGLAND.

OTTAWA, Feb. 11.—Despite whether Sir Robert Borden will be able to resume his duties as Premier has been reached by press despatches from London. The despatches indicate that his health is yet far from recovery. If such continues to be the case, his retirement from political life is regarded here as inevitable. So far the government is without a word of the Premier's intentions. It is thought, however, that Sir Robert's stay in England will be short and it is regarded as likely that he will either go to Riviera or perhaps return to this continent and go south. Unless the coming scheme of Parliament is unduly prolonged, it is expected that Sir Robert will be unable to be back in time to take active part in its proceedings.

Baker, on Thursday last, of Miss Mabel Moore, who was only entering her 25th year and who was very popular among her associates The deceased has been suffering for some months and about one year ago went to a Toronto Hospital with the hope of relief which however, was only temporary, and although she returned somewhat improved it was not for long and she gradually grew worse until the end came. INTERESTING LECTURE BEFORE FARMERS' CLUB.

A most interesting and instructive lecture on "Fertilizers" was given by Mr. Henry G. Bell, of Toronto, before the Farmers' Club on Monday evening in the Sons of England Hall. There is no better informed man on fertilizers on the continent than Mr. Bell. He has held the highest positions in agricultural institutions in the United States. He is now the managing director of the largest fertilizer company in Canada, and what he does not know about fertilizing the soil suitable for growing the different kinds of crops or garden stuff, is not worth knowing. His lecture was well illustrated by lantern slides, and cannot but be of the highest benefit to those who heard him. He has promised to come again and speak before the Board of Trade.

WARD OFF INFLUENZA BY KEEPING IN BEST PHYSICAL CONDITION

Persons Who Catch Cold Easily And Who Are Weak and Run Down Are Earliest Victims.

DANGER IS TOO GREAT TO TAKE ANY CHANCES

Build Up Your Bodily Powers Of Resistance By Taking Tanlac and Fortify Against.

Much of the difficulty experienced by health authorities in checking the spread of Influenza lies in the fact that it spreads with almost lightning rapidity. Although state and city authorities have succeeded is keeping it under control in some sections, the disease has gotten entirely beyond control in others.

It is generally agreed by all well-informed persons that the surest preventive is to get the system into the best possible physical condition in order to be able to throw off the infection. It has been stated that it is possible to perfect the powers of human resistance so that it can throw off almost any infection, not excepting Spanish Influenza, which is generally supposed to be one of the most contagious diseases known.

Medical authorities agree that people who are weak and run down are the earliest victims of the Influenza epidemic. If you find yourself weak and losing flesh or if you are in a generally run down condition you are really in danger if you should come in contact with the Influenza germ.

As a powerful re-constructive tonic and system builder Tanlac is without an equal. This is a statement of fact and is fully supported by recognized authorities. According to all accepted reference works, including the U. S. Dispensatory, Encyclopedia Britanica, and the leading text books used in the schools of medicine, the principal ingredients of Tanlac possess the most powerful re-constructive properties known to science. This statement is further proven by the fact that millions of persons who have actually taken Tanlac have testified to its extraordinary powers as a medicine.

Tanlac restores health and strength to the weak and run down system by enabling every organ of the body to perform its proper function in the way that nature intended. It creates a good healthy appetite for wholesome nourishing food and is an ideal strengthening tonic for persons who are in a run down condition and who are suffering from the after effects of hard winter colds, grippe or bronchial troubles.

Irrefutable evidence of the reconstructive powers of Tanlac is shown by the fact that it was used by tens of thousands during last year's epidemic with splendid results. One well known Texas physician stated that he had never found anything to equal Tanlac for building up his patients who had had influenza and that he had treated over fourteen hundred cases in one month.

In connection with the Tanlac Treatment, keep the bowels open by taking Tanlac Laxative Tablets, samples of which are enclosed with every bottle of Tanlac.

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. H. Warne Drug Co., Limited: in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowlers Corners by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert by A. I. Scott; in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son. (Advt.)

LETTER FROM EX-ALD. MURRAY

MR. MURRAY EXPECTS TO RETURN TO PETERBORO IN THE NEAR FUTURE.

Ald. G. N. Gordon received a letter this morning from Ex-Alderman Murray now at Fauldhouse, Scotland, saying that he is recovering his health rapidly, and hopes to be able to return to Peterborough within the next few months. Mr. Murray resigned from the City Council on account of his seriously impaired condition of health, and was thought at that time to be incurable. He has, however, been treated by a specialist and is now very much improved and expects a complete recovery within the next couple of months. Mr. Murray intimated in his letter to Mr. Gordon that he was very much interested in the progress of Pterborough and Peterborough's civic affairs.

FACTS ABOUT CANADA

In the Denzil District of Saskatchewan a group of lakes exists from the waters of which almost pure salt can be obtained. The available supply of salt is very large.

During the season recently closed the salmon fisheries of British Columbia yielded fish for which the fishermen were paid $2,706,280. After being canned or otherwise preserved, the fish had a market value of $5,403,000.

Fully 85 per cent. of the world's output of asbestos is produced by the Province of Quebec, which is, therefore, the chief source of supply of this mineral.

According to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, the average yield per acre last year of fall wheat was 23¾ bushels; of spring wheat only 9¾ bushels, and of all wheat 10¼ bushels. In 1918 the average was 11 bushels. The crops of both years were very light.

The first open sale in England of pure-bred Percheron horses raised in Canada was held recently at Hendon, and the animals imported from Canada brought an average price of £224 each—equal to $1,090 at the normal rate of exchange.

The gauge of railways at first adopted in Canada was 5 feet 6 inches. This was subsequently changed to 4 feet 8½ inches, the standard gauge throughout this continent.

Last year the locomotives in use on the railways consumed 10,173,344 tons of fuel, which cost $52,630,430. By far the greater part of this fuel was bituminous or soft coal, namely, 9,836,623 tons.

The average cost of fuel for every 100 miles run by a freight locomotive was $47.30, and for a passenger engine, $26.47.

In addition to the soft coal used, there were also used 3,283 tons of anthracite coal, 45,580 cords of wood, 52,507,528 gallons of oil, and 128,115 bushels of charcoal. The locomotives that used all this fuel ran 146,753,205 miles.

The first railway return presented a Canadian Legislature was that presented in 1844 to the Legislature of United Canada by the Champlain and St. Lawrence Railway Company, whose track of 16 miles from Laprairie on the St. Lawrence River, to St. Johns on the Richelieu, was the first railway in Canada.

JEWS STARVING IN JERUSALEM

Terrible Destitution Caused by Lack of Employment and Shortage of Food.

The street cleaners of Jerusalem form a picturesque but pathetic testimony to the terrible destitution of the Jews of that ancient city, according to the latest reports received by the Canadian Jewish War Relief Committee from relief workers abroad.

The problem of employment is so great in Jerusalem that it is almost impossible to find work in the natural way. For this reason, the Joint Distribution Committee of Funds for Jewish Sufferers from the War hired fifty of the most poverty-stricken Jews who applied to them for aid, to clean the streets in the Jewish quarter. The youngest of these street cleaners is fourteen years old. Seven of the street cleaners are between seventy and eighty years old, and eighteen more are between sixty and seventy years old. None of them have adequate clothing or food.

SICK HEADACHES CONSTIPATION

If you have suffered from constipation for years, tried doctors and all the remedies you ever heard or read of, without getting relief, if you have been subject to all the miseries associated with constipation, such as sick and bilious headaches, biliousness, specks floating before the eyes, water brash, heartburn, jaundice and the painful, troublesome, internal, bleeding or protruding piles, etc., wouldn't you consider it a blessing to be able to keep the bowels in a good healthy condition and prevent disease getting a foothold on your system.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are indicated just for this purpose; their regular use relieving the worst cases of constipation.

Mrs. Malcolm McDermid, Cranton Station, N.S., writes:—"I have been sick for a number of years with sick headaches and constipation. I tried all kinds of doctor's medicine, but none did me any good. I tried Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and after using four vials I am completely cured and would heartily recommend them to all sufferers."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c. a vial at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont

X-RAY FAILED

Mechanic Gives Evidence

There are cases where science in its most profound phases is absolutely balked, yet other help is at hand.

This is proved by the testimony of a mechanic, 55 years of age, who suffered, at times, positive torture from stone in the bladder. After trying many remedies without result, he had an X-Ray photograph taken, which also failed to show where the trouble was. Fortunately, just at this juncture, when he almost had given up hope of any relief, Gin Pills were brought to his notice. These famous Pills in a very short time enabled him to pass the stone which was the cause of his trouble. We will give the name of this man on request.

Kidney and Bladder troubles should not be neglected. The first symptoms should be sufficient warning. Pain in the sides or back, constant headaches, neuralgic and sciatic pains, rheumatism, dizziness, constipation, gravel, highly-colored urine, specks before the eyes, all point to derangement. Gin Pills should be obtained without delay. Druggists and dealers carry them—50c—your money refunded if not satisfied. Free sample on request.

PRINTING Done Here

COMPARED WITH ELSEWHERE

You'd startle your tailor if, when you wanted a suit of clothes, you asked him to submit a bid in competition with a dozen other tailors.

"Why," he would say, "this is ridiculous. This man knows what kind of a suit of clothes I give him. He knows he can depend on the quality of the material, the make, the fit. He knows me, and has proved my work. Some fellow around the corner may underbid me—but what will he deliver?"

You don't buy tailoring that way. No man does. You know your tailor you rely on him, you trust him, you give him your work just as long as he turns out good work at prices that are fair.

Do you buy your printing as intelligently? Do you make it your business TO FIND A GOOD PRINTER as you do a good tailor, and then rely on his experience, his ability and his judgment?

Men who do, get good printing. Men who buy printing here and there, wherever the price is shaved closest, are the ones who have printing worries

THE VETERANS' CONVENTION.

The Great War Veterans' Convention which is to be held in Peterboro is only five weeks away and if the 600 delegates from all parts of the province are to be received with the hospitality that their war records merits, preparations for their civic reception and for the entertainment features in connection with their visit should soon be inaugurated. It has been suggested that a committee representing the whole body of citizens should be struck to deal with the details of the reception and probably the matter could best be handled by such a committee. The main point seems to be however, is to get to work early for the G.W.V.A. convention is the largest gathering of its kind that Peterboro has had to provide for and too much should not be left until the last moment if the reception is to be worthy of the visitors and of Peterboro.

A DESIRABLE CHANGE.

The changes in the Workmen's Compensation Act advocated by the Labour members of the Legislature appear to be reasonable and desirable. Especially is this true of the movement on the part of the representatives of Labour to equalize the allowances that are paid to the widows and dependents under the Act. An increase of 50 per cent. in these awards came into effect in April of last year. The women who were granted allowances before that time are only receiving $30 a month with $5 for each child, while in the case of those who came under the Act since April of last year $50 a month is being paid with $7.50 a month for each child. There are about 400 widows and 600 children trying to exist on the old guards while those who receive the new scale number fewer than 100 widows and 150 children. There is no difference in the cost of living and yet there is a fifty per cent. difference in the incomes of the two classes. The increase in allowances as a matter of justice should be made retroactive so as to include all widows and dependents. The present arrangement is certainly not equitable.

CANADA'S FIRE WASTE.

The importance and interest of the subject which Mr. J. Grove Smith, of Ottawa, will discuss before the Board of Trade and the Engineering Institute on Thursday evening should be sufficient to ensure a large attendance of members of both bodies. Mr. Smith will deal with "The Economic Significance of Canada's Fire Waste," his lecture being illustrated by motion pictures, and as his position as Dominion Fire Commissioner has made him a thorough master of the subject, upon which he is to speak, those who attend tomorrow night should receive a lot of vital information, presented in a most interesting manner. Canada's fire loss has grown to enormous proportions, being greater per capita than that of any other country. Much of the waste has been due to the ravages of forest fires and Mr. Smith will devote a portion of his address to the feature while he will also deal with fire prevention in the cities and towns. There is no subject in which there should be greater interest and as the members of the Board of Trade and the Engineering Institute have the privilege of inviting theiir friends there should be a representative gathering to hear the Dominion Fire Commissioner.

JUPITER NODS.

If the Review's information on daylight saving is not any more accurate than its statement that the system was authorized last year by act of Parliament our contemporary can hardly be accepted as an authority. As a matter of fact, Parliament declined to adopt daylight saving last year and the new time was not nationally used, although the railways and the majority of urban centres put the system into force on their own account—just as many enlightened communities will do during the coming summer. Our contemporary would do well to use the time that it devotes to finding new expressions to call the Examiner to studying the history of the daylight saving movement in Canada if it wants to pose as an oracle on this as it does on all other subjects.

If it had done so on this occasion it would have discovered that although daylight saving was adopted by the Canadian Government for the summer months of 1918, it was rejected by Parliament last year owing to the opposition of the farming interests. The railways, however, to maintain their connections at the border with the American roads used the new time and most Canadian towns and cities—Peterboro included—also adopted daylight saving. Although there was no "measure duly authorized by Act of the Dominion Parliament" as the Review mistakenly declares, there was not the slightest difficulty in regard to the legality of this course on the part of the municipalities.

The United States last year adopted daylight saving as an national system. This may account for the Review's impression that the new time was officially adopted in Canada, our contemporary's well-known admiration for and interest in everything American having perhaps been responsible for its mistake in regard to daylight saving on this side of the boundary-line.

AMERICAN RURAL SCHOOLS.

Education is very much to the fore, and many and general are the complaints heard in Canada concerning it; but is it better anywhere else? The Minneapolis Journal recently had an editorial upon rural education in the States which makes us doubt this. It says that the state of affairs is something worse than a regrettable condition, it is a plight, meaning thereby a dangerous condition. And this plight it says, is the more hopeless because America prides itself on its public school system, even its rural school system, where, according to facts published by the United States Bureau of Education, the blind are leading the blind into the ditch with little prospect of ever getting out.

More than half the school population of America lives in rural and village districts, it is stated, and are taught by about three hundred thousand teachers. Government statistics show that at least one-half of these teachers are mere girls and boys. At least one hundred thousand of them are sixteen, seventeen and eighteen years of age, while more than one-half are twenty or less. Because these teachers are so young they are necessarily inexperienced, immature in judgment, and otherwise poorly equipped for their work. Of one-half this corps it may truly be said their inefficiency is pitful. The annual "turn over" in this corps of three hundred thousand is one hundred and thirty thousand. The average teaching period of the rural teacher is less than two years. Of this three hundred thousand at least sixty thousand are so poorly educated as to be unable to meet the very meagre standards of the lowest grade of teachers' certificates.

These teachers were given emergency certificates because of the shortage of better material. And even at that, there are now more than a million of children in America out of school because not enough teachers can be found to teach them. And more than a million are now under teachers who have not had more than an eighth grade education—many of themless.

This is bad enough but the Journal says does not end the list of indictments against the rural school. It is found that native born illiterates are proportionately six times as numerous in the rural districts as in the urban districts; because in the cities, schools are larger and better equipped; the grade of the teacher is higher; the wages are better and the compulsory attendance laws better enforced. The war test that showed one-fourth of the young men unable to write an intelligent letter or get the sense out of a newspaper, also showed that the greater number of these were from rural school districts. The small rural school is a failure as an educator and a hindrance to the entry of better education the Journal thinks.

Then what is the remedy? The Journal considers it to be higher and harder requirements for a teacher's certificate, accompanied by pay that will make it an inducement for people of the best intelligence and teaching ability to take up teaching as a life profession which is about the remedy suggested for improving education in Canada.—Kingston Standard.

IRISH AUTO DRIVERS DECLARE STRIKE OFF

BELFAST, Feb. 11.—Automobile drivers who recently struck as a protest against the order that they obtain Government permits before operating their machines have declared off their strike and are returning to work. This movement was general throughout Ireland outside of Ulster. The men, however, still refuse to take out permits, asserting the authorities have insisted upon this formality in order that the police might interfere with the drivers.

Heart Disease and Nerve Troubles Sweep the Country

Probably at no period in the world's history have heart and nerve troubles been so prevalent as they are to-day.

The heart can't stand the stress and strain of this busy, bustling age, and the care and worry, the anxiety and activity of business life constitute a serious drain on the nervous system.

The business of this work-a-day world goes with such a rush that the stoutest hearts and strongest nerves break down under the strain.

On the first approach of any breakdown of the system Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills should be taken. The reconstructive power of these pills on the heart and nerve system is simply marvellous.

Mr. W. A. Wright, Hopewell Ave., Ottawa, Ont., writes:—"After suffering for some time with my heart, I consulted a number of doctors, but got no relief. However, I read what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills had done for others, who had the same symptoms and thought I would give them a trial. Believe me, six boxes cured me completely. I am feeling fine now, and can attend to my work every day. I can recommend your pills to any one suffering as I did."

MOTHERS WATCH CHILDREN STARVE

Lack of Clothing Adds to Suffering Among Jewish Residents of Poland.

The patient resignation with which a mother in Poland accepts what the fates have in store for her children who frequently die of starvation before her eyes, is one of the things that leaves a lasting impression on relief workers there.

Jacob Baaheim, who has just returned from abroad, where he had charge of a relief unit for the Joint Distribution Committee, which disbursed funds raised by the American Jewish Relief Committee and other bodies, said that food is distributed to the children in Lods on a ration basis, and that where the small folks were unable to appear in person because of lack of clothing or illness from the "starvation sickness," the allotment was given to the mother. On one occasion a little woman with great hunger-appealing eyes, asked for four rations. The following day she appeared again and asked for only two.

"Two?" repeated the distributing agent. "Why you received four yesterday."

"Yes, but to-day I need only two, because," and the worker may have only imagined that he caught a note of relief in the utter hopelessness of the curiously quiet answer, "two of my little ones died during the night."

For the purpose of relieving this terrible suffering an appeal for funds is being made by the Canadian Jewish War Relief Committee, of which full details will be given later.

HOW THE SAXONS CLUNG TO OLD WORDS

Norman Invasion Enriched English But Couldn't Displace It.

You of course remember, how, in "Ivanhoe," Scott's great novel, Wamba the Saxon clown, compares the names for live animals and dressed meat. Thus "ox," "steer," and "cow" were Saxon names. But "beef" was Norman. 'Calf," "sheep," "swine" and "deer" were the animals tended by the Saxon hind, but when put on the table for his Norman master, became "veal," "mutton," "pork" and "venison." The one flesh that decked the table of the peasant, "bacon," was the only meat that retained its Saxon name.

MOBS OF CHILDREN CRAVING FOR BREAD

Gaze Into Bakeshop Windows for Hours at a Time, Hoping for Something to Eat.

"The saddest thing in all Eastern Europe at the present moment—worse than all the other instances of starvation and even of death and disease on every hand—are the child-mobs one sees outside of the few bakeries that are able to keep going in Warsaw," Sholom Asch, the famous Yiddish playwright and poet reported to the American Jewish Relief Committee upon his return from Eastern Europe, where he went as a commissioner of the Joint Distribution Committee of American Funds for Jewish Sufferers from the War.

"In the bakery windows are a few loaves of bread, and sometimes cakes, that are sold at a simply prohibitive price," he explained, "and even if these were as cheap as in Canada and the United States, their taste would still be unknown to the hungry Jewish children, who live on the cup of soup a day they get from American Jewish relief agencies. But the youngsters tantalize themselves with the sight of food, when they cannot get the taste of it.

"They press up to the window, and at first merely stare respectfully at the bread, an uncanny little crew of gaunt small folks with old faces and suffering unchildish eyes. Perhaps it is raining, or the wind is blowing coldly through the tatters that they wear, that little barefoot army, but they huddle together for warmth, and do not stir. The sight of the bread has fascinated them, it is so rarely seen.

"A customer comes out, leaving the door ajar for a moment, and the warm fragrance of the bake-shop drifts out to the little ragamuffins, maddening them. They press closer to the window, their thin little faces against the glass. Those in front put out their tongues and lick the glass, as if, by so doing, they could taste the bread behind it. No poet could ever write into words the wistfulness of their faces as they do it.

"One of the men from the bakery comes out and drives them away every few minutes, else they would break the glass. They are afraid of him, and for a few minutes they stand at a distance, their eyes still upon the bread. Then hunger overcomes their fear, and they press up to the bakery window again. Soon they are eagerly licking the glass once more. And this goes on all day very day in front of the bakery window."

More money is needed to help feed those children, and an appeal soon is to be made in Canada for that purpose.

SANDRA THE JEALOUS

SANDRA SENDS FOR ROSE GRANDON

CHAPTER XLIV.

Suddenly I decided what I would do! I would send for Rose Grandon to stay with me. Everett had not forbidden me to do so—he couldn't very well when I had no such thought when he left, and so naturally did not ask if I might have her.

"It would be better to have her while Everett is away," I said to myself. "They might not get along and then it would be awkward for me." It was sophistry, and I knew it. But I didn't care—not for the minute. Leola did as she liked and he, Everett loved her. I would show him, show them all that I too could do as I liked.

After the telegram was sent, however, I was a bit frightened.

"Please come and visit me a few days. I am alone," was all I had said. I knew Rose well enough to be sure she would jump at the chance of visiting me. She was terribly curious and would be anxious to see how I lived.

Rose had said long ago, before I married Everett, that she didn't believe Everett would let his wife peep if he were not in the mood; that she was sure his wife would not be allowed to say her soul was her own. I never forgotten that speech. She"s see if she came when Everett was at home that she had been very nearly right. But with him away, she would only be envious of me for my lovely home.

Then, too, I would have Barrett Edmonds meet her. Perhaps he would fall in love with Rose and my dream of having her live next door would come true after all.

I said nothing to Mrs. Gray until I received Rose's answer.

"Coming on morning train—Rose" was her reply to my invitation.

"A young girl friend is coming to visit me to-day.' I said to Mrs. Gray, "a girl from home."

"I am very glad. It isn't good for you to stay alone," she replied pleasantly. Then, "If you know what your friend likes and will tell me, I will see that cook serves it."

"Oh thank you, Mrs. Gray!" I exclaimed. "Rose just adores chocolate cake, and cook makes such delicious ones.

I ordered the car and met Rose at the station. We did not drive directly home, but went the longest way round so Rose, could see the town. She enthused so about the car, my clothes, etcetera, that I put my finger on my lips so she wouldn't talk so loud. I didn't want the chauffeur to hear her.

Just before we reached home we ran into Barrett Edmonds. I saw him before he saw us, and told the chauffeur to overtake him.

"Who is he" Rose asked, as I called to him.

"A friend of mine," I answered, "I want you to meet him and to like him." Yet as I said it I wondered if I really did want her to like Barrett—too well, Iwas rather shocked for a moment at the thought.

"Oh, Mr. Edmonds! I know it is not good form to call after you, but I so wanted Miss Grandon to meet you. Rose, my friend Mr. Edmonds. Miss Grandon is staying a few days with me. Mr. Graham is away and I was lonely so I sent for her," after which rather elaborate explanation I subsided.

Had I imagined it, or had a look of something very like disappointment passed over Barrett's face when I told him I had sent for Rose because I was alone and lonely? I was almost sure of it when he said:

"If your friends had known you were alone they would have been delighted to keep you company."

We chatted a moment longer and then drove on, after Barrett promised ot drop in that evening for some music.

"He's wonderful! I could fall in love with him without half trying!" Rose exclaimed as we drove on. "What lovely eyes, and such long lashes!"

"He is very good-looking," I said soberly. Someway Rose's enthusiasm jarred me.

"He is more than good looking—and he is young. You know I never have been able yet to understand how you came to marry a man so much older than you are," Rose said as we drew up to the curb in front of the house. "Now if it had been a man like Mr. Edmonds, I—oh, what a lovely place! What a lucky girl you are!"

I wondered if I were a lucky girl. She hadn't seemed to think so until she saw the house. A girl couldn't be happy just because she had a fine house to live in— that I had discovered. But it was something to have Rose envious. I longed for her to envy me.

B.C. FACING BIG ORIENTAL PROBLEM

SOME 14,000 JAPS AND 25,000 CHINESE ARE IN THE PROVINCE.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 10.—The Oriental problem in British Columbia occupied considerable time at the Provincial Anglican Synod meeting held in this city. It was shown in the report of the Oriental Missions Board that there are at least 14,000 Japanese and 26,000 Chinese in this province and the number is steadily increasing. They provide a serious economic and moral problem.

The superintendent of the Chinese mission stated that 99 per cent. of the Chinese here are men and most of them were described as "the riff-raff from China's lower provinces." He declared that the Chinatowns in this province were plague spots, filled with social evils, and they were a grave menace to society. The superintendent of the Japanese mission declared that the Federal Government's provisions to stop Japanese immigration were not effective. The population was increasing at a rapid rate. He denounced the Government for slackness in allowing Japanese papers to be printed in this city without knowing their contents.

Diversity of Opinion.

The Anglican clergy and laity on the coast are somewhat at various on this foreign problem. The former believe in Christianizing the Orientals and accepting them as citizens with all that implies. The latter are opposed to the Orientals mingling in social and political life with the whites.

One of the grievences of British Columbia against the rest of the Dominion is that the people east of the Rockies do not recognize the seriousness of the Oriental menace. If they did the Ottawa authorities, it is claimed, would soon take more effective steps to curb the influx from China and Japan. On account of the mild climate on the coast ninety per cent. of these newcomers remain in British Columbia. Outside of Chinese laundrymen few look for occupation beyond the Rockies.

SCOTLAND BEATS WALES IN INTERNATIONAL GAME

LONDON, Feb. 10.—The international Rugby match at Edinburgh attracted 25,000 spectators, Scotland, after seven successive defeats, overthrew Wales 9 to 5 principally through the magnificient display of her forwards with their whirlwind rushes. Wales had powerful players, but Wetter was frequently off-side which proved Wales' undoing. The Welsh players got the ball in the scrim more frequently than the Scots but it was in their clever breaking up that the Scottish forwards upset the Welsh backs, Usher, Kennedy, McPherson and notably Maxwell rendered wonderful service to Scotland. Lizzel, Park and J. Jones did finely for Wales.

VIENNA, Feb. 11.—Reports that former Emperor Charles is financially embarrassed are denied in a semi-official note issued here. It is asserted the fugitive Monarch is possessed of a fortune of several million kronen, to which may be added the value of his own and former Princess Zita's jewels.

BITRO-PHOSPHATE IS GOOD FOR THIN NERVOUS PEOPLE

A French scientist has discovered an organic phosphate which should be a very effective remedy for weak nerves, sleeplessness, thinness and lack of strength, energy, and vigour.

Its substance is described by specialists as identical in composition with certain vital elements naturally found in brain and nerve cells and one which when taken into the human system is quickly converted into healthy, living tissue.

This phosphate is already widely known among druggists in this country as Bitro-Phosphate, and some physicians claim that through its use strength, energy, vigour, and nerve force are frequently increased in two weeks' time.

Dr. Frederick Kolle, Editor of New York Physicians' "Who's Who," says it should be prescribed by every doctor and used in every hospital in the United States. As there are a great variety of so-called phosphates, those who wish to test the substance should be sure to get the genuine Bitro-Phosphate.

MRS. SANDERSON OCCUPIED CHAIR

PRECEDENT ESTABLISHED AT MEETING OF CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY.

A precedent was established at the regular monthly meeting of the Children's Aid Society held yesterday when for the first time in the history of the association a lady (Mrs. W. A. Sanderson) vice-Chairman of the Society occupied the chair is the absense of President C. J. Phelan.

Difficult Deputation.

Sobbing and accompanied by a friend to bear out her statements, a mother of children who have been taken care of by the Society, demanded in no uncertain language the return of her children and asked members of the Society to retract statements concerning her home and character of her husband. Chief Thompson who knows the history of the family urged that no action should be taken.

Those Present.

There were present Mrs. W. A. Sanderson, in the chair; Dr. King; Mr. S. Whatley; Chief Thompson; Mr. John Edgar; Mr. H. B. Cowan; Mesdames. Fanning; W. Turner. J. Knox, W. Stocker and W. H. Gibbs.

Agent's Report.

During the month 8 applications for children were received by Mr. G. W. Powell, agent, 2 who returned to parents, 21 involved and 3 complaints received.

Monthly Statement.

In regard to the suggested monthly report to be asked by the Children's Aid Society from teachers in charge of schools which wards of the Society are attending Dr. D. C. King said that in conservation with Mr. Lee he found that the manner suggested by Mr. Edgar, of having each teacher send in a monthly report on a specially prepared post card, would doubtless be satisfactory.

Matron's Report.

The Matron, Mrs. Read reported 15 children involved during the month 2 returned to their mothers, 2 placed out, 11 in the home, 8 wards and 3 non-wards.

Matron's Salary.

The matter of the Matron's salary was placed before the Board by the committee of Mr. Whatley, Chief Thompson and Mr. John Edgar for general discussion. Mr. Edgar suggested a salary of $1,000 to cover the care of the garden and the maid she employs. Chief Thompson paid a warm tribute to Mrs. Read's efficiency also Mr. Whatley.

The matter was referred back to the Finance Committee, the President and Secretary who will draw up a new agreement with the Matron.

Get Back Your Grip On Health

Physician Gives Practical Advice on What to Do To Help Build Up Your Strength Power and Endurance—Explains

How Organic Iron—Nuxated Iron—Helps Put Renewed Vim and Energy Into the Veins of the Weak, Nervous and Run-Down—

Thousands of men and women are impairing their constitutions laying themselves open to illness and literally losing their grip on health simply because their blood is thinning out and, possibly starving through lack of iron.

To possess the power, energy and endurance that win the blood should be rich in strength-giving iron. For this purpose physicians below explain why they prescribe organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which by enriching the blood and creating thousands of new red blood cells often quickly transforms the flabby flesh and bloodless tissues and pallid cheeks of weak, anaemic men and women into a glow of health. It increases the strength of delicate, nervous, run-down folks in two weeks' time in many instances.

You can tell which people have a firm Grip on Health—Strong, Vigorous Folks with Plenty of Iron in Their Blood

In explaining why he regards iron as absolutely essential to the greatest development of physical and mental power, Dr. George H. Baker, formerly Physician and Surgeon, Monmouth Memorial Hospital of New Jersey, says:

"Refined foods and modern methods of cooking have robbed us of much of the iron which Nature intended we should receive and by supplying this deficiency and increasing the red blood corpuscles I know of nothing more effective than organic iron—Nuxated Iron. The fact that Nuxated Iron is today being used by over three million people annually as a tonic, strength and blood-builder, is in itself an evidence of tremendous public confidence and I am convinced that if others would take Nuxated Iron when they feel weak and run-down it would help make a nation of stronger, healthier men and women."

Commenting on the use of Nuxated Iron as a tonic, strength and blood-builder, Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, said:

"In my opinion the greatest curse to the health and strength of American people of today is the alarming deficiency of iron in their blood. Lack of sufficient iron in the blood has ruined many a man's nerves and utterly robbed him of that virile force and stamina which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life.

"Therefore I strongly advise those who feel the need of a strength and blood builder to get a physician's prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—or if you don't want to go to this trouble, then purchase only Nuxated Iron in its original packages and see that this particular name (Nuxated Iron) appears on the package."

Numbers of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while have most astonishingly increased their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had, in some cases, been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron, recommended above, is not a patent nostrum but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the ordinary inorganic iron preparations, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make one constipated, upset the stomach or cause indigestion. Its manufacturers guarantee that every penny will be refunded by the druggist from whom it was purchased if after using a few weeks according to directions and the increase in strength and endurance is not entirely satisfactory. It is dispensed in this city by all good druggists.

THE CALL FROM ARMENIA

AN ARMENIAN GENERAL STATES THAT UNTIL PROTECTION IS SECURED FROM THE KURDS THE ARMENIANS CANNOT RETURN TO THEIR FARMS—PRESS THROUGHOUT ONTARIO AIDS GREATLY IN SECURING CONTINUANCE OF GREATLY NEEDED CONTRIBUTIONS.

TO PROMOTE SELF HELP.

Seeds and implements of a sort that will aid in cultivation are being sent to Armenia, but the destructon of the live stock will make it necessary to do most of the cultivation when spring comes by hand. The officals of the Near East Relief will do what can be done to bring about the resumption of agriculture, but the great difficulty in the way is the unsettled condition of the country and the doubt that exists as to its political future.

THE LOOTER STILL DREADED.

General Azgapetian, an Armenian long resident in the United States, and who was in the Persian diplomatic service before the war, has returned to America after several years of active warfare to plead the cause of his people. His narrative of conditions in this stricken land is authentic and convincing.

"Armenia is the battlefield of the ages," General Azgapetian says. "While on the march with the Russian army, then driving back the brutal Turks, I, myself, came across a mother and her baby crucified in a church. This was the Turkish way of showing hatred and contempt for the Christian Church. Aid is needed now as never before for the Armenians. Although the Turkish Government, frightened by the consequences to itself now that the Allies have won, has ordered a stop to the looting and massacres of Armenians, the tribes surrounding Armenia will not obey and the murder and rapine still continue. That makes it impossible for our people to go back to the soil and makes us dependent upon America to be saved from starvation."

WHY ERIVAN SUFFERED MOST.

Miss Chamberlain, whose report as to conditions in Erivan when she left that city was quoted yesterday, gives the following explanation as to the overcrowding there which is causing much disease as well as concentration of the wretched in the Armenian Capital:

"In normal times Erivan had a population of 35,000. When I first came there I was told that there were at least 400,000 people in the city. They congested the streets, the alleys, the courtyards, ruined, roofless buildings; they huddled in the squares and fields, anywhere and everywhere that gave any promise of shelter from the pitiless, penetrating rain of the Caucasus that chills one to the bone, even when warmly clad.

"And these hundreds of thousands were not warmly clad. Far from it. In rags and tatters they had wandered for years. The once-rich and the once-poor who had fled before the advancing Turks were now on the same level or raggedness. The Turk had gone but he had left in his wake hunger, disease and a wretchedness that I ner others who have seen and lived with it cannot describe. Starving and hopeless, these ragged people swarmed everywhere. Hundreds died. They died in the streets, the courtyards, in the fields. Others poured in to replace them. News of the defeat of the Turk was show in reaching some of the outlying mountain fastnesses where many had fled. Others who had reached Russia were coming back, slowly and feebly, for te knowledge that hunger awaited them could not keep the Armenians from their former homes. And Erivan, centre of this once big and populous, as well as prosperous, district, was the centre also of this return."

BROCK STREET SKATING RINK CHANGES HANDS

LOCAL SYNDICATE SECURES PROPERTY IN ORDER TO PROTECT HOCKEY FOR THE CITY.

The Brock street rink, which has been on the market for some few months back, and which on several occasions has been almost purchased for purposes other than hockey, was yesterday taken over by a local syndicate for the express purpose of giving the young men of the city an opportunity to play the game of hockey in Peterborough, and for the hockey loving public to be able to see their favorite game played. The rink was turned over on the condition that it would be retained for hockey purposes.

Some years ago when it looked as if the rink might be used for some other purpose, the late Hon. J. R. Stratton, who had always taken a keen interest in the athletic life of the city, come forward and purchased the project with the same object as the new syndicate who have now taken it over.

While the names of the men are not given out, yet it may be said of them that they are keenly interested in clean amateur sport and the city is fortunate that the rink has fallen into their hands.

Extensive improvements are proposed and it would not be surprising if next winter the Brock street rink will be one of the finest hockey and skating rinks to be found in the smaller cities of Ontario.

Messrs. Taylor and Howden, real estate dealers, put through the deal which is one of the most important of the kind, inasmuch as it protects the hockey interests of the city for all time to come, that has been put through for some time.

BLAMES O.B.U. FOR SUICIDE

INTERNATIONAL PRESIDENT WAS FOUND DEAD.

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, Feb. 11—Intimidation by agitators working in the Canadian National Railway shops drove Charles Waver to commit suicide, his father-in-law, J. A. Beresford, charged today.

Waver was found dead on Monday afternoon, hanging from a beam in the basement of his home.

Waver was president of the International Union of Carmen and Boilermakers, and was a boilermaker at the shops. He had steadily adhered to the international faction of labour, and had resisted all attempts to get him to shift his allegiance to the One Big Union, according to Mr. Beresford.

"He practically was driven from his job two weeks ago because he stuck to the International," Beresford declared. "He hadn't been working for two weeks. He said he was sick, but I have found out that he wasn't ill. It was the jarring and petty persecutions that drove him out of his mind."

PETER ROBINSON CHAPTER

At the annual meeting of the Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E., held on Friday evening last in the Public Library, the reports predented were most encouraging — the secretary's Miss Estelle Knox, report showing increased activity and membership, and the treasurer's, Miss Maisie Armstrong, report indicating a substantial balance.

Secretary's Report.

Eight regular meetings and two special meetings were held during the year. Membership at the end of the year just closed was 88, an increase of 23 members over the preceding year. The revenues derived from the Chapter's work have been donated to worthy causes as follows:

Donations.

Muskoka Free Hospital	$250.00
Babies' Clinic	100.00
57th Regimental Band	50.00
Playgrounds' Association	50.00
Mary R. Gooderham Fund	25.00
War Memorial Fund	500.00
War Veterans' Xmas Treat	25.00
Childrens' Shelter	15.00

A 1919 Victory Loan bond of $500.00 was purchased, and is now in the Chapter's treasury. In March a cot was endowed in the Muskoka Free Hospital. This cot is now occupied by a former employee of the De Laval Company, Ltd., of Peterborough, who are now maintaining the patient at the company's expense.

At the request of the Peterborough Health Association, the Chapter assumed charge of a cafe chantant and dances at the local annual Motor Show in April. A very substantial sum was realised from these undertakings, and the proceeds were devoted to the work of the Health Association.

A motor boat donated to the Chapter by Mr. Goyette was sold at a fair price for its value. An Easter dance held at the Empress Hotel was, through the generous support of the Peterborough people, a considerable success in every way.

It was a pleasure for our Executive to serve at the War Veterans' banquet in May.

Our then Regent, Mrs. J. G. Campazzi, and second Vice-Regent, Miss Georgie Stevenson, represented the Chapter at the annual meeting of the I.O.D.E. and the National Chapter of Canada, held in Montreal, 29th to 31st May.

On 3rd June, through the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Hatton, their home and grounds were made available for a garden party, which proved successful in every way. The 57th Regimental Band furnished the music, which helped greatly in the splendid results.

During the summer regular weekly dances were held at the Chemong Pavilion. The proceeds of a dance held there on 24th May were donated to the G.W.V.A. These dances had the hearty support of the Peterborough people, young and old.

Regent Resigned.

Our Regent resigned in September, and since that time Miss Helen Stapleton has most capably filled the office. It was with profound and universal regret that the Chapter was obliged to give reluctant acceptance to the resignation of our Regent, Mrs. J. G. Campazzi, whose loyalty, indefatigable work, and enthusiasm inspired every member in carrying out the work of the Chapter and the influence of her unselfish example will leave indelible impression upon the Chapter members.

A dance held at the G. W. V. A. Hall in September also added to the list of undertakings that met with success.

Ushering at the Grand Theatre was discontinued on 1st June, and at the urgent request of the manager, it was voted to resume this work in October. The ushering is very popular with the members, and is a substantial source of revenue.

During the months of October, November, and December, weekly dances were held at the Conservatory of Music Hall.

The annual Chapter dance was held on 23rd January at the Empress Hotel, and a most enjoyable evening was spent, despite the bad weather.

Loyal Support.

The support of every member made possible the carrying out of the Chapter's work during the year just closed, and the retiring executive avail themselves of this opportunity to express their appreciation to each individual member for this support. For the incoming executive we bespeak your help—the call of service in these days is so insistent and so varied that though we, every one of us, members of the Peter Robinson Chapter, give her utmost, we can but to a very small degree do the work that comes within the objects of our Order.

Most respectfully submitted,
Estelle I. Knox, Secretary.

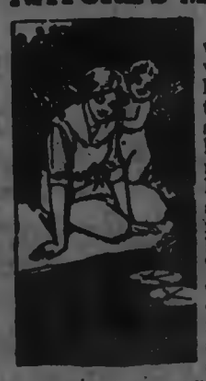
NATURE'S MIRROR



When a woman is well and healthy—there's a sparkle in her eyes, a rose tint in her cheeks, and she has rich red blood. There's elasticity in every movement and a spring in her step. Love comes to every woman who has bounding health—but when she is pallid, dull eyed, languid, she has no magnetism nor does she appeal to any man.

Such a change in feelings and looks!

After suffering pain, feeling nervous, dizzy, weak and dragged down by weaknesses of her sex—with eyes sunken, black circles and pale cheeks—such a woman is quickly restored to health by the Favorite Prescription of Dr. Pierce. Changed, too, in looks, for after taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the skin becomes clear, the eyes brighter, the cheeks plump. It is purely vegetable, contains no alcohol.

Washing Won't Rid Head of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this to-night, and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

Says Dr. Leonard Keene Hirshberg

Of Johns Hopkins University: "Morbid states of health and infections are most common among those who have forgotten that there is such an excellent preventative of sickness as milk."

Proofs in abundance show that Pasteurized Milk is probably the greatest factor of safety for your nutrition, and protection against disease."

"Milk used in combination with butter, or each used separately, either cold or warm, are excellent 'warders off' of many physical troubles. They act as preventatives because they build up bodily resistance to the disease."

Use milk liberally, either hot or cold. If you want to get a greater variety, a great number of delicious milk drinks are recommended by Dr. Hirshberg.

ITS OPERATION WAS SUBJECT OF HIS ADDRESS TO CONVENTION IN WINNIPEG—HOW LOANS ARE MADE SAFE TO BANKS AND BORROWER ASSURED OF FIXED RATE OF INTEREST.

"The Manitoba Rural Credits Act" was the subject of an address by Mr. R. F. McWilliams of Winnipeg, formerly of Peterboro, before the Rural Credits Societies of Manitoba at their convention last month. The Act was drafted by Mr. McWilliams and the following is quoted from the main part of his address:—

It was the purpose of the Rural Credits Act to create an institution which should be a link between the banks and the farmers and should fill the gap which unquestionably then existed and prevented satisfactory operation of the credit system. It aimed to find money for farmers by finding security for bankers. It accepted the view that our bank system is in every way preferable to the American system of local banks and sought to find the means by which this banking system could be made to serve the farming interest in a way suitable to its peculiar conditions. It sought to head-off the agitation against the banks by eliminating the ground of complaint. If the plan succeeds in the long run as it has so far, it will greatly serve the interest of the entire country. If it should fail from any lack of co-operation on the part of the banks there will be an irresistible demand for a change in the banking system.

Briefly stated the plan of the act is to create co-operative groups of farmers who will pass on applications for loans and if approved will guarantee the payment of the loan to the bank or other lender. In return for the service rendered by the society in inspecting and approving the loan and guaranteeing payment the bank agrees to lend the money at a fixed low rate.

Advantages to Borrower.

The security which the act affords may be considered from the respective angles of the three parties concerned—the borrowers, the society and the lender.

To the borrower there are two primary advantages of the system. In the first place he knows in advance the rate of interest he shall have to pay and is not subject to any extortionate terms real or imaginary. In the next place the poor man with little or no capital or credit is able to secure advances which no bank would give him in the ordinary course. In certain part of the province a large part of the money has been loaned to men struggling to get on their feet, with very little capital except honesty and industry and the degree to which these loans have been repaid has abundantly justified the societies in guaranteeing the advances. Further the borrower knows that he has to depend for getting his credit not upon a bank manager, who is a stranger to him and who in many cases is a stranger in the district and unfamiliar with its local conditions or people, but upon a committee of his neighbors who are quite as conversant with his conditions and his chances of making good as he is, and also with him personally and with all the elements in his character which enter into the making of a loan. He is further free from the danger of arbitrary action by the bank manager or his head office or by a private money lender.

Societies' Legal Standing.

The rural credit society possesses the usual securities and also a number of extraordinary ones. Its rights may be classified as follows:—

(1) The ordinary security of the borrowers undertaking to, pay and his note for the amount with, if thought necessary, an endorser.

(2) A lien upon all the chattels purchased with the money, secured for him by the society and upon the proceeds of such loans, as for example, the increase of animals or crops produced by moneys advanced for that purpose.

(3) By registration in the county court the society may secure a lien on all the personal property of the borrower in the district, thus preventing any disposal of the property to a third party except in the ordinary course of business.

(4) The society and its officers and also the lender and its representatives have at all times during the currency of the loan a right of inspection of the borrowers premises to satisfy themselves that the moneys borrowed are in fact being used for the specific purposes for which the loan was made.

(5) In the event of the death or insanity of the borrower or of his leaving the premises or of his failing to carry out the purpose of the loan, the society may make a summary application to a judge of the county court who may place the agent of the society in possession of all the property of the borrower in which the society is interested, together with any other property necessary for the care or use thereof.

(6) No sale can be made by the borrower of his chattels in bulk, except under the provisions of the Bulk Sales Act, which insures the payment of all claims against the chattels by the purchaser if he does not take care that such claims are paid out of the purchase moneys. A case has just arisen in which this remedy has saved the society from loss and the borrower is being proceeded against criminally for fraud by the purchaser.

(7) The society may take any further security desired from the borrower at the time of the loan or later and frequently does so. It can take security on real property by way of additional security only, its powers in this respect being identical with those of a bank.

Lender's Security.

To the lender who may be a private person as well as a bank, there are a number of substantial advantages in loaning under this system beyond those enjoyed in ordinary commercial loans:—

(1) The bank has in effect a local advisory board, composed of picked men familiar with the neighborhood, who both pass on the loan before it is made and continue as an inspection committee during its currency.

(2) This committee acts for the lender, not only without pay but with a measure of guarantee on the part of every member as well as on each of the members of the society for whom they act.

(3) The bank has a guarantee fund contributed to by the provincial government and the municipalities, as well as by members of the society, many of whom are substantial farmers who do not require the assistance of the society in borrowing but have joined the societies to help their poorer neighbors.

(4) The lender has the advantage of all the extraordinary remedies vested in the society by the act.

(5) There is a constant supervision of the operations of every society by officers of the provincial government who are both agricultural experts, competent to advise borrowers in the best methods of making a success of their business and business men trained to judge of the loans made and alert to protect societies from any losses which might bring discredit on the system.

Bank's Concession.

In return for all these advantages, the banks are bound to lend at a rate of six per cent., plus an additional one per cent. paid by the borrower towards the expenses of the society. The bank is under no compulsion to lend but if it lends at all through a rural credit society it must lend on these terms. This provision for a fixed rate of interest is the key of the whole act. It is of secondary importance what the rate is and financial conditions may develop which would warrant an increase or a decrease in the rate, but it is of vital importance that there should be no variation from the fixed rate. With all the additional securities given by this act the banks ought to be willing to lend at the present rate particularly in view of the fact that the success of these societies means an incalculable assistance in the development of the country and a strengthening of the position of every other customer of the banks. To the farmer, it means that he can secure money on the same terms as the capitalist and if he can be satisfied that he is receiving such terms his antagonism to the banks will cease and he will become an ardent supporter and co-operator with the Canadian banks.

FOR FATHERS TO READ

If the Scout movement is to accomplish a successful piece of work for boys in any community, the first essential is a Local Association. Some I presume, will ask the question, 'What is a Local Association."

It is a body of men gathered together in a community to act in an advisory capacity to the troops within the area of that community. Its functions are to assist the Scoutmaster; to arrange for Board of Examiners relative to the respective badges; to see that the proper type of men are selected for Scoutmasters and Assistant Scoutmaster and others who are working on behalf of boy life in the community.

The Local Association elect its officers as laid down in rules and regulations governing the Boy Scout Association and may compile by-laws to meet local conditions, providing same conform to regulations, and a copy of such by-laws be forwarded to Provincial Council for their approval and confirmation.

The members of the Local Association should be made up of a number of your leading business men and clergy. Care should be taken to elect only men who will take an active and keen interest in the boy. It is necessary that an honorary secretary be appointed who will be willing to devote a little time to the Boy Scouts' Association, and through him would pass all communications, etc., with Provincial Headquarters.

If you accept membership in the Local Association you take upon ourself a responsibility to the boys in your community and no man can give a greater piece of service to the community in which the lives and to Canada at large .

To meet once or twice a month and discuss ways and means of helping the boys in your community is another duty of the Local Association, and to help the Scoutmasters in bringing about such functions and activities as will employ to advantage the spare time of the boys. If men would only realize that the boy is Canada's greatest asset and would be willing to meet and discuss problems confronting boys. It would mean that such institutions as juvenile courts, etc., would soon be abolished. Some men will say, "Oh, nonsense! I will take care of my own boy and let other fellows do the same." This does not sound well and is not sound in principle. I fully agree that the duty of each parent is to look to his own boy first, and yet we, as fathers must remember that some other fellow may be quite a hero in the eyes of our boy. Very often their hero is the Scoutmaster ,the man who leads them upon their hikes; the man who goes into camp with them. Perhaps the man who teaches them to swim—in other words, who teaches them to do things. And this fact must be realized that while some fathers may take a keen interest in their boys there may be other fathers who do not. Why not then lend your aid and co-operate in an endeavor to see that every boy in your community has an opportunity and is assisted to become the type of citizen Canada is looking for. The challenge of the times is far greater co-operation and greater co-ordination along lines that tend towards a better citizenship. This is the principle that our lads who went overseas fought for. Will you not step in, enter the ranks and fight alongside men who are helping to develop and encourage in every way possible the boys of this generation to play the game and play it fair.

If any reader wishes further information as to activities of the Boy Scout Association it will be forwarded with pleasure by the Provincial Office for the Province, Cor. Sherbourne and Bloor streets, Toronto, or your Local Council Sec., E. J. Whiteside, Brownto nP.O.

PROVINCIAL ELECTRICAL WORKERS OUTLINE PROPOSITION TO PRESENT TO GOVERNMENT.

TORONTO, Feb. 10.—The provincial council of Electrical Workers concluded its work Saturday evening, electing the following officers: President, A. Morrison, of Peterboro; secretary, W. G. McCallum, Toronto; vice-Presidents, T. Seager, St. Catharines; L. Smith, London; A. Moore, Sudbury. The statements presented to the conference showed that there are 5,000 union electricians in the province, with unions from Fort William to Ottawa.

Among the demands that will be made on behalf of the Electrical Workers and which will be presented to Premier Drury will be a licensing system for contractors and workers, a uniform wage for the entire province based on a decent standard of living, the arranging and rearranging of power-distributing lines that two feet clearance is given to all workmen, an amendment to the Workman's Compensation Act so that private firms will be brought under Part One of the act, and representation upon the Provincial and municipal Hydro-Electric Commission wherever the commissions are appointed.

What They Will Do.

If these concessions are granted the electrical workers will be responsible for the training, educating and the supply of efficient mechanics for the electrical industry along practical and technical lines.

License the Employers.

Employers are to be licensed, that their work may be efficient, and mechanics who have served four years' apprenticeship and can pass proper tests to receive a certificate that they are competent to follow their trade. This is sought because of the arduous, dangerous and peculiarly social nature of the work.

Serve Four Years.

An apprenticeship of four years or four years' practical experience is to entitle the electrical worker to a journeyman's electrician's wage. This means an alteration in the grades of the present wage scales, and with a uniform wage scale in the province an additional wage bill to the power companies of $3,600,000. The wages of 1920 are to be fixed at another conference during March or April.

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

The real effectiveness, the old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It takes but a moment to prepare and really there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth); then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, this mixture saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens the dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness, and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

WILL FOOD PRICES DROP NOW THAT EXPORT CEASES?

EUROPE HAS STOPPED BUYING OWING TO RATE OF EXCHANGE.

MONTREAL, Feb. 10.—That the fall in sterling exchange and on Canadian money in the United States may work together to defeat the high cost of living is a fact which is gaining ground and attracting many disciples in Montreal to-day. That it may prove to be a will o' the wisp is conceded, but on the other hand strong arguments are produced to prove the contrary.

Europe has needed almost every article in the way of foodstuffs and of clothing that one could name. Her war-swept lands, depleted populations, disorganised industries, and empty purses have prevented the nations there from recovering the status quo ante with anything like the necessary rapidity. As a consequence, food and raw material have had to be imported into Europe.

U. S. Reaped a Harvest.

The United States of America has reaped a harvest in selling supplies to the stricken countries. According to the official reports of that country the rest of the world owed her almost $4,000,000,000 in 1919. Practically the bulk of this was owed by Europe. She simply had to buy no matter what the price. Canada in minor fashion also benefited by the flow of exports to Europe. But with us latterly that has been almost balanced by the exchange against us across the border.

But even the worm will turn, and Europe with the recent tremendous drop in exchange has had to refrain from purchasing goods on this side of the Atlantic, as with the odds so much against her it seemed impossible that she could ever pay the staggering sums that the export prices plus the premiums' amount to.

Hope for Food Reductions.

This aspect of the situation was discussed with several Montreal exporters and produce merchants with respect to the possible drop in the cost of commodities that may ensue from the cancellation of export orders for foodstuffs. Butter, eggs, cheese, potatoes, fowls, meat of all kinds, and flour must be disposed of in the country if the export channels are closed up.

The United States exporting the same type of commodities will not be a market as her outgoing sources have suffered to the same extent. The result will be that in Canada and the United States a vast accumulation of foodstuffs will be collected with the only selling market within the boundaries of North America. These articles will not keep indefinitely, so they will have to be put on the market.

An incident illustrating this happened last week in New York. A consignment of eggs had been collected at 50 cents a dozen with the expectation of the European demand. This demand failed to materialise as a result of the drop in exchange, so the whole lot was placed on the market at prices ranging from 45 cents to 11 cents a dozen, with the result also that fresh eggs dropped 8 cents a dozen.

It was impossible to secure actual figures with regard to concrete examples in Canada, but it was stated emphatically by a prominent produce merchant that foreign trade was absolutely at a standstill. The foodstuffs are in the warehouses here, but there are no buyers on the other side. Another exporter said that he had an office in London, and there conditions were slightly better than with the rest of Europe.

No one would predict the future state of the export trade. One man, however, stressed the point that Europe simply had to have foodstuffs to prevent starvation and epidemics. She would have to continue to purchase such supplies even if a still lower drop in exchange follows. Several others said it was too soon to make any statement with regard to the cancellation of exports as the situation may right itself in a few days.

erty League to the distillers and brewers. Neither have I any knowledge whether a similar letter was sent to the race track people and the brewers and distillers with respect to the Premier's candidature in Halton. But the Premier is in much the same boat as myself and you can draw your own inference as to these things—and particularly from what is happening at this moment in Halton.

Does It Disqualify Him.

"I am not vain enough to suppose that there is anything personal in the attitude of the Liberty League towards me as expressed in this letter. They would have been equally opposed to any Attorney-General who is in active sympathy with the O.T.A. There is therefore no occasion for any animosity or bitterness between the Liberty League and the present Government. The simple question for the electors of East Wellington is—Does the fact that the Attorney-General is in sympathy very hearty sympathy, with the objects of the O.T.A. disqualify him for that office That is the issue raised by Mr. Carruthers' letter.

"But there is another issue raised and I am compelled to tell you about that. You will not the phrase, continuous and uncompromising attitude towards race tracks. The inference is that I am opposed to horse racing. That is not true, I have never said a word against horse racing. I am no more opposed to it than I am to baseball or golf or cricket or any other outdoor game or pastime.

"Here again I do not understand there is anything personal in the attitude which Mr. Carruthers assumes in this letter on the part of the proprietors of the race tracks. I suppose they would be equally opposed to any Attorney-General who would be opposed ot the keeping of common betting houses on their race tracks. The question for the electors of East Wellington is —Does the fact that the present Attorney-General believes that there should be no exception to the section of the Criminal Code which makes it a crime to carry on a common betting house, in favor either of the foreign professional race track man at Fort Erie and Windsor who are carrying on betting houses there in evasion of the laws of New York and Michigan, or even in favor of the eminently respectable public men who own one of the race tracks in Toronto—I say the question is does this attitude on the part of the Attorney-General disqualify him from office—or is it rather a qualification?

More Responsibility Now.

"There were five lawyers in the old Government, and the legal questions arising in the different departments presided over by lawyers were decided by these lawyers themselves. As it is now the Attorney-General will be the only lawyer in the Cabinet, and will be called upon to advise in regard to the legal affairs of all the other departments, thus increasing the responsibility of the office.

"So that an Attorney-General cannot qualify for his office by establishing the soundness of his views on the liquor question or on the race track betting house question—and I have only discussed these matters because they have been thrust upon me by this letter."

About Government House

Mr. Raney next touched upon the Government House question.

"On the one hand we are enjoined by the farmers and some others to economy. On the other hand we have a more or less ornamental institution that is costing us $100,000 a year," he added.

"On the one hand we are told that we must have an adequate place in which to entertain Royalty and Vice-Royalty and other distinguished people when they come to Toronto.

"On the other hand we are told that the institution is undemocratic, and that as things are, no poor but honest man—no farmer, no labor man, no college professor, no Premier could accept the office—that in short, under existing conditions, the Lieutenant-Governorship is a job for a rich man.

"Then it was pointed out that our national debt is now $2,000,000,000 —six times what is was in 1914, with an interest 50 per cent. higher than it was then, and that our Provincial debt is more than twice what it was in 1914, with a like increase in the interest rate, and that the country had great need for hospital accommodation for returned soldiers.

"And so I was asked by the cabinet after the new Government was formed to look into the matter and see what could be done. Well, I found that the documents in the Registry Office showed that the Chorley Park property was acquired subject to building restrictions which confine its use until 1929 to the purposes of a Government House or a private dwelling. And so the hospital idea had to be abandoned.

21.. MILLIONS.. FOR THE PUBLIC WORKS

Few New Capital Expenditures of Importance Planned by Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Feb. 11.—Estimates for the Public Works Department for the coming fiscal year are now estimated at a total of twenty-one million dollars, a few million dollars more than last year, and nine million dollars ahead of the expenditure on public works under capital and consolidated account for 1918-19.

The estimates for 1920-21, however, contain no new capital expenditures of any importance, but are mainly revotes of appropriations already made.

PEACE LEAGUE IS IN SESSION

ABSENCE OF UNITED STATES IS REFERRED TO.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Feb. 11.—The Council of the League of Nations formally opened its meeting here at noon to-day. Arthur J. Balfour, representing Great Britain, assumed the chair and in a speech of welcome said there was one blot in that there were only eight nations represented instead of nine. He said it was not desirable to touch on the absence of the United States, but referred to it as marring the symmetry of the original plan of the League.

SPECIAL SERVICES AT MURRAY STREET BAPTIST CHURCH

The services of the Rev. G. A. Leichliter, of Adelaide Street Baptist Church, London, have been secured for five special services in the Murray Street Church, beginning on Monday night next. Mr. Leichliter is as unique as Billy Sunday, but absolutely different from the baseball evangelist. His power as a preacher is said to be equalled only by his versatility and his modesty. At each of the regular Sunday services in his own church during the past three months, a number have decided for Christ, and his services have been sought in vain by all the largest churches of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec. Peterborough is therefore fortunate in getting an opportunity of hearing Mr. Leichliter even for five nights.

LOCAL RESULTS OF BIG DRIVE

Towards the Forward Movement objective of this district ($43,000) a total collection of $14,530 was reported last evening Up to the time of going to press George Street Church reported a total collection of $8500.00 Up to Tuesday in Millbrook a total collection of $2,000 was reported. Fairmont and Cavan circuit have already exceeded their objective and all subscriptions have been paid in cash with the exception of two or three.

Over the Top

Bethany circuit has gone over its objective by $300 with 15 families still to call on, Wesley and Chemonug have over half their objectives subscribed. Conditions in Peterboro are generally very hopeful the majority of the people responding to the call most generously.

THE VACANCY WILL NOT BE FILLED BY A CHIEF JUSTICE

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 11.—Although the Government has not taken a decided step in the matter, it is not regarded as likely that a Chief Justice will be appointed to succeed Sir Glenholme Falconbridge in the Ontario Supreme Court.

Provision was made some time ago for a reduction in the number of Chief Justices in Ontario as the positions became vacant.

The course proposed is to appoint a new Judge to fill the vacancy of the Supreme Court bench, rather than to appoint a Chief Justice.

So far, there has been no definite recommendation of an appointee before the Cabinet.

WILL NOT AFFECT LEGISLATION HERE

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 11.—Definition by Imperial government of January 10 as the official date when war concluded will not affect Canadian war legislation. The date cited was that of formal exchange of ratifications between Allied powers "excepting United States and Germany." And with the exchange the state of war closed, but only as far as Germany is concerned. Ratifications still have to be exchanged with other Central powers. Legal advisers of the government take the view, it is understood, that war legislation will remain in force until ratifications have been exchanged with States with which Canada is still technically at war.

PROGRESS OF THE FORWARD MOVEMENT

(Canadian Press.)

TORONTO, Feb. 11. — Reports from Anglican Headquarters in connection with the Forward Movement, to-day indicated that $561,000 had been collected in fourteen out of twenty-five Dominion diocese. Fifty thousand subscribed in Toronto diocese. Reports until noon to Methodist headquarters show a total of over two million dollars, while Presbyterian congregations have subscribed $916,328 out of this, Ontario and Quebec being responsible for $540,000.

NO NEED OF PROVING KINGSTON A GOOD TEAM, SUTHERLAND SAYS SO

KINGSTON, Feb. 10.—Capt. James T. Sutherland, ex-president of the O.H.A., who last week coached the Kingston intermediate hockey team to victory in the last period of the game in Belleville, the locals scoring five goals by reason of the "pep" which James T. had put into them, believes that Kingston has a team of championship calibre. He says that, having come through against such sterling teams as Queen's and Belleville, he does not believe that any of the western teams can stop them on their championship climb. Few teams, he remarks, have as many old experienced players to select from as the local team. Not many teams can back-check as they are doing, few teams have as tricky stick-handlers and as accurate shots, and finally, what is the most essential point, no team in the O.H.A. has a gamer lot of players on the roll than Kingston, and, according to James T., if there is one attribute that is more necessary than another in the winning of championships, it is gameness.

"Some of the great obstacles that are liable to dash the hopes of the very best teams," the grampa of Ontario hockey points out, "are sickness, accidents, severe penalties incurred by players at a very critical moment, and the size of the other teams' rinks. In this connection one might imagine the difficulties an expert billiardist would encounter if he was compelled to play on a very large table one night, then on a small one another night, and on various other sized ones at other times. It is an old saying that the home ice is good for three goals to the home team. If there were more uniformity in all O.H.A. rinks, the home team would not have the advantage it now has. Besides the above, there is the morale of the team to be considered. 'Morale in my opinion is just as important to a hockey team that is out to win as it was to our troops during the late war."

HARD TO GET LINE ON RESPECTIVE STRENGTH OF THE TWO OUTFITS

The Kingston-Peterborough clash at Brock street rink on Friday night is the sole topic with hockey enthusiasts. Can Peterborough beat the Sutherland aggregation is the question the fans are asking, and it looks as if they will have to wait until the series is over for the answer. A Kingston despatch, which appears on this page, contains a glowing eulogy of the Kingston outfit by Capt. Jas. T. Sutherland. He has, however, said nothing about the easterners that could not be said of the Petes, so that there is no way of getting a line on them from his statement.

It should be a grand battle. Both teams are made up of experienced, seasoned players, several members of both having played on championship teams. Only Kington and Peterborough survive in the east of all the teams which faced the O.H.A. barrier at the start of the race. The winner of the series will be undisputed champions of Eastern Ontario and will go into the semi-finals.

On paper and on their performances this season, both outfits are strong, and in the clash here Friday night, Peterborough fans should see sixty minutes of the liveliest hockey that has been dished out here in many a season.

CHANGE IN THE PRICES FOR FRIDAY'S CONTEST, 200 RESERVED SEATS

Yesterday it was announced that all the west side of the rink would be reserved for Friday night's game with Kingston. This was the original intention, but after sizing up the rink it was discovered that reserving the whole west side would result in some three or four hundreds fans being crowded out.

It has therefore been decided to reserve only the usual block in the centre of the west side and the front row of the balcony at $1.00. There will be only 200 seats in all reserved, so that those who want them will have to get their order in early. The admission charge for the rest of the west side will be 75c. for gentlemen and 50c. for ladies, while the east side admission will be 50c. The plan will be at Warne's Drug Store and the 200 reserved seats are not likely to last long when the sale opens.

"AUCTION OF SOULS"

TO BE SHOWN UNDER THE FOLLOWING CONDITIONS.

The management of the Allen Theatre, which has secured the picturization of the book entitled "Ravished Armenia," by H. L. Gates, to be shown on Wednesday and Thursay in conjunction with the Armenian Relief Campaign, stipulates the following conditions under which the film will be shown.

Matinees on Wednesday and Thursday will be ladies' day and positively no men will be allowed to witness the picture on either matinee. In the evenings two showings will be held. From 7 to 9 ladies only will be admitted, and from 9 to 11 the picture will be shown to men only. Positively no person under the age of 21 will be admitted to witness this film.

On Wednesday evening Mrs. W. R. Morris will address the ladies at 7 o'clock, and at 9 o'clock Mr. R. R. Hall will address the men. The management wishes it distinctly understood that this picture is being shown for no other purpose than to depict the terrible sufferings of the Armenian race at the hands of the Turks. A percentage of the proceeds will be devoted to the Armenian Relief fund.

This picture depicts the true sufferings of the Armenians at the hands of the Turks. The scenes are supported throughout by quotations from the official report of the Bryce Commission on Armenia. Lord Bryce, who with Lord Gladstone, attended a private exhibition of the film at Queen's Hall, said that all the statements in the report were true, and if anything fell short of the facts.

BONSPIEL MOVES SWIFTLY TO-DAY AT THE TWO RINKS

FOUR SERIES UNDER WAY

Peterborough's bonspiel entered upon its second day this morning with the swiftness and something of the bewildering movement of a three-ring circus. At one time there were four trophy competitions in progress, and although the schedule missed a step or two, the games proceeded a short lap behind the programme.

The Morrow Cup series was down to the eights round to-day, the Matthews-Blackwell score card was also far advanced, one or two games in the consolation round for the Peterborough Cup had been played, and to-day's special attraction, the R. M. Waddell contest, began around noon with twelve Peterborough rinks representing the visiting curlers.

In this competition, if the aggregate score is in favour of the visitors, all the outside rinks will be eligible to play off for the Waddell Trophy and the special prizes accompanying If the Peterborough rinks win, only the competing local rinks will play off, and in that event this series will be deferred until the other trophies are decided. This is to avoid unnecessary delay in finishing the games in which visiting rinks have survived the fray in the Morrow and Matthews-Blackwell series.

Played Nearly All Night.

Yesterday afternoon the Charlotte Street ice became a trifle sticky, altering the style of play, but this morning both it and Brock Street were dry and fairly keen. The "side show," or "bull pen," at Brock Street, as some of the curlers called the annex rink, lacked the fine finish of a regular curling sheet, but under the conditions it was quite satisfactory.

Yesterday's games in the Matthews-Blackwell Trophy competition continued until three o'clock this morning. Among the rinks playing until that hour were J. W. McDermid, who won handily from Dick Butler, of Lindsay. McDermid opened with two four ends, and was never headed.

Harry McCallum, of Fenelon Falls, and Walter Oke battled for twelve ends, McCallum winning by one shot—9 to 8. Oke came from behind and tied it up on the eleventh, got a stone into the ginger with a corker, near it, but forgot to put chains on his last, and it glanced beyond the tee line. McCallum removed the Oke counter, and lay with his first shot, and the game was over.

Another of the night hawks was J. D. Flavelle, who had been working all day and was back at it again at 10.30 this morning against Wightman in the Waddell contest. In the second end Wightman hung six on the old Trojan, who had just made a beautiful draw to the button for shot. With his last stone, Wightman poked him out, and when the other stones settled down to rest, six of Wightman's were nearest the centre. A smile is a decidedly fragile thing in curling.

Benor's Feat.

When some of the curlers were wondering who was going to stop the Coates Lakeview rink of Toronto, four commercial travellers who were cutting a wide swath in both the major series, George Benor walked into the secretary's office with a victory of 12 to 7. "And there wasn't one fluke shot," Benor remarked by way of intimating that he had been through a real battle.

Millbrook Man in Both.

Edmunds of Millbrook was in the running for both cups at noon today, and had created a deep respect for his rink by his string of victories. He eliminated Jim Connal's District Cup rink from the Morrow competition in its second round, making a perfect shot with his last stone, and winning by 8 to 7.

There was all kinds of good curling for the faithful gallery, who were there early and late.

Tom Finlay of Norwood put DeLany of Cobourg out of the Matthews-Blackwell series, and R. M. Waddell cut short the Cobourg skip's flight in the second round of the Morrow by 12 to 6.

And "J. R." McKelvie of Norwood chalked up a 9 to 8 win over Strickland, of Lakefield. They were tied on the tenth; Strickland scored in the eleventh, and McKelvie won coming home

George Stevenson made a garrison finish against George Boucher in the Matthews-Blackwell series. Boucher was leading by 8 to 7 on the tenth end, but Stevenson closed the session with two two-ends for a final score of 11 to 8.

Bonspiel Notes.

Packing six shots into the last end, Jim Connal snatched his game from George Boucher by 13 to 12. It was probably the outstanding feature of yesterday's play. Boucher was five up coming home and appeared safe.

Harry Foote overcame a long lead against Pete Lang and with his last stone just missed tieing it up. At the seventh the score was 14 to 2 against him and on the eleventh 17 to 15. He got only one shot on the last, and almost made it two.

W. R. Widdess, viceing for Tom Brightman, met with a rather severe accident. He fell heavily on the ice striking the back of his head with such force that he was unable to continue the game and had to be taken home. Grant Copping went on his place. Coates on his last three ends piled up twelve shots with a four, two and six set up.

J. D. Flavelle of Lindsay, was eliminated from the Morrow trophy series by Dick Butler, his one time pupil. The veteran scored in only three of the twelve ends, and incidently gave an exhibition of how to fall gracefully. Side-stepping an errant stone, was thrown off his balance and fell forward, going down on his hands and toes in the most approved physical culture attitude. Some of the players thought he had fallen on his face, but he was up on his feet before the stone stopped.

Playing for the trophy he presented for the bonspiel George Morrow was turned back in his first game by J. W. McDermid, who was the winner of this series last year when it was first competed for. Billy Carley of Lindsay cut McDermid's flight short later in the afternoon.

Larry O'Connor, of Lindsay, was a visitor at the rink last night on his way to Ottawa. He has been ill since the Tankard games in Toronto.

Owing to the death of his sister, Ray Best was called to her home in the west on Saturday. Jim Connal is skipping his rink. This rink composed of Ross Dobbin, Alex. Archibald and W. D. Campbell went into the semi-finals of both the Morrow and Matthews-Blackwell series last year but lost both.

CARPET BOWLING MATCH IN KNOX LECTURE HALL.

CALEDONIAN CLUB COME OUT WINNERS.

On the invitation to a match by the carpet bowlers of Knox Church some time ago, the Peterborough Caledonian Club sent down four rinks, and played off the match last night in the Lecture Hall.

Under their four skips — Messrs. John Wyllie, Stroyan Leith, Robert Elliot, and Robert Veitch—the visitors were pitched against the Knox skips—Rev. J. A. MacKenzie, Arthur McLeish, Sr., Andrew McKenzie, and Adam Gillespie respectively.

All players were on the qui vive, and keen to show each other of the opposing rinks what they intended doing.

The veteran Caledonians, let it be said, were too many for the Knox novices, who had, perforce, to go down to a glorious defeat—the score being 64—48 for the Caledonians.

The match was divided into two periods—8 and 10 ends respectively. Much was learned in the art of throwing to the "kitty," by all players, and quite a few close ends were encountered. At one end the rinks skipped by John Wyllie and Rev. Mr. MacKenzie had a most intense moment. John Wyllie's rink had five shots to its credit until the opposing skip, Rev. Mr. MacKenzie, with a well-placed bowl, landed just beside the "kitty," robbing John of his five-shot score.

Periods of excitement like this was the rule on all the rinks throughout the evening. And though beaten, Knox are not by any means downhearted. They live to fight another day.

Knox led only in one rink, in the first period, when Arthur McLeish beat Stroyan Leith and his gallants by 8—5.

The game was fine—all were happy and well pleased with the arrangements made for their comfort.

An interval in the match was the calling of the players to another game—that of attending to the wants of the inner man. All retired to the basement, where was coffee and sandwiches—prepared for the event by the "aye ready" Ladies' Aid of the church. The refreshment was timely, and was enjoyed by everyone.

Votes of thanks to all concerned in the evening's ongoings were cordially responded to.

To-night two rinks from Knox Church have been invited to play the Sons of England in their hall, Hunter Street, at nine o'clock.

WILL CONSIDER BRIDGE ACROSS NIAGARA PROPOSAL

OTTAWA, Feb. 11.—A delegation from Welland county interviewed Sir George Foster, Acting Premier, and members of the Government to urge construction of an international bridge between Fort Erie and Buffalo. The bridge, it is proposed, would be constructed both to facilitate transportation and communication and mark the hundred years of peace between Great Britain and the United States. It would be known as the Peace Memorial Bridge.

It was asked that a Bridge Committee be appointed by the Dominion.

The cost of the bridge is estimated at five million dollars. Consideration was promised.

TO DEEPEN THE ST. LAWRENCE RIVER

(Canadian Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—The International Joint Commission on Waterways met here to-day to take up the proposed plan of making the lower St. Lawrence between Montreal and Lake Ontario navigable to deep draught ocean steamers as its most important business. Various other matters will be considered before the major project is discussed. Routine consisted of most of the morning's meeting it was announced, to effectuate recommendations made last year in its report on pollution of boundary waters, referring particularly to Detroit on the Detroit river, and Buffalo on the Niagara. The Commission will draft a tentative treaty for adoption by the two nations. C. A. Magrath, Otawta, and Sir William Hearst were among the Canadian representatives.

WARSAW NEWS HAPPENINGS

WARSAW, Feb. 11.—The Foward Movement while not receiving the attention it has elsewhere, is making progress. While Dr. Archbold was able to come he never missed a Sunday, but he brought home some of the truths of the Bible which the movement is intended to bring to people's minds and hearts.

Rev. Roberts conducted the service in the Baptist church yesterday a.m. He went to Indian River in the afternoon, but there was no service there because of so much sickness. He returned to Toronto to-day.

Rev. Hugh Brown conducted the services morning and evening in Warsaw and afternoon at Cottesloe. There were the usual Sunday services in the Methodist church. In the Anglican there was only the Sunday school service, no preaching service.

Cattle Shipments.

Quite a number of cattle from this district were shipped to Indian River last week. Several buyers were there.

A great many of our people are receiving advertisements of whiskey, wine, etc., from a house in Montreal. These ads come in sealed envelopes and carry only one cent stamps. Some of our people wonder how these ads can come in that way when ordinary people must leave a letter unsealed to allow inspection if it be supposed to carry just printed matter. They also wonder why a province which voted dry is allowed to be flooded with such literature. Why the Dominion government has a right to allow it over their heads. It makes one think of the black blot on English history when she forced the opium trade on China.

A carload of oil cake for the U.F.O. came last week and several teams went to Lakefield for it on Wednesday.

IN MEMORIAM.

WINN.—In loving memory of Ruth Quinlan, beloved wife of Joseph Winn, who died Dec. 6, 1919:

Two months have passed, our heart's still sore,
As time goes by we miss her more.
Her loving smile, her welcome face,
No one can fill her vacant place.
Forgot her, no, we never will,
We loved her then, we love her still,
We loved her eyes, no tongue could tell
How dear, how deeply, nor how well.
God loved her, too and thought it best
To take her home with Him to rest.

Vast Problems For Premiers' Meeting

ALLIED REPRESENTATIVES' MEETING IN LONDON TO-DAY WILL DEAL WITH RUSSIAN, JUGO-SLAV, TURKISH AND GERMAN QUESTION.

MILLERAND'S DEBUT

(Special to the Examiner)

LONDON, Feb. 12.—London today has replace d Paris as the seat of deliberations to settle problems growing out of the World War.

With the "Big Three" Conference of Premier in session to decide further the Allies' attitude toward Russia, the settlement of the Adriatic dispute between Italy and Jugo-Slavia, the disposition of Constantinople and measures to force Germany to live up to article 228 of the Treaty of Versailles and with the council of the League of Nations meeting to bring about the organization of that world society, London has become at the moment virtually the capital of Europe.

Leniency Not Foreshadowed.

Great Britain, it was said, is reluctant to allow the demand for the surrender of German war culprits to be made a test case as to Germany's intentions towards Peace Treaty while France takes the position that drastic measures must be used, if necessary to force Germany to live up to article 228. The presence of Marshal Foch, who arrived late yesterday. With Premier Millerand, was taken to indicate the French determination to discuss military measures. If necessary to enforce the surrender of the accused Teutons. A wide split in plans for disposition of Constantinople also was indicated.

Eastern Question Bristles

Conflicting interests in the near east also were expected to cause trouble, France, it was said, will insist upon her full rights and under the treaty she signed in 1916.

It was predicted that some solution of the Adriatic tangle would be reached at the conference. The first plan, it was believed will be a second endeavour to get Jugo-Slavia to accept the recent Allied compromise agreement which Jugo-Slavia once rejected. France and Great Britain it was stated authoratively are ready to go to almost any length to finally dispose of this troublesome controversy.

Coal Not Delivered

Millerand was expected to urge further penalties against Germany for her failure to deliver the amounts of coal specified in the Treaty. His debut as a member of the "Big Three" was watched with great interest particularly for any possible change in French Policy.

MRS. MORRIS APPEALED FOR ARMENIAN FUND

Previous to the seven o'clock performance of the 'Auction of Souls,' Mrs. W. R. Morris made a stirring appeal to the audience on behalf of the Armenian Fund. After outlining the history of the Armenians she urged that, now that the dawn of freedom from the Turk oppression had come to the long suffering race, the people of Canada should see that the few scattered remnants of the first race to adopt Christiaity, they should not be left to starve. She also referred to the generosity of the management of the Allen Theatre, where the film was shown, in reserving a certain portion of the receipts to be donated to the Armenian Fund.

ASPIRES TO CIRCLE WORLD IN 70 DAYS

(Via G. N. W.)
(Special to Examiner.)

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 11. .... Sir Ross Smith, who recently completed a flight from England to Australia, has now in view a flight around the world.

The Vickers Company is now constructing a plane with floats so that it can alight anywhere on the ocean. It will be equipped with Condor engines more than double the power of the Vimy which Smith recently used on his tour. He believes that the world can be encircled in seventy days.

DR. MORGAN IS ACTING M.O.H.

LOOKING AFTER DR. M'PHERSON'S DUTIES DURING LATTER'S ILLNESS.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Health held last night was marked by its quietness and nothing outstanding was brought up.

Ex-Mayor Duncan was in the chair early but for a while it looked as if the meeting would have to be adjourned as there were only three members present and one more was needed for a quorum. Mr. E. F. Mason arrived a little late and the meeting then proceeded. The members present beside the chairman, were Mr. J. Lynch, Mr. E. F. Mason, Mr. C. Stapleton, Sanitary Inspector, and C. Curtis, assistant City Clerk.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

The report of the Queen Mary Hospital for January was read. The number of patients in the hospital on January 1st. was 9, made up of 3 cases of scarlet fever, 2 cases of diphtheria and 4 cases of smallpox. During the month 14 more cases, made up of 2 cases of scarlet fever, 1 case of diphtheria and 11 cases of smallpox.

Twenty out of the 23 cases were from city and three were from outside. Two deaths occurred during the month—one from diphtheria and one from smallpox.

On February 1st there were eight patients in the hospital, made up of two cases of scarlet fever, one of diphtheria, and five of smallpox.

The tender given to William Brown for tilling the ice house at the Queen Mary Hospital was brought up. The chairman explained how the tender had been given to Mr. Brown at his price of $70, and the chairman's action was confirmed.

The question of the appointment of a doctor to carry on the duties of the M. O. H. during his illness, was brought up.

It was stated that Dr. MacPherson had appointed Dr. Morgan, and Dr. Morgan was called up and the rumor was confirmed.

A resolution was brought in on the recommendation of the Sanitary Inspector that all houses having proper sewer connections should whenever possible, have sanitary improvements put in, occasioned much discussion, but through Mr. Stapleton's emphatic representation of the need for such a measure the resolution was put through and will be sent on for the council to deal with.

The meeting adjourned shortly after nine o'clock.

A NOVEL MEANS.

Butter served to the prisoners in the county jail at La Cross, Wis., helped one of them trying to escape. The butter mixed with some cell disinfectant, made a substance which furnished him with light for his night work. A strip torn from his shirt made a wick. With this improvised candle he worked nights, cut the floor of the cell, making a hole large enough to let him through. A short tunnel took him to the brick wall, which would have been easy picking for him had he not been discovered.

FARMERS' PART IS OUTLINED

AGRICULTURIST WILL HAVE TO ACT AS ARBITRATOR BETWEEN CAPITAL AND LABOUR DECLARES THE SASKATCHEWAN GRAIN GROWERS' HEAD.

A CHANGE IS NECESSARY

(Special to The Examiner.)

SASKATOON, Sask., Feb. 12.—"At present social unrest is manifesting itself in various ways throughout the entire world," said J. A. Maharg, M. P., President of the Grain Growers of Saskatchewan, in his annual report yesterday. "But possibly Canada is in as good a position in this respect as any of the countries which were at war. However, even we have a spirit of unrest which if not properly handled may lead to serious results. Were it not that a large proportion of our population is agricultural, having a definite fixed interest in the country, an interest that cannot be transferred in a moment to some other place, the situation might be very different. In my annual address a few years ago I made the statement that the time was fast approaching when the agriculturist would have to act as arbitrator between labour and capital. That time has arrived.

"The thinking citizens of Canada, regardless of their occupation, are agreed that a change must take place in our methods of government. We are now giving their unstinted support to the formation of one great agrarian movement which shall be representative of all classes, credits and occupations, in the hope that order may succeed political chaos."

OTTAWA, Feb. 12.—The proposal of N. Cashion, well known Canadian engineer, to construct a deep water canal from Montreal, via Ottawa river to near this city, then cutting across country to link up with St. Lawrence at Cardinal will be laid before joint International Commission of Improvement of St. Lawrence waterways when it assembles here next week. It is claimed that this plan will be less expensive and not offer as great engineering difficulties as would the deeping of the St. Lawrence Canals system between Cardinal and Montreal. The Ottawa Board of Trade has endorsed the proposal and urged it on the Prime Minister.

LLOYD GEORGE OPPOSES MINERS

MINERS GIVE WARNING

LONDON, Feb. 12 — Discussing the nationalization of mines, which was brought forward by a resolution this afternoon by William Brace of the Miners' Federation, Premier Lloyd Georg definitely stated his opposition to such a step. He said it would discourage the development of the mining industry and that it would be impossible to have nationalization without bureaucracy. He said what the miners' federation really wanted was full control of the coal industry, and that to hand it over thus would be dangerous to the community and a misfortune to the miners themselves.

Mr. Brace motion, which was an amendment to the reply to the address from the throne, expressed regret for "the absence of any proposal to nationalize the coal mines of the country along the lines recommended by the majority of the members of the Royal Commission on the coal industry, which was appointed to advise the government as to the best methods of reorganizing the industry."

Claims Miners Misled.

Mr. Brace, who was the first speaker when the debate on the speech from the throne was resumed to-day contended that the miners had been led to suppose that the government would accept the recommendations of the majority of the coal commission. He declared that nationalization would not mean bureaucratic control. The government might delay nationalization but he predicted that it could not prevent nationalization coming.

In outlining his scheme for nationalization Mr. Bruce said there would be a committee to manage each pit, and a committee for each of the 14 districts into which Great Britain would be divided. Finally there would be a body with a president of mines as chairman to supervise all the coal fields of the country. The miners, the officials, and the general public would be represented, and each would be in the minority.

NEGRO MURDERER IN PENITENTIARY

Removal of Lockett from Lexington Made Without Incident.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 11.—William Lockett, convicted murderer of ten year old Geneva Hardman, who is to pay the death penalty for his crime March 1, was removed from Lexington at 9 o'clock last night on a special train bound for Eddyville, where he will be placed in a death cell at the state penitentiary, according to Brig.-Gen. Francis Marshall, in command of Federal troops here.

Removal of Lockett from the court house to the train was accomplished without incident. He was marched in the centre of a group of picked soldiers to the station and accompanied out of the city by more than 400 troops.

The greatest secrecy was maintained by military officials. A half hour before removal of the negro all telegraph and telephone companies were ordered not to allow messages of any character to leave the city until after midnight. But few citizens were on the streets when the removal took place and these attempted no demonstration.

BERLIN HAS NOT RECEIVED NOTE

(Special to Examiner.)

LONDON, Feb. 12. — The German foreign office authorities have not as yet received the note which is reported to have been forwarded by Premier Millerand, threatening Germany with an indefinite occupation of the Rhineland provinces because of non-fulfillment of treaty obligations.

On the contrary it is stated German negotiations with France concerning difficulties encountered in making coal deliveries, have not been concluded.

1,100 CARS ARE FROZEN IN ICE

(Canadian Press.)

ST. JOHN, N. B., Feb. 12. — More than 1,100 freight cars are still fixed hard and fast in the ice in the Canadian National Railway yards here to-day where they were frozen in during last week's big storm.

Heavy gangs of men with heavy duty locomotives and snowplows are working day and night freeing cars, but they have several more days work ahead of them.

Advises U.F.O. Not To Be Confident

SECRETARY OF GRAIN GROWERS SAYS RESULTS IN A FEDERAL ELECTION MIGHT BE QUITE DIFFERENT FROM THOSE IN ONTARIO

PROTECTIONIST SPIRIT HERE

SASKATOON, Feb. 11.—The impossibility of keeping all farmers in the Dominion in alignment on a National fiscal policy was emphasized by J. B. Musselman, Secretary of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Association at this evening's session of the annual convention of that body, and in the course of his remarks he expressed the opinion that the results of the next Federal election in Ontario might be different to the election which put the farmers in the saddle in the Provincial House.

Not Permanent Supporters.

Mr. Musselman said that in the last Ontario elections the U.F.O. had an entire membership in the whole of Ontario of 40,000, but the farmers' candidates polled a total of 168,000 in a little over half, the Province.

"Many thousands of those who voted for them had no particular attachment to the U.F.O., and some of the candidates had had no previous connection with it. Thousands were out simply to defeat the Hearst Government, and, as is well known, cannot be depended upon as permanent supporters of the new group," he added.

Still Protectionists.

"It is well understood by those, who know conditions in Ontario that a like support cannot be relied upon in a Federal election. That contest will be of a different order entirely. From present indications the Government party will become the 'militantly protectionist party' or 'the plus-perfect patriots' when it again appeals to the electorate, and, after all, a large percentage of the people including many of the farmers in Ontario, are still protectionists. We gain nothing by deceiving ourselves with over-confidence."

Need Lawyers, Too.

Mr. Musselman went on to say it would be futile if every member in Saskatchewan were elected by the farmers unless they had the support of those of all classes in all the Provinces who supported the principles they stood for if they were to overthrow special privilege. The accusation that they were seeking class domination must not only be declarde untrue, but must be made untrue. They must send their ablest as well as their most dependable men to Ottawa, and some of them must be lawyers. They also needed men who have had previous Parliamentary experience either Provincially or Federally, or both.

Grove Smith, of Ottawa, on Fire Waste in Canada. The routine business of the Board will be referred to the Council for disposal.

The annual meeting occurs one week later, on March 9th.

THIRD BROTHER TO MEET VIOLENT DEATH

WILLIAM ROBERT STAUNTON ACCIDENTALLY KILLED AT PORT ARTHUR.

Mr. Harvey J. Staunton, 30 Maitland avenue, Past President of the Peterboro branch of the Great War Veteran's Association received word last night that his brother William Robert Staunton had been killed in an accident at Port Arthur where he had been employed in an elevator. No particulars have so far been received as to the manner in which he met his death.

The brothers are: Messrs. Wilfred of Los Angeles, Cal. and Harvey of Peterboro and the sisters, Mrs. T. W. Wood, Orillia, Mrs. S. F. M. Touchburn, Benson Ave., Peterboro, Mrs. J. P. SUPPLIES HELD UP BY ALLIES

NO VESSELS ALLOWED TO CLEAR FOR BLACK SEA PORTS.

(Canadian Press.)

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 12. — All shipments of supplies to South Russia have been halted temporarily by the order of the allied port authorities here, who refuse to allow any vessel to clear for the Black Sea ports.

The steamer Sangamon arrived here a few days ago carrying a cargo of a thousand tons of clothing to be distributed among the typhus hospitals in South Russia. The steamer is still being held in the harbor and her cargo will probably be unloaded and sent on to Novorossisk, when conditions make it safe for the vessel to enter the port.

Bandits are operating in considerable strength in the mountains just behind Novorossisk, causing great trouble and unrest in the city itself.

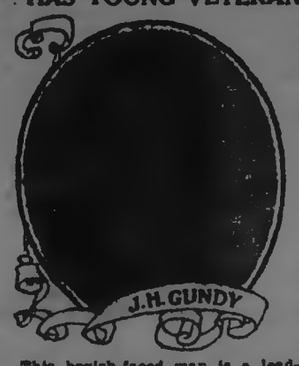
NATIONAL CAMPAIGN HAS YOUNG VETERAN



This boyish-faced man is a leading member of one of the biggest bond houses in the Dominion. In addition, he is the strongest speaker on devotional themes that the Methodist laymen of Ontario boast.

It is not the photographer who has made Mr. Gundy look youthful. In real life he looks younger still.

Although for fourteen strenuous years he has been an active broker in the firm which he founded, he looks thirty years old—and is nine years older. During all that time Mr. Gundy has been a worker in committee and on platform in every big religious movement—from the inauguration of the Laymen's Missionary Movement down to the present Methodist National Campaign.

Emerging from the Victory Loan Campaign, he plunged at once into the work of vice-chairman of the special subscriptions committee in this Methodist section of the Inter-Church Forward Movement.

His career belies three "old fogey" ideas—that ministers' sons don't make good, that laymen cannot exhort or inspire, and that young chaps are not to be given big responsibility.

SPIKER WEDS MISS KNOWLES

Aviator's Brother Will Take Bride to Baltimore.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Feb. 11.—Emily Knowles of Staleybridge, England, and the wartime affinity of Lieutenant Perley Spiker of Baltimore, and mother of his five-month-old baby, became the bride of Guy Spiker, younger brother of Perley. The couple are to make their home in Baltimore, and were to have left by the Fall River Line to-night, but there was no sailing. They will leave in the morning and proceed by rail to Baltimore.

The ceremony took place this afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Battersby, who was a friend of the Knowles family in England. The Rev. Henry Arnold, pastor of the Bogie Street Christian Church, was the officiating clergyman. The marriage service was simple and only a few were present.

PROPOSED BAN ON ALIENS.

May Bar Them from French Hotel, Restaurant, and Other Businesses.

PARIS—Foreigners are absolutely barred from the hotel and restaurant business by the provisions of a bill introduced in Parliament by the Government.

This step was taken because the outbreak of the war revealed the fact that many foreign hotel and restaurant owners were enemy agents.

In addition, the bill forbids participation by aliens in the customs transit or commission agency trade, information bureaus, employment agencies, munition factories, chemical works affecting national defense, and the quarrying industry.

DESTITUTE JEWS HAVE NO HOUSES

Six Million Unfortunates Compelled to Use Packing Cases, Cans and Sacks.

Patterning on the block houses that children build, the destitute Jewish refugees of Eastern Europe, whose homes have been destroyed during the war, are trying to solve their housing problem with the packing boxes in which relief supplies have been sent to them, according to reports received by the Canadian Jewish War Relief Committee from relief workers abroad.

Not only is every particle of food and clothing used to the utmost advantage in these stricken lands where 6,000,000 Jews are at the point of starvation, but the cans and sacks and wrapping cases in which the food and clothing come are made to do duty as well. There is neither lumber or nails in most of the countries of eastern Europe at present, and the packing boxes are handled as if they were the finest mahogany, when the shipments arrive. Not a nail is allowed to go to waste, when the boxes are taken carefully apart.

All over eastern Europe at present men, women, and children, many of them sick with typhus, are living in cellars, in devastated houses, in old freight cars, on roofless platforms, open to the wind, or in fields, unprotected from the elements. The clothing of these destitute Jews, consisting for the most part of the rags that they have worn for the five years of the war, afford them little warmth.

For this reason, the packing boxes, which might not be considered particularly luxurious homes at another time, are welcomed as life-savers just now. Boards from them are used to re-build broken houses, and even to make lean-to shelters where no building stood before. Some of the smaller boxes are piled one above the other like children's blocks, and nailed together, to serve as temporary hou

YEARS TO RESTORE LENS.

No Hope That First Coal Can Be Produced Before 1921.

PARIS.— Although all possible efforts to reconstruct the war-shattered mines of Lens have been and are being made, there is now no hope that a single ton of coal will be extracted before 1921. In fact, the task of bringing back Lens to its former prosperity is so immense that it is not expected that the town and its mines will return to anything like their former state befor 1928 or 1929.

Provided that the work can he carried on without interruption, it will take all 1920 to clear the underground workings of the debris with which they were choked by the Germans. Mos tof the workings, and all of the deeper ones, are flooded.

A plan for drawing off the water has been arranged. The reconstruction and repair of the tubbing will be carried out by German workmen, and the cement for the purpose will be brought from Germany. The pumping out of the mines is expected to take at least three years. It is hoped that by next year it will be possible to extract coal from the first galleries, which are only 600 feet deep, but it is not expected that the water will be pumped out of the lower workings, which run down to 2,250 yards, until 1923 or even 1924.

The railways in the Lens district will not be completely repaired until 1921. Of the 800 workmen's dwellings belonging to the Miners' Society, not a hundred can be repaired. Four hundred concrete huts are to be built in which it is hoped to house the 5,000 workers who will be employed in the clearing of the pits for the next two or three years.

SELLING SHORT WILL NOT RUIN BRITISH CREDIT

WALL STREET JOURNAL ISSUES WARNING TO ATTEMPT TO WRECK EMPIRE.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Under the heading, "Selling the British Empire Short," The Wall Street Journal says editorially:

A number of people have been expatiating on the great benefits to be derived by this country from selling the British Empire short. Exactly as our Irish and German sympathisers before and during the war were willing to hand the world over to the Huns if only Britain could be beaten, so they are telling us, after the war, that our interest lies in selling the Empire short and wrecking it in order to cover at a panic level.

Warning to Evil Prophets.

But a 20 cent rally in the price of sterling—of all instrumentalities permitting of speculation perhaps the most heavily oversold—warned these prophets of evil, beginning to believe their own stories of the possibility of a bear panic. It was shown in these columns that after the British fiscal year terminating 31st March, with its heavy deficit, a very different condition will supervene, with a safe surplus, growing greater with a return to normal years, already anticipated by the British Treasury in te deflation of $100,000,000 of currency.

Trading on Bear Talk.

Those who wish the wreck of the British Empire, regardless of its consequences to the world, and not least, to ourselves, have been trading on their own bear talk. They have all the cheap politics of a Presidential year to play with, a President searching frantically for a popular scapegoat for his own mistakes and a Congress ready enough to play fast and loose with principle to get votes. But if they have ventured into the speculative market, betting upon British bankruptcy and the evil wish which is father to their thought, they will lose their bets.

Will Burn Fingers.

Foreign exchange, where they are likely to burn their fingers, is governed by something more than the mere balance of trade between two given countries. The fundamental financial condition of the country most affected is the final test. Sterling is weak, because it is protecting its poor relations—the francs, lire, even marks—by helping France, Italy, and Germany to get on their feet again, while we are only talking.

Every good American will welcome the demonstrated solvency of the British Empire. The other kind of American is welcome to burn his fingers, and is beginning to do so.

THE LAST RESOURCE.

(Canadian Press.)

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 12.—"I want a prescription for some booze. The doctors are all run out of pads and I was told to come here and get one." This was the request which a thirsty soul made of Detective Sergeant Thompson, who was on duty at the police st ation. The officer's reply is not on record.

THREE HUNDRED AT UNITED FARMERS' DANCE

About three hundred persons attended the U.F.O. dance given last evening in Victoria Hall, and the occasion proved one of the biggest successes the organization has yet undertaken. Typical of the progress the farmers are making in adopting city methods, the square dances were interspersed with one steps, fox trots and jazz dancing. Refreshments were served at midnight and the dance broke up at an early hour this morning. Mr. R. B. Rogers, who was in charge of the dance, was greatly responsible for the great success the affair proved to be. Splendid music was furnished by Moher's orchestra.

Christie's biscuits should read 5 lb. tins of sodas for 20c. lb. Malaga grapes at 50c. lb. are added to the list to-day. See corrected list on another page.

NO SMOKING LAW FOR CALGARY

Smoking on Street Cars Will Be a Finable Offence.

(Canadian Press.)

CALGARY, Alta., Feb. 12.—The large, course person who sits in a street car with smoke curling up from a cigarette, cigar or pipe, and insists that he is not smoking because he hasn't the weed in his mouth, will be caught up with a short-turn in the future. The City Commissioners have passed a recommendation to the Legislative committee that a by-law be enacted making such an action a finable offence, and there is little doubt but that it will be passed.

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff, and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy, and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

HOW TO TREAT STOMACH TROUBLE

A Tonic Medicine is Needed to Build Up the Digestive Organs.

The old-fashioned methods of treating stomach diseases are being discarded. The trouble with the old-fashioned methods was that when the treatment was stopped the trouble returned in an aggravated form.

The modern method of treating indigestion and other forms of stomach trouble is to tone up the stomach and glands to their normal work. Every step toward recovery is a step gained not to be lost again. The recovery of the appetite, the disappearance of pain after eating, the absence of gas, are steps on the road to health that those who have tried the tonic treatment remember distinctly. Dr. Williams Pink Pills are a tonic every constituent of which is helpful in building up the digestive organs, and therefore the very best remedy for simple or chronic cases of stomach trouble. The success of the treatment is best shown by hundreds of cases like the following. Mrs. Chas. Comer, Picton, Ont., says:—" For upwards of two years I was a great sufferer from indigestion. Food would ferment in my stomach, and I would belch gas with a burning sensation Often I would be troubled with nausea, sick headache and dizziness. Notwithstanding that I was under medical treatment the trouble grew so bad, that I would only eat when absolutely forced to, and I was in constant misery. I was finally advised to try Dr. Williams Pink Pills and had only been using them a few weeks when I found they were helping me. I very gladly continued their use and the result is they have made me a well woman, every vestige of the trouble having disappeared. I am so grateful for what Dr. Williams Pink Pills have done for me that I strongly advise any who may be suffering from stomach trouble to give them a fair trial, and I believe that life myself they will find a sure cure."

You can get Dr. Williams Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

POTATOES TO DROP IF WEATHER MILD

SHIPMENTS FROM EASTERN QUEBEC IF TEMPERATURE PERMITS.

MONTREAL, Feb. 12.—A material reduction in the pricesof potatoes is assured if the present mild weather continues, according to the statement of a prominent dealer to-day. Whereas the wholesale prices per 90 lb. bag yesterday was $3.50 to $3.75, it is $3.25 to-day, which should correspondingly bring the retail price down to a maximum of $4 per bag, according to the dealer quoted, who said that a profit of more than 10 per cent. on potatoes is excessive, and that there is no justification for retailers in charging $5 per bag.

Potatoes have been higher in price since January 1 owing in the first place to a bad fall crop, and in the second place to the extremely cold weather which prevented shipments being sent to the city on account of the danger of destruction by frost The present mild weather is releasing shipments from eastern Quebec and it is expected that the market will be flooded with supplies in a short time, with a consequent appreciable drop in prices. May seeding time will see another rise in prices, however, as both Quebec and Ontario will need large supplies for reproductive purposes at that time, and the New Brunswick crop has been almost entirely shipped to the United States.

MOTHERS PRAY THAT BABIES MIGHT DIE

Suffering Among Jews is So Bad That Death Alone Gives Relief.

Mothers begging for death to relieve their children's suffering, was the most tragic thing seen by Leo Wolfson, New York attorney and journalist, in seven weeks spent in Roumania, Galicia, Bessarabia and Bukowina. Mr. Wolfson, who has just returned to New York, made the trip in order to study political conditions in these countries.

"There are one and one-half millions Jews in this section of Eastern Europe who are in immediate want," declared Mr. Wolfson. "In every town I visited, I saw starving, naked Jews stretching out their hands to passers-by for a piece of bread.

"They hardly look like human beings. All one sees are living skeletons, covered with yellow skin. The children are small, worn-out, frightened, little creatures, who just drag themselves aimlessly around.

"How they will live through the winter, no one knows. No one can begin to describe this picture of misery and want. But one can get an idea of it, knowing that mothers are actually praying that death take their children, to relieve their terrible suffering."

Mothers! NEVER NEGLECT WHOOPING COUGH

Many mothers make the mistake of thinking that whooping cough is not of serious importance, but unfortunately this mistake often leads to the neglect of this dangerous child's disease.

Never neglect whooping cough, for it may be followed by some serious lung trouble.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is highly recommended by mothers everywhere for the relief of this trouble. It will clear the clogged-up air passage of the mucous and phlegm that has collected in in this way bring on the "whoop" which bring the so-much-sought-for relief.

Mrs. Francis Burlingham, New Gate, B.C., writes: "This spring three of my children took the whooping cough, and they had it so bad I thought they would choke. I was getting pretty worried when my sister wrote me, telling me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I sent for some right away, and, believe me, I will never forget how it worked. I will always have it in my house."

There are many imitations of Dr. Wood's on the market. Get the genuine when you ask for it. It will pay in the end. Put up in a yellow wrapper; 3 pine trees the trade mark; price 25c and 50c. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Sure! High Heels Cause Corns But Who Cares Now

Because style decrees that women crowd and buckle up their tender toes in high heel footwear they suffer from corns, then they cut and trim at these painful pests which merely makes the corn grow hard. This suicidal habit may cause lockjaw and women are warned to stop it.

A few drops of a drug called freezone applied directly upon a sore corn gives quick relief and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts out without pain. Ask the drug store man for a quarter of an ounce of freezone, which cost very litte but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet.

This drug is an ether compound and dries in a moment and simply shrivels up the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. Clip this out and pin on your wife's dresser.

WOMEN ARE NOT MUSICIANS.

Lengthy Discussion by J. Swinburne on the Deficiencies of the Sex.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The women who were present at the Musical Association's lecture recently must have spent a very uncomfortable 60 minutes listening to an address which was little more than a discourse on the deficiencies of their sex. J. Swinburne had entitled his lecture "Women and Music," but he spent the greater part of the time in endeavouring to prove that women were not successes at most of the other arts besides music. His main argument in regard to the latter was that this country is unmusical because women take an active part in the art of music.

He supported this by arguing, firstly that women in general were mentally the inferiors of men, and, secondly, that their minds were of the receptive as contrasted with the productive type.

"It is not commonly assumed," he said, "that women's brains are just like men's, and that they can do everything men can do just as well. The assumption is quite unfounded, and women have done nothing recently to contradict the experience of mankind through all the ages."

"How many women in the whole of England," he asked, " have taken their sewing machines to pieces to understand how they work?" "A woman cannot cut a pencil. She dabs her pen to the bottom of the ink pot, and then when the nib retires into the holder she puts another one in on the top of it. All this is not a matter of training."

"Women," he adds, " are nowhere in science, although scientific training has been open to them for more than a generation."

ALL WANT SALONICA

Its Fire Was Biggest in Europe in 25 Years.

NEW YORK—Major S. A. Pike, a British infantry officer, who arrived here on his way to Washington, said the question of the ownership of Salonica was a problem that was puzzling the Allied Council at Paris.

"The French want it, the Greeks want it, and the Serbs want it because the fine new roads built during the war lead right into the heart of their country and give it an outlet to the sea," Major Pike said. "The fire which occurred eighteen months ago destroyed three-quarters of the city and was the biggest blaze that had been in Europe for twenty-five years. The French engineers talk of making a new city there with a subway system and big piers for shipping, with a four-track railroad into the interior."

GLORIFIED GIRL SHOW BREAKS MONTREAL RECORD

It was estimated on Saturday that the total receipts for the two weeks' engagement of "Chu Chin Chow" would be slightly over $58,000, or over $29,000 for each week, which constitutes a record for Montreal, if not for all of Canada. The record for Montreal previously was held by Sarah Bernhardt, who, in a week's engagement about ten years ago, drew $28,000 odd to the box office.

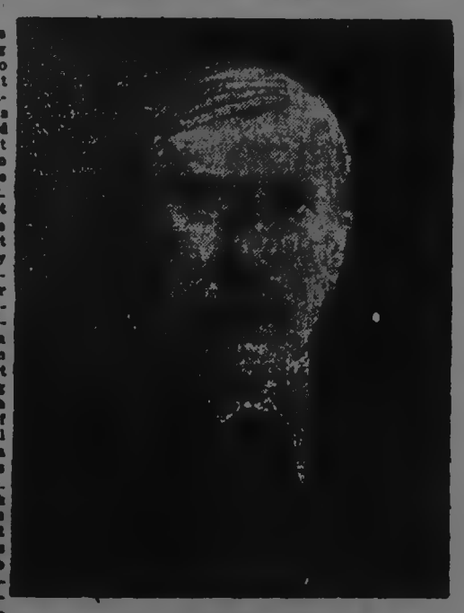
Mark Twain of Canada



MR. GEORGE HAM.

In the days when interesting people came to Canada to find it freshly interesting there was nobody could reveal the spirit of the land to them like George Ham of the C.P.R. It is said he put Major Pond of the United States out of business. Why go on a wearisome lecture tour under that impresario's guidance when George Ham could transport you to Winnipeg and on through the delights of the Rockies in all the comfort of a sumptuous coach? Great personages beseech him to call them by their first names. He has issued matches to kings and potentates and autographed photogravures of his features for admiring sufferers of best sellers. There did once seem to be a time when the truly great would not venture to come to Canada without first ascertaining whether George Ham could receive them. He is said to have put on "bid up" with dukes and royal bodies that he did not mind, for a change, escorting untitled personalities of international fame. Many men whose signatures command imperious power would no more think of forgetting to send him their Christmas cards than they would dream of neglecting a royal command. He is so very much persona grata with all kinds of people in Who's Who, when he arrives in London the court circular has to be enlarged to publish the invitations issued in his honor. Now he has achieved the signal honor of an unpaid-for mention in the exclusive Morning Post. It feels relieved to know that even if the League of Nations be jeopardized, the official entertainer of the C. P. R. is keeping his health and revelling in his high spirits. This bright though aristocratic London paper says George Ham is the Mark Twain of Canada. It claims his facts are beyond computation. He will yet go down to fame as having originated one joke. He has been as generous with his humor as he has been a profitable acquaintance for professional jokesmiths. As he never has patented any of his inimitable quips he often laughs at them when he hears them on the stage, until he realizes that they were of his own making. You may have heard of the Cincinnati millionaire he took up Muskoka. While there the pinkeyes was attacked by brigands from Toronto. The chief brigand later complained to the police that in the encounter his watch and chain had been stolen. It should be added that George Ham was not out with his Cincinnati charge when the watch and chain were stolen. Thousands of personages who have enjoyed seeing Canada have testified to how much their enjoyment was due to his kindly wit and indefatigable attention. They have paid tribute to the consideration he knows so well how to extend in behalf of his railways. But perhaps one of the best tributes ever paid this incomparable humorous observer of the railway clan, was a copy of verses by Mr. Neil Munro, the Scottish author. He sang how George Ham had "freighted laughter ten thousand miles," when acting as uncle, aunt, brother, father and grandfather to a party of British scribes. They think in Britain that not to have known George Ham of the C. P. R. is to display ignorance of the Empire's geography.

To Relieve Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness And Head Noises

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness or who are growing hard of hearing and have head noises will be glad to know that his distressing affliction can usually be successfully treated at home by an internal medicine that in many instances has affected complete relief after other treatments have failed. Sufferers who could scarcely hear have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear. Therefore, if you know of someone who is troubled with head noises or catarrhal deafness, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be prepared at home and is made as follows:

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength.) Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

Parmint is used in this way not only to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear, and the results it gives are nearly always quick and effective.

Every person who has catarrh in any form, or distressing rumbling, hissing sounds in their ears, should

PRINTING Done Here

COMPARED WITH ELSEWHERE

You'd startle your tailor if, when you wanted a suit of clothes, you asked him to submit a bid in competition with a dozen other tailors.

"Why," he would say, "this is ridiculous. This man knows what kind of a suit of clothes I give him. He knows he can depend on the quality of the material, the make, the fit. He knows me, and has proved my work. Some fellow around the corner may underbid me—but what will he deliver?"

You don't buy tailoring that way. No man does. You know your tailor you rely on him, you trust him, you give him your work just as long as he turns out good work at prices that are fair.

Do you buy your printing as intelligently? Do you make it your business TO FIND A GOOD PRINTER as you do a good tailor, and then rely on his experience, his ability and his judgment?

Men who do, get good printing. Men who buy printing here and there, wherever the price is shaved closest, are the ones who have printing worries

HORSE RACING.

The race track gambling interests who are opposed to the election of Hon. W. E. Raney as Attorney-General, are seeking to convey the impression that Mr. Raney is opposed to horse racing. In his address at his nomination meeting the other day the Attorney-General made it clear that he is not against racing, but against the gambling that goes on in connection with the tracks which is quite a different thing. "The inference is" declared Mr. Raney, "that I am opposed to horse racing." That is not true, I have never said a word against horse racing, I am no more opposed to it than I am to baseball or golf or cricket or any other out-door games or pastime." "My conception of the duties of an Attorney-General is that he should strive to see that a gentleman in a silk hat and Prince Albert coat carrying on a common betting house on a jockey club race track should have no more immunity under the criminal code than a Chinaman presiding over a game of fantan in the back room of his laundry."

The whole question hinges on whether or not horse racing can be made a success with the gambling eliminated. Most of the big horsemen say that it is impossible to carry on racing without gambling—but many people are sceptical on this point and among them is the Attorney-General.

WHAT YOUR SUBSCRIPTIONS DO.

In view of the fact that the people of Peterboro have subscribed over $3,000 to the Armenian Relief Fund and that further donations are still required, a statement by the Near East Relief as to the results that can be obtained from subscriptions of various amounts is of much interest. Subscribers to The Examiner fund will be glad to know that the donations received by this office so far are sufficient to provide food for over 600 Armenian orphans for one month, or to give 60 adults one warm meal at the soup kitchen each day for a year. Enough money has been subscribed through the medium of the Examiner to pay the freight on 300,000 pounds of flour or to provide old clothing for 15,000 people. It is announced that $5,000 will equip an orphanage capable of accommodating 100 orphans. The Examiner fund today has reached a total of approximately $3,300. It would be a splendid thing if the $5,000 needed to equip an orphanage were to be subscribed in Peterboro and in the hope that this result will be reached the Examiner lists will be kept open.

BLUNT TESTIMONY.

Rear Admiral Sims' blunt testimony before the Senate Committee investigating naval decorations may not add to his popularity among some of his fellow countrymen but should have the effect of causing some deep thought on the part of many who have been led to believe that "America won the war." Admiral Sims declared in his evidence that the war effort of the United States was magnified by the American press to such an extent that a disproportionate idea of the part played by America in the war was produced. The result was the Admiral informed the Senate Committee that Americans visiting abroad during the war "were shocked by the relative amount of work done by our forces." Undoubtedly the newspapers of the United States are primarily responsible for the exaggerated idea of America's war effort that exists among our neighbors, but Admiral Sims, as head of Uncle Sam's naval forces during the war demonstrates that he is a very brave man in daring the barrage that his plain talking will bring him under. Many newspapers will once more remind their readers that the Admiral was born in Canada.

SOLDIERS AND POLITICS.

The most important question that will be dealt with at the Provincial Convention of the Great War Veterans' Association to be held in Peterboro next month will be the attitude of the Association towards politics and the discussion on this point will be of great interest.

Harris Turner the soldier editor of Turner's Weekly is one veteran who is strongly opposed to the entrance of the returned men as a body into politics. In the current issue of his weekly he makes his position clear. "We do not believe that the returned men as a body can enter the field of active politics and maintain their unity," declares Mr. Turner's paper. It is evident, however, that there is a strong body of opinion inside the G. W.V.A. and other soldier organizations, which does not agree with us on this point, and we would like to draw their attention to a very significant fact. The Canadian returned soldiers and their dependents and relatives are numerically and otherwise a very strong section of the electorate. Yet they do not constitute nearly so strong a section proportionately as does the same element in Great Britain. If the discharged soldiers in Great Britain were organized, they would, without question, dominate the politics of that country. Yet, at the last general election and at the numerous hard-fought and very important by-elections which have been held since the discharged soldiers, as a body, have hardly once proved to be an influential factor in the contest. It is not as if there were no efforts made to organize the ex-soldiers. Every move in the art of politics is well known over there, and the politicians have been fully alive to the importance of the soldier element. Desperate efforts have been made to organize them for political purposes, but every effort has failed. Soldier leaders, with idealistic visions of the future, have also tried, but they, too have failed. It is bound to be utterly impossible to hold the soldiers together; in face of the live, public issue they take sides right, left, and centre, just as do the civilians, and thus neutralise their strength. The same thing was true of the soldiers both in Australia and New Zealand. It does not seem possible that these experiences will be reversed in Canada. The cement which binds political groups together today is a similarity of economic conditions, and, by no stretch of the imagination, can it be said that the veterans belong to the same economic group. They are composed of individuals from every stratum of social and industrial life, and how it will be possible for them to maintain unity when confronted with an issue that really matters, is not easy to imagine."

TRYING AGAIN AT WASHINGTON

Once again the United States Senate is to try to reach a decision on the Treaty of Versailles with the Covenant of the League of Nations as one of its component parts.

In the time which has elapsed since the unfortunate deadlock of last November, both people and politicians have had a chance to think the whole matter over calmly and to realize the grave consequences of an attempt by the United States to play a lone hand. No one not very closely in touch with the people, certainly no one in this country, can say what is in their mind, but the activities of some of the politicians and of a certain type of newspaper have been only too apparent. They have lost no single chance to estrange their country from her former Allies, more particularly from Great Britain, and have worked night and day to represent American as the catspaw of bankrupt and unscrupulous European nations.

In view of all this it would, perhaps, be as well if the whole question were put to the test of a popular vote, even though there seems to be more chance of compromise now than there was three months ago. President Wilson and Mr. Lodge have both receded somewhat from their original attitudes, the President's letter today, accepting the Hitchcock reservations, and Mr. Lodge some time ago having been apparently much impressed with the Grey letter.

Here is at least the basis for an understanding and a compromise, but should American participation in the League come about as the result of log-rolling under the dome at Washington? The President nails his colors to the mast once again when he reiterates his belief in the good faith of America's Allies in the great war. But unless the great mass of the American people share this faith with him American participation, which is so vitally necessary to the very principle of the League, will be a thing of shreds and patches, the result of political manipulation, not the spontaneous impulse of a great and generous-minded people.

We must not under-estimate the strength of the influences which are working to defeat the League idea in the United States. They are both active and passive, an active anti-British, pro-German propaganda, a passive traditional distrust of "entanglements" among millions upon millions of people, as they believe, their country has kept free from European obligations and disputes. It is this class, enormous in size, uninterested in international affairs, wholly satsfied with the world as they have known it, that must be brought to understand tat that world has forever passed away, and that no nation, alike no individual, can enjoy the advantages of membership in the commonwealth without sharing in its responsibilities. Once brought to realize this there is no group or combinaton of groups at Washington or elsewhere which can prevent the generous, impulsive, warm-hearted and wholly emotional people of the United States from full participation in the League. For only with full membership therein will America find the fulfillment of the instinct that sent her into the war.—Montreal Star.

OVER $4,000,000 FOR ONTARIO WORKMEN

THAT SUM AWARDED INJURED TOILERS LAST YEAR AS COMPENSATION.

A total of $4,181,932.43 is the sum awarded for compensation and medical treatment to injured workmen during the year 1919 under the Workmen's Compensation Act of Ontario. In all, 44,260 claims were presented to the Board for a decision, and of this comparatively heavy toll of accidents for the whole Province 429 resulted fatally.

Though these figures would vastly exceed the average man's estimate of the extent and serious nature of the injuries suffered by the workmen of the Province during their daily toil, they compare favourably enough with those of previous year, for in 1918 440 lives were lost and 47,848 accidents came under the notice of the Board.

That, in spite of the reduction in the number of accidents, the Act is becoming more expensive to administer is evidenced by the lower expenditure of $3,883,994.84 reported for 1918. The increase in the total of compensation awarded is accounted for by the general increase in the wages of workmen, making it necessary for the Board to issue grants on a more liberal scale than heretofore, and by the increased benefits allowed under certain amendments to the Act.

Increase in Pensions.

Among these amendments the most important was that granting an increase in widows' and children's pensions. As from 24th April, 1919, the widow's monthly pension was raised from $20 to $30, the allowance for a child, where the widow is living, from $5 to $7.50, and the maximum for all dependents from $40 to $60. By a further amendment it was provided that medical aid should be granted an injured workman for as long a period as he might require it instead of for a period of one month only.

Another amendment, which came into effect at the beginning of the present year, is that which extends the benefits of the present Act to persons engaged in clerical work who are henceforth to be covered by the Act in the same way as all other industrial employees. The exclusion of any class of employees in an industry was felt to be an anomaly. Though accidents to clerical employees do not frequently happen, it was decided that there was no valid reason why they should not be compensated when they do occur.

It is noteworthy that, while the number of accidents during the first nine months of 1919 was less than in the corresponding portion of 1018, the number for the last three months was greater, thus indicating a recent increase in industrial activity.

It is estimated that about 500,000 workmen are covered by the provisions of the Act. The total of 44,360 accidents, therefore, represents roughly eight per cent. of workmen so employed as to come under the Act, that is to say, one workman out of every twelve suffers, during the course of a single year, injuries s cient to entitle him to compensati

The Board is at present getting together the material for its anual report, which is to be issued in April. This weighty Blue Book contains, in addition to scores of tables of solid statistics, a record of the more interesting cases which have occurred during the year, and which illustrate the characteristic operation of the Act.

NO MORE KETCHUP BOTTLES IN LE PAS RESTAURANTS

(Canadian Press.)

THE PAS, Man., Feb. 12.—The last word on the best way of squelching the high cost of living was announced here. The miners and inhabitants of the nearby district are said to be very depressed over the new mandate, which is all for economy, and nothing for comfort. The sad news says that the well-known ketchup bottle seen on the tables and counters in The Pas restaurants must be abolished. The story goes that in the old days hardy trappers and prospectors were won't to drink the ketchup bottles empty while waiting for a luscious steak. The practise has been carried on to the present day and it is a common everyday occurrence to see a husky bushman tip the bottle to his lips, be it ketchup of Worcester sauce, and drink the contents to the dregs. It is expensive to the proprietors so they have abolished the counter bottles, and henceforth patrons will be served with a half-teaspoonful of sauce on a little round butter dish.

SALTS IF KIDNEYS OR BLADDER BOTHER

Harmless to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is a difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and cause no bad effects whatever.

LALONDE BERATED BY EXCITED FANNETTE

MONTREAL, Feb. 12.—Probably in all his lengthy hockey experience it had not fallen to the lot of Newsy Lalonde to be attacked by a woman fan prior to Saturday night's game with Quebec, here.

Immediately after Lalonde had entered the penalty box, following his set to with Frank Brophy, a woman attired in sealskins, and with many jewels in evidence, rushed down from a nearby box, and began to berate Lalonde in no uncertain terms. Newsy rapped on the back of the cage with his stick in an effort to shoo away the excited fanette, but this only added to the woman's ire, and reaching over the top of the netting, she plied her muff vigorously on Lalonde's head. The woman was joined by her escort, who added his voice to the chorus, and it took three or four policemen and ushers to quell the disturbance. The woman was still breathing dire threats as she left the rink.

Between serving two majors and a minor, being cuffed by a woman, and battling wth Brophy, Lalonde had time to score only two goals during the evening.

SAYS EGYPT BURSTING WITH COTTON WEALTH

Correspondent Tells of Big Sums Made by Natives.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Egypt is "bursting with wealth," accumulated from cotton, says a correspondent of the Daily Express in Cairo.

"Illiterate natives living in mud huts have made 20,000 pounds sterling out of cotton deals," he continues, "some have made 100,000 pounds. They are buying land at inflated prices, and paying off mortgages which were regarded as family heirlooms. One British official says that the country has made at least 100,000,000 pounds. Naturally there is an influx of new millionaires in Cairo, with a huge demand for automobiles, jewellery, new houses and all kinds of luxuries, but in the provinces many of the newly rich have not changed their standard of living at all.

NEED FOR CONSERVATION.

Fisheries on Fraser River Must Be Conserved.

(Canadian Press.)

VICTORIA, B.C., Feb. 12.—"Fraser River Salmon situation, a Reclamation Project," is the title of an interesting brochure written by John Pease Babcock, assistant to the Provincial Commissioner of Fisheries. Mr. Babcock reiterates the warnings given on more than one occasion by the Provincial Department of Fisheries as to the need of drastic conservation methods in order that the Fraser River run may be prevented from becoming exterminated altogether, and concludes with the suggestion that the restoration of the sockeye salmon fisheries of the Fraser River systems is the greatest reclamation project in which Canada and the United States can jointly engage, and that, with the least expense and most certain results.

"The lake waters of the Fraser River basin cover an area of 1,514,000 acres, that when seeded by spawning sockeye as abundantly as they were seeded in 1897, 1901, 1905 and 1909, will produce annually a run of sockeye salmon from which may be taken sufficient fish to fill 1,927,602 cases, worth $30,000,000, without an overdraft on the run," says Mr. Babcock.

SANDRA THE JEALOUS

BY JANE PHELPS

"ROSE TELLS SANDRA ALL THE HOME GOSSIP."

CHAPTER XLV.

Mrs. Gray met us at the door and welcomed us so nicely I felt that Rose must surely be jealous of my menage, even if I had not pleased her in my choice of a husband.

"Isn't she a dear! who is she?" Rose asked when we were alone.

"My housekeeper."

"She's awfully refined-looking to be a housekeeper."

"She is refined. If she were not she would not be here. Mr. Graham, Everett, is very particular."

Just then Hetty came in to help Rose unpack, so we said nothing more. But I could see that I had already made an impression upon Rose. But I forgot all such foolishness after luncheon when she told me all about home and home folks. Of father, mother and the boys first; then of all the town boys and girls, especially those I used to run around with.

I laughed until I cried over pranks of Buster and Toodles. They had not grown less mischievous, It seemed, since I left home. She told me Mother missed me dreadfully, and that she and the other girls often went and sat with her awhile to talk about me.

Jack Densmore had married Cornelia Willets. And Bob Cushing was rushing May Ogden. Of course there might be nothing serious, but May was terribly sentimental, and Bob was awfully good-looking, though he didn't have a penny—was just a clerk in a store.

"Her mother tries to keep her from going with Bob, but May manages to see a lot of him." Rose said, "and I think May is right. At least I have always thought as she does. What is money or position compared to love?"

"You've read that somewhere, Rose Grandon! I know you have. It sounds exactly as if you were reading from a novel," I replied.

"No—I don't remember reading it. I might change my mind a little if I could have such a home as—well as this." Then with one of her quick changes:

"Has that Mr. Edmonds any money?"

"I don't know—I guess so. He goes in our set—goes to all the expensive places, and all that sort of thing."

"Well, Mother always said it was just as easy to like a man with money as one without. Perhaps she is right," Rose looked so serious as she made this wise remark that I burst out laughing. But I was really quite glad I had invited her, although I could not make myself feel quite so keen upon the subject of her marriage to Barrett as I had suposed I would be. Someway I did not enjoy having her bring him into the conversation in the was she did. It was as though she had already decided to marry him.

We talked until about 3 o'clock then I ordered the car and we took a long drive. I felt really happy. It was clever in me to send for Rose—it was ever so much pleasanter than staying alone.

We stayed out so late we fairly had to scramble ourselves into our clothes to be in time for dinner. But Rose looked lovely in a dainty rose colored evening dress. I put on one of my new bite ones and did my hair high, just as I had it in the attic—just a big soft swirl on the top of my head.

"It makes you look five years older," Rose said. Then "What a lovely dress!"

"I hate blue. But Everett doesn't like me in other colors because of—my hair! I almost had said because he always saw his other wife wear blue.

"It is awfully becoming, but one tires of one color all the time."

"Oh, I wear white with touches of blue! you see he buys me such beautiful things I shouldn't complain because he chooses the color." Someway I could resent what Everett did, but it was altogether different hearing someone else criticise him.

"I should say he did!" Rose replied heartily, "Why, there isn't a girl I know who has one-hundredth what you have. I guess you knew what you were doing after all if you did get married so young and if your husband is old."

"He isn't old—not a single bit! He's just old enough to have a position in business and society," I returned in my most grandiose manner, just as Hetty announced dinner.

EXPORTS ARE INCREASING.

(Canadian Press.)

CALGARY, Alta Feb. 12.—Exports from Central Alberta to the United States, composed chiefly of grain and cattle, are increasing steadily, according to figures issued by Samuel Rear, United States consul in Calgary. During 1919, this consular district cleared goods to the invoice value of $10,994,387 or about $4,000,000 more than in 1918, and practically double the exports of 1917. Proportionate increases, it is estimated, were made by the rest of the province, although returns have not been received from United States consular agencies at Lethbridge and Edmonton. The exports in the last three years from Central Alberta follow: 1919—$10,994,387; 1918—$6,772,294 and in 1817—$5,593,438.

STORIES OF EUROPE FROM TRAVELERS

STRICT RATIONING OF BUTTER IN ENGLAND—SALVATION ARMY COMMISSIONER TO SURVEY FIELD.

NEW YORK — Commissioner David C. Lamb of the Salvation Army Headquarters in London, arrived on the "Adriatic" on his way to New Zealand and Australia via Canada, accompanied by Lieut.-Col. Charles Taylor. He said his object was to inquire into economic conditions before sending out any more emigrants to those countries. He added that labor conditions in England were better and the majority of the demobilized soldiers had obtained jobs. It was more difficult, he said, for the young officers who refused to take subordinate positions. Many of these he thought, would emigrate.

In Berlin Uprising.

J. F. Byrnes, who was on the steps of the Reichstag in Berlin on Jan. 9 when the firing began in the uprising on that date, said the number killed was far more than had been reported in the cables. The demonstration was made by the Socialists and Bolsheviki, he said, and when the military truned the machine guns on the mob he took cover. The hotel proprietors in Berlin, he said, had raised their rates 1,000 per cent. in some cases to make up for the depreciation of the German mark. The wharves at Antwerp were loaded with goods for the peoples of Central Europe, who were in dire need of them, he said, and no freight was being moved when he passed through the city.

Samuel Vauclain, President of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, returned from a trip to Europe accompanied by his daughter Constance. He said the American engines made in Philadelphia for the war were doing good work in peace time. You could easily tell a Baldwin locomotive because it would be drawing a train three times as long as the ordinary French train.

Baron John Mannerheim, known as the "Swedish wood-pulp king, arrived on the liner to confer with buyers of wood-pulp and make a trip into Canada. He said that if the freight rates were lower Sweden could assist this country in helping out the print paper shortage.

637,000 Under His Control.

Another passenger was Samuel A. Wallace, an American, who took the charge of big industrial plants in England for the Government three years ago and managed them successfully. He was the head of Woolwich Arsenal, the Enfield Arms factory and the Slough Transportation factory, and had 637,000 employes under his control. The factory at Slough covered 640 acres of ground and turned out thousands of motor transports during the war.

Chief Steward A. L. Gosling of the Adriatic said the people in England were rationed to an ounce of butter per head each week, with control butter at two shillings and sixpence, but could buy fresh butter at four shillings a pound when it was offered for sale. Sugar was rationed, half a pound per head per week, he said. There was plenty of meat, he added, and the Government wanted the people to eat more of it, but they did not do it because they had become accustomed to going without during the war.

INDUSTRIES FLOURISH

(Canadian Press.)

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 12.—New wealth approximately $3,500,000 was created by operation of industries in Northern Manitoba during 1919, according to information contained in the annual report of Prof. R. W. Wallace, Commissioner of Northern Manitoba tabled in the Legislature. The exact figures of production given are gold, silver and copper, $694,633; timber $588,300; fisheries, $163,000; agriculture, $144,800 and furs, $1,867,000.

Not "Old World" Scene But New World Problem

"Don't argue. Just show me."

Here's an attempt by the church to do in picture what has so often failed in sermon — to convince church-going Canadians that it is worth while to spend millions of dollars in Canadianising the alien.

The scene here reproduced is from a photograph taken in Toronto's slummiest centre, "The Ward." Greatly enlarged and embellished with design, it is the feature of a book on national problems which the Methodist National Campaign has just issued in connection with the effort to raise $4,000,000 in an every-member canvass, February 9-14.

Artists say that the photograph is fine enough to be a good painting of an Old World scene. It is "Old World" enough—happy Italians at cards after work. Cards! And no effort is made in the whole production to brand the group as degraded foreigners. Rather they are treated as "New Canadians."

TRUTH

When you start to advertise---stick to facts!
Good business isn't built on lies---stick to facts!
No matter what you have to sell,
The truth is good enough to tell,
Boost your goods and boost them well, but stick to facts!
When tempted to exaggerate---stick to facts!
Tell the truth, but don't overstate---stick to facts!
If the truth is not enough,

Instead of being one of the bleating, blatting sheep, use your head and your sense of justice and with an unbiased mind set to work to make yourself worthy.

There are two sides to every question.

You are not honest if you are afraid to look at either side.—New York Journal.

GUNNER JACK HERON GETS MONS STAR, BOTH HANDS FROZEN IN WEST

Mr. Alex. Heron of 283 Rubidge street, whose son, J. R. Heron, was overseas from 1914, with the Canadian Field Artillery, and who is at present in Alberta, has received the Mons Star for military service.

To Gun. J. R. Heron,
300514,
Can. Fd. Artillery,
1914-1915.

"Jack" Heron, as he is familiarly known, has been engaged in Presbyterian Mission Work at Meadow Creek, Alberta. The unfortunate intelligence was received by his father that "Jack" had both hands severely frozen during the severe cold weather in that district when the thermometer reached 46 degrees below zero. A doctor had to be sent for from a distance of 15 miles, and is doing what he can to save the hands which are in a very bad condition.

To Keep Your Skin Free From Hairs

(Beauty Topics.)

If you are willing to spend a few minutes time in your room using a delatone paste, you can easily banish any ugly, hairy growth without discomfort or injury. The paste is made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. This is then spread over the hairy surface and after about 2 minutes rubbed off and the skin washed. You will not be disappointed with this treatment, providing you get real delatone.

ALL RED LINE PLAN PROPOSED

QUEBEC, Feb. 12. — The development of all the resources of Quebec province, the construction of railways to James Bay and on the North Shore of the St. Lawrence from Montreal and Quebec to Labrador for the purpose of rapid communication with Europe and more direct relations with Newfoundland, were all questions which were treated by Achille Bergevin of Beauharnois in the Legislative Assembly yesterday.

He contended that his proposal would bring into existence the All Red Line plan which had been advocated by Sir Wilfrid Laurier at the Imperial Conference is 1907.

SCIENCE PROVES THE DANGER OF BLEEDING GUMS

Medical science proves that unhealthy gums cause serious ailments. People suffering from Pyorrhea (a disease of the gums) often suffer from other ills, such as rheumatism, anaemia, nervous disorders, or weakened vital organs. These ills have been traced in many cases to the Pyorrhea germs which breed in pockets about the teeth.

Four out of five people over forty have Pyorrhea. It begins with tender and bleeding gums. Then the gums recede, the teeth decay, loosen and fall out, or must be extracted to rid the system of the infecting Pyorrhea germs.

Guard your health and your teeth. Keep Pyorrhea away. Visit your dentist often for tooth and gum inspection, and make daily use of Forhan's For the Gums.

Forhan's For the Gums will prevent Pyorrhea—or check its progress—if used in time, and used consistently. Ordinary dentifrices cannot do this. Forhan's will keep the gums firm and healthy, the teeth white and clean.

RAILWAY MEN'S PLEA GOES TO PRESIDENT

(Canadian Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12. — Mr. Hines' memorandum, which was sent to the White House shortly before noon, was understood to have embodied the claims and arguments of Union officials with whom he has been conferring since Feb. 3rd. Union officials, with the exception of maintenance of way employees and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, apparently were willing to leave the case in the hands of the President. Although there was dissatisfaction because living costs had not been reduced, it was evident that Union men felt that another opportunity should be given for adjustment of differences.

OVERSEAS BRANCH OF THE DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 12. — Canadian Trade Mission in London has been discontinued. In its stead there has been constituted a special Trade Commission Branch of Department of Trade and Commerce. This branch will be known as Oversea Branch and will be under the direction of W. C. Noxon, who was chief assistant under Lloyd Harris. With Mr. Noxon will be associated Harrison Watson, Chief Trade Commissioner in the United Kingdom, who will co-ordinate the work of Associated Trade Commissioners with Overseas Branch.

KOLCHAK KILLED TO PREVENT HIS RESCUE

LONDON, Feb. 11.—Admiral Kolchak, was executed by his own troops to prevent his rescue by white troops moving in the direction of Irkutsk for that purpose, according to a Copenhagen despatch to The Herald.

The Moscow Soviet sent a wireless message asking his captors to spare his life, but the appeal was too late.

The Moscow wireless service on 31st January transmitted an extract from an article from the official Bolshevik organ Pravda, which said:

BEAVERBROOK'S IDEA UNDER CONSIDERATION

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Feb. 12.— The question was raised in the House of Commons to-day whether the Government had under consideration the suggestion of Carter Glass, recently retired secretary of treasury, that the United States be paid her International debts in gold. It was asked also whether, in order to help meet this request, British owners of ornamental gold, such as trinkets and plate be invited to hand them to the treasury in return for interest-bearing bonds, and thereby assist the position of exchange between England and America.

To these questions Austin Chamberlin, Chancellor of the Exchequer, replied that he had taken steps to have the proposals indicated carefully examined. Premier Lloyd George was asked by a member whether he could see a way to enforce a drastic reduction in the importation of luxuries. The Premier replied that the government was not in a position to enforce any restrictions upon importations of foreign goods. He said that less than two per cent. of imports from America were of articles of luxury.

A VICIOUS CIRCLE

Labor costs have advanced with prices and prices have advanced with labor costs. It is difficult to unravel such a vicious circle. Wages cannot well go down while prices remain high, yet wages are one of the large elements that maintain those prices. The one condition that will produce lower prices is the cutting off all unnecessary labor. This is done by the Groceteria, two stores, where foods are sold without adding cost of delivery and credit system. 2d-36

A STRAY FLASK IN TOOL BOX COST FIVE APSLEY MEN $10 EACH

Roland Tucker, Vernon Windsor, Archie Wilson, Fred Mann and John Coons, five young men from Apsley, came up before Magistrate Langley this morning charged with being intoxicated on Christmas night at a party held in the northern village.

This charge was the result of an investigation carried on by License Inspector Stewart for some time past and last week Mr. Stewart paid a casual visit to the village and served the papers.

The case was to have been tried in Apsley but was changed last evening at the request of the accused. The young men all pleaded guilty to the charge but the manner in which the "jag" was secured differed in each case.

Wilson swore that on the night of the dance Windsor drove him in his car to his house to get his sister. On the way back they had some trouble with the car and had to use some tools from the tool box. Imagine their surprise when they opened the tool box and found a bottle of whis key reposing in the midst of monkey wrenches and screw drivers! This was responsible for two of the boys' insobriety. Tucker and Mann split a regulation 6 ounce bottle of alcohol, while Coons who played the fiddle at the dance got a bottle of beef, iron and wine at Windsor's store to brace up his nerves as he claims he is suffering from shell shock.

After the Magistrate had listened to these tales of woe there was nothing for him to do but set the fine, which he did—$10 apiece and costs

In several cases the costs amounted to more than the fine, and the quintette discovered the high cost of "a little jag."

SPIRITOUS FLOOD INTO DRY CANADA

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Feb. 12.— An official return shows that the spirits exported to Canada in January were valued at 109,684 pounds, against 20,984 pounds last year.

Girls! Your hair needs a little "Danderine"—that's all! When it becomes lifeless, thin or loses its lustre; when ugly dandruff appears, or your hair falls out, a 35-cent bottle of delightful, dependable "Danderine" from any store, will save your hair, also double it's beauty. You can have nice, thick hair, too.

HERE'S A WINNER IN GOLF YARNS

Deference paid to golf at Pinehurst is impressive.

Mrs. B. Metcalf Keating hooked her drive to the railroad tracks near the clubhouse recently just as the train was coming along. The engineer, leaning out of the window, saw the ball come to rest between the rails, saw it perch itself upon an ideal but precarious tee in the form of a tiny pile of cinders, grasped the situation and the airbrake control at the same instant and brought the train to a sudden stop.

The passengers may have been slightly shaken up in the process, but Mrs. Keating's lie was not disturbed. The train waited until a good recovery shot had been played, thes resumed its journey northward.

JAPS PLAYING GOOD HOCKEY

It is surprising the strides being taken by the young Japanese population in the different sports which are so popular with their white brothers.

The Asahis, a Vancouver Japanese athletic club, is playing American games with considerable success. Last summer the baseball team showed some real class against local and outside teams.

This winter the Japs have taken to ice hockey. The sport is new to them, but they are mastering the finer points of the game.

The little goal-tender of the Asahis has shown he has the makings of a player by is clever handling of some hard shots.

FORGOTTEN.

I met a traveller from an antique land,
Who said: Two vast and trunkless legs of stone
Stand in the desert. Near them on the sand,
Half sunk, a shattered visage lies, whose frowns
And wrinkled lips and sneer of cold command
Tell that its sculptor well those passions read
Which yet survive, stamp'd on these lifeless things,
The hand that mock'd them and the heart that fed;
And on the pedestal these words appear:
"My name is Ozymandias, king of kings;
Look on my works, ye Mighty, and despair!"
Nothing beside remains. Round the decay
Of that colossal wreck, boundless and bare,
The lone and level sands stretch far away.

—Percy Bysshe Shelley.

WAR ON PESTS SUCCESSFUL

High Death Rate Amongst Gophers and Crows.

(Canadian Press.)

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 12.—Half a million gophers and 400,000 crows were destroyed in Manitoba in the past year, according to the report of the Department of Agriculture submitted to the Legislature. It was estimated that the destruction of these pests saved one million dollars to the Province in grain which they would have destroyed.

Spring House-Cleaning and Renovating

Is In the Minds of Many Women So We Bring to Them Attention That Which Will Serve Them Best

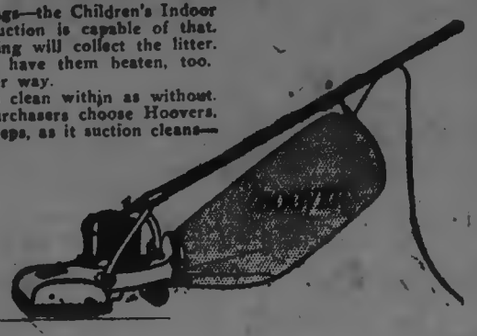
The joy of the approach of Spring is often clouded by the thought of the accompanying task of house-cleaning. A housewife's work however can be greatly lessened and more efficiently done if the proper method is adopted and the most suitable preparations and implements are used. Below are listed numerous articles that will serve you diligently and give the maximum of service. They can be had in our new department on third floor.

The "Hoover" Has No Peer

It Beats, As It Sweeps, As It Cleans

How clean do you want your Rugs—the Children's Indoor Play Grounds? Partially clean? Suction is capable of that. Thoroughly swept? Electric Sweeping will collect the litter. Completely clean? You'll have to have them beaten, too. Deep-in grit defies removal any other way.

Most folks desire their Rugs as clean within as without. And hence most Electric Cleaner purchasers choose Hoovers. For only the Hoover beats as it sweeps, as it suction cleans—meaning, it is a Thorough Cleaner. And besides, when you just run your Hoover over, it straightens crushed nap, brightens colouring, and promotes longer wear from the Carpetings.



A Bissell Carpet Sweeper Proves Its Worth in a Multitude of Ways

When you have your Rugs Cleaned this Spring, keep them clean. If not with a Hoover Vacuum, then with a Bissell's Carpet Sweeper—it is the next best way. A woman who does not use a Bissell's is not only hard on her Rugs, but hard on herself. They are more efficient than any other. This you will soon learn when you put it to use.

The "Princess" is $5.75 — "American Queen," $6.00 — "Parlour Queen," $6.50.

The "Keystone Vacuum Sweeper" is not a Bissell product, but is made by a trustworthy firm that is well known to merchants, but is not so well advertised to the general pulbic. It is the best to be had, and is very moderately priced at $9.95.

A "Tar Box Mop" Is Chemically Treated—

and is for Dry Dusting and not for treating Floors. Lint and coarse dirt can be shaken out, but the dust is held until washed out with hot water and soap. You can readily see how this advantage will assist you in the important task of dusting. Priced at 65c, 85c, $1.50, $2.00 and $2.25.

"O-Cedar" Mops for Hardwood Floors, Etc.

It cleans, dusts, and polishes all at one time. It cuts the work of Housekeeping in half. The Mop can be washed, cleaned, and renewed with O-Cedar Polish. There are over one million in use, and all are giving satisfaction—ask your neighbour. They are priced at $1.50. O-Cedar Polish in bottles in

Martin-Senour, a Paint That Is 100% Pure

In addition to the Special Paint Products made for distinctive purposes, there is one Paint that is adapted to all general uses. Such a Paint is Martin-Senour 100% Pure Paint. It is an absolutely guaranteed product, composed of the very ingredients which make it the most desirable and economical Paint to use for general purposes.

100% Pure Paint is all that the name implies, and will give you wonderful satisfaction. "It pays to use it, whether on the outside or inside of your buildings."

Two coats are always better than one. Let your first coat dry thoroughly before applying the second, and the result obtained will speak for itself.

Save the surface and you save all.

"Marble-Ite" Floor Finish

"Finest Interior Finish" for Inside Varnishing

The Possibilities of Alabastine and Muresco

are often overlooked by those who desire to have their walls refinished. They come in soft, delicate tones that are not procurable in oil paints, and when a wall or ceiling is relieved by a stencilled border or panel, the result is very pleasing. This treatment is subject to so many variations, and as mentioned before, the colours are so delicate that Alabastine and Muresco are high in favour with many.

Floor Wax—

is all important to a good Floor or a poor one for that matter. All most people demand of a Floor Wax is "that it gives a good polish." Johnson's or Old English Floor Wax will do more than this. They protect and preserve a Floor and give prominence to beautiful Graining. In short, it enhances the finish, and does not collect dust. You will also find them equally suitable for Linoleums.

BUSY SEASON FOR THE LOCAL DOCTORS

LEAVE YOUR CALLS IN THE DOCTORS' OFFICES EARLY IN THE DAY.

Dr. E. Wood, representing the Peterboro Medical Association has made the request that owing to the fact that the doctors in Peterboro are working under pressure due to the prevalence of influenza and other ills, the public be advised to leave their calls at the doctors offices early in the day. Today one doctor had to make three trips to one end of Aylmer street on account of the calls coming in at different periods throughout the day. Had these calls been left in early which could have been done in all three cases the doctor in question would have covered the ground more quickly and been relieved for other pressing duties. Two or three doctors in the city are ill at the present time and this is increasing the burden on the medical fraternity. This request is made in order that the public might be served to the best advantage. If persons who telephone a doctor's office and find the doctor out, would leave their message it would also facilitate matters. As it is now many of them leave their telephone numbers and ask the doctor to call. Much time is lost in this manner.

NEW YORK MIDDLE-CLASS UNION PLAN

LEADER DECLARES "IN-BETWEEN" WORKERS WILL PROTECT THEMSELVES.

NEW YORK, February 10. — The "bloodless revolution" has arrived. The long suffering "bourgeoise" has revolted and is organizing itself into the "Middle-class Union of New York" to right affairs represented by capital and labor."

Wilmot L. Morehouse, one of the chief organizers and temporary presidents of the union, to-day declared the union will inaugurate a "bloodless revolution" to correct present conditions.

"We will use the boycott, or whatever method we find most suited, to bring down the high cost of living," he said. "If to accomplish this, labor cost—wages—must come down, too, I am confident that the laboring man won't kick. His dollar is only worth fifty cents; if we make it worth a dollar he will readily realize his salary is twice as valuable.

Blames "Big Fellows."

"The big fellows in business are responsible for excessive profits—not the storekeeper. And they are the ones who profit from high prices. They can hold on to their dollars until they rise from 50c to a dollar in value and have twice as much, while the middle class men and even the laborer with the high wages must pay out his twice normal salary in double prices."

Membership in any labor union is not a bar to membership in the "bourgeoise union." According to Morehouse no one is barred.

The work of organization will be chiefly through community centres, and other existing civic organizations. The creators of the middle-class union hope to enroll American Legion chapters in their entirety.

Taxation as well as living costs—in fact any problem affecting the members of the union—will be taken up. While the present organization plans are being made only for New York State, applications may be made in the near future for a national charter, it is said.

PRECIOUS STONES AND THEIR QUALITIES AS BELIEVED BY THE ANCIENTS

The ancients had many curious beliefs regarding the magic powers of jewels and precious stones.

Some of these superstitions have survived to this day the most notable one, perhaps being that regarding the opal, which many people, otherwise intelligent, still believe to bring ill luck to its possessor. The origin of the names of jewels is very interesting. The province of a dictionary is mainly to define words. This the New Universities Dictionary does with remarkable clarity and precision. The gems and precious stones are all pronounced and defined in its pages, but it would not be adapted to every-day use for every-day people, if it were to go into etymological research.

That it is the dictionary par excellence, however, for the home, the school, the office, or the workshop—our distribution, already attaining enormous proportions, proves. We are glad to place this book within reach of everybody—almost as a gift. Our coupon elsewhere in to-day's paper, explains terms.

Sale will only last a few days more. Price 98c. at Examiner Office.

MARRIED RUSSIAN SINGER HE SAVED FROM BOLSHEVIK

MME. LIPKOWSKA AND HER HUSBAND, LIEUT. BODIN OF FRENCH ARMY, NOW IN UNITED STATES.

NEW YORK—Mme. Lydia Lipkowska, a Russian operatic soprano with the Boston Opera Company before the war, arrived from Cherbourg on the White Star liner Adriatic with her husband, Lieut. Pierre Bodin, of the French cavalry. She told a romantic story of their first meeting in Odessa, when Lieut. Bodin rescued her from "Reds," and their flight by night on a ship to escape the Bolsheviki.

"I was in Peterograd when the war broke out, singing at the Imperial Opera House, and my daughter, Aldonna, was attending school there," the singer said. "When the Russian armies went to the front the artists at the Opera House, including the dancers, gave performances for the benefit of the widows and orphans and continued to do so until the revolution in 1917. Up to that time living conditions in the capital had been possible. Coal and lighting was scarce and dear but could be obtained. The revolutionists did not interfere with people in the streets, but when the Bolsheviki got into power I fled to the Caucasus with my daughter, where we lived in peace until they came into that remote section of Southern Russia. Finally we reached Odessa and remained there until April, 1919, when the Bolsheviki entered at night as we left the port with the troops on a steamer for Constantinople.

"The Bolsheviki were very free with the money in Petrograd. A very small artist received 10,000 to 12,000 roubles a week and the masses, who knew nothing of music and had never entered a theatre in their lives, packed the Opera House at each performance, paying from 500 to 1,500 roubles for their seats. The sufferings of the Russian people under the Bolshevist rule cannot be realized by any one who has not visited the country and seen evidences of their cruelty at first hand.

Tells of Her Peril.

"I wish my husband to tell you of our escape from Russia because my daughter and I owe our lives to him, as we would have fallen into the hands of the 'Reds' if he had not taken us away."

Lieut. Bodin declared he had done nothing beyond his duty as a soldier of France toward a woman in distress.

"I had heard Mme. Lipkowska singing in Odessa for the widows and orphans of the war, but had never spoken to her until the night we were ordered to leave the Russian port, as the 'Reds' were advancing in strong force and we could do nothing to stop them. I went to Madame's hotel and warned her that she must flee at once and managed to get her out of the city dressed as a peasant woman with the aid of my brother officers. We had such a rush that it was impossible to go outside the city for Aldenna, who was living in a convent.

"After our arrival in Constantinople Madame Lipkowska said she would make an attempt to get back to Odessa in disguise and rescue her daughter. We purchased a small fishing felucca and six French officers disguised as Russian sailors with myself and the captain and a Black Sea pilot started for Odessa, which we expected would take three days, but instead it was six and our provisions ran out.

"We landed in the port in the night and I and three officers with Madame, who is now my wife, went ashore and managed to reach the convent where we roused the people and got Aldenna safely away on board the felucca. From the Turkish capital we all returned to France together and Madame and I were married in Paris last September."

Relates Bolshevist Atrocities.

Lieutenant Bodin said the officers who entered Odessa last Fall after its evacuation by the Bolsheviki found traces of tortures and crimes too horrible to think of. Houses were found with bodies suspended from the beams in every room and in some of them, which evidently had been used as torture chambers, they discovered finger nails and teeth and hand, arms and legs thrown in heaps in the corners.

YOUNG INVENTOR STARTLES WORLD

Alfred M. Hubbard, a 19-year-old Seattle boy, announced the perfection of an invention he terms an "atmospheric power generator," and made claims that recently caused Seattles' leading electrical engineers according to newspaper accounts, to doubt the evidence of their senses, and to pause before they condemned as folly the assertions of the youth.

With the apparatus, in appearance a small coil of wire about 6 inches in diameter, surrounding a permanently magnetic core, 8 inches long, the entire contrivance easily carried in a man's hand, Hubbard gave a demonstration miles from his laboratory that regardless of the principles involved, several Seattle engineers declared without parallel in electrical history

An ordinary incandescent electric lamp connected with the two terminals of the "atmospheric power generator" glowed to a cherry red for nearly an hour and Hubbard volunteered to permit the lamp to burn for as many hours as was necessary to satisfy the most skeptical.

The young inventor claims that there are no moving parts connected with his generator, that there are no hidden batteries, storage or primaries, and those that witnessed the demonstration made sure that there was no outside connection with any source of power.

Hubbard's explanation of the phenomenon is that he has sucsed in transforming the earth's lines of magnetic force into electrical energy available for use.

ONE OF CHIEF CAUSES OF BOLSHEVISM

(Canadian Press.)

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 12.—Inability on the part of the average worker to provide the necessary safeguards for the health of his family is one of the chief causes of Bolshevism, E. S. H. Winn, chairman of the Provincial Commission on health insurance said during the course of an address to the members of the retail bureau of the Board of Trade and Retail Merchants' Association. The average worker is not able, under present conditions, to buy health insurance, he declared, but pointed out that under state health insurance the cost would be spread over the entire community.

The actual cost of operation would be insignificant as was shown in the experience of the Workmen's Compensation Board, which Mr. Winn is also chairman. By properly safeguarding the health of the worker, he said, it would mean that productive efficiency would be increased.

Valentine Tea.

The W. A. of St. John the Baptist Church held their annual Valentine tea in St. John's school room on Tuesday afternoon. The tea was, as usual, a great success, and the members of the W. A. are to be congratulated on the success of it.

The school room was prettily decorated with Valentines, and hearts and cupids were everywhere in evidence.

The members of the Auxiliary wore dainty little heart-shaped badges, the work of the president, Miss Florence Atwood, which artistic touch was also seen in the decorations.

The White Elephant was a great drawing card, and was well patronised. It was under the direction of Mrs. Robert Jory and Mrs. John Sanderson.

Mrs. Thomas R. White and Mrs. Wm. Watson were in charge of the candy table, and drove a thriving trade with their tempting wares.

Mrs. Marling and Mrs. Twist presided at the apron table, where every variety of apron was on sale.

Mrs. Northcott occupied her accustomed place at the home cooking table, and was assisted by Mrs. Jackson.

Mrs. T. Waldon, Mrs. Stenner, Mrs. A. Waunamaker, Mrs. S. White, and Mrs. Mahood were in charge of the tea tables.

Miss Atwood, Mrs. Archbold, and Mrs. Graham also assisted.

The financial returns were good, amounting to about $65.00, and the ladies are well satisfied with their work.

Mrs. Hamlin, Mr. Knox Payne, and Mr. Henry Batten, of Dummer, and Mrs. McMillan, delighted a large number of people who were present at the Epworth League on Monday night with their singing. It was a great treat, and was a night of triumph for the "Reds." Excitement is running high in the contest which is being held in the League just now.

The canvassers' report up to Tuesday night for the Anglican Forward Movement of St. John the Baptist Church, amounted to $708.00 out of an objective of $1,000.00. They expect to go over the top.

Stomach and Liver Trouble

Once the liver fails to filter the poisonous bile from the blood, there is a clogging up and poisoning of the whole system which causes many troubles to arise. Therefore, upon the liver, more than any other organ of the body, depends the general health.

Carelessness and neglect, and oftentimes wilful disregard of nature's laws will put the system out of sorts. The bowels become constipated, the liver inactive and the stomach upset. To bring the system back to its normal you should take Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. They liven up the liver, get the bowels back to their proper condition and tone up the stomach.

Mrs. G. L. Cackett, Enchant, Alta., writes:—"I have used Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and have found them good for both stomach and liver troubles. I have told others about your valuable medicine and they have used them with good results.

"They are also good for headache."

WOULD SAVE ONTARIO'S DEER

SPORTSMEN PETITION FISH AND GAME COMMITTEE TO MAKE HUNTING WITH HOUNDS ILLEGAL.

Just as the buffalo vanished from our western plains, so will the deer disappear from Ontario's forests unless some drastic action is taken by the Government. The slaughter of deer, aggravated by the foolish permit to kill two instead of one, in the autumn of 1918, reached alarming proportions. As a result, last fall the animals were very scarce and hunters who for years had never failed to get their deer went home empty-handed, disappointed and discouraged. Many had not even seen a "flag" in districts where deer were once plentiful.

Save Game For People.

The annual increase in the number of hunters, the indiscriminate shooting of does and fawns, and above all, the hunting of deer with dogs, is to blame for the growing scarcity. Action will have to be taken if deer hunting is not to become an extinct sport.

Those live-wire sportsmen who compose the Essex County Wild Life Conservation Association, whose object is to stop pot-hunting and slaughter so that the fish and game of this province may be preserved for the enjoyment of the average citizen, has submitted resolutions to the Ontario Fish and Game Committee, which in a few days meets in Queen's Park, to make the game laws for the coming year.

Kill One Buck Only.

Here are some of the restrictions:

"In view of the belief that deer will be exterminated within five years due to the toll of 50 or 60-pound fawns, three-fourths of which are does, which is ample evidence of a perilous depletion in the stock, and that hunters be educated to greater alertness to determine and distinguish deer from humans, we strongly urge a one-buck law, and that no buck with horns shorter than four inches in length be shot, killed or taken at any time."

An anti-hound hunter points out that the passage of this clause alone would virtually cut out the dog.

Stop Sale by Butchers.

"That in view of the prevalent opinion that the sale of protected big game should be prohibited, we urge that laws be immediately passed prohibiting the sale of deer, moose and caribou and other big game. Eighty per cent. of the big game that is sold is eaten by people who really do not need it and those who do not need it as food can obtain it by taking out the usual licenses and hunting for it.

No Hounding of Deer.

"To the end that big game be accorded more peace and quietness and the ethics of sportsmanship and stalking if big game be rapidly encouraged, be it resolved that in view of the belief that it is unsportsmanlike and deleterious to deer, moose and caribou, particularly to fawns and does, to hunt and pursue with hounds or other dogs, we strongly urge that the hunting of deer, moose and caribou with hounds or other dogs be immediately prohibited"

Mr. James L. Bath, 597 Bolivar street a friend of William Jackson, who was found dead several weeks ago in the lane behind Hooper's store and on whom an inquest was held and death was found to be due to natural causes, has written to friends of the unfortunate man in England.

A letter has been received by Mr. Bath from the deceased's uncle, Mr. C. Williams, of London, England, who expressed his deep regret at hearing of the untimely death of Jackson. The information was given that Jackson's real name was Bert Sykes, of which a rumour was current at the time of his death. He was born in Boston, England, and was twenty-eight years of age. His only relatives are Mr. William's wife and one other aunt and uncle, his parents being dead. The uncle thanked Mr. Bath for his kindness in writing him and expressed pleasure at the buriel that had been given his nephew and offered to supply any additional information if it was needed.

MORE RESERVED SEATS WILL GO ON SALE AT WARNE'S IN THE MORNING

BLOCK OF SEATS FOR TO-MORROW'S GAME WITH KINGSTON HAVE BEEN QUICKLY SNAPPED UP—RECORD CROWD WILL SEE EASTERNERS BATTLE WITH THE PETES.

The balance of the reserved seats for tomorrow night's game will go on sale at Warne's Drug Store to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock sharp. The tickets already offered were snapped up in a few minutes and it is not likely that those which will be on sale to-morrow morning will last any longer.

The crowd will be the biggest of the season and reserved seat holders are requested in order to save crowding and confusion to be in their seats at 8.15 sharp.

The front row of the balcony has been reserved and the tickets for the section have practically all been sold. Junior players and other holding complimentary tickets are asked to note that there will not be accommodation for them in the first row in the balcony and they will have to take their chance in the general admission section.

There is more interest in to-morrow night's game than in any hockey event here in years and the game promises to be the best exhibition that has been staged at Brock street in many moons. The Petes are expected to benefit by their few days rest after five games in ten days and they should be in good shape for to-morrow's battle. Grover Halpin who was hurt in Monday's game was much beter to-day and expects ot be all right by to-morrow. The Petes line up will be the same as triumphed over Lindsay and Oshawa while the Kingston team will include Tod-Derry and Ruby and Terry Milan. Both teams are confident of victory.

The game will start at 8.30 o'clock sharp.

R. BESSE OF CLAREMONT WON PETERBORO CUP IN CONSOLATION

FIRST OF THE BONSPIEL COMPETITIONS DECIDED—W. A. COAD OF OSHAWA WAS RUNNER-UP—LAST COME WAS FIRST SERVED.

PETERBOROUGH CUP FINAL.

D. A. Scott	W. Daniels
B. I. Love	Geo. Miller

R. Besse	W. A. Coad
Skip 11	Skip 9

Arriving too late for the Morrow competition, R. Besse lost his game in the Matthews-Blackwell and thereby qualified for the Peterborough cup, which was offered in the consolation series for the skips who failed to win a game in either of the two first series.

Although his was the last rink to arrive for the bonspiel, Besse's was the first to depart with a trophy and first prizes, four cut glass water sets, W. A. Coad, of Oshawa, as runner-up, taking the second prizes, four umbrellas. Only ten rinks played in this competition. Besse defeated Strickland of Lakefield in the first round and walked all over Jack Moore, of Keene, in the semi-final.

Coad disposed of Tanner's Lakefield rik, won from George Howson of Keene in the fours, and gave Besse a lively contest all the way through the finals.

Herb Martin's was the only local rink in this series. Lakefield's three rinks were all stopped in the first round, and two Keene rinks were defeated in the semi-finals.

The Peterborough Cup, won by Howson, of Keene, last year, again goes to an outside club.

Prizes Presented.

Mr. W. G. Morrow, chairman of the Bonspiel committee, presented the historic cup and the first prizes to Besse's rink, congratulating them upon their play. To both rinks he offered the thanks of the Peterborough club for attending the bonspiel and hoped that they would return next winter.

Both the finalists skips received the prizes with brief replies, stating that they had enjoyed the bonspiel.

"Claremont would like to have some of the Peterborough rinks come up for a friendly game," Mr. Besse said. Mr. Coad assured the committee that the Oshawa curlers who came five rinks strong this year, always had a pleasant stay in Peterborough.

PICK SITE FOR WILDE BOUT

Flyweight Champion Will Meet Mason in Coliseum at Milwaukee.

TOLEDO, Ohio—The world's championship boxing bout between Jimmy Wilde and Frankie Mason, flyweights, will be staged in the Coliseum here the first or second week of March, it was announced tonight by Ad Thacher, promoter, on his return from Milwaukee, where he signed Wilde to a contract.

The exact date will hinge upon an open date in the Coliseum's bookings Thacher said. Both the Armory and Terminal Auditorium have been given up as unsatisfactory. The Coliseum seats 3,000 persons.

Thacher also announced that the first three rows of seats would be priced at $15, others going on the market at $10, $7, $5 and $3.

Chicago sportsmen offered to purchase 1,000 seats, but Thacher refused to sell while in that city today, he said. The permit for the bout has been issued verbally and the promoter will begin advertising as soon as he learns just when the Coliseum will be available.

LINDSAY AND PETERBORO RINKS WILL MEET IN MORROW FINAL

BONSPIEL WELL BE WOUND UP TO-NIGHT—MATTHEWS-BLACKWELL COMPETITION AND WADDELL SERIES BOTH WELL ADVANCED.

GOOD CURLING ABILITY

It was another three o'clock touch this morning for the skips who found themselves in the late draw last night The big game of the wee small hours was Butler of Lindsay against Edmunds of Millbrook in the third round of the Morrow cup. The peppery Millbrook skip won handily by 16 to 9. Up to the sixth end it was an even contest with the score a tie, five all. On the next end Edmunds slipped over six shots and was never headed.

In the semi-finals this morning Edmunds was hung up with Frank Carew of Lindsay, and Dick Butler's club mate showed no mercy piling up 16 points to Edmunds 2. The Millbrook rink appeared to be fagged, at least they lacked the snap of the early morning game. This observation does not in the least detract from the skill of Carew's rink. In this competition they have waded through the rounds turning back all comers without distinction. Yesterday afternoon Miles Hamilton was the victim of 15 to 9 in the second round. As a result the young Lindsay skip at noon to-day was waiting for the final game between the winners of W. M. Lang vs. R. M. Waddell in the semi-finals.

The deciding game will be probably be played early this evening and should be a hummer. Lan's "Big Four" composed of Alex. Kay vice-skip, R. Hicks second and Lou Bowes lead are full of confidence. They disposed of Woodward of Cannington last night by 15 to 6 without any difficulty.

Waddell stopped DeLany of Cobourg in the second round, and came from behind this morning to defeat Harry McCallum of Fenelon Falls by 14 to 12 in a close game. Waddell has Rev. James Rollins lead, Jack Read second and R. G. Sturgeon vice-skip. McCallum was regarded as a likely contender for the semi-finals but Waddell overhauled him in the second half of this morning's game.

The Matthews-Blackwell Series

This competition will be well through the semi-finals this afternoon and will be completed to-night. Connal's garrison finish saved him from defeat by Carpenter of Grimsby who was six up with two ends to go. Connal scored a three and came through with three more on the last end winning by 12 to 11.

Two Close Games.

The feature of Wednesday night's play included J. D. Flavelle's defeat of Dick Butler in the Waddell competition and George Morrow's victoy over Archie Moore in the Matthew's-Blackwell by the score of 10 to 9.

Lindsay's old master had sustained an earlier defeat from his one-time pupil, and it probably smarted. At any rate he delivered a mild chastisement and let it go at that, something of a lesson in humility and a reminder that while youth must be served it cannot with impunity flout a veteran, not twice in succession.

Flavelle, by the way, worked smoothly all day. He turned McDermid back from the Matthews-Blackwell trophy by 10 to 5. This was a clean-cut win in which the Lindsay chief showed at his best against one of the strongest of the Peterborough rinks. His game with Butler was close down to the last stone, and while Butler attempted a rally, it netted him only one, although there was a slim chance of getting three.

The score was as follows:

Butler. . . . . 0020400201— 9
Flavelle. . . . . 2102032010—11

Won With His Last.

It was the finish on number seven ice that brought the gallery to its toes. On the 10th end Harry Foote, with Archie Moore skipping, was leading by 8 to 7. On the 11th the rings were vacant when the skips shot. This end was loosely played. Both skips missed their first stones. Morrow was shot with his last, and Moore made a perfect raise to the button for one shot, making it 9 to 7.

Then they came home to the accompanment of Morrow's whistling, a traditional outpouring when he is in a tight corner. Bill Taylor, vieing for him, drew one shot. Another was bumped in and with his last stone Morrow brushed one of his that was lying near the eight foot ring and pushed it in for the third shot and the game. There are some who say that Morrow has more than a bowing acquaintance with Lady Luck, but that last end, coming from behind with everything depending on his last stone, was simply clever playing with good support, against one of the strongest combinations in the local club, Foote and Moore.

These rinks were as follows:

M. Comstock	F. C. Weber
F. M. Dela Fosse	Ira Moore
W. H. Taylor	H. F. Foote
W. G. Morrow	A. R. Moore
Skip 10	Skip 9

By ends:

Morrow . . . . . 011111100103—10
Foote . . . . . 200000033010— 9

AT THE EMPIRE BEGINNING MONDAY

Scheduled for a three-day presentation at the Empire theatre, beginning next Monday the new Selznick pictur, "The Country Cousin," in which beautiful Elaine Hammerstein is starred, is said to carry even a deeper appeal than did the stage play which earned not only the lasting appreciation of the general public but also brought forth words of praise from President Wilson and the late Theodore Roosevet. After he had seen the play Roosevelt said: "'The Country Cousin' is a first-class American play." When viewed by President and Mrs. Wilson, the Nation's chief executive expressed himself as having had "much pleasure," and said that Mrs. Wilson and himself particularly admired the play both because of the "simplicity, sincerity and dignity" in which it was presented and because there had been done something "thoroughly worth doing."

In its filming as a Selznick picture, the famous play of Booth Tarkington and Julian Street has received some sympathetic and colorfully dramatic treatment to enhance its worth as an interest-holding story typical of American life to-day.

UNPRECEDENTED DEMAND FOR GOLF BALLS REPORTED

CHICAGO, Feb. 11. — An unprecedented demand for gold balls indicates that there will be a record-breaking play this year, according to manufacturers here, who reported to-day that all factories are operating at full capacity and a number are working two and three shifts for the first time in their history.

Improvement in construction has been made in a number of standard brands, it was said, and it was predicted balls would wear better. Heavy demand last year necessitated a speedy output and it was found that quick-drying paints did not stand up well. This defect has been done away with this year in the drying of the balls.

BARRIES CUTTERS BEAT "DOWN-STAIRS"

An exciting game of hockey was played at Mark Street Rink last night—or rather, it would have been exciting had the downstairs gang showed any speed—when the cutters of Barrie's, Ltd., defeated the downstairs tribe. The cutters, while none of them were heavyweights, were by far the fastest team. Although the downstairs gang were heavy, they did not seem to know a thing about hockey. Their captain was without a doubt the slowest man on the ice. The star for the downstairs gang was the goalminder, who was the whole team, stopping a host of shots near the nets. It can, without exaggeration, be said that the stars for the cutters were the whole team, their speed and stick handling easily winning for them.

The game was played for an oyster supper, the score being 4—3 in favour of the cutters, which was no indication of the play, as a lucky fluke shot scored for the downstairs gang at the last minute.

The line-up was as follows:

Cutters.	Downstairs Gang.
	Goal.
Hamilton	Walton
	L. Defence.
Stabler	Perdue (capt.)

KINGSTON CONFIDENT.

(Kingston Whig.)

The first game of the O.H.A. intermediate semi-finals, between the winners of the Oshawa-Peterboro games and Kingston will be played Friday evening, Feb. 13th. The Kingston management was fortunate is getting the first game on the opponent's ice, as there is a better chance of winning out on home ice if they should happen to lose by a few goals. It is expected that the winner will be Peterboro as that team tied with Oshawa in Oshawa on Friday night last, and play in Peterboro this evening. The return game with Kingston will be played on Monday evening, February 16th. With Brown back in the game the Kingston team is quite confident that they will be able to trim either western team.

BAR GERMANY AT SOCCER.

Seven Lands Decline to Meet Teams of Central Powers.

The Peace Treaty and resumption of trade relations notwihstanding, the soccer football players of Great Britain, as represented by the national associations of England, Scotland, Wales and Ireland, as well as Belgium, France and Luxembourg, will continue on a war footing, in so far as relations with the players of the late Central Powers are concerned, notwithstanding that they are all members of the International Football Association, among the latest acquisitions to which was the United States Football Association, which will not act upon this question until its annual meeting is held in May.

A conference was recently held at the headquarters of the Belgian Football Union in Brussels, at which Holland and Switzerland were also represented, and resolution, to be submitted to the respective national organizations, were adopted, in which it was recommended that no relations should be entered into with the former enemy nations nor with any other country having football relations with them; that the parties to the conference withdraw from the International Federation, and that a new one, to be called the Federation of National Football Associations, be organized. The Dutch and Swiss representatives lacked authority to participate in the resolutions, and the representatives from France and Belgium preferred to confer with the neutral associations before plunging in and taking extreme measures.

At another conference held at Gotheburg, Sweden, the opposite course was pursued by the delegates from Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Finland, who, because of their belief in the ultimate re-establishment of international harmony, reserved their right to act, as in the past, in accordance with the rules of the International Football Federaion, of which they, too, are members.

Will Ask Frazee for That Amount—Predicts New Record.

BOSTON—"Babe" Ruth today announced that he would attempt to obtain $15,000 of the $125,000 which the Red Sox are said to have received for his release to the New York Americans. Returning here from the Pacific Coast, Ruth said he had no intention of making trouble, that he would sign with the Yankees at the salary agreed on, reported to be $18,000 a year, but that he would endeavor to get a part of the price of his purchase from President Harry H. Frazee of the Boston club.

The heavy hitter predicted that he would exceed his home run record of last year with the assistance of the short right field at the Polo Grounds.

The event which was one of the outstanding social events of the season at Campbellford was an unbounded success in every way. The hall was very prettily decorated and the scene presented a gala appearance with the dancers covered with confetti and long streamers and coloured balloons filling the air added a pretty and unique touch to the already colourful scene. Excellent music for the dance was furnished by Manley's five-piece orchestra from Toronto and the catering was carried on by Hooper's in faultless manner.

In an account of the play, "What Happened to Jones," put on in Montreal recently by the St. Patrick's Players, the Montreal Star makes special reference to the capable manner in which Mr. Edward Hanrahan took the part of Richard, commenting upon the fact that he took the house by storm by his delineation of the part.

PETERBORO RINKS IN BOTH FINALS

"Pete" Lang's rink went into the finals in the Morrow competition this afternoon, after defeating R. M. Waddell by the score of 10 to 8. Waddell was leading by 8 to 7 on the 10th, but Lang went ahead in the next frame, scoring two and clinched it at the close. It was a keen contest all the way. Waddell had a good chance right up to the last stone. The final game between Lang and Frank Carew of Lindsay, was begun at three o'clock.

Matthews-Blackwell.

In the semi-finals of this major competition, George Morrow won an easy victory from Dr. Wightman with a score of 11 to 5, and Connal defeated J. D. Flavelle by 17 to 11. Methodists in Canada had subscribed $2,488,490, according to latest reports, Ontario congregations responding with $1,734,102.

The Presbyterian total reached $1,314,642, Ontario subscribing the sum of $780,000.

The Anglican total shows that great strides have been made in the last twenty-four hours, the total amount being $861,043. Ontario dioceses subscribed as follows: Toronto, $60,000; Ontario, $18,000; Niagara, $38,000.

$21,600 SECURED BY METHODISTS

ALTHOUGH ILLNESS IS AFFECTING THE CAMPAIGN MONEY IS COMING IN FAST.

The Methodist National Campaign in this district is making most satisfactory progress and already half the objective has been subscribed. Up to the time of going to press a total of $21,610 had been reported. At George street a total of ....10,000 has already been subscribed and the objective will, it is expected, be reached to-morrow.

Millbrook is but 261 short of the objective.

Sickness has militated against the workers getting about in many cases but those who have been canvassing have done wonders. One important factor in the campaign is the manner in which the person canvassed looks upon the proposition. Many who had made up their minds to subscribe $25 have, when they found the payments might be spread out over a year, subscribed $100.

IMPORTANT MEETING AT BOARD OF TRADE

MR. J. GROVE SMITH WILL ADDRESS COMBINED MEETING TO-NIGHT ON "FIRE WASTE.

The combined meeting of the Board of Trade and the Peterborough Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada is to be addressed by Mr. J. Grove Smith on the subject of 'Fire Waste and Fire Prevention."

In connection with the meeting, moving pictures will be shown of the Trent Waterway from Belleville to Orillia.

This is the first opportunity given the Peterborough public to see moving pictures of their own locality, and this will, as well as the address, attract a great many to the meeting.

LOYALTY TO SIR SAM HUGHES ONCE DEMONSTRATED IT

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, Feb. 12.—At Orange County Hall last night, Rev. C. Maguire told a story which had been told him by Sir Sam Hughes.

The latter was travelling in a railway carriage in Ireland just after Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee, at which he had been given a medal. A fellow-passenger asked to see the medal, and in returning it allowed it to fall on the floor. Sir Sam demanded that he should pick it up. The man obeyed, and replaced it in its case, face downwards.

Reluctantly the stranger complied.

"And now apologise to me for all the trouble you have caused," said Sir Sam, pinning the fellow by his two arms to the side of the compartment.

When they reached the next station the man who had thought he could speak slightingly of the Queen's medal, left the train and fled as fast as he could run.

"And that is the spirit of loyalty which we expect to see exemplified in every true Canadian when there is any question of disruption of the Empire," ended the speaker, driving home his moral.

DR. MORGAN, ACTING M. O. H., SAYS THE FLU. IS NOT PREVALENT HERE.

A number of influenza cases have come to the notice of Dr. Morgan, temporary M. O. H. during the illness of Dr. A. W. McPherson, but so far no serious epidemic is feared in the city.

Already a number of cases of destitution, in which influenza has played a prominent part, have been looked into by Mr. F. Miller, relief officer, who in one case found a family of five, four in bed, absolutely destitute of fuel or food. He stated that this case is but one of many.

One year has passed, our hearts still sore,
As time flies by we miss him more,

No one can fill his vacant place.
Forget him, no, we never will,
We loved him then, we love him still.
His memory is as fresh to-day,
As in the hour he passed away.

NORMAL AT HOME LARGELY ATTENDED

THREE HUNDRED TEACHERS, PUPILS AND FRIENDS PRESENT.

The annual Normal "At Home" was held last night and was very successful. In all, some three hundred teachers, pupils and their friends were present, and the affair was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

The rooms and halls were prettily decorated, the Valentine scheme being carried out. In the receiving room Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Walker, assisted by the President of the Literary Society, Mr. Madill and Miss Clatworthy, Miss Nokes, Miss Denison, Mr. Thompson and Miss Winter, members of the reception committee, received.

A delightful programme was given in the Assembly Hall. Among the numbers was a scene from Nicholas Nickleby, put on by about ten of the students, which was very well carried out, and in which Miss Sonley, as Mrs. Squeers, won much applause. Several violin solos by Dr. Park were very much enjoyed, and also the vocal solos by Mr. Peters.

Twelve of the girl students put on a wooden doll drill, which deserves much credit, followed by a delightful reading by Mrs. Sweetman.

After the programme the promenade was carried out, Mr. Asa Huycke supplying excellent music for this affair, which is always the most enjoyable part of the evening's programme, and last night's promenade through the prettily decorated rooms was no exception. Delightful refreshments were served at the conclusion of the promenade by Hooper's, after which the very successful affair broke up about 12.30.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS COUNCIL TRANSACTED FIRST BUSINESS

THE UNITED STATES WAS NOT REPRESENTED AT THE MEETING—ARTHUR J. BALFOUR PREDICTS GREAT FUTURE FOR THE LEAGUE

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Feb. 14.—The Council of the League of Nations transacted its first International business in St. James Palace yesterday with the naming of Elihu Root as one of the twelve International Jurists to be invited to form a committee for planning the organization of the World Court of Justice. The United States was not represented at the Council meeting, which was for the purpose of making public and openly ratifying the results of the Council's secret deliberations. Arthur J. Balfour, who presided, said he anticipated the League's future "with utmost confidence if experiences of the last few days are any indication of what it will do."

"If the nations of the world can all assemble and discuss questions in future in the same business-like, friendly and conciliatory spirit marking these proceedings," Mr. Balfour declared, "I cannot doubt the service which is the League is capable of rendering mankind is almost incalculable."

Leon Bourgeois of France, reviewing previous attempts to establish an International Tribunal capable of settling amicably disputes between nations, said: "In spite of its title, the Hague Court is not a Court of Justice and is still less a permanent court."

"It is for the League of Nations, an outcome of the war of nations, to establish a permanent court. This League will be set free from all national pre-occupations for the exercise of its sovereign juriadiction. It will be calculated to remove all anxieties, and will guarantee against attack, the principle of equality of nations."

Will Not Disclose Contents of Note Sent to Holland

IT IS BELIEVED THE NOTE MARKS IMPORTANT STEP TOWARDS CONCILIATION.

ISOLATED CASE

(Canadian Press.)

THE HAGUE, Feb. 14.—Holland probably would not be unwilling to accede to a polite request from the Allies to put former Emperor William farther from the German frontier than he is at present, it has been learned here, but would undoubtedly resent any dictation as to sending him to a Dutch island or any particular place.

Contents of the notes to Germany and Holland approved yesterday at the meeting of the Supreme Allied Council in London, will remain secret until the communications are received in Berlin and the Hague. It is believed by the "Matin," however, that the notes constitute a very important step toward conciliation. It is declared by this newspaper that the one sent to Berlin demands extradition only of Germans charged with the commission of direct crimes, and admits the difficulties Germany would encounter in attemting to surrender those whose responsibility is more distant and general. The note, however, is asserted to remark that any leniency shown in this respect cannot be looked upon as a precedent which Germany may use to transgress other clauses of the Versailles Treaty. It is pointed out that this is an isolated case which shows the conciliatory attitude of the Allies in the interest of European peace.

THE WEATHER

February up to the present has proved to quite moderate. For several days past there has been no zero weather in any section, even in the farthest north, but a change is approaching, and colder weather is on the way. Our snowfal in this section is much lighter than farther west and north, and in the section around Lake Simcoe is level with the fences.—W. P.

WASHINGTON HEARS HOW "TRIS" SPEAKER UTILIZES AIRPLANE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—A report telling how Tris Speaker of the Cleveland American League Baseball Club made a train by air route, permitting him to report to Cleveland on time, was received by Major-General Charles T. Menoher, Director of the Army Air Service. Speaker was an aviator in the naval service during the war.

Speaker received a telegram at his ranch at Hubbard, Texas, on the morning of Feb. 6 to report to the Cleveland American ball club at once, but he could not make the train at Waco by any known land route or conveyance. It occurred to him that perhaps his friend, former Lieutenant Belser of Kelleyfield, who lived on a neighboring ranch, might help him out. This Belser did. They left in Belser's plane at 11:15 a.m. for Waco, and arrived at Richfield in about one hour and a half, permitting him to catch his train at 1:15 for Cleveland.

PRIZEWINNERS AT VALENTINE PARTY

THE AFFAIR WAS A BIG SUCCESS

The Valentine euchre and dance given [illegible] by the Lyceum by the Ladies' Aid of St. Peter's Church was a huge success, both socially and financially, and each of the two hundred persons who attended had a most enjoyable evening. The hall in which the entertainment was held was very prettily and appropriately decorated with hearts and cupids, and the dainty refreshments were served in keeping with St. Valentine's Day.

Prize Winners.

Splendid prizes were donated to the winners at cards, and were carried off by Miss Pope, 1st ladies' prize, a butter dish, donated by Mr. J. T. O'Connell; 2nd ladies', won by Miss Gallagher, a box of chocolates, donated by Mr. Potvin; 3rd ladies', won by Miss Mann, a silver spoon, donated by Mrs. Grant; 1st gentlemen's, won by Mr. Turkett, an umbrella, donated by Mr. Picard; 2nd gentlemen's, a box of handkerchiefs, donated by Mr. J. J. Duffus; 3rd gentlemen's, a flashlight, donated by Mr. McPherson.

After supper, dancing was indulged in until a late hour.

"GOOD" HUSBAND WINS SUIT.

Wife's Action Against "Virtuous Tyrant" Dismissed.

MOUNT VERNON, N.Y., Feb. 14. Supreme Court Justice Morschauser, at White Plains, has dismissed Mrs. Angelique Reese's suit for a separation from her husband, Richmond Jaffray Reese, a lawyer, of Manhattan.

Mrs. Reese charged her husband with being cruel and with humiliating her by forcing her, she said, to associate with uncouth persons. In a letter Mrs. Reese wrote to her husband, she called him a virtuous tyrant, and that he was "so good he was impossible."

Mrs. Reese is 25 years old, and her husband 42. The defendant denied all the charges, and insisted that she wanted to become a movie star. He said she frequently addressed him in public in such endearing terms as "Woolly Lamb" and "Piggy Pie."

Justice Morschauser, in his decision, says:

"The most serious charges failed in proof. The defendant was very considerate of his wife. The plaintiff is of a very quick temper and was very exacting of th defendant. He tolerated much of her conduct. He washed the dishes, got his own breakfast, and even scrubbed the floors at times. There seems to be a prevalent notion that when husband and wife have occasional unhappy differences they can be separated by law. This idea is a mistaken one. It is the policy of the law to keep husband and wife together to carry out their marital relations, and not to encourage separation; that the parties are not mated is no reason why they should be separated. Separations are not to be tolerated for slight causes or occasional unhappy differences, or when mutual love and affection, harmony and peace have been temporarily suspended. Occasional discord and strife or mutual aversion between husband and wife is not a sufficient ground for separation."

STRANGELY DISAPPEARED WITH $2,500

JAMES A. PERRY [illegible] THE MONEY FROM HIS BRIDE TO BE AND THEN VANISHED.

AN ENQUIRY

Canadian Press:

OTTAWA, Feb. 14.—[illegible] honorable overseas service with the Canadian and United States forces to his credit, and holding a position as chief investigator of a private detective agency in Detroit that paid him $400 a month, James A. Perry, said to be the son of a 33-year-old contractor in Hull or Ottawa, came here from the United States recently to take charge of his share of the money divided by his father among a number of children. With him he brought nine thousand dollars loaned to him by his fiancee, a trained nurse of Grand Rapids, Michigan. Within a short time he wrote for more money. His fiancee and her son came here with another $1,500. Since getting it, Perry has disappeared. He was to have returned to Grand Rapids a week ago last Thursday or Friday, and to have been married on Saturday.

The most exhaustive inquiries have failed to discover the slightest trace of Perry. It is believed that this was not his right name. What is true of his story is not known, but it is a fact that he did not need to make away with the $2,500 he secured from his bride-to-be.

Perry is described by Mrs. Hilton as a very neat dresser. He is 5 feet and 7 or 8 inches in height, weighs 150 or 160 pounds, and had with him a dark suit and a blue coat.

FINED $200 ON LIQUOR CHARGE

CASE HEARD IN POLICE COURT THIS MORNING.

In this morning's Police Court Percy Hollins and Laverne Killingbeck were convicted on a charge of having liquor in a place other than their private residence, and fined $200 and costs of $11.10.

The two men had brought the liquor from Montreal, and had hidden it in snow banks around Downer's Corners and on Bethune Street.

Mr. Cooney has secured the entire plant of the Lytle Company and will conduct the business in future from the same office quarters in rear of Perkins, Ince and Company, Charlotte street. Mr. Cooney possesses an active business experience which will greatly assist him in making a success of his new undertaking.

THE DOMINION LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY HAD AN EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD YEAR.

The Annual Report of the Dominion Life Assurance Company, published elsewhere in this issue, reveals the remarkable fact that its ratio of actual to expected mortality was only 38 p.c. A saving of 62 p.c. of the mortality provided for in its premiums will mean very large additions to the surplus funds of this popular Canadian Company. Another remarkable feature of the Report is the great increase in its new business, the policies issued and revived exceeding those of the previous year by 87 p.c. The interest rate was again high—7.4 p.c. Expenses were light in view of the large amount of business added. Reserves, too, show a splendid increase, from $3,959,391.00 to $4,497,788.00. Taken altogether the Report gives evidence of 1919 having been one of the best years in the history of the Dominion Life.

Mr. P. A. Ferguson, Hunter street, is District Manager.

SECRETARY LEAVES THE GOVERNMENT

SECRETARY LANSING HAS DISAGREEMENT WITH WILSON AND LEAVES THE ADMINISTRATION

CABINET MEETINGS

(Canadian Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Rebuked by President Wilson for calling Cabinet meetings during his illness, Secretary of State Lansing has resigned. The President has accepted his resignation "with appreciation," and Mr. Lansing becomes the second Secretary of State to leave the administration over disagreement with his chief. There will be no more resignations from the Cabinet as a result of the Lansing incident, it was said at the White House to-day. "I am not going to discuss the Lansing-Wilson controversy; the letters speak for themselves," Secretary Tumulty said. There was no information available at the White House as to a probable successor to Mr. Lansing, but the appointment is expected to be made soon. John W. Davis, Ambassador at London, and Under Secretary Polk are being dicussed. Cabinet meetings will be resumed, "very soon" and, as announced a few days ago, President Wilson will preside. White House officials reiterated to-day that he was making rapid strides toward regaining his health.

PATS CANADA ON THE BACK

A NEW TWIST IN THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS PACT.

Canadian Press:

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—A report from Ottawa that Canada will enter a formal protest to Great Britain against the acceptance of treaty reservations regarding the voting power in the League of Nations has aroused a great deal of interest here and given a new twist to the treaty discussion, focussing attention upon the possible effect to Canada's status in the League of the reservations now before the Senate at Washington. The New York Tribune champions Canada's cause in an article which leads the editorial page of this morning's issue. The Tribune says: "Among all peoples of the world, the friendship of no one is more needed to the United States than that of our neighbours to the north, the Canadians."

GOOD LOOKING WOMEN COST TURKS ONLY $1.35.

NEW YORK.—The number of wives in Turkish harems is not being reduced on account of the high cost of living, as reported in a cable from Constantinople, according to a statement by Prof. J. P. Xenides, a near-East relief official, who has spent years studying social conditions in the Levant. If anything, the number has increased, the Professor said.

"In many quarters expensive draft animals are being replaced by wives, who are expected to do the work and who may be secured for a song in the matrimonial market," he declared. In the agricultural regions of the Ottoman Empire especially, the Professor says, the pashas have been forced to substitute for the costly donkeys, horses and oxen the much more economical brides.

"Reports show that wives are still plentiful and cheap in Turkey and the market price is around £1, Turkish—$1.35 present exchange rate—for good-looking women. Women not of the Moslem faith can be had for less money because they are now easier to obtain. It is these women who have served to keep down the price of inmates for the harems during the last few years of rising living costs.

NOTE TO HOLLAND.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Feb. 14.—The Evening Standard says a note to Holland regarding the extradition of the former German Emperor will be despatched to-day.

Relationship of a Domestic Nature

INTERESTING ADDRESS BY HIS HONOUR JUDGE HUYCKE—COURT GUARDS RIGHTS OF THE HOME.

LEGAL INSTITUTIONS

"Domestic Relationships", formed the subject last evening for the fourth of the series of lectures on law which His Honour Judge Huycke is giving at the Y.W.C.A. The address was heard by a large and interested gathering of ladies. Most people, His Honour said, have thought that the state came before the family, quite the contrary however. The family is the origin of the state. In ancient history we get the primal idea of family when the head of the whole establishment was a patriarch. By degrees the family branches into tribes and so we find that family was the first institution known in the world. His Honor then gave a brief and interesting sketch on the courtships of different ages from the time when our very great grandmothers were courted by means of a club through the days of chivalry to the age when ladies in a most misguided manner went about with hatchets calling themselves feminists or suffragists and lastly to the present days when husband and wife have brought their relationship to a more practical basis.

Favorite with Legal Institutions

The relationship between husband and wife has always been a favorite with the legal institutions and the rights of home are most jealously guarded by the British law. Typical of this is the judgment given in 1670 and 1672 which His Honour quoted as follows:

"If such cruelty shall be sanctioned and wives shall not be allowed necessaries, England will lose the happy reputation in all foreign kingdoms, which her inhabitants have achieved by their respect for the sex, the most excelling in beauty, which as in this climate it for transcends that of the women in all other lands, so has this kingdom surpassed all other countries in its tenderness and consideration for their welfare.

Per Cur. Manby vs. Scott. 1672"

"The naturalest and first conjunction of two towards the making a further society a continuance, is of the husband and wife, each having care of the family; the man to get, to travel abroad, to defend; the wife to save, to stay at home, and distribute that which is gotten for the nurture of children and family, as the first and most natural but primate appearance of one of the best kind of commonwealths, where not one always, but sometimes and in some things the other bears a rule; which to maintain God hath given to the man

A NEW NOTE DESPATCHED TO HOLLAND

DEALS WITH ALLIED DEMAND FOR SURRENDER OF GERMANS GUILTY OF WAR CRIMES.

OTHER BUSINESS

(United Press)

LONDON, Feb. 14.—The Council of Premiers has completed and dispatched to Holland and Germany new notes on extradition of the former Kaiser and the Allied demand for surrender of German war guilty, it was learned semi-officially to-day. The notes, it was understood, were completed late yesterday.

The Council also discussed the Jugo-Slav Italian Territorial dispute in the Adriatic and drew up an unanimous note to Jugo-Slav which was presented to M. Trumbitch, the Jugo Slav representative probably to-day. The note insist upon immediate settlement of the dispute the French complaints on delay of German coal deliveries to France as provided in the Treaty of Versailles, were referred to the reparations committee. The Council also discussed the Hungarian situation.

LEGENDS OF THE BLACK CAT.

Why have black cats nearly always been accounted lucky? In Egypt cats were regarded with great reverence. Archaeologists have found them in tombs of kings and princes. Australians have a curious legend about cats. Mityaro, the moon, they say, was a native cat who fell in love with someone else's wife and was driven away to wander ever since. To them a cat, black, gray, or white, prophesies only bad luck. In Japan and China a black cat is regarded as an extremely dangerous demand, often possessing as many as two or three forked tails and having the power to change itself into an old woman. The Chinese believe if a cat leaps on or walks over a corpse, it will cause the corpse to rise up at once. Any person passing through the room would be in danger of being seized by the corpse when in that state and would be killed immediately. In Egypt, according to ancient writings of Herodotus, if a cat died in a private house by a natural death all the inmates of the house were obliged to shave their eyebrows.

APPLICATION TO PARLIAMENT

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that application will be made by the Corporation of the City of Peterborough to the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario at the next session thereof for an act to confirm and declare legal, valid and binding upon the said Corporation and the rate payers thereof, a by-law number 2200, authorizing the purchase by the said Corporation of the City of Peterborough of a certain manufacturing property in the said City and the leasing of such property to Nashua Gummed & Coated Paper Company; and also fixing the assessment of the said Company in respect of the said property and the machinery and plant thereon, and the business assessment in respect thereto at $10,000, for the purpose of municipal taxation, excepting school taxes and local improvements, for the maximum period of ten years from the date of delivery of possession under lease of the said property.

The application also asks that the said act declare valid and binding as aforesaid the debentures to be issued under the said by-law, the total amount of the said debentures to be issued being for the sum of $57,000.00 in respect of the purchase money of the said manufacturing property and certain repairs to be made to the buildings thereof, all of which debentures are to be made payable within twenty years at the furthest from the date on which the said debentures are to be issued, and the amount to be raised annually to provide for the sinking fund and the interest of the said debt is $5,049.16.

It is further notified that the amount of the existing debenture debt of the said Corporation of the City of Peterborough is the sum of $2,129,062.04, the particulars of which are as follows:—

General debenture debt	$ 927,185.18

Waterworks	623,200.00
Hydro-Electric	220,000.00
Total	$2,129,062.94

and the reason for requiring the issue of the said debentures is to raise the necessary money on the credit of the said Corporation for the purposes set out in the said by-law.

The said application also asks that the said act authorize and validate an assignment (with the consent of the said Corporation) from Nashua Gummed & Coated Paper Company of the benefits and rights acquired by it under a certain indenture dated the 22nd day of September, 1919 made between the said Corporation and Nashua Gummed & Coated Paper Company, to a company to be incorporated under the laws of the Dominion of Canada to be called "Canadian Nashua Paper Company Limited" or such other or similar name as may be procured; and to provide that such assignee shall be entitled to the rights and benefits acquired by Nashua Gummed & Coated Paper Company under the said indenture and by-law in the same manner as if such assignee had been originally named therein in place of the Nashua Gummed & Coated Paper Company.

HAD RHEUMATISM FOR FIVE YEARS

No Relapse of the Trouble Since Taking "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

MR. JOHN E. GUILDERSON

P. O. Box 128, Parrsboro, N. S.

"I suffered with Rheumatism for five years, having it so badly at times I was unable to get up without assistance.

I tried different medicines I saw advertised and was treated by doctors in Amherst, also in my home town, but the Rheumatism came back.

In 1918, I saw in an advertisement that 'Fruit-a-tives' would stop Rheumatism, and took one box and got relief; then I took them right along for about six months and the Rheumatism was all gone and I have never felt it since.

Anyone who would care to write me as regards 'Fruit-a-tives' I would be glad to tell them what 'Fruit-a-tives' did for me."

JOHN E. GUILDERSON,
Contractor and Mason.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At all dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

BOLO PASHAS' WIFE WINS SUITS FOR VALIDATION

PARIS, Febr. 14.—Mrs. Alexander Prat, who before December 23 last was Madam Bolo Pasha, has won a decision in the higher court here in a suit against relatives of her former husband, who was executed at Vincennes, April 17, 1918. These relatives attacked the validity of her marriage to the Levantine banker, but this ceremony was validated by the court.

HEALTHY CHILDREN ARE HAPPY CHILDREN

The well child is always a happy child—it is a baby's nature to be happy and contented. Mothers, if your little ones are cross and peevish and cry a great deal they are not well—they are in need of medicine—something that will set their bowels and stomach in order, for nine-tenths of all childhood ailments arise from a disordered state of the bowels and stomach. Such a medicine is Baby's Own Tablets. They are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach, and thus drive out constipation, colic, indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers, and make the baby healthy and happy. Concerning them, Mrs. Albert Hamel, Pierreville, Que., writes —"Baby's Own Tablets are the best medicine I know of for the little ones. They relieved my little girl from constipation when nothing else would, and I can strongly recommend them to other mothers." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from the Dr Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Refuses to Live in House When Number is Thirteen

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 14.—Because a superstitious tenant refused to rent a house that was numbered 13, Mr. W. J. McLaughlin, by application to the civic authorities, had the number eliminated from Hawthorne avenue, so that number 15 follows No. 11. The matter was revealed in the Court of Revision at the City Hall during arbitration proceedings between a number of property owners on Hawthorne avenue and the city, on account of damages sustained during the widening of the street.

POPULARITY OF TRENT CANAL

A FLOCK OF TOURISTS ARE EXPECTED UP THE THE WATERWAY THIS SUMMER.

Motor Boat, of New York, calls attention to the new Canadian route that will be opened for cruisers this summer, as a result of the partial completion of the Trent Canal system. It is of especial interest to American motor boat owners who have thus opened up to them one of the best cruising routes on this continent and who have the natural human instinct to travel, to spend their holidays in foreign parts, if that is possible, but it ought also to interest Canadians, who are not as familiar with some of the incomparable attractions of their own country as they ought to be. The Trent Canal system links the lakes and rivers that lie between Trenton on Lake Ontario and Port Severn on Georgian Bay by means of locks and marine railways. It was not designed, of course, primarily in the interest of those whose hobby is motor boating, rather as an important link in the transportation system of the Province of Ontario, but its appeal to the users of motor boats must be very strong. For one reason, they can traverse the whole length of the system without having to pay toll; and the marine railway will carry their boats over the portages that remain. In fact, it will be possible to travel from Sault Ste. Marie to New York via the Trent system and the New York Barge Canal, a distance of more than a thousand miles, with no physical effort beyond the cranking of the boat.

Says Mr. William B. Rogers, jr., in the New York magazine:

"Providing a great new waterway for motor boats through picturesque country with plenty of fine, progressive towns along the route where supplies can be obtained, and running through farm land where fresh provisions will be available, the Trent Canal system is the most important new waterway opened to motor boat navigation in many years. There is no necessity for making a return trip over the same route, no matter from what point the cruise may start. Boats passing through the canal from Lake Ontario to Georgian Bay, for example, can proceed to Detroit and return home by way of the Welland Canal. Boats whose homes are on the Atlantic coast can proceed up the Hudson river and through the great Barge Canal to Syracuse, thence through the Oswego Canal to Oswego on Lake Ontario and across the lake to Trenton. From this point they can proceed through the Trent Canal to Georgian Bay on through Lake Huron to Detroit, back across Lake Erie to Buffalo and there enter the barge canal system for the return trip through to the Hudson [illegible]."

The Route.

From Trenton to Honey Harbor, which is the entry to the Georgian Bay, the distance is 236 miles and the route is by way of Glen Miller, Frankford, Glen Ross, Campbellford, Healey Falls, Trent Bridge, Hastings, Rice Lake, Otonabee River, Peterboro, Lakefield, Young's Point, Burleigh Falls, Buckhorn, Cannon's Narrows, Bobcaygeon, Fenelon Falls, Rosedale, Kirkfield, Gamebridge, Lake Simcoe, Orillia, Washago, Hamlet, Ragged Rapids, Big Chute and the Honey Harbor lock. The region thus opened up by the Trent Canal system is dotted with hundreds of lakes and lined by hundreds of streams which were used by the Indians in their travels. The difference is that they had to make frequent portages and detours, but the trail is a very old one. The interior section of the Trent system is the Kawartha Lakes, which drain into Lake Ontario through the Otonabee River, Rice Lake and the Trent river, the latter of which empties into the Bay of Quinte. Draining to the Georgian Bay takes place through the Talbot River, Lake Simcoe and the Severn. The Trent system, therefore, carries over a divide which fact is responsible for some remarkable engineering feats in the construction of the waterawy. The connection between the Great Lakes and the interior waterways was made by canalising the Severn river from Lake Simcoe to Georgian Bay and the Trent river from Rice Lake to the Bay of Quinte.

A Great Trip.

Let's go. It can be done in a thirty-five foot motor launch, and a boat of this size and ordinarily seaworthy can face any storms that are likely to be encountered. In fact, till the waters of Georgian Bay are reached an ordinary rowboat would have little to fear. For varying beauty the route to be traversed is not to be surpassed in the world. As pointed out by Senator Bennett, of Midland, who has for a long time been keenly interested in the project, and is now carrying on an enthusiastic publicity campaign on its behalf, one can travel in the uttermost comfort, since progressive towns are continually being passed, and about the greatest gaps we note are between Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls, a distance of only fifteen miles, Glen Ross and Campbellford seventeen miles, and the Otonabee and Peterboro, twenty-one miles. At a score of places along the two hundred and thirty odd miles between Trenton and Honey Harbor, all sorts of motor boat supplies can be purchased, while provisions can be had at a thousand points.

A Nearby Paradise.

There are hundreds of places along the shores and banks where the motor boat can be drawn up for the night and a tent spread. Some of the finest bass waters on the continent are comprehended in this route and there are probably few stretches where a man might not expect to strike a lunge and strike a pike instead. An ideal way to spend a fortnight or a month would be to travel in a motor boat and tow a row boat that could be used for fishing expeditions, stopping every now and then and going for explorations as some feature of the landscape delights the eye. Moreover, when you have got to the end of the trip, Honey Harbor, you surely have arrived somewhere. If this district were as well known as it deserves to be for its sporting and scenic advantages, it would have a thousand cottagers where it now has a score. Profiteering on the part of some of the merchants who supply the cottagers and a railway service that leaves much to be desired, have probably helped to rear the development of the Honey Harbor district as a summer resort; but we shall be astonished if a man goes there once in a motor boat with a fishing line, and does not go back every chance he gets.

400 MILES OF WIRE TO GUARD FORESTS

PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION MAKES DECISION AT OTTAWA MEETING.

Canadian Press:

OTTAWA, Feb. 13.—Four hundred miles of telephone lines are to be laid through the forests of the upper Ottawa district as part of the scheme of the Ottawa River Forest Protective Association for the prevention of forest fires. The decision to proceed with the construction of 200 miles of these lines at once was reached at the annual meeting of that organization, which concluded here yesterday.

Arthur H. Graham, Chief Fire Inspector, in the course of his report, stated that last session was one of the worst for forest fires in many years. He said that 20,000 acres, or 31 square miles of valuable forest, was burned by unextinguished lunch fires, careless smoking by campers, travellers and berry-pickers, slash burning without fire rangers' permit.

The construction of 200 miles of telephone lines in the western section of the Ottawa River district, which is in the neighbourhood of Fort Coulogne, was authorized by the association, and will proceed without delay.

MILLION PAIRS OF SHOES ARE NEEDED

Destitute Jewish Children of Eastern Europe Use Rags to Protect Feet From the Cold.

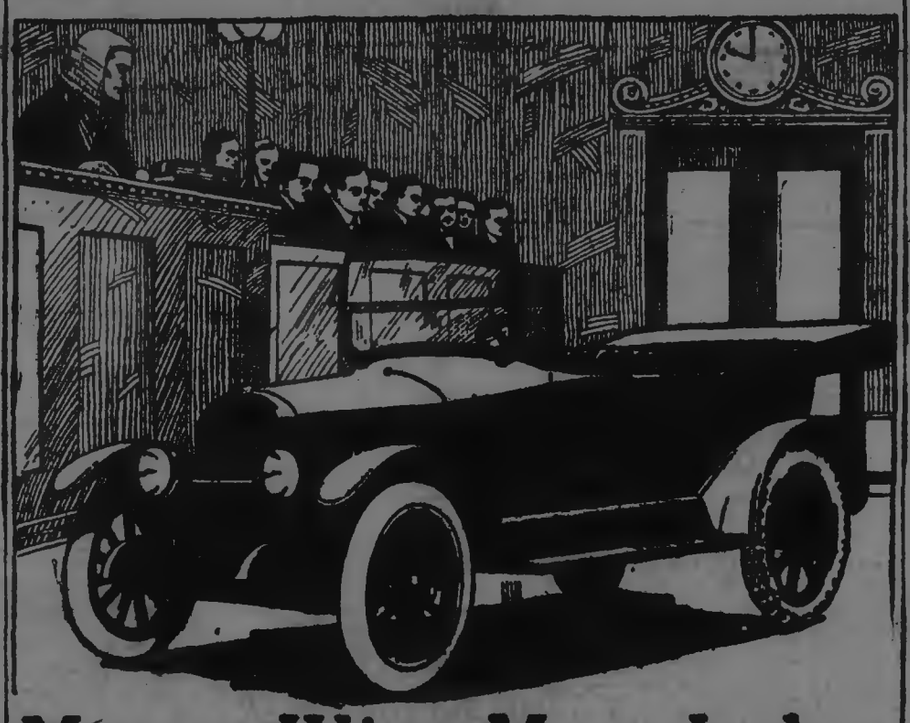
A million pairs of shoes are needed by the destitute Jewish children of Eastern Europe to-day, according to reports received by the Canadian Jewish Relief Committee from relief workers abroad.

At least that many of the helpless and hungry Jewish youngsters of Eastern Europe are absolutely without footgear of any kind, their relief agents say. Thousands of others have rags sewn around their feet in lieu of shoes.

Several carloads of shoes that formerly belonged to Allied soldiers in France were purchased there by the Joint Distribution Committee of Funds for Jewish Sufferers from the War, for the Jewish women of Eastern Europe. But it was impossible to buy the shoes in sizes that could be worn by the children, and all others sold in Europe are at a prohibitive price. So a million youngsters are barefoot during the hard winter of Eastern Europe.

There is a great lack of every conceivable kind of clothing, as well as shoes. In Serbia, a common child's costume just now consists of two sacks, with holes cut through for the head and feet. In Poland, flour sacks and sugar sacks sent with supplies to the destitute Jews by Jewish relief agencies are all being made over into clothing, and even small salt sacks are pieced together, and used for this purpose.

$1365 F.O.B. CHATHAM WAR TAX EXTRA GRAY-DORT



Motor-Wise Men Judge Gray-Dort Value at $1365 (PLUS WAR TAX)

Particularly if he has driven another light car, does a man appreciate these Gray-Dort features at $1365.

The Gray-Dort motor, with its big bore and long stroke—a bigger motor than the light car buyer has been getting—with a much heavier crankshaft, as heavy as in big cars. A motor with a cellular radiator and big water-jackets: with a dual exhaust for greater power; a newly-improved Carter carburetor; Westinghouse starting and lighting; improved Connecticut ignition.

The high-grade Gray-Dort Chassis has for foundation an extra heavy frame of channel steel. A big, sturdy rear axle, designed for the Gray-Dort. A new steering-gear, surprisingly big and strong for a light car. Big brakes, now with Thermoid lining. Long springs, built in Chatham under our inspection—rear springs full cantilever. When you drive, you drive in comfort. A shorter, smarter cowl now gives more room in the driving compartment. A new Gray-Dort feature drops the same for the tonneau. The gears can be shifted with two fingers. The emergency brake is now on a lever, as in big cars. And like big cars, the Gray-Dort has side curtains opening with the doors. The new gasoline tank is in the rear, with Stewart vacuum feed system. The seats are tilted at the most comfortable angle.

New beauty has been added to the Gray-Dort. You still get the wonderful Gray-Dort finish, result of 60 years' coach-building. But there is a new and smarter top, hand-pulled in our own shops. A new hood, with many long, narrow louvres. The bumps have been raised, to give ease to the front of the car. And there are such style touches as the French plaited upholstery, the flat top-edge of the body, the full-sweeping fenders.

At $1365 there will probably not be enough Gray-Dorts to meet the demand. It will be wise to see the Gray-Dort dealer right away.

PRICES

The Gray-Dort 5-passenger car; finished in Gray-Dort green and black with standard equipment is $1365 f.o.b. Chatham. War tax extra.

The roomy 2-passenger roadster is the same price.

THE GRAY-DORT SPECIAL

For the man who wishes something a little extra in his car, we have built the Gray-Dort Special. Maroon body, with brown repeater top. Plate-glass rear window. Glory curtains. Rambler tan wheels. Motometer. Tilting steering-wheel. Real leather upholstery. Mahogany instrument board. Just the touches which lift this car above the ordinary. $150 extra on the standard.

AND THE ACE!

The Gray-Dort Ace—the most beautiful light car of to-day. Sapper green body, with handsome Californ in top to match.

Trouble lamp and bull's-eye flashlight. Electric cigar lighter. Rear-vision mirror. Plate-glass windows. Over-size grooved-tread tires. This is the de luxe car for the man who does not wish to pile up a tremendous operating cost. $235 extra on the standard.

WHAT IS NEEDED.

The New York Sun and Herald says that the heads of business in the country see the cost of living as the biggest problem in the world and urge greater productivity and an honest day's work by labor, end of excess profit tax and attacks on business to restore pre-war prosperity. "Get together and get to work," says Charles M. Schwab. J. Ogden Armour would arouse public sentiment against the industrial slacker and cease attacks on business. William M. Wood says the cost of living can be brought down by practicing strict economy and also suggests return to 56-hour week, with proportionate pay for the next two years in order that the shelves of the world be filled up. Henry B. Endicot says labor leaders have a great opportunity to bring about a needed increase in production, and that great saving can be made in the methods and manner with which some governments are conducted.

KEEPING THEM IN LINE.

The report from Ottawa that the Federal government is planning to increase the sessional indemnity of the members of Parliament, while not an official announcement, is one that should not cause any surprise. The government's position is so precarious that anything that will tend to keep the private members in line will be utilized, and what more potent argument could a worried Ministry adopt than a general sweetening of the sessional indemnity. Last year the government was able to work in two sessions and send the members home rejoicing with a $5,000 allowance. There being no peace terms to ratify this year, some other expedient will have to be adopted, and there is therefore no occasion for surprise at the prospect of the present indemnity being increased from $2,500 to $3,500, or perhaps $4,000. Members who might be inclined to precipitate a crisis that would endanger the existence of the government are likely to consider the situation more carefully when a general election might mean the loss of a $4,000 a year position.

THE HEARST PUBLICATIONS.

The flood of popular indignation against the circulation in Canada of the anti-British Hearst publications continues to rise. These journals were barred by the censor from entrance into this country during the war, but are now coming in freely, and are disgusting Canadians with the venomous nature of their propaganda against everything that is British. The latest organization to protest against the Hearst publications is the Great War Veterans' Association of Niagara Falls, which has passed a resolution calling upon the Dominion government to prohibit their circulation in Canada. While waiting for the government to act, however, the Canadian people have the remedy in their own hands. If they refuse to buy the anti-British Hearst sheets their importation into the country will soon begin to dwindle. Hearst hates Great Britain, and is not particular as to what lines he follows in doing the Empire as much harm as he can. There should be no place in any loyal Canadian home for his newspapers, and there is any number of choice American newsapers to be obtained without bothering with Heart's publications.

Editorial

The resolution unanimously passed by the City Council at Thursday night's session asking the Legislature to change the Ontario Railway Act to permit of the operation of streeet railways on Sundays in cities of twenty thousand population or over, provided that the people vote in favour of Sunday cars, is one that deserves well of the Legislature. At present street cars may be run on Sundays only in cities of at least fifty thousand population. The city fathers believe that the time has come when the people of the smaller cities should be given the same advantages as those in the larger centres and that those who cannot afford a motor car should not be deprived of transportation privileges on Sundays. Not only would the operation of street cars on the Sabbath tend to increase the attendance at the city churches, but it would allow those who live at long distances from the parks and the river to spend a few hours in some of the city's breathing spaces—a privilege they can enjoy at present only at the expense of a long and fatiguing walk. The resolution of the City Council represents the opinion of the vast majority of the citizens who will unite in the hope that the reform asked for will receive general support in the Legislature. The Labour section of the new Government will doubtless favour the proposal as a step that will benefit the working classes particularly and they should be able to impress upon their colleagues the desirability of granting the smaller cities the privileges asked for by the Peterborough Council.

STRIKES VERSUS COMMON SENSE.

A strike of 300,000 railway men—maintenance of way employes and shopmen— is ordered in the United States with a week's notice. The Government Director-General of Railways calls attention to a promise of the men's organizations that no strike should be ordered with less than thirty days' notice to the government administration. No denial of this is made by the executive of the railway men. The fact must apparently be accepted that the men have the Prussian feeling about "a scrap of paper." They break their faith because it suits them.

This renders the chance of success of a strike little probable if it comes. And strikes have not been successful of late, and broken faith is a bad handicap to begin on. The great railway strike in England failed. The great steel strike in the United States failed. So did the big strike of soft-coal miners. The general strike in the west of Canada called in connection with the Winnipeg strike failed, as well as the Winnipeg strike. In Ottawa we had the failure of the street railway strike. The chief reason for failure of all these strikes was the antagonism of public opinion; and public opinion is peculiarly forcible against a strike when a strike is called in violation of union faith.

In no case that we remember for years past has any strike succeeded in obtaining what it originally demanded, or more than the men could have obtained by negotiation or arbitration. The only result has been profitless loss to everybody—loss to the men, loss to employers, loss to the public, increase in the cost of living. Under the circumstances, one would imagine that common sense would prevent strikes.

As regards railways in the United States in particular, all of which are under government operation at present, they have lost five hundred million dollars in operation in the past year, while holding back improvement and equipment on which another five hundred millions should have been spent. No argument exists, that private capital is making any profit at the expense of the workers, but very much the contrary. The men who propose to strike are breaking faith to attack not capital but the public.—Ottawa Journal.

THE INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC.

In conection with the influenza epidemic, the Montreal Star gives some very timely advice which should be of profit to every one in these troubled days. Fresh air and common sense, the Star says, are the most formidable enemies of the disease, while fear is its greatest ally. It is therefore a good omen that people are not so panic-stricken over the present epidemic as they were in the autumn of 1918.

The greatest ally of influenza is fear, declares the Star, and its most formidable enemies are fresh air and common sense. "Knowledge is the antidote to fear," says Emerison, and to know the prophylaxis of any disease, and to have in the armory of our minds the weapons to combat it, is half the victory.

Nature is a hard taskmaster, and no one may break her law with impunity. But she is also an inscrutable one, who allows some of her children to set at naught the simple rules of hygiene month after month, and year after year, without demanding a penalty in physical suffering. Yet laws of health broken in recklessness and obduracy, take an unseen toll in lowered vitality and lessened powers of resistance, and the man who plays fast and loose with a rugged constitution is suddenly called upon to give an account of his stewardship.

It may be that in the mysterious workings of nature influenza comes to call a halt to our defiance of the laws of health; to open again the rule-book of simple living, of cleanliness, of the need of fresh air and exercise and of sufficient sleep.

To be afraid of influenza is to open the door to its entrance. To eat simple foods and not to expose ourselves to drafts, to walk in the open air well shod and warmly clothed, to be meticulous in our habits of personal cleanliness, and not to cheat Nature of her great restorative, sleep, is to go full armed into the battle against epidemics and disease.

To break a single rule is to challenge a very doughty adversary.

NEVER HAVE SEEN A DOG OR A CAT

Children in War - Scarred Europe Never Even Hear the Birds Sing.

When you grinned at the six-year-old son of the house romping in the yard with his dog, or watched his small sister carefully dividing her attention between ribbon bows for the house "tabby" and the robin on the lawn, did it ever occur to you that somewhere in the world there are little folks of the same age who have never seen a dog nor a cat nor heard a bird sing. Yet, there are some hundreds of thousands of youngsters in war-stricken Europe to-day who are ignorant of the existence of the furred and feathered creatures which help to make a Canadian kiddie's day worth while.

Jewish relief workers who have returned from the Eastern and Central European countries cite the absence of domestic animals and birds to illustrate the desolate barrenness of the countries that were swept again and again by the warring armies for nearly five years. Jacob Bashein, who had charge of a unit for the Joint Distribution Committee, the sole agency disbursing relief funds raised by the Canadian Jewish Relief Committe, the Central Committee for Relief and the Jewish People's Relief Committee, has described the conditions there.

"In that bare stretch of country where there are scarcely any trees, no habitations other than the miserable dug-outs in which returned refugees exist,—the 'no man's land' of Poland—we did not see a single cat or dog, and in all the time we were there we never heard a bird sing. Armies have swept here the country and trampled the ground to the consistency almost of rock, while shell-fire has blasted the countryside. No animal, even domestic animal was left there. So there are children to-day of five or six years of age who have never seen a dog nor a cat and have never heard the singing of a bird!"

PATENT YOUR INVENTIONS

AN interesting and encouraging thing about these fortune producing inventions is that most of them are of ordinary or minor value in themselves. If you have a notion that you must invent a big thing to make money, get rid of it at once. Many of the Patents that have made their inventors millionaires are those which contained very few entirely new ideas.
The simplest ideas have earned fortunes for their patentees. The safety razor, the sanitary drinking cup, the hump hairpin, the demountable tire rim—any of these could have been invented by a man of average ability. In your every day life, at home, at your office, in your shop you handle any number of articles that are subject to improvement. If you can think of a way of improving some article or process already in use, or if you can invent a new useful device or process or article of manufacture, you are on the road to fortune. SANDRA THE JEALOUS

SANDRA RESENTS PARRETT'S ATTENTIONS TO ROSE

At 11 o'clock I excused myself and ordered a little supper served. Oh, how I enjoyed it. I don't mean the supper although that was delicious, but the freedom—the feeling that I was doing as I wanted, just as Leola had done.

Yet in spite of my pleasurable evening, regardless of my being for once able to do as I pleased, even to wearing my hair high, I had a distinct feeling of annoyance. I realized that Rose had been more than nice to Barrett—that she had made what we girls at home used to call a "dead set for him."

My wish that they would marry had vanished. It now seemed to me not desirable. I cannot explain why I felt this way; I made no attempt to analyze the change. And when Barrett left I was delighted that he held my hand longer than he did Rose's and seemed to feel more regret at parting with me than with her.

"Isn't he the dearest thing." Rose exclaimed. "And didn't we have a perfectly lovely time? It is wonderful to be able to entertain as you can. Do you know if I knew him very well I should call him Barry. I think it just suits him."

"Call who 'Barry'?" I asked, pretending ignorance.

"Barrett Edmonds, of course. How long have you know him?"

"Almost ever since I have been married."

"I don't see how you have kept from falling in love with him. I couldn't have helped it. He is stunning, and such a voice. You sing very well together but it is always more pleasure for me to listen to a man sing than it is to a woman."

"Thank you," I replied dryly.

"Oh, don't get niffy. I always like to hear you sing. But it is different to hear a man—a young handsome man like Barrett Edmonds. He simply thrills one."

I changed the subject. Really I was becoming quite annoyed. Rose certainly was talking nonsense. She must be reading more novels than we did when we used to read together.

It was late before we went to sleep and so we remained in bed later than usual. After breakfast we took another ride and did a little shopping. Rose's father had supplied her liberally with money and she spent it freely.

I wanted terribly to impress her still further by taking her to one of the smart restaurants to luncheon, but I didn't dare. Everett was sure to hear that I had been there with Mrs. Sloane and perhaps be angry, although he liked her and she was one of our set. He would be much more likely to be angry if I went with Rose, especially if we had no chaperon. Rose was just as young looking as I was and he had told me that even if I were married I looked too young to go to such places unchaperoned.

When he said it I wondered if Leola had a chaperone when she was young? You see every single thing he objected to I wondered if it was because of Leola. I was obsessed with thoughts of her

We spent the afternoon in the shops, after we had launched at home. About 5 o'clock, just as we were dressing for dinner, the telephone rang and Barrett Edmonds asked us to go to a play.

For a moment I did not know what to say. Then came the thought: "Leola would not hesitate—not if she wanted to go." And I wanted desperately to go. So I replied:

"We will be delighted as we had made no plans for the evening."

After telling me that he would call for us at 8 o'clock he rang off and I flew into the guest room to tell Rose.

"Isn't it wonderful that he likes me so well?" she said. "I think he is just splendid; and he must like me to ask us out with him to-night after spending the entire evening here last night. If you were not married I might think it was you that he was trying to please, but of course it could not be you. Young men don't pay attention to married women, unless it is because they are mixed up in business with their husbands."

I thought "perhaps they don't at home," but I said nothing. I didn't want to quarrel with Rose. She was my guest. But the way she appropriated Barrett was too silly. Why he had scarcely seemed to look at her.

I took great pains with my toilet as much as if Everett were going with me. I was very well satisfied when I had finished and Rose too looked lovely. I felt glad to have her look so nice because she was visiting me, and I didn't know who would see us. But I would be just as well pleased had she not been quite so attractive—because of Barrett.

This was all very childish but I was little more than a child although I made pretense of being blase to Rose.

PENALTY OF A RHYME.

Casatio Collingborne Paid For His Taunt at Richard III.

Did you ever hear of a spring poet who came to his death because of a sonnet? Doubtless many rhyming poets have merited the same fate, but in our day justice tarries and the world suffers in silence.

It was not thus when Richard III., last of the Plantagenets, ruled England. In the main the people who did not agree with the Duke of Gloucester were wise enough to keep their opinions to themselves, but William Collingborne thought to stretch poetic license to make it cover an attack on his majesty at a time when the murder of the two princes in the Tower ought to have taught prudence.

The king was under the sway of a beautiful and clever woman, Mrs. Lovell, who was thought to dictate much of his policy, which was hopelessly bad. Now, Collingborne had recourse to the fact that the wolf dog was called a "lovel," and so he penned the famous rime, "The rat, the cat and lovel, our dog, rule all England under the hog." As a result, England was, decidedly "un the hog."

Did the rime escape the eagle eye of Gloucester? Well, if it did it was not overlooked by the lady. That was a year before the famous battle of Bosworth, when the Earl of Richmond came to the rescue of his suffering people. Richard had put down Buckingham's rebellion, and all the traitors had paid the price with their heads, so another head more or less did not matter. Collingborne was summoned into court, given a perfunctory trial and sent to the block. However, there is no evidence that he was punished for writing atrocious poetry.

SAVING OLD MANUSCRIPTS.

How Valuable Papers Are Mended and Mounted For Preserving.

There are not fifty persons in the United States who are skilled in the preservation and repairing of old manuscripts. One of them, says the University of Wisconsin Bulletin, may be found working on the third floor of the Wisconsin Historical library building at Madison, one of the six or seven institutions in the country that carry on such work scientifically.

About a quarter or two ago a priest in the Vatican library at Rome originated and developed the process now in use in the taking care of old papers.

The first thing done in the process of preserving the letters is to place them between wet newspapers under a weight and leave them for five or six hours. This removes the creases and the dirt. Then they are put between wood pulp boards and left twenty-four hours and then between blotters to complete the drying process. The next step is to repair the paper.

The paper of some of these letters is so old when received that it falls to pieces if struck. This is strengthened by a layer of a sort of transparent cloth, on both sides of the piece of paper. Other letters need mounting along the edges with parchment paper. To cover being a piece of paper is glued over the edges and is left larger than the hole until dry. It is then cut down to the proper size, and the edges are sandpapered until smooth. After all such repairs are made the letters are mounted on large white sheets and prepared for binding.

Bear Baiting.

In the time of Shakespeare theaters were often used for bear baiting as well as for the presentation of plays and in some cases were equipped with a stage which could be removed when the bear baiting was to occur. The contemporary attitude toward this diversion is seen in this quotation: "It was a sport very pleasant to see the bear with his pitt eyes leering after his enemies' approach." It is comforting to reflect in these days that the killing of animals, at least as a form of public amusement, has grossly diminished and in most countries has disappeared.—Outlook.

What Impressed Her.

Shortly after Will Crooks, the labor leader, was elected to parliament, says an English weekly, he took his little daughter to Westminster. She was evidently awed at the splendors round her and maintained a profound and wondering silence all the time. Mr. Crooks was delighted to see her so much impressed.

"Well," said he to her at last, "what are ye thinking so deeply about, dear?"

"I was thinking, daddy," answered the little girl, "that you're a big man in our kitchen, but you aren't very much here."

Changed Meaning.

One of the best examples of how to end letters inwardly is that of a soldier who wrote home to his wife the following sentence without a single stop or comma:

"May heaven cherish and keep you from yours affectionately John Doe."

Difference of Opinion.

"I have nothing to live for," said Blowpay at table.

"Well, you'll find out soon that you can't live here for nothing," snapped

Voice Of The People

DOURO COUNCIL PLEASE TAKE NOTICE.

I would like very much to draw the attention of the Douro Council in regard to smallpox and also in regard to one of the members of the Board of Health who had smallpox at his home for some time. A couple of his neighbors had smallpox. They were quarantined. He was waiting on them but never let on they had smallpox at home. Two of his daughters working in Peterborough would come home on Saturday evening, and come to Douro church occasionally. Some of the neighbors, being suspicious, would inquire if they were all well at home. Oh, yes, all well. No smallpox at our house; it's 'flu.' They would return to Peterborough Sunday evening, not regarding the people they were living with whether they got smallpox or not. Well it looks like this to me: If we don't get it we don't care for the other fellow, and if we do he will have it too. Now I think it is time for the Council to put some man on the Board of Health who will try to protect the public instead of endangering them to this disease.

Thanking you for your space, I am,
Sincerely yours,
A Resident.

THE DRY LAWS RUIN BUSINESS— AT THE CHICAGO MORGUE

"Practically ruined," said Samuel L. Davis, Deputy Coroner of the Chicago Morgue, when an investigator for the Chicago Tribune asked him how the municipal morgue business had been affected by the prohibition laws. This particular investigator has been prying into various Chicago industries in order to find out how they have been affected by the dry regime. His visit to the Morgue, which he calls the "clearing house for the misery of Chicago," provided "an instructive hour." Indeed he assures us:

You might say it was really a pleasant hour, despite the place and the topic in hand, for Sam Davis, a rosy, rounded person, radiated optimism. He rubbed his hands and he beamed and he twinkled when he jumped enthusiastically into statistics and comparisons an said that, and said that so far as a once abundant source of supply was concerned, business in his department of the community service was "practically ruined."

"Nothing doing, you might say," he added happily—"that is compared with the old days."

"The old days," meaning all recorded time before July 1, 1919, is the way officialdom, from the patrolman on beat to the matron at the bridewell, date the routine of their affairs now when they grow reminiscent.

Sam Davis is an interesting man. Fourteen years in service presenting many squalid and horrifying aspects have neither blunted his sensibilities nor made them acute to the point of morbidity. He has maintained the decencies in dealing with a class of people who are mostly the despised and the rejected of mankind, and few of whom when you come to think of it are alive to thank him for kindness when he bestows it.

Deputy Davis is no prohibitionist. He likes a good glass of wine as well as any man at the table. The fact is stated to establish his—shall we say neutral?—attitude in the matter of the post-June statistics at the Cook County morgue.

He is more or less in two states of mind. The receipt at the morgue during the first four days of this week of seven men dead from wood alcohol shocks him and looking to the future he is apprehensive of an increase in the use of narcotics when alcoholic beverages become unobtainable.

"Now, it's horrible," he began, "this slaughter of seven by wood alcohol, but it is not to be considered, in my opinion as so much a normal manifestation of the drink evil or its suppression, as downright murder by the sellers of the stuff that blinds when it does not kill.

"But so far as my experience and observation in this department of the county service goes, you have to kind of balance this wood alcohol flare up with the general conditions obtaining here for the last five or more months. Here are some of the significant things:

"In the old days from seventy five to eighty bodies, unclaimed, went from this little building to the potter's field about every two weeks. Now I have not had a load for the last four weeks.

"We used to receive here from the bridewell from one to three, four and five bodies of alcoholics a day. Since July 1 we have not received twenty.

"From the old Canal and West Madison streets barrel house district, we used to get a body a day—body of an alcoholic or of a drunken man 'rolled,' that is beaten up. Since July 1 we have not had a total of five from that district. From Clark street district we get three a week. Lately not any.

"Wagon cases have dropped off wonderfully. What we call wagon-cases are men half drunk who fall from wagons and are killed. They run to alcoholics, those poor fellows.

"And gas cases—ph, so many of those we used to have. Fellows getting home, you know, unable to take care of themselves. Turning off the gas and then what with their drunken blundering turning it on again: then dropping on the bed, and 36 hours later the door burst open and a dead man found. Well our gas cases now are mostly old people.

"Stree car and steam railroad fatalities have been decreasing for a long time through improved contrivances and greater care. You can credit that wholly to prohibition. We are going in now for autombile fatalities—the crazy joy rider with his store of liquor. But as to the street cars it is noticeable that the fatalities are now mostly the old or the enfeebled and nothing like as many of the tipsy as there used to be.

"In the barrel houses and 'flops' there is far less of the fatal sickness that started with booze and ended with pneumonia. At Hogan's flop on Canal street where you can sleep on a warm floor for ten cents they tell me that prohibition has sent business to the dogs and that if it does not improve Hogan won't be able to stand the expense of the new fire escape the city has ordered him to put up.

"Nevertheless," concluded the rosy deputy, twinkling all over, "I hated that excuse for a wine that they gave me with my Thanksgiving dinner, It tasted like—well I suppose it is all for the best."

Most of the other Chicago business concerns investigated by this same philosophically minded investigator, we gather, show an almost equal lack of bad effects from the prevalence of so much drought as we have had so far and as for the candy and soft drink businesses, they thrive as never before in the history of such matters.

Ford

IF the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, is able to build up to the limit of its capacity, only 27,350 Ford Cars will be built for use in Canada between January the first and July the thirty-first of this year. Divided among the total population of Canada this means one car to every three hundred and ten people.

It is easy to see that many people will be unable to get their Ford Cars at all, and many will have to wait for summer or fall delivery.

As Ford Dealers in this territory, we desire to deliver a car to every person in this district who wants one, but we cannot get the cars unless we send in the orders now.

SICK HEADACHES CONSTIPATION

If you have suffered from constipation for years, tried doctors and all the remedies you ever heard or read of, without getting relief, if you have been subject to all the miseries associated with constipation, such as sick and bilious headaches, biliousness, specks floating before the eys, water brash, heartburn, jaundice and the painful, troublesome, internal, bleeding or protruding piles, etc., wouldn't you consider it a blessing to be able to keep the bowels in a good healthy condition and prevent disease getting a foothold on your system.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are indicated just for this purpose; their regular use relieving the worst cases of constipation.

Mrs. Malcolm McDermid, Cranton Station, N.S., writes:—"I have been sick for a number of years with sick headaches and constipation. I tried all kinds of doctor's medicine, but none did me any good. I tried Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and after using four vials I am completely cured and would heartily recommend them to all sufferers."

BANKING FIGURES DOUBTFUL GAUGE

MAY INDICATE AN ARTIFICIAL PROSPERITY, SAYS CURRENCY COMPTROLLER.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Warning that the prosperity and activity indicated by banking figures may become artificial and deceptive, was given here by John Skelton Williams in his annual report as Comptroller of the Currency.

Remarking that in 1919 there was not a national bank failure involving loss to depositors in the United States and that the banking power of the country has increased 900 per cent. in the last thirty years, Mr. Williams added:

"A large volume of money cannot mean increase of real wealth while there is decrease of production and the accumulation and movement of securities and currency represent abnormally inflated values put on diminished supplies of essentials.

"It is clear that no country can be enriched by merely increasing prices of products produced and consumed by its own people. We might prosper for the moment if we could sell our products abroad at the higher prices and take payment in gold or in goods at normal prices; but we gain nothing when we sell and buy at corresponding abnormal prices."

Advocates Policy of Help.

All the gold in the world, aside from that held by the United States, was estimated by the Comptroller at $6,000,000,000, or only about forty per cent. of the credit balance of the United States in the last six years. For that reason he urged that the United States should adopt a policy of reasonable help and encouragement toward debtor countries with no assets immediately available but having fair prospects of being able to pay if given time.

BRITISH AMMUNITION STORES CATCH FIRE AT BETHUNE.

BETHUNE, France, Feb. 14.—Fire broke out in an ammunition dump belonging to the British Army, in which 5,000 tons of munitions of all kinds are stored.

The munitions are divided into 5,000 shell lots, these lots being separated by small canals.

The fire exploded one lot, shaking houses and breaking window panes for miles around. Part of the populations of the nearby villages have fled from their homes.

The fire is still smouldering, but up to the present no loss of life has been reported.

UNHAPPY RUSSIA BIG BATTLEFIELD

BOLSHEVIKI LAUNCH EXPECTED AT TACK ON DVINA SECTOR.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—The pursuit by the Bolsheviki of the remnants of General Denikine's forces into the Crimea, the launching of an expected Red attack on the north Russian front in the Dvina sector, and the conclusion of the Lettish operations against the Reds are pointed to by the military observers as the most salient developments of the past week's operations in Russia as reported to the War Office here.

On the western sector of the south Russian front the resistance of the volunteers against the Bolsheviki appears to have collapsed with the Red occupation of Odessa. The Reds now are pushing toward the Dniester along a front of 120 miles.

The reports show that the Bolsheviki suffered disaster in their attempts to froce the line of the Don and Manitch Rivers, having lost heavily in men killed or made prisoner. The Reds, however, are making rapid progress in the Stephes region, probably attracted by the possibility of occupying Sebastopol and Theodosia, Black Sea ports in the Crimea, and seizing the Petrovsk railroad. The taking of this line would constitute a serious threat to the anti-Bolshevist communications with the volunteer fleet in the Caspian Sea, which has its base at Petrovsk.

The British detachment is withdrawing from Batum to Constantinople. The advices do not state whether the situation at Batum, which recently had been regarded as threatening, had improved, warranting the withdrawal of the British, or if it has grown worse and the British were compelled to withdraw.

There have been no operations of great moment on the Polish front.

Following the virtual dissolution of Admiral Kolchak's armies in Siberia, Vladivostok did not resist occupation by the rebels. Authority there has been taken over by the Provincial Zemstvo. The city is reported quiet.

A PRESENTATION TO MRS. W. HARPER

WOMEN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY MEET IN LAKEFIELD.

The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist church held at the home of Mrs. J. H. Sherin on Tuesday last was very interesting and instructive. The subject of Missions in Africa was dealt with by several of the members. There was also a reading "The Little Cripple Boy" by Mrs. MacDonald while Mrs. Dixon had charge of the devotional exercises.

A feature of the meeting was the reading of the following address to Mrs. William Harper who is removing from the village, by Mrs. William Leonard.

Dear Mrs. Harper.

It is with deep regret that we have heard of your intending departure from our village and from our society. It is now over 35 years since our Lakefield Auxiliary of the Woman's Missionary Society was organized, under the leadership of Mrs. Wm. Johnston with a membership of eight, of these you were one, and during all these years we have felt that you were one with us in interest and in work ond of late years when you have not always been able to be present at our meetings we knew we had your prayers for the great work Way of Life through our Society.

You have seen our Auxiliary grow from eight members to what it is now and of the original members only you and I are left, but though the names on the roll have changed, the same purpose with which we first started is still our aim, to help to build up and spread the Kingdom of God in the World.

We ask you to accept this Life Membership Pin as a little remembrance from our Society, and in the wearing of this pin may you be reminded not only of your membership of the great society but of your fellowship with us as a co-worker.

We know that you have many friends in Peterborough and that you will make others and trust that you may sometimes meet with us in this Auxiliary.

Signed on behalf of the Auxiliary,

Mrs. S. J. Leonard.

President—Ida Sherin.
Secretary—Mabel M. Sherin.
Rec.-Sec'y.—Laura Madill.
Treasurer—Laura Leonard.

Lakefield, February 3rd, 1920.

Miss Munro presented Mrs. Harper with the Life Membership Pin, after which a social half-hour was spent.

To Ward Off Trouble Build Up With Milk

Says Dr. Leonard Keene Hirshberg

Of Johns Hopkins University: "Morbid states of health and infections are most common among those who have forgotten that there is such an excellent preventative of sickness as milk."

Proofs in abundance show that Pasteurized Milk is probably the greatest factor of safety for your nutrition, and protection against disease."

"Milk used in combination with butter, or each used separately, either cold or warm, are excellent 'warders off' of many physical troubles. They act as preventatives because they build up bodily resistance to the disease."

Use milk liberally, either hot or cold. If you want to get a greater variety, a great number of delicious milk drinks are recommended by Dr. Hirshberg.

PRINCESS PATRICIA NAMES NEW BOY

BABY TO BE CHRISTENED ALEXANDER ARTHUR ALPHONSE MAULE.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—"Princess Pat's" boy, England's most talked of baby, will be named Alexander Arthur Alphonse Maule.

This was decided after a royal conclave at which the mother declined to allow Queen Mary or other members of the royal family to act as sole arbiters on this momentous question. Princess Patricia had her way in the choice of names. Alexander and Maule stand for the child's father, Arthur for his grandfather, the Duke of Connaught, and Alphonse for the King of Spain.

The royal christening ceremony will take place at St. James' Palace on February 23. The son is described as a pretty blue eyed babe with rich dark hair and bearing a striking resemblance to his beautiful and popular mother. He already is Queen Mary's pet. The Prince of Wales calls frequently to see his young cousin, whom he had presented with a two-handled christening cup.

Princess Patricia of Connaught was married to Commander Alexander Robert Maule Ramsay, of the Royal Navy, a year ago. As the daughter, of the Duke of Connaught, former Governor-General of Canada, she is a princess of royal blood and her marriage to a commoner caused a sensation. The boy was born last December.

STRANGE WILL IS ATTACKED

Of this, $62,000 is Said to Have Been Left by 80-year-old Lady to Her Executor, Who is Not a Relative.

The $75,000 estate of the late Mrs. Delia Ann Leverich, of Port Hope, is the subject of litigation in an action brought by Mrs. L. A. Fellowes and Libby Willis against the executor, Lester B. Randall. The plaintiff's seek to set aside the letter probate, which have been issued to him, and have secured an interim injunction tying up the property till the matter has been argued. J. P. MacGregor is acting for the plaintiffs.

Mrs. Leverich, who was 80 years of age, made the will which is complained of, on September 26th last, and she died on October 9th. Her will disposes of about $16,000 amongst her relatives and charities in a way that it is said would provoke no comment were that the whole of her estate, but she then leaves the balances of her estate "if any" to her executor, Lester B. Randall, to make such bequests as he may think best or "for the objects we have discussed.' 'The "if any" is said to amount to $62,000.

Mr. Randall is no relation of Mrs. Leverich. Three days after she had made her will he wrote to a relative of hers: "Mrs. Leverich and I have been friends for a long time, and I have helped her in many little ways for a number of years, and I will not fail her in her hour of trial."

After her death he wrote saying that two relatives had been remembered in equal parts, but making no mention of the residue left to him. He also suggested to a niece in the States that she might leave her legacy in Canada for a time, nd thus escape the burden of paying exchange upon it.

Anonymous Letter

On January 23rd last, an annonymous letter signed, "Justice", was sent from Port Hope to Mrs. G. V. Fellowes, a niece of Baldwinsville, New York. It said, in part: "The will of your aunt has caused talk in town She was in no fit shape to make a will. The doctor says she was in no fit shape. She made it on her death bed. Get busy. Get a smart Toronto law firm to fight your case and you will win. She died worth $78,639.34."

It is said that the estate consisted of $41,000 in cash or war bonds, $21,000, in securities, and only $3,500 in real estate. Mrs. Leverich was the widow of a lumber merchant and commission agent.

Charge Against Nurse at Guelph Institution Postponed a Week.

GUELPH, Feb. 13. — When the case of Catherine McEachren, a nurse at the Homewood Sanitarium was called in the Police Court here, Crown Attorney Macdonald asked for, and obtained an adjournment for a week on the ground of the sickness of several witnesses. Neither accused nor her counsel were present.

The charge laid against Miss McEachern who is not in custody, is that "being under a legal duty to care for and attend one Rebecca Lipofsky, a patient at the Homewood Sanitarium, while she was undergoing medical treatment consisting of a hot bath, did unlawfully omit such care and attention thereby causing grievous body injury, to wit, the death of the said Rebecca Lipofsky."

Deceased was a Toronto woman who was admitted to the institution on December 14th, 1919. She died December 23, while being given a hot bath.

The case has aroused considerable local interest and the court was filled with spectators.

It is understood the defence will contend that something went wrong with the mechanism tha regulates the heating of the water.

BRITISH SPY PLAN FOILED GERMANS AT EVERY STAGE

SYSTEM UNDER "BLINKER" HALL REVEALS ACTIVITIES OF SUB COMMANDERS.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—The British Admiralty is ready to go into Court with conclusive evidence against every one of the German submarine commanders whose extradition has been demanded by the Allies for acts of inhumanity.

The story will reveal to the world the workings of a little grey-haired British naval officer, who sat in an office in Whitehall from the Battle of Jutland until the end of the war, directing a spy organisation that apparently outwitted the German espionage at every stage of the game. He is Rear-Admiral Sir Reginald Hall, known as "Blinker" Hall, now a member of Parliament for Liverpool.

The authorities are not very optimistic regarding their chances of bringing the submarine captains to trial even if the German Government should agree to their extradition, because the men have been at liberty since the armistice, and have had an opportunity to lose themselves throughout the world.

Have Complete Cases.

But if they never come to trial the Admiralty will show the hand of cards picked up by "Blinker" Hall's spies in Germany, Austria, Spain, Turkey, which the intelligence chief kept under cover of absolute secrecy as long as the war lasted.

Charts will be submitted proving the activities of every submarine commander at almost any period of the war. There will be dates and circumstances of sinkings and depositions made by German submarine sailors after their capture. These will dovetail with the affidavits of survivors.

Originally the Admiralty submitted to the Paris Conference the names and illegal activities of hundreds of German submarine officers. The list was pruned, however, to those responsible for particularly brutal actions, such as the destruction of hospital ships, three men being charged with this offence, and extreme cruelty to survivors of destroyed vessels.

Specific Actions.

Each name submitted to Paris was accompanied by the specific actions against that individual, but it was decided to press only those cases which it was believed convictions certainly could be obtained on the evidence in any court of law. So certain is the Admiralty of convicting the men now demanded, if they can be apprehended, that the Department is willing to try them before the Courts of neutral countries.

Among the exhibits which will be introduced against the Germans will be the movie film which the Americans seized when they occupied Coblenz, depicting a cruise of the U-35, under Commander De La Perriel. This film was sent to America some time ago for popular exhibition. It is regarded as one of the most illuminating bits of evidence, for it shows the sinkings of thirteen ships on one voyage alone. Names and dates are plentiful, as the reels were made to buck up the morale of the German people at a time when it was little expected that they might be turned against De La Perriel.

Movies of Actions

The beginning shows the commander in the conning tower, smiling into the camera as the U-35 shoved off from Pola, the Austrian base in the Adriatic. After each sinking, of which profuse details are shown, the skipper is exhibited, grinning at the sufferings of the merchantmen and passengers, and later, checking off the name of the destroyed vessel in the shipping register.

One incident gives De La Perriel sternly ordering a British captain down the hatch of his boat, while the Briton shakes his fist in the German's face, vainly protesting against being captured. In the hold are three British skippers whose discomfiture is frequently shown. Elsewhere the submarine crew is pumping shells into the waterline of a helpless freighter; others are shown blowing up after the visits of bombing parties. Several scenes picture ships wallowing helplessly and taking the final plunge.

COMPANY FORMED TO BUILD HOUSES AT THE FALLS.

NIAGARA FALLS, Feb. 14.—Members of the Chamber of Commerce have committed themselves to the flotation of a company for the erection of houses in Niagara Falls.

At a meeting held here, seventeen members pledged themselves to take blocks of stock in the new company.

There was some discussion as to whether the Chamber should build houses or a factory tenement building, but it was felt that the house shortage was a more immediate problem.

The company will apply for a charter with a capital of $250,000 in shares of $50 each.

The new company will be called the Niagara Falls Homes Limited. Mr. T. F. Battle was authorised to apply for a charter.

1,000 GUINEA WOMEN.

LONDON, Eng.—The dress parade of women of wealth on fine afternoons in Bond Street is greater to-day than it has ever been.

"'Thousand Guinea Women,' I call them," remarked a sartorial artist in one of the establishments for clothes and garments de luxe to a "Daily Chronicle" representative recently.

"I have had some experience of the phases of West-End women's clothing during the last twenty years, and to-day there are more women walking round the shops whose complete fittings and make-up approximate to a thousand guineas than I have ever remarked before."

To Wash Away Those Wrinkles and Crowsfeet

If your face is disfigured with wrinkles, no matter what the cause, you can quickly dispel every line, even the most obstinate, by using a simple, home-made wash lotion. Merely dissolve an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel—ingredients found in any drug store. Bathe the face in this, and—presto!—you scarcely believe your own eyes when you look into your mirror and behold the marvelous transformation!

The remarkable astringent action of the saxolite so tightens the skin, wrinkles are literally pressed out. Best of all, this result is not purely temporary, for the lotion also has a healthful tonic action, which tends to strengthen and tone up the weakened tissue, and added benefit may be expected with continued use. Use this once a day for awhile; it cannot injure the most delicate skin. The treatment itself leaves no trace—no one guesses the secret of your increasing youthful appearance.

PULLING HARD AGAINST THE TIDE.

In the world I've gained my knowledge,
And for it I've had to pay;
Though I never went to college,
Yet I've heard that poets say:
Life is like a mighty river,
Rolling on from day to day;
Men are vessels launched upon it,
Sometimes wrecked and cast away.

Many a bright, good-hearted fellow,
Many a noble-minded man,
Finds himself in water shallow,
Then assist him if you can.
Some succeed at every turning,
Fortune favours every scheme;
Others, too, though more deserving,
Have to pull against the stream.

If the wind is in your favour
And you've weathered every squall,
Think of those who luckless labour,
Never get fair winds at all.
Working hard, contented, willing,
Struggling through life's ocean wide—
Not a friend and not a shilling,
Pulling hard against the tide.

Don't give way to foolish sorrow,
Let this keep you in good cheer—
Brighter days may come to-morrow
If you try and persevere.
Darkest nights will have a morning,
Though the sky be overcast;
Longest lanes must have a turning,
And the tide will turn at last.

WHY CHILLY WEATHER BRINGS RHEUMATISM

Says skin pores are closed and uric acid remains in blood.

"Rheumatism is no respecter of age, sex, color or rank. If not the most dangerous of human afflictions it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat less meat; dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure and, above all, drink lots of pure water.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

GETTING READY FOR DAIRY CONFERENCE

The officers of the Peterborough County Association of the United Farmers of Ontario have completed their plans for the big dairy conference which is to be held in Peterborough, Monday afternoon, February 23rd, just preceding the big banquet that is to be held in the evening which will be addressed by Premier Drury and Hon. Manning Doherty.

The meeting in the afternoon will be held largely to discuss matters relating to the proposal to effect an amalgamation of the cheese factories and creameries in the Central Ontario district. So far some eight factories have shown their willingness to enter this amalgamation, and it is expected that a considerable number of others will do so after this conference, and after the one to be held in Madoc on February 26th. The speakers for the meeting in Peterborough are nearly all local men. Mr. Wallace Anderson, President of the United Farmers of Ontario in Peterborough County, will preside. Mr. R. B. Rogers, of the local Farmers' Club will discuss the advisability of the Farmers' Company endeavoring to purchase the local creamery and condensary. Mr. E. H. Stonehouse of Weston, President of the Ontario Milk and Cream Producers' Association, will describe what dairy farmers are doing in other sections of Ontario in the line of co-operative effort.

Mr. Hugh Maloney of Marmora, President of Cook's Cheese Factory, and a provisional director of the United Dairymen Ltd., will explain why the farmers in his township have lined up in favor of the propored company, and why he believes the company should be supported. Mr. J. W. Fraser, manager of the local Bank of Nova Scotia, will speak on the subject of Dairy Products as banking security," and Mr. H. B. Cowan of Farm and Dairy, will explain the objects and purposes of the proposed dairy company. A discussion of the proposed company will then be held when those expected to take part are: Morley Smithson, County Director of the United Farmers of Ontario, Samuel Armstrong of Indian River, G. A. Breathen of Norwood and others. Already a considerable number of delegates have been appointed to attend this conference and it is expected that the attendance will be large.

Get Rid of The Cough That Sticks

Some coughs seem hard to shake off—stick right to you in spite of all you do to get rid of them.

Those are the kind of coughs that are dangerous—that weaken the lungs so that the germs of consumption find a ready foothold.

We know of no remedy that will cure stubborn coughs— coughs that won't let go—like Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

It allays the inflammation, soothes the irritation, and heals the diseased mucous lining of the lungs and bronchial tubes.

Mrs. Leo. Allen, Petit de Grat Bridge, N.S., writes:—"Last winter I had an awful cough that kept me in the house for over two months. I tried several cough remedies, but got no relief. I was almost discouraged when a grocer here offered me a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. After taking that one my coughing began to cease. I took two more and they cured me completely."

Get the genuine Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup; put up in a yellow wrapper; 3 pine trees the trade mark; price 25c. and 50c.; manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

RETURN GAME MONDAY

Playing brilliant hockey in all departments of the game, the Peterborough team handed the much-touted Kingston Hockey Club's outfit a decisive beating in the third round intermediate O.H.A. fixture at Brock street rink last night, the final score being 4 to 1 in favour of the Petes, who were always in front. The return game will be played in Kingston on Monday night, and barring accidents, the Petes should win the round and go into the semi-finals of the big competition.

A huge crowd saw the green shirts emerge victorious from a hard fought and scrappy contest that had the spectator on their toes from the first face-off. It was a real battle, with a couple of lively scraps, changing of goal umpires and a few other features thrown in for good measure. The ice, fairly hard but rough at the start, soon grew sticky, and under the circumstances the quality of hockey handed out was surprisingly fast and good. There were few dull moments and the pace was fast from gong to gong.

The Kingston team, heralded by Jim Sutherland's eulogies as the greatest outfit in the business, expected to win handily, but they soon found that there was a misake somewhere. The Petes checked them from goal to goal, the forwards back-checking effectively, while the work of the defence pair, backed up by the magnificent goal-keeping of Murray, was a puzzle that th Kingston attacking division found almost impossible to solve. And the Petes, when they broke away, passed to better advantage and with better judgment than their opponents.

The Petes scored the only goal in the first period, had it 2-0 with less than two minutes to go in the second session when Kingston scored on a ten foot offside, and registered twice in the last twenty minutes while the Easterners were blanked. The home crew had a big edge on the play in the last session and were unlucky in not scoring more than twice.

Every man in a Peterborough uniform contributed his bit to the victory ,but the effective work of the defence deserves especial mention. Murray was almost invincible in the nets, the only shot that beat him being at point-blank range after a pass at the mouth of the net. He blocked heaves from all angles and at all ranges, and used fine judgment in clearing. In front of him Pete Thornton and Grover Halpin were a big League defence pair, who sized up every attack coolly and out-generaled the incoming forwards time after time. Their handling of attacks was almost flawless and in addition both rushed effectively. On the forward line every man of the five was useful. Capt. Lornie Rose showed the way in the scoring line by bagging three nice counters, but the rest of the crew were strong, both on the attack and in checking, and some clever combination was used in spite of the sticky condition of the ice.

For Kingston the most effective men were the defence pair, Brown and Elmer. They both check well, if not too cleanly, and their rushes were always dangerous and gave their forward line many a breathing spell. The advance guard did not loom up so conspicuously. Cook had trouble trying to hold Lornie Rose, and Jimmy Stewart, the former captain of the Dentals, was chiefly noticeable for his loafing offside and his inside work with the butt-end. Ruby Milan, who subbed at centre, was not very effective, and Smith the left wing, about whom not so much has been heard, was really the most useful of the front line.

MARY PICKFORD

Referee Percy Lesueur had a scrappy game to handle and it looked for a while in the second period as if the contest was going to get away from him. Stewart ,the visiting centre man, was the central figure in two exciting mix-ups. In the middle of the secon period he butt-ended Lornie Rose and Referee Lesueur rang his bell to penalize him. Rose, however, decided to do the punishing himself, and he swung a swift punch to Stewart's ear that put the Easterner down for the count. Stewart drew a two minute penalty and Rose was chased for five minutes. A little later in the period, Stewart hooked Pete Thornton in the face, cutting his lip. The mix-up happened near the boards, and an excited spectator leaned over and rapped Stewart on the jaw and the Kingston centre man took his second knock-out of the period.

Referee Lesueur sent the teams away sharp at 8.30 and it was a rapid clip from the first face-off. The visitors were the first to attack and they swarmed around for a few moments as if they were going to sweep the Petes off their feet. Halpin and Pete Thornton held them out well, however, and Murray took care of their long range shots.

Finally ,after the rubber had been in their territory for two minutes the Petes broke away, and when Harry Thornton gave Lornie Rose a pass, from which he slanted a fast one by Tobin, the cheering could have been heard in Lakefield.

Rose almost made it 2-0 when he came back a minute later and faking a shot, skated around Elmer. Tobin made a nice stop, however.

Elmer, the Kingston defence man, drew the first penalty, but honors were even while he was off. Ruby Milan came on for Stewart about the middle of the period but failed to shine. Lornie Rose was hurt and took a rest. Pete Thornton and Jackson combined beautifully, but Tobin made a lucky stop of Jackson's shot. The checking was close and hard and the puck-carrier was so well smothered that there were few scoring opporunities in the last part of the period.

Early in the second period the Petes increased their lead. A combination rush was checked, but on a pass from the corner, Lornie Rose fooled Tobin at close range. Derry was in the penalty box at the time. Then R. Rose and Stewart mixed it and went off, and soon after Halpin was chased. Derry was back by this time and the visitors had a 5 to 4 advantage, but failed to score, although Murray had to make some fine stops. Finally, with both sides even again, came the Lornie Rose-Stewart main bout as already decribed, Stewart drawing a two minute penalty and Rose five. Kingston tried hard to even up the count while the Petes were a man short, but could not beat Murray. With two minutes to go in the period, Smith got away and passed to Stewart who was ten feet offside. Stewart returned at the mouth of the net and Smith registered Kingston's only counter.

The second knock-out for Stewart came at this stage and it took several minutes to restore calm. The figures were 2-1 at the end of the period.

The Petes had a big edge on the visitors in the last twently minutes. The forwards were breaking fast and passing nicely and the visiting defence was hard pressed to hold them out. Finally, after the Petes had had several shots, in a scrimmage Harry Thornton drove one at Tobin which hit his foot and slid into the net. The Kingston goal umpire refused to raise hi hand, but Referee Lesueur saw the play and counted the goal, while a new umpire was installed.

The Petes kept pressing and were successful a little later when Jackson and Lornie Rose combined nicely. The former got inside on Rose's pass, and although he fell as reached the goal post, Rose batted the rubber into the nets.

For the balance of the game the Petes held the visitors safe. They came close on one occasion when Murray made a nice stop. Kingston objected to the Peterborough goal umpire on this play and a change had to be made. The green shirts looked the fresher team of the two when the gong sounded.

TED BLOCK OF DETROIT KNOCKED OUT BISHOP

SAGINAW, Mich., Feb. 14.— Ted Block of Detroit, evened up for the two-round knock-out which Pat Bishop of Bay City slipped over on him last Labor Day by knocking out the Pole in the ninth round of their scheduled 10-round wind-up before a great crowd here. It was the greatest battle Saginaw fight fans have ever been offered and only after he had been knocked down four times in the ninth was Bishop counted out.

Bishop started by taking the first round, but ran into a hard right which sent him down for a count of nine in the second period. Bishop managed to stall through the round and from then on to the ninth the battle was even with Block doing most of the leading.

In the ninth they started to trade wallops and Bishop ran into a right cross which sent him down for the count of eight. He got up, fought back gamely and went down again for seven seconds, then started again, went to the canvass for eight more seconds and finally was knocked cold. Both men weighed 159 pounds.

CANADA'S OWN LITTLE STAR—IN THE SWEETEST SCREEN STORY OF HER CAREER

comes to us at last in

"Pollyanna"

one of the great stories for which the amusement loving world has long awaited

From Eleanor H. Porter's Novel "Pollyanna"
Published by the Page Company
Screen Adaptation by Frances Marion
Photographed by Charles Rosher

"Pollyanna" is the High Priestess of Optimism. She is not merely the discoverer, but the 33rd degree exploiter of the silver lining. The fairies who made sunshine from the cucumbers were insignificant beings to "Pollyanna." She is full of action, sparkle and pathos, and will help you to turn your sorrows, big or small, into gladness.

I have never seen a picture which is so glad, so refreshing and intensely intersting as MARY PICKFORD in "Pollyanna." The story grips the soul and it must be a misanthrope who will not be ready to play the "Glad Game" after seeing the influence "Pollyanna" has on those whose lives have been embittered by their own misunderstanding or by looking at illness or misfertune from the wrong standpoint. The old and young alike will enjoy this production.

DOG AS A WITNESS IN OWNERSHIP ACTION.

GREEN CASTLE, Ind., Feb. 14.—"Shep," a big, well-trained shepherd dog, appeared as a witness in a suit brought by D. E. Bush of Cloverdale, against Joseph Dimey, of the same place, to decide the question of the dog's ownership.

The jury, being in doubt after hearing the testimony, asked to see the animal, and "Shep" was put through his tricks by Disney's small son. Disney got the dog.

MR. BURNHAM WANTS INSTRUCTIONS

To the Editor of The Examiner.

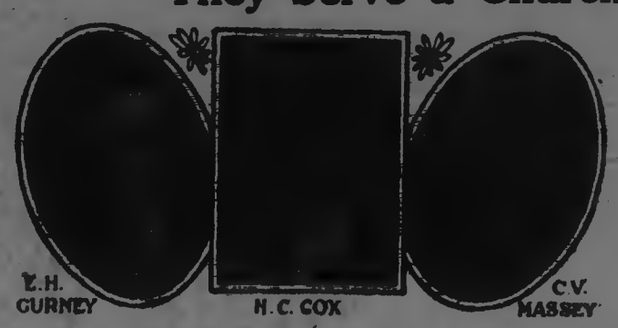
OBJECT TO MODERN DRESS.

Alderman (Mrs.) L. A. Hamilton, adressing the members of the W. C. T. U. in Bathurst Street Methodist Church yesterday afternoon on the terrible prevalence of venereal diseases, declared that the present style of feminine attire contributed to impurity. Mrs. Hamilton strongly stressed the need for sex education and better standards of purity. Miss McIntosh of the China Inland Mission, at present on furlough, led in the discussion which followed Mrs. Hamilton's address.

Sir,—the above item in The Globe of 13th February calls attention to an evil greater not only than drink, but than all other evils combined. At Ottawa we have been struggling with the problem for some years, but the evil has now become so great and deadly that our Provincial and Federal Health Departments are calling on the Legislatures to interfere without further delay. I want instructions from the people of Peterborough. Surely I am not to be compelled to say to the Government when the question comes up that the people of Peterborough are so saturated with selfishness that whilst they will go to the polls on the liquor question they will not even express an opinion on the above matter. When the Act for a Referendum was asked for at Ottawa, I begged the Government to leave the Liquor Prohibition Referendum Act open for all purposes, so that any other serious problem could be tacked to it for a province-wide vote. This request was granted. A referendum is to be asked for soon on the one. Will the people of Peterborough not empower Mr. Drury and myself to ask for a referendum on the other? We will be extinct as a race in fifty years of this matter is not attended to.—Yours,

J. H. Burnham.

What of the Sons? They Serve a Church



These names (Massey-Cox-Gurney) long stood for strength and aggressiveness and originality in industry and finance in Canada.

But the fathers and grandfathers—founders of the houses—are gone. What of their sons? Mr. C. Vincent Massey, grandson of Hart A. Massey and Bishop Vincent; Herbert C. Cox, son of Senator George A. Cox; and E. Holt Gurney, son of Edward Gurney, are young men who are achieving prominence first in religious, educational and philanthropic activity.

A man of keenness and devotion, Holt Gurney is one of the leaders of the Methodist National Campaign. In addition to taking up energetically his father's work in the insurance field and in the Superannuation Fund treasurership of the Methodist Church, Mr. Cox is treasurer of the Methodist National Campaign.

Although inclined by nature to a scholastic life, Mr. Massey has become vice-chairman of the national executive of the present campaign. He is also the creator of Hart House, the social centre of the University of Toronto, and is directing welfare work in a great manufacturing industry.

Golden "Gate"
(Open for Me)
-the New Song-Hit that Plays On Your Heart-Strings
SURELY you've heard "Golden Gate"—they're singing and playing it everywhere—all the way from the bright lights of Broadway, New York, or Yonge Street, Toronto, to the lonely fire-ranger of Northern Ontario, "Golden Gate" is bringing joy and happiness.
And surely you LOVE "Golden Gate"—for its wonderful rich melody that bewitches your heart—for its beautiful sentiment that awakens old memories and haunts new dreams.
"Golden Gate" is a wonderful song—a brilliant hit—Written by the famous writers of "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles." That 400,000 copies of "Golden Gate" were sold in the first twenty-four hours of its existence in the sheet music is evidence that it is one of the greatest song-hits of the hour.

PARIS ACTRESSES ABANDON DUEL PLAN

FRIENDS OF MME. RENOUARDT AND MLLE. TAMBOUR DECIDE FORMER HAS NO GRIEVANCE.

PARIS,—After all there will be no duel between friends of Mme. Jane Renouardt and Mlle. Clara Tambour. Their seconds have met and discussed the affair and have decided that an insult offered by one woman to another cannot be construed into an affair of honor between their friends. So ends in anti-climax the drama which for two weeks has formed endless gossip in Paris theatrical circles.

The story was told in the courts since it could not be finished on the field of honor. Some weeks ago, it went, Mme. Renouardt was told that a rival of the stage had planned a dreadful insult for her as she was entering the theatre. A youth had been bribed to offer her two bunches of flowers as she stepped from her automobile. One was fair and fragrant, the other inclosed some evil smelling substance which would pollute the memory, as well as the clothes, of the actress.

Forewarned, Mme. Renouardt forearmed herself and while a friend disguised in her clothes took her place in the automobile, two detectives waited at the door of the theatre for the presenter of the flowers. Friends of both sides arrived to see the drama and Mme. Renouardt herself, heavily veiled, hid in a doorway to see what would happen.

The automobile arrived and as the substitute stepped out a lad with flowers, presented them with some one's compliments. But while he still held them the detectives closed in on him. Friends of those who had planned the insult faded away into neighboring streets. Ther agent was let off with a warning by the Judge as he made full confession that he had no other interest in the matter than to earn the 100 francs which had been promised him. And now justice is seeking for the principals but cannot quite decide whether after all it ought to mix in so intimate a matter.

MORTALITY RATE FROM FLU HALF THAT OF YEAR 1918.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14. — The mortality rate due to the influenza epidemic this year was about half of that of 1918, said a statement to-day by the Public Health Service, announcing that the present epidemic apparently had reached its peak)

"A comparison," the statement said, "of the excess mortality rate per 100,00 of population for the respective peak weeks of 1920 and 1918 shows: Chicago 1,886, compared with 4,620 in 1918; Milwaukee 1,434, as compared with 1,918; Washington 2,072, as compared with 9,789.

"These rates may be taken as a fair indication of conditions throughout the country. With the exception of some cities in Massachusetts and in New York State, exclusive of New York City, practically all of the reports indicate a decline."

CHINA LEADS EUROPE IN USE OF THE WIRELESS TELEPHONE

ROME, Feb. 14—The newspapers here publish an article by Guglielmo Marconi, the inventor of the wireless telegraphy, which says that the United States heads the list of all countries in wireless inventions.

"A strange phenomena is that the most progressive countries of western Europe have not yet developed wireless telephones, while China, the most backward nation, daily uses the wireless telephone for communication between cities and the rural districts."

Signor Marconi says.

"Within this year wireless telephones will substitute the present clumsy system with great economic advantage, suppressing the cost of the telephone lines and their upkeep. They will also do away with interruptions due to atmospheric causes."

SUMMARY OF WEEK'S BUSINESS STOCK MARKET

(Canadian Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—For further drastic liquidation which left its impress upon securities, mark this week's banking interests had no reason or explanations to offer than those already well established in minds of trained observers. Acute international credit situation provoked heavy selling of inveatment as well as speculative holdings, causing extreme recessions of 10 to almost 40 points among the leaders. Prices rallied yesterday, probably more as a result of an over-extended short position than for any other cause, looking beyond mere question of quoted values. Discussion among conservative financiers dwelt with greater emphasis on further reaction of commodity prices and theri relations to prospective curtailment of foreign trade. Remittances to London were firm to strong in so far as they showed marked recovery from lowest quotations of the previous fortnight. Demand loans also eased but that condition was regarded as superficial in view of scarcity of time money. Encouragement was offered by high pressure of activity reported by leading domestic industries. January tonnage statement of the United States' Steel Corporation for example, showed largest amount of unfilled orders in almost two years. Investment conditions were again at a standstill, further delay by Congress in arriving at decision regarding railroads causing additional depression of high class transportation bonds, several corporate offerings of renewal character found ready market, however, at attractive interest returns.

GROW YOUR OWN SUGAR.

LONDON, Eng.—"If there were only one sugar beet factory available for British enterprise in this country this year, dealing with, say, 1,000 tons of sugar beet roots per day during the winter, it would be possible to invite British farmers to devote 10,000 acres of their land to this crop," said Sir Herbert Matthews, secretary of the Central Chambers of Commerce.

"Such an acreage would yield at least 100,000 tons of topped and washed roots, from which not less than 12,000 tons of sugar would be produced.

"This quantity would supply the requirements of one million people for one year, based upon the war ration."

WHY DOES SALT CAUSE THIRST?

The blood in the body contains about the same proportion of salt as the water in the ocean normally. When the supply is normal we do not feel that we have much salt in our system, but when you take salt into your mouth the percentage of salt in the body is increased, and the being thirsty, or the desire to drink water afterwards, is caused by the demand of the human system that the salt be diluted

The system calls for water or something to drink in order that it may counteract the too great percentage of salt in the system. Other things also, when taken into the body in too great proportion, cause us to become thirsty.

Thirst is merely nature's demand for more water on account of the necessity of reducing the percentage of some substance like salt, or merely a necessity for having more water in the body.—Book of Wonders.

RETURN GAME MONDAY

Playing brilliant hockey in all departments of the game, the Peterborough team handed the much-touted Kingston Hockey Club's outfit a decisive beating in the third round intermediate O.H.A. fixture at Brock street rink last night, the final score being 4 to 1 in favour of the Petes, who were always in front. The return game will be played in Kingston on Monday night, and barring accidents, the Petes should win the round and go into the semi-finals of the big competition.

A huge crowd saw the green shirts emerge victorious from a hard fought and scrappy contest that had the spectator on their toes from the first face-off. It was a real battle, with a couple of lively scraps, changing of goal umpires and a few other features thrown in for good measure. The ice, fairly hard but rough at the start, soon grew sticky, and under the circumstances the quality of hockey handed out was surprisingly fast and good. There were few dull moments and the pace was fast from gong to gong.

The Kingston team, heralded by Jim Sutherland's eulogies as the greatest outfit in the business, expected to win handily, but they soon found that there was a misake somewhere. The Petes checked them from goal to goal, the forwards back-checking effectively, while the work of the defence pair, backed up by the magnificent goal-keeping of Murray, was a puzzle that th Kingston attacking division found almost impossible to solve. And the Petes, when they broke away, passed to better advantage and with better judgment than their opponents.

The Petes scored the only goal in the first period, had it 2-0 with less than two minutes to go in the second session when Kingston scored on a ten foot offside, and registered twice in the last twenty minutes while the Easterners were blanked. The home crew had a big edge on the play in the last session and were unlucky in not scoring more than twice.

Every man in a Peterborough uniform contributed his bit to the victory, but the effective work of the defence deserves especial mention. Murray was almost invincible in the nets, the only shot that beat him being at point-blank range after a pass at the mouth of the net. He blocked heaves from all angles and at all ranges, and used fine judgment in clearing. In front of him Pete Thornton and Grover Halpin were a big League defence pair, who sized up every attack coolly and out-generaled the incoming forwards time after time. Their handling of attacks was almost flawless and in addition both rushed effectively. On the forward line every man of the five was useful. Capt. Lornie Rose showed the way in the scoring line by bagging three nice counters, but the rest of the crew were strong, both on the attack and in checking, and some clever combination was used in spite of the sticky condition of the ice.

For Kingston the most effective men were the defence pair, Brown and Elmer. They both check well, if not too cleanly, and their rushes were always dangerous and gave their forward line many a breathing spell. The advance guard did not loom up so conspicuously. Cook had trouble trying to hold Lornie Rose, and Jimmy Stewart, the former captain of the Dentals, was chiefly noticeable for his loafing offside and his inside work with the butt-end. Ruby Milan, who subbed at centre, was not very effective, and Smith the left wing, about whom not so much has been heard, was really the most useful of the front line.

MARY PICKFORD

Referee Percy Lesueur had a scrappy game to handle and it looked for a while in the second period as if the contest was going to get away from him. Stewart, the visiting centre man, was the central figure in two exciting mix-ups. In the middle of the secon period he butt-ended Lornie Rose and Referee Lesueur rang his bell to penalize him. Rose, however, decided to do the punishing himself, and he swung a swift punch to Stewart's ear that put the Easterner down for the count. Stewart drew a two minute penalty and Rose was chased for five minutes. A little later in the period, Stewart hooked Pete Thornton in the face, cutting his lip. The mix-up happened near the boards, and an excited spectator leaned over and rapped Stewart on the jaw and the Kingston centre man took his second knock-out of the period.

Referee Lesueur sent the teams away sharp at 8.30 and it was a rapid clip from the first face-off. The visitors were the first to attack and they swarmed around for a few moments as if they were going to sweep the Petes off their feet. Halpin and Pete Thornton held them out well, however, and Murray took care of their long range shots.

Finally, after the rubber had been in their territory for two minutes the Petes broke away, and when Harry Thornton gave Lornie Rose a pass, from which he slanted a fast one by Tobin, the cheering could have been heard in Lakefield.

Rose almost made it 2-0 when he came back a minute later and faking a shot, skated around Elmer. Tobin made a nice stop, however.

Elmer, the Kingston defence man, drew the first penalty, but honors were even while he was off. Ruby Milan came on for Stewart about the middle of the period but failed to shine. Lornie Rose was hurt and took a rest. Pete Thornton and Jackson combined beautifully, but Tobin made a lucky stop of Jackson's shot. The checking was close and hard and the puck-carrier was so well smothered that there were few scoring opportunities in the last part of the period.

Early in the second period the Petes increased their lead. A combination rush was checked, but on a pass from the corner, Lornie Rose fooled Tobin at close range. Derry was in the penalty box at the time. Then R. Rose and Stewart mixed it and went off, and soon after Halpin was chased. Derry was back by this time and the visitors had a 5 to 4 advantage, but failed to score, although Murray had to make some fine stops. Finally, with both sides even again, came the Lornie Rose-Stewart main bout as already decribed, Stewart drawing a two minute penalty and Rose five. Kingston tried hard to even up the count while the Petes were a man short, but could not beat Murray. With two minutes to go in the period, Smith got away and passed to Stewart who was ten feet offside. Stewart returned at the mouth of the net and Smith registered Kingston's only counter.

The second knock-out for Stewart came at this stage and it took several minutes to restore calm. The figures were 2-1 at the end of the period.

The Petes had a big edge on the visitors in the last twenty minutes. The forwards were breaking fast and passing nicely and the visiting defence was hard pressed to hold them out. Finally, after the Petes had had several shots, in a scrimmage Harry Thornton drove one at Tobin which hit his foot and slid into the net. The Kingston goal umpire refused to raise hi hand, but Referee Lesueur saw the play and counted the goal, while a new umpire was installed.

The Petes kept pressing and were successful a little later when Jackson and Lornie Rose combined nicely. The former got inside on Rose's pass, and although he fell as reached the goal post, Rose batted the rubber into the nets.

For the balance of the game the Petes held the visitors safe. They came close on one occasion when Murray made a nice stop. Kingston objected to the Peterborough goal umpire on this play and a change had to be made. The green shirts looked the fresher team of the two when the gong sounded.

TED BLOCK OF DETROIT KNOCKED OUT BISHOP

SAGINAW, Mich., Feb. 14.— Ted Block of Detroit, evened up for the two-round knock-out which Pat Bishop of Bay City slipped over on him last Labor Day by knocking out the Pole in the ninth round of their scheduled 10-round wind-up before a great crowd here. It was the greatest battle Saginaw fight fans have ever been offered and only after he had been knocked down four times in the ninth was Bishop counted out.

Bishop started by taking the first round, but ran into a hard right which sent him down for a count of nine in the second period. Bishop managed to stall through the round and from then on to the ninth the battle was even with Block doing most of the leading.

In the ninth they started to trade wallops and Bishop ran into a right cross which sent him down for the count of eight. He got up, fought back gamely and went down again for seven seconds, then started again, went to the canvass for eight more seconds and finally was knocked cold. Both men weighed 159 pounds.

comes to us at last in
"Pollyanna"
one of the great stories for which the amusement loving world has long awaited
From Eleanor H. Porter's Novel "Pollyanna" Published by the Page Company
Screen Adaptation by Frances Marion
Photographed by Charles Rosher

"Pollyanna" is the High Priestess of Optimism. She is not merely the discoverer, but the 33rd degree exploiter of the silver lining. The fairies who made sunshine from the cucumbers were insignificant beings to "Pollyanna." She is full of action, sparkle and pathos, and will help you to turn your sorrows, big or small, into gladness.

I have never seen a picture which is so glad, so refreshing and intensely interesting as MARY PICKFORD in "Pollyanna." The story grips the soul and it must be a misanthrope who will not be ready to play the "Glad Game" after seeing the influence "Pollyanna" has on those whose lives have been embittered by their own misunderstanding or by looking at illness or misfortune from the wrong standpoint. The old and young alike will enjoy this production.

DOG AS A WITNESS IN OWNERSHIP ACTION.

GREEN CASTLE, Ind., Feb. 14.—"Shep," a big, well-trained shepherd dog, appeared as a witness in a suit brought by D. E. Bush of Cloverdale, against Joseph Disney, of the same place, to decide the question of the dog's ownership.

The jury, being in doubt after hearing the testimony, asked to see the animal, and "Shep" was put through his tricks by Disney's small son. Disney got the dog.

MUCH SUFFERING DUE TO THIN BLOOD

RICH, RED BLOOD NECESSARY TO HEALTH AND STRENGTH.

If more people knew how many ills and pains are caused by thin, watery blood a great deal of suffering would be avoided. Men and women often suffer for long periods from stomach trouble, headache, palpitation of the heart, and nervous complaints such as neuralgia, without suspecting that anaemia or bloodlessness is the cause.

The blood goes to practically every part of the body, carrying oxygen and nourishment. The efficient action of every organ is directly dependent upon the quality of the nourishment it gets from the blood. If the blood is thin it becomes weak in nourishment and health fails. The best way to keep the blood rich and red and thus enjoy good health is through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. At the first sign of weakness these pills should be taken and good robust health will soon follow. The statement of Mrs. J. J. Murray, Corbetton, Ont., shows the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind. She says: — "A few years ago my daughter Lillie was in a very badly run down condition. She was pale, thin, and scarcely able to go about. The least exertion made her heart palpitate so violently that we were actually afraid one of these spells might carry her off. She slept so badly that often she would lie awake until the morning. Treatment did not seem to help her and we were almost in despair when a friend advised the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. A few weeks' use of this medicine showed a decided improvement, and a further use of the pills fully restored her to health and she has since been a strong healthy girl. Some time later I was taken ill myself, being badly run down from household care. A doctor was called in but his medicine did not seem to bring about my strength, and remembering what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had done for my daughter I decided to drop the doctor's medicine an try them. The results that followed were like those in my daughter's case and through the use of the pills I was soon a well woman. I am glad to give my experience in the hope that some other sufferer may find the way to health."

You can procure Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or they will be sent you by mail at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE RIVER FRONTAGE.

Mayor A. A. McIntyre has replied to Mr. J. H. Burnham's request for information concerning the city's attitude towards the wharfage facilities along the Trent Canal and the Otonabee River. Dealing with the future geography of the harbour facilities in Peterborough, Mayor McIntyre points out that from Riverside Park to the Locks Bridge the land on the east side of the river appears to be available for industrial purposes, except that portion occupied by the Vermont Marble Company and the Trent Canal. On the west side a considerable portion of the river frontage is being used by the C.P.R. railway and the McDonnel mill.

greater wit, better strength, better courage, to compel the woman to obey by reason or force; and to the woman, beauty, fair countenance, and sweet words to make the man obey her again for love. Thus each commandeth and each obeyeth the other and the two together rule the house so long as they remain together in one.

I wish with all my heart that the women of this age would learn thus to obey and thus to command their husbands and so will they want for nothing that is fit, etc.

1600".

With the latter judgment His Honour stated he was in perfect accord.

How Constituted.

The relationship of husband and wife is constituted by marriage and of this we find various aspects. Some consider it a civil contract others a status resulting from a contact. In some countries it is a sacrament in others a civil contract. We consider it a result of contract; a status each having certain duties and liabilities to perform. To-day with their new rights the ladies are equally liable with men for breach of promise. In Ontario the marriage laws are very simple and the ceremony may be performed by the clergyman of any church.

Rights and Liabilities

In discussing the rights and liabilities of each of the contracting parties His Honour recalled the fact that in early days the husband was the principal figure of the contract, the wife losing all her personality. This however, has since been remedied. Early in history the property of the wife became that of the husband. Later however, a marriage settlement was instituted for the protection of daughters. Not only did the husband of earlier days take all the wife's property but his rank became hers. The latter exists in England today as exemplified in the case of Princess Patricia who is really Mrs. Ramsay. A wife or husband may now make a will, while in earlier days remains in the tenancy by courtesy by which if the wife has property and children are born, the husband is entitled to the use of the property during his life. Dower is an incident of marriage. If the husband owns property, the moment a woman becomes his wife she secures an interest in the estate. At his death she acquires for her life a one third interest in all his lands and of this she cannot be deprived. In some of the western provinces there is no dower.

Technically the husband should work to support his wife properly in accordance with his station. If the husband refuses to fulfil this duty the wife may go to the merchant and procure the necessities of life for which the husband is legally responsible.

Divorce.

In discussing divorce which the speaker explained sometimes follows disagreements His Honour deplored the unsatisfactory laws in Canada. In England a regular court has been established. In Canada some provinces have such a court while some have not. In Ontario the party desiring divorce must go to the Senate. In a country such as ours, he continued, there should be a uniform law, this however is difficult on account of Quebec.

Separation.

If a wife is cruelly treated she may enter action in court and should the court find she has been improperly treated it decrees that the husband shall pay for her support, the sum paid to be in accordance with the man earns. This is called an action for alimony.

Rights Over Children

Should a child be killed parents have a right to claim damages. Through this damage is given not from a sentimental standpoint but purey financial as the parents should in the course of time have been able to claim through the rights of property some support through the child. Through the right of property a wife is equally able to clim damages if her husband is killed. Children are entitled to support from father or mother while the parents has a right to claim their wages. Parents are guardians of the children until they have reached what is known as years of discretion or 21 years. A child may hold property but may not dispose of it and is at all times protected by court. Should a child wish to dispose of property the court looks into the matter and decides if it is for the benefit of the child and if so makes the deal legal. A child like a wife may contract for necessities of living but not for luxuries. If a child damages property he is liable if the evidence establishes the fact that he was old enough to understand the consequences.

Appointment of a Guardian.

In the case of the death of the father the mother is legally the child's guardian, who looks after all the interests of the child. In the case of a child left without a guardian, the court appoints one to look after the person and property. This is generally done through the Surrogate Court. The guardian must give security to protect the interests of the child. The appointment of a guardian is left absolutely to the discretion of the court, who deal with the matter along the lines of the fittest person to give the best opportunities. To this there is the exception of the 14-year-old child who may name the guardian he wishes. We may have one guardian for his person and another for his state.

The last of the series of lectures will be given next Friday in the Brown room of the Y. W. C. A. instead of the Green Room.

He Could Hardly Walk to His Work

TILL HE USED DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Now Stating That He is Completely Cured, John Bichard recommends All Sufferers from Rheumatism to Use Dodd's Remedies.

Ringwood, Ont., Feb. 13th (Special.)—After being crippled with Rheumatism so that he could hardly walk to his work, Mr. John Bichard, a well-known resident of this place, says he is again as well as ever he was in his life. He states that the credit for his cure goes to Dodd's Kidney Pills and Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"I suffered greatly from Rheumatism and Lumbago," Mr. Bichard says in telling his story. "I had cramps in my muscles and specks before my eyes.

"I was so bad with Rheumatism I could hardly walk to my work.

"I took six boxes each of Dodd's Kidney Pills and Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, and they cured me completely.

"I recommend Dodd's remedies to all who suffer."

Dodd's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys. By strengthening the kidneys they enable them to strain all the impurities, all the uric acid, out of the blood.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. Crystallizing at the joints, it causes those excruciating pains so many people know. The natural remedy is to take the uric acid out of the blood by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

WHY DON'T THE STARS SHINE IN THE DAYTIME

The stars do shine in the daytime. If you will go down into a deep well or the open shaft of a deep mine and look up at the sky, of which you can see a circular patch at the top of the well, you will be able to see the stars in the daytime. The moon also shines in the daytime, on some part of the earth. At certain times during the month you can notice that the moon rises before the sun sets, and sometimes in the morning you will see the moon in the sky after the sun is up. Usually you cannot see either the moon or the stars in the daytime, because the light from the sun is so bright and strong that the light of the stars and moon are lost in the brightness of the sun's rays. When the moon is visible before the sun sets or after the sun has risen it is because the light of the sun is not so bright and strong at the beginning or close of daylight. If you are fortunate enough some time to witness a total eclipse of the sun you will be able to see the stars in the daytime without having to go down into a deep well or mine shaft.

WOMEN DENIED RIGHT TO PREACH.

Church of England Declines to Admit Them to Pulpits.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—The Ecclesiastical Parliament of the Lower House, in convocation at Canterbury, again has rejected the right of women to preach in the pulpits of the Church of England. Canon Temple offered a resolution that women preachers be permitted, under conditions approved by the bishops of dioceses, to preach at all except the regular services of the church. The Dean of Canterbury offered an amendment which provided that in view of the statements of St. Paul on the subject of uniform practices of the Church in the past, it was undesirable to grant the permission proposed. The amendment was carried.

ARMENIANS MURDERED.

DESTITUTION IN EUROPE TERRIBLE

Long Processions of Starving, Ill-Clad Children Seen Daily on the Streets.

Long processions of little Jewish children in Eastern Europe, bearing their tin cups in their hands, daily walk from their villages to the nearest town in which there is a Jewish relief station, according to relief workers in these stricken lands, sometimes journeying five or six miles in order to get the cup of soup with a piece of hardtack, or the mug of milk which is often their sole food of the day.

These tin-cup processions emphasize, as nothing else could do, the relief workers say, the terrible destitution of the Jews in Eastern Europe at present. The children in them are barefoot, almost without exception.

Reports received by the Canadian Jewish War Relief Committee say that both boys and girls are wrapped in burlap, or dressed in clothing made from the sacks in which the relief supplies have come, or in the rags which they have worn during the five years of the war, their gaunt little bodies showing through the tatters. They do not walk as children usually do, without effort or restraint, but drag themselves along wearily, and hopelessly, like tired little ghosts condemned to move in hungry processions throughout eternity.

Arrived at the relief station, the children are so tired and so weak that they sit down upon the pavements to await their turn in line. Upon the faces of every one of them there is an expression of unchildlike anxiety. It has to do with the only really vital question in the world to them—whether or not the soup or milk will hold out, until their turn comes. Every day some of them have to be turned away without food, since their numbers are so great that the funds at present on hand are not always sufficient to care for them all.

MR. JUSTICE RIDDELL MAKES ADDRESS AT BOSTON

BOSTON, Feb. 14.—Mr. Justice William Renwick Riddell, of Ontario, speaking before the Canadian Club here, characterized as "a lie which should be met at every stage" the "idle chatter of England sacrificing her colonials in the world-war."

"God knows, Canada has suffered bitterly," said Justice Riddell, "but for every well-loved Canadian name on a grave in France or in Flanders in proportion to population, there are two English homes similarly afflicted."

MACHINERY WILL RUN NEW WORLD

ORANGE, N.J.,—The world is still in a still comparatively primitive stage, Thomas Edison declared in an interview here.

Despite submarines and subways, wireless telephones and telegraphs, the conquest of the air, and developments in industrial chemistry, Edison during the celebration in honor of his 73rd birthday, "asserted the world is only beginning to develop."

"We have effeciency to-day but only in a primitive stage," the scientist said. "Our efficiency wil continue to increase for the next 1,000 years.

Edison predicted the new world will be run entirely by machinery. The worker, he said, should be but the brains behind a machine. Brain power, in the form of highly developed mechanical apparatus, must supplant man power in all forms of industry, he added.

As an illustration the scientist pointed out that in the future development of machinery it would be possible to put wool into a machine and have it delivered as cloth, where now separate operations fo spinning and weaving ae required.

Asked about a statement of Guglielmo Marconi, quoted in cable advices from London as asserting that certain strange wireless signals might be an attempt of inhabitants of the planet Mars to communicate with the earth, Edison declared such a development was "entirely possible."

"The world to-day is much more efficient than it was fifty years ago," the scientist declared, "but we do not notice it. The development has come on slowly all about us until we have become so accustomed to the new that it has become commonplace."

Labors cry for a six or eight hour day Edison characterized as "all bosh."

"The six hour day would not tend to make workmen efficient but slovenly," he declared. And living up to his teachings, he pointed out there was no vacation in his big laboratory in West Orange, N. J.

A GREAT DESTROYER

While Caesar dreamt of Parthia Italy was living in a state of economic chaos. Every class was eaten up with discontent, and the discontent came to a head in the aristocratic conspiracy engineered by Cassius and Brutus, and culminated in the assassiantion of the dictator in the Forum on the Ides of March, 44 B.C.

To Ferrero, Caesar is nothing but a great destroyer.

In him was personified all the revoluntionary forces, the magnificent but devastating forces, of a mercantile age in conflict with the traditions of an old-world society—its religious scepticism, its indifference to mortality, its insensibility ot family affection, its opportunist and undisciplined politics, its contempt for precedent and tradition, its Eastern luxury, its grasping militarism, its passion for the baser forms of commerce and speculaton, its first tentative efforts towards intellectual refinement, its naive enthusiasm for art and science.

But men often build better than they know or ever intend.

DISABLED SOLDIERS GET SAME CHANCE FOR SERVICE.

OTTAWA, Feb. 14.—A memorandum issued by the Civil Service Commission states that no special preference will be given among disabled soldiers qualifying for positions in the service.

During the recent session of the Special Commission on Re-establishment, a recommendation was made that men who had been retrained for clerical and office work should be given special preference.

The memorandum now issued says it is the opinion of the Commissioners that it would be unfair to men who have been disabled in war service, but who had not been vocationally trained, although they possess the necessary qualifications, that they should not be included in this special preference.

FLOCK TO SLESVIG TO VOTE.

1,500 Danes Start from Copenhagen—Germans Trying Trickery.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 14. — Four steamers, with 1,500 voters of Slesvig on board, left Copenhagen recently. They were the advance guard of the army of men and women born in Slesvig who are going back to vote for re-union with Denmark. The papers publish congratulatory addresses to the voters, signed by prominent persons of all political parties.

In Slesvig the Germans continue their campaign of trickery against the Danes and the International Commission. It has just been discovered that they sent forged postal cards to voters in Denmark, telling them that as they had been too late in announcing their intention of returning to vote, it would be useless for them to do so.

MOST HONOURS TO PRIVATES.

Received 63 Per Cent. of Medals and War Crosses.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Enlisted men of the army received 63 per cent. of the medals awarded for service in the World War, it is shown in statistics made public by the War Department.

To enlisted men went 57 out of the total of 78 Congressional Medals of Honour awarded, while 3,593 out of 5,109 Distinguished Service Crosses conferred were given to enlisted men. All of the 641 Distinguished Service Medals, awarded for meritorious service and not for acts of valour, were conferred on officers.

The Thirtieth Division, which, with the Twenty-seventh Division, broke the Hindenburg line, received twelve Medals of Honour, or 15 per cent. of all that were awarded.

Easy to Make This Pine Cough Remedy

Thousands of families swear by its prompt results. Inexpensive, and saves about $2.

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for cough. The reason is that pine contains several peculiar elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest. Pine is famous for this purpose.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a 16-oz. bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make 16 ounces—more than you can buy ready made for $2.50. It is pure, good and very pleasant—children take it eagerly.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

JANITOR SWEPT BABY FROM STEPS INTO STREET

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Policeman Edward Pointing, on his way to the West Forty-seventh street station, stumbled across an object on the sidewalk at No. 306 West Fifty-fourth street. The impediment proved to be a month-old baby boy, frozen to death and wrapped in a bed sheet.

The child was blue-eyed and weighed about twelve pounds. There were no marks or means or identification.

The janitor of the building in front of which the body was found, remembered sweeping it from the hallway into the street, believing it rubbish. This is the only clue the police have to work on.

HALDANE FAVOURS NATIONALIZATION OF BRITISH INDUSTRIES

(Special to Examiner.)

LONDON, Feb. 14 — Nationalization and threats of a miners' strike are engrossing topics on all platforms now. Lord Haldane who has been hailed in many quarters as a recruit to the labor party, said in a speech at Oxford that he was strongly in favor of nationalization of industries as a solution of the labor troubles, but if industries were to be nationalized new men and women must be trained. It would never do to leave the matter in the hands of the present civil service.

Discontent in labor ranks was largely due to ignorance and labor must be given every chance to educate itself.

At Birmingham, Sir Auckland Geddes described the miners' campaign as one for a syndicate. It would be impossible for the country to look for a prosperous futur if a body of men not representing a government, was allowed to control a vital industry, he said.

THE GREATEST SHIPS

The question is often asked "Which is the largest ship in the world today?" The answer to this is the "Leviathan," which is 907 feet long. The next in size is the "Imperator," of 883 feet, a ship 14½ feet longer than the "Aquitania." The "Olympic" is 16 feet shorter than the "Aquitania," but is 72 greater tonnage. Among war ships the "Renown" and her sister ship the "Repulse" are 750 feet long. These are the largest war ships now in service, but the largest war vessel now in the water is the British battle-cruiser "Hood," which is 900 feet long and of 42,000 tons full load displacement. The American Naval Department has designed six battle-cruisers of 875 feet in length. There is also a rumour that the British Admiralty are at work on a ship larger and more powerful than the "Hood." For two generations the "Great Eastern" was the giant of the giants of the sea, and men held their breath with wonder at the mighty hull, whose keel measured 679½ feet and whose displacement was 18,915 tons. To-day there are many ships with vaster measurements than this, and in honour to her great architect, it must be said that he was far ahead of his time.—Ex.

JACK SPEILL'S MEDICINAL CREED

I believe that in the vegetable world only are found certain ingredients necessary to continuous good health.

That ordinarily we do not eat enough vegetables to supply these in their proper proportion.

That these ingredients are found in excess in certain plants and are then classed as medicinal herbs.

That in Gallagher's Blood Purifier products of vegetation are so compounded as to supply to the blood the proper elements to put the stomach, liver and bowels in a healthy state and in their Kidney Remedy what is required to cause the kidneys to act in a healthy manner.

I believe one should take his own medicine. I take mine. Your friend Jack Speill. Advertising manager for the Gallagher Remedy Co.

MINORS CONFAB WITH THE MAJORS

ABSENCE OF BAN JOHNSON PREVENTS OFFICIAL ACTION BEING TAKEN.

CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—A confab was held here between major and minor league baseball magnates looking toward a re-establishment of diplomatic relations. A plan was considered providing for a board of four men, two from the minors and two from the majors, and a chairman with leanings neither to one side nor the other. All cases of dispute arising between the two leagues would be given to this board of four, and when a deadlock presents itself the chairman would cast the deciding vote.

Action on this proposition may be taken, when the moguls will again get together. The absence of President Johnson, of the American League, prevented official action on Thursday.

President Ebbets, of Brooklyn, President Hermann, of Cincinatti, and President Dreyfus of Pittsburg, were commissioned by the National League to represent it at the meeting with the minors. The American League had failed to take similar action, and William Richardson, part owner of the Washington Club, and Harry Grabiner, secretary of the White Sox, acted only in an unofficial capacity at the meeting.

President Johnson is expected to adjust this situation so that the little and big fellows may again be on a peace footing.

President John Heydler, of the National League, and Ban Johnson, of the American League, are still considering timber for recommendation for the National Commission chairmanship, Heydler stated. He denied that any recommendation had been made by him.

"I have considered each of the candidates," he said, "but have not made up my mind on any particular man. I will meet with Ban Johnson, and we will consider each man separately."

Reports were freely circulated that Ban Johnson, peeved over the restriction of his disciplinary powers, will step down from his office when the coming season closes. Predictions by some that he would resign before the season opened was scouted by those who know him well. He is too good a fighter to retire before the smoke of battle has cleared, the latter declared.

SYNTHETIC RUBIES.

The large quantities of synthetic rubies brought home by soldiers as "souvenirs of Eden" make one speculate as to how long the real Oriental rubies will retain their present value.

Rubies chemically produced by the fusion of alumina are being manufactured in larger and larger numbers, both in Paris and Switzerland. Within the past few weeks uncut bottle-shaped stones, each weighing fully a hundred carats, have reached this country from Switzerland.

They would probably split up if attempts were made to "cut" them as single jewels. Each, however, could be fashioned into five or six scintillating gems, and these would be almost as attractive in appearance as the naturally-produced stones.

The best synthetic rubies, if without the deep fire of the 'pigeon-blood' rubies of Burmah, are beautiful things, and are undistinguishable, except by experts, from natural crystals. A tiara or pendant of well-cut and well-mounted Parisian or Swiss rubies on a beautiful head or neck would attract all eyes. And though its gems were produced by human agency and not by the forces of Nature, its owner could truthfully say that they were rubies.

DISCUSSES DISMISSAL OF LANSING

PARIS NEWSPAPER REFERS TO WILSON'S ATTEMPT TO DOMINATE THE SITUATION.

ADRIATIC DISPUTE

(Special to Examiner.)

PARIS, February 16. — "This man is opposed in his own country and is again trying to block the European powers," said "La Liberte.

"After brutally dismissing Secretary Lansing, President Wilson, from his proud isolation is again attempting to direct affairs on the continent of which he has no conception."

The news of Wilson's latest note was received in Paris almost simultaneously with the reports from London declaring that the council of Premiers had made substantial progress on settlement of the various questions.

The Jugo-Slav Government, however, it was said, would not accept either the London pact or the council's compromise. Advices from Belgrade as quoted in the London despatches, said the Jugo-Slav government was firm in its decision to hold out for its original contention of enforcement of President Wilson's plan for settlement of the Adriatic dispute. Coming on the heels of the despatches telling of the Presient's "Dismissal of Secretary Lansing, the report of Wilson's note created a sensation in political circles here.

Practically the entire press regarded the Lansing episode as a dismissal of the secretary and characterized it as autocratic and unjustifiable.

NOT IN AGREEMENT.

United Press.

NEW YORK, Feb 16. — Frank I Polk, acting Secretary of State to-day confirmed the announcement that the Unted States is not in agreement with the Franco-British compromises for the settlement of the Adriatic dispute. It is well known that this government is not in agreement with the British and the French proposal, said Polk, who is at the home of his mother.

"However, I know nothing about the contents of the despatch sent to the British and the French Governments, as I was not in Washington when it was forwarded."

Note From Wilson.

ROME, Feb. 16. — Reports from Paris relative to the note President Wilson has sent to the Supreme Council in which he enters objections to the compromise reached by the Allies regarding the Adriatic question, are printed in the "Messagero," which comments unfavorably upon this sudden new intervention by President Wilson. The newspaper observes that he might have expressed his point of view before the Italian-Jugo Slav qustion reached its present status.

"Does the dismissal of Lansing," the newspaper asks, "mean that Mr. Wilson has regained his health or be-

A WINDSOR DEAL.

WINDSOR, Feb. 16.—Announcement was made of the sale of the property of the Biggott Lumber Company, one of the oldest established firms in the Border Cities, to a Jackson, Michigan, syndicate, for $100,000, the site to be used for the erection of a $1,000,000 ten-storey hotel and a large block of apartment houses.

The deal is one of the largest realty transactions in the history of the Border Cities, involving, as it does, the transfer of a lot hitherto used as a lumber yard, with frontage of 105 feet on London Street West and Park Street, and 402 feet on Dougal Ave.

TO A FIVE-DOLLAR BILL.

(Chicago Tribune.)

Crinkle, crinkle, little bill;
Goodness gracious, you look ill!
Are you losing all your power?
You seem weaker hour by hour.

"Now that prices are so high,"
I'm so tired that I could die;
I just circulate all days;
No one dares put me away.

"When the evening board is set
With the fruits of father's sweat,
My small voice is hushed and still—
I am in the butcher's till.

"And no matter where I go,
People disregard me so;
I don't seem to count for much
'Mongst the profiteers and such."

Bill, take heart, your luck may change
I'll admit the times are strange;
Though you're weak, I love you still—
Crinkle, crinkle, little bill!

Strike Promises to Rival Cobalt

BIG DISCOVERY OF WEALTH IN THE FAR DISTANT YOUKON MAY BE THE GREATEST EVER DISCOVERED.

GUGGENHEIMS ARE WORKING THE CLAIMS

(Special to the Examiner)

VANCOUVER, B.C. Feb. 16—Several weeks ago in the course of a debate in the House of Commons in London a member remarked that all was by no means lost financially because a great new strike of silver that promised to rival Cobalt had been made in the far distant Yukon. Some facts regarding this discovery have just reached Vancouver. The strike occurred in the Mayo district close to Stewart River and about 200 miles southeast of Dawson. Former Governor George Black of Yukon territory who is now living in Vancouver, know the district well and is assured that the find may in reality turn out to be the greatest ever made in Canada. J. E. Binet, a native of Montreal who went to the Yukon in 1895, even before the great Placer discoveries, reached here to-day with samples which remind mining men her of the richest pockets which twenty years ago made famous the Payne and Slocan Star and other well known mines of the Slocan district of Kootney. The assays run from one hundred and fifty to fifteen hundred dollars to the ton. Binet says there are literally mountains of it. The finds have been made above timber line where the rock lies absolutely bare and ore bodies have been traced for some miles across the country. Last summer the Yukon Gold Company owned by the Guggenheims bought the most promising claims paying about $45,000 and one of the company's leading experts spent the season in the camp. They are working all this winter. At present the ore is being sent out by sleds to the banks of the Stewart River, 45 miles away, and from here will be shipped by steamer to White Horse and probably to the Anyox smelter in the spring. Mr. Binet says there are 165 miners in the district which was prospected for gold in the early days by Dawson Miners who ascended the Klondike River and crossed the divide into McQuestan Creek which is close to Mayo, the principal work is now being done on claims on King Hill, Haldane Patterson and Cameron Mountains. Practically the same kind of ore is met every where. Mr. Binet was among those coming out over the winter trail. The thermometer stood at 66 degrees below zero the morning he left Dawson From there he will go to San Francisco, then to Montreal to visit his home, for the first time in a quarter of a century.

SHARP BREAK IN THE STOCK MARKET

SLUMP IN THE GENERAL LIST—STERLING EXCHANGE.

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—There was a sharp break in some of the leading issues at the opening of the stock market to-day. The general list was irregular.

U. S. Steel opened at 98 1-2 and 98 off 1-2 to 1 point, General Motors broke four points to 238, and Mexican Petroleum 51 1-2 to 170, American Woollen opened at 127 off 1 3-4, Baldwin 109 off 1. Central Leather 78 1-8 up 1-8, Goodrich 69 off 3-8, U. R. Stores 70 1-4 off 1-8, Southern Railway 20 1-4 up 1-4, Pierce-Arrow 54 off 3-4, Republic 104 7-8 up 1-4, Crucible 200 off 3-4, Bethlehem B. 86 1-2 up 1-2, Marine Pref. 82 1-2 off 1 1-8.

Up-town traders raided the whole list during the first hour, driving U. S. Steel down 2 points, General Motors down 9, Mexican Petroleum 8, and the lower priced issues from 1 to 2 points. Controlling interests of General Motors are now in the Middle West inspecting plants, and the moment was seized upon as a propitious time for raiding all motor stocks.

The market had a fair rally early in the second hour. General Motors, after touching 233 3-4, got up to 237. Mexican Petroleum rallied 5 points, and all of the oil shares came back easily after the professional pressure was lifted.

The rally did not last long, and in the afternoon there was another raid on motors and steels. Republic Steel at its low was off 4 points from Saturday's high. Crucible, which advanced to 200 1-2 on the announcement of re-capitalisation plans, broke more than 6 points when it was learned there is no medical intention of declaring a dividend.

General Motors got below last week's low at 227 1-4, but later rallied to 245 1-2.

STERLING EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16. — Sterling exchange to-day reflected the uncertainty of foreign affairs by opening at $4.35 3-4 off 43-4 from Saturday's close. Francs opened at 14.20 per dollar off 18 centimes, and lire 18.12 off 50 centimes. Marks were $.0101.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR PETERBORO

SPECIAL MEETINGS AT MURRAY STREET CHURCH.

Mr. Editor: I am writing a few lines about the coming of Rev. G. A. Leichliter to the Murray street church for to-night and the four following nights.

I regard this as a great opportunity for our city. I have never before introduced an evangelist to my people, because I never before met one who appealed to me for this kind of service.

I have in recent weeks heard in Toronto what was called the "Three Mighty Men," Dixon, Riley and Massee, and no one of them seemed to me to reach the hearts of men as does the unique personality of this young man.

So often it happens that even a few such days as these are offered that when they are near a close, the people are asking "May we not have a few more days?" and those who are loudest in their appeals are usually the people who have neglected to be present the first evening.

This is written to say that it is positively impossible to have more than five evenings of these services and that the opening meeting is to-night, Monday, at 7.45 o'clock.

A FUTURE HOME FOR EX-KAISER

MEMBER OF DUTCH DIPLOMATIC SERVICE PASSING THROUGH CANADA.

NON-COMMITTAL

(Canadian Press.)

CALGARY, Feb. 16.—On his way to the Dutch East Indies, ostensibly to become a planter, but really, it is believed, to prepare a future home there for the ex-Kaiser Wilhelm, Count Van Tack Jranen, of the Dutch Diplomatic Service, nephew of Count Bentinck, passed through the city last night on his way West.

The only statement he would make was that he was buying a plantation, but in view of the fact that he was engaged on important missions for the Dutch Government during the war, it is believed he has been sent to buy the Kaiser's future home.

FOUR BOYS MUST ATTEND CHURCH

JUDGE HUYCKE DISPOSES OF THEFT CASE.

The case of the four boys George Panter, Charles Hamilton, James Staves and Frederick Merritt who were charged with numerous burglaries and who pleaded guilty to these charges was concluded on Saturday before His Honour Judge Huycke.

Judge Huycke enquired into the circumstances of each particular case and found out where each boy worked, what schooling he had received and what the causes were that led them into being out at nights and eventually to their departure from the straight and narrow course.

After a consultation with Crown Attorney Hatton and Chief of Police Thompson the Judge directed that each of the boys pay $20 to make restitution for missing property and to meet the cost of the proceedings and that they should report weekly to the chief so that he migh know how they were conducting themselves, and in addition Judge Huycke ordered that they should attend their respective churches at least once each Sunday. His last order was that the boys must be at home every night by nine o'clock otherwise they would be brought before him again and if their conduct had not been exemplary he would then impose the sentence which he had suspended.

Each one of the boys made a solemn promise to the judge that he would carry out to the last letter these instructions and the Chief of Police undertook to carefully keep track of the boys to see that they carry out the assurances they had given and if they do they will suffer no greater penalty than the suspended sentence and restitution which they were ordered to make.

MANITOBA ELK HERD LARGEST IN THE WORLD.

Manitoba boasts that it has the largest herd of elk in the world and one of the last two herds known to exist on the North American continent. It is to be found in the Riding Mountain Reserve, and is believed to number between 6,000 and 8,000 head.

The elk are strictly preserved under the game laws of Manitoba, and their feeding grounds are within the prescribed areas in which no guns can be carried by other than a game warden or other officer of the Crown.

ENGINEERS' STRIKE IN AUSTRALIA SHOWS NO SIGNS OF TERMINATING

(Copyright—United Press.)

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 16.—The labour and political rumpus in connection with the engineers' strike shows no sign of abating. Under the War Precautions Act, Premier Hughes attempted to isolate the strike and the strikers by ordering the banks to withhold funds, but a second announcement issued by the Premier declares that the sequestration of money applies only to official union funds and not to private banking accounts.

Premier Holman, of New South Wales, who belongs to the same political party as Mr. Hughes, has split with the latter on this question, and strongly condemns the proclamation against the engineers. Holman says that Hughes' action is an "irresponsible" autocracy and grave abuse of an authority which was only given by the Government "for the purposes of war."

Prompt Rejection of Wilson's Plan

ITALIAN QUESTION

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, Feb. 16.—Prompt rejection of President Wilson's objections to the compromise agreement by which England, France and Italy hoped to lative to the future status of the eastlative to the future status of the eastern coast of the Adriatic, is reported in the "Echo De Paris." Premiers Lloyd George and Millerand drafted the reply to the American Chief Executive and insisted Jugo-Slavia must agree to the compromise, with the alternative of seeing the Treaty of London become operative, it is said.

Mr. Wilson's charges against Italy are rejected by two Premiers, it is said by the newspaper, which declares they asserted in their reply that Italy threw all her weight into the struggle and fought for high ideals. The number of Italian dead is recalled in one section of the reply.

At the same time the Premiers' reply was sent to Washington, the Foreign Minister of Jugo Slavia was notified that the viewpoint of the British and French governments had not been altered by the seemingly unexpected action of Mr. Wilson.

Contents of Wilson's note have not been made public here. He is said, however, to have given the intimation that the United States would find it impossible to continue to concern itself in European affairs if the Allies proceeded with the settlement of the Adriatic problem without consulting the United States. It is said the President entered serious objections to the ultimatum sent to the Belgrade government on January 20, and declared it differed from the programme framed by Premiers Lloyd George and Clemenceau, with the assistance of an American representative last October.

First Class Sensation.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Feb. 16.— The resignation of Secretary of State Lansing is given great prominence in London morning papers and in view of the circumstances is treated as a first class sensation. Most of the papers editorially express the fear that the incident will have an adverse effect on the progress of America's influence in world affairs.

The Daily Telegraph says: "The affair reveals to the world clearer than any event in recent times how nearly the position of the President approaches personal sovereignty."

The Daily Chronicle said that the separation of President Wilson and State Secretary Lansing is bound to increase for the time the world's uncertainty regarding America's future action.

LABOR IS THE SCARCEST COMMODITY ON THE MARKET

Detroit Papers Carry 340 "Ads" for Men Needed for Manual Work.

DETROIT, Feb. 16.—No man need be idle in Detroit if he is able to do a day's work, and he need not be experienced at that. Common labor is the scarcest commodity in the market, and six dollars a day is offered, with but few applicants. By actual count of advertisements in daily news papers to-day, 340 men are wanted in this city for manual labor, and there are but few to be had. Bank clerks, too, are on demand, one large financial institution is advertising for messengers, currency clerks and junior clerks; but it is in the automobile industry that the demand is greatest. Help of every kind, particularly experienced mechanics, is needed.

TRAIN ARRIVES AT DESTINATION AFTER THREE WEEKS.

ST. JOHN'S, N.F., Feb. 16. — An express train on the Reid-Newfoundland Railway, a narrow gauge line, has arrived here after being three weeks on the way across the island from Port Au Barques. The train was scheduled to make the 546-mile run in 29 hours. Several storms were encountered, and it was snowed in frequently.

Passengers reported that at some exposed points the snow drifted to a height of 20 feet. They were on scanty rations most of the time, with fish as the principal food.

The perils of cross-country travel have increased so much that it was said to-day the service probably would be suspended until the storm season passed, passengers being sent by steamer along the southern coast from Port Au Barques to St. John's.

NO CLOTHING TO COVER NAKEDNESS

Destitute Jewish Children of Eastern Europe Suffer Terribly From the Cold.

The destitute Jewish children of Eastern Europe are almost entirely without clothing to protect them from the ravages of the winter, according to Samuel Charney, a Jewish writer and critic of Vilna, Poland, who has recently arrived in New York.

"It is not a question of their being without shoes, or without underwear, or without any one thing," he reported. "It is a question of their being altogether without clothing to cover their nakedness, and to protect them from the cold. There is almost a total lack of linen, cotton or woolen clothing in Eastern Europe, and what there is is sold at a prohibitive price. The rags that the poverty-stricken Jews have worn all through the war are falling from them. The clothing problem is almost a greater issue than the food problem to-day.

"The help already given by the Joint Distribution Committee of Jewish Funds, the Red Cross, and the Canadian and American Relief Administration is all that has kept our race alive this long in Eastern Europe. I was an eye-witness to the suffering there and can say that except for America they would all be dead now, except a very few. Only America can keep them alive through the winter that confronts them now. There is almost no wood in Poland, even for those who have the money to buy it, and thousands of refugees and families whose homes have been destroyed are living almost on the street. Almost none of them have sufficient clothing."

M. Charney, who was the editor of a Jewish paper in Vilna, came to America with his family by means of a special passport which was secured for him by Samuel Gompers and endorsed by such prominent Jews as Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Oscar Straus, and Nathan Straus. He was thrown into prison in Vilna along with many other prominent Jews of Vilna. Four days later he was released and went with his wife and two small children to Paris, from where he sailed for America.

SIX MILLION JEWS HAVE LITTLE FOOD

Heart-Rending Stories of Suffering and Death Come From Eastern Europe.

The cans in which oil was sent to the destitute Jews of Poland are being turned to still another use, according to reports brought back to the Canadian Jewish War Relief Committee by relief workers abroad.

For several months these cans have been serving in a number of lightning-change capacities, ranging from chocolate containers to sheet-iron stoves. Now that the epidemic of typhus is such a menace in Poland, where there are 100,000 cases, and throughout Eastern Europe, the old cans serve as portable bath tubs, and Canadian Jewish relief workers and Red Cross nurses are striving to combat the dread disease with cleanliness. All through the stricken lands of Eastern Europe little Jewish children are receiving their daily baths in these old oil cans.

Conservation is whittled to a fine point of necessity in these countries, where 6,000,000 Jews are at the point of starvation, and even the damaged cans are not allowed to go to waste. They are used to patch holes in the roofs and walls of the devastated houses. Cold is as much of a problem as disease in Eastern Europe this winter, since the Jewish population, almost without exception, is clad in rags, and the wretched places in which so many of them live are slight protection against the weather.

FIREMEN REFUSE TO DROP AFFILIATION

ST. CATHARINES, Feb. 16.—The firemen's union of this city refused to drop affiliation with the International Association of Fire Fighters, as ordered by the city council, but consents to withdraw from connection with the trades and labor council of this city. Because the firemen formed a union their applications for increased salaries have not been dealt with by the council.

A special committee will deal with the matter now. It is claimed that the international organization is a non-strike association.

HEAVY MEAT EATERS HAVE SLOW KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if you feel Backachy or have Bladder trouble.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatisms, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

HAMILTON, Feb. 16.—Judge Snider, who is investigating charges of mistreatment of returned soldiers in the Hospital for the Insane here, said to-day that evidence had been produced showing that there were only thirty nurses, though fifty were needed. Among the complaints heard was that of a soldier's widow, whose husband was buried from the institution without any notice of his death having been given to her.

SPECIAL SERVICE GEORGE STREET METHODIST CHURCH

FEBRUARY 29TH WILL BE GO-TO-CHURCH SUNDAY.

In recognition of the unqualified success of the United Methodist Campaign, and with particular reference to George street, Rev. A. J. Thomas held a Thanksgiving service yesterday morning which proved an inspiration to a goodly congregation.

Mr. Thomas in his opening remarks referred to the splendid efforts of those who had given their services in canvassing and the generous response of the congregation. Figures were given which, while not complete, showed that at least $18,000 had been raised on an objective of $11,000.

The 29th Chapter of 1st Chronicles was taken as the text, wherein David the king gave thanks to God for the response of the people in giving of their wealth for the preparation of the temple, which was to be completed by Solomon. "It would be a calamity to boast," said Mr. Thomas, "but there is reason to be gratified and thankful. In all the contributions a spirit of willingness was manifested, even to self sacrifice in many cases." It showed that the people realized the seriousness of the situation and the need, and were willing to give for the cause of Jesus Christ.

This is a time of Thanksgiving to God for several reasons: Because He has given us the honor of working with Him. Because He has given us material things to give, and because He has touched the people by His spirit. "Victory has been God's, not ours," Mr. Thomas said.

This is a time for the re-dedication of ourselves for the work of the Kingdom of Jesus Christ. It is the psychological moment for Methodism and the Christian church. We must put into the church our best.

A Go-to-Church Sunday, February 29.

Sunday, February 29th will be a Go-to-church Sunday at George street. It is the only time in a generation when Sunday falls on the 29th, so the motto for the day will be "An Extra Day for God." On that day will begin three weeks' special evangelistic services. During the last two weeks the Rev. W. E. Millison, Assistant Field Secretary of the Evangelism and Social Service Department of the Methodist Church, will assist the pastor. A splendid time of inspiration and blessing is expected.

ANGLICANS ARE GOING OVER TOP

ARCHDEACON J. C. DAVIDSON IS IMPRESSED WITH THE RESULTS.

Archdeacon Davidson, in an interview with The Examiner this morning, said that he was forced to stay in the city in connection with his various duties at St. John's Church, but expects to leave again in a few days to continue his work in connection with the Forward Movement.

During his late tour, Archdeacon Davidson was instrumental in securing parochial objectives of between $70,000 and $80,000, of which 100 per cent. is confidently expected, as many places have already reported their objectives greatly exceeded.

This morning a very encouraging report came in from Cobourg, which had been working for a $4,000 objective, and already has collected over $5,750, among which is one subscription of $1,000. Lindsay, which also had an objective of $4,000, has reached $6,000 in her canvass. Blackstock reports $800 out of an objective of $1,000. The village of Bradford, which with the surrounding country in a fine spirit chose the big objective of $3,000, reports this morning $2,600 subscribed. Few places have proportionately done better.

Peterborough up to Saturday night had subscribed $15,500 of its objective of $20,000, and between this splendid amount and Cobourg's subscription, it is confidently expected that the Deanery of Northumberland and Peterborough will easily reach its objective of $30,000.

Archdeacon Davidson said that the country districts were doing exceedingly well, and that everything pointed to the objectives, which at first seemed unattainable, being passed by the end of this week, the time limit having been extended to next Saturday on account of the ranks of the canvassers being decimated by the influenza epidemic.

This afternoon two more reports came in—one from Orillia reporting $5,340 subscribed on an objective of $6,000, and one from Grafton, reporting $667 subscribed on an objective of $450.

GALT BOARD OF TRADE HAS HOUSING SCHEME

WILL BUILD HOUSES FOR SALE OR RENTAL UNDER STATUTE OF 1914.

GALT, Feb. 16.—While Galt has a housing commission appointed to take advantage of the Government loan as provided by the Hearst Government, which, however, only permits erection of houses for sale, the Board of Trade decided to take action whereby houses can be built for either sale or rental, when it decided to organise a company under the Housing Act of 1914, capitalised at $100,000, to buy land in or near the city and erect homes.

With the company capitalised at $100,000, $15,000 stock in cash will have to be raised, and the balance realised by issue of bonds or securities guaranteed by the municipality. Profits of the company are limited to 6 per cent., and on the board of directors the city is entitled to representation. The scheme met with the hearty approval of manufacturers and business men.

JUDGMENT FOR THE PLAINTIFF

His Honor Judge Rogers of Cobourg, gave judgment for $60.00, in favor of B. F. Carley, C.P.R. agent at Cavan, against W. I. Collins, of Millbrook, for damages occasioned Mr. Carley's automoble by a collision on the Millbrook and Cavan road last summer.

This case was tried by His Honor Judge Rogers at the last Millbrook Division Court, and the full amount of the Plaintiff's claim against Mr. Collins was allowed.

Mr. G. N. Gordon of Peterboro appeared for Mr. Carley, and Mr. D. H. Chisholm of Port Hope, appeared for Mr. W. I. Collins.

Mr. Carley was also allowed his costs and witness fees against the defendant.

IF THIN AND NERVOUS TRY BITRO-PHOSPHATE

While excessive thinness might be attributed to various and subtle causes in different individuals, it is a well-known fact that the lack of phosphorous in the human system is very largely responsible for this condition.

It seems to be well established that this deficiency in phosphorous may now be met by the use of Bitro-Phosphate, which can be obtained from any good druggist in convenient tablet form.

In many instances the assimilation of this phosphate by the nerve tissue soon produces a welcome change—nerve tension disappears, vigor and strength replace weakness and lack of energy and the whole body loses its ugly hollows and abrupt angles, becoming enveloped in a glow of perfect health and beauty and the will and strength to be up and doing.

CAUTION:—White Bitro-Phosphate is unsurpassed for the relief of nervousness, general debility, etc., those taking it who do not desire to put on flesh should use extra care in avoiding fat-producing foods.

DRIVE AS IF THE OTHER WAS AN IDIOT.

The Halifax Automobile Association recently sent out a bulletin that contains some very very good advice under the caption, "Safety First and Always." It follows:

"Drive as if the other fellow was a born idiot."

"Drive as if all children and most pedestrians were bent on suicide beneath your wheels."

"Drive as if every hill had a chasm at the bottom."

"Drive as if every curve was a highwayman, a Bengal tiger and a stone wall.

"Examine your car before you start—not after you stop—and you won't have accidents."

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured by B.B.B.

Rheumatism is a constitutional disease, caused by the uric acid in the blood. It manifests itself by pain and lameness attacking the muscles and joints of the body, which often swell and become hot and inflamed.

Anyone who has suffered months after months, and perhaps year after year, with rheumatism, and who has tried remedy after remedy in the hope of relief, and without success, should not give up hope.

Burdock Blood Bitters, by invigorating the digestive organs and eliminating the uric acid from the system, will give prompt and permanent relief.

Mrs. D. Barry, Purlbrook, Ont., writes:—"I feel it my duty to let you know of the great benefit my husband derived from using your Burdock Blood Bitters. He had been suffering for the past two years with inflammatory rehumatism. He tried many medicines but got no better. A friend advised him to take B. B. B. He did so, and after taking five bottles he felt like a new man, and was able to go to work the same as ever."

Burdock Blood Bitters has been on the market for over 40 years. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

FIRST PROHIBITION DEATH.

NEW YORK.—Dr. John Riegelman, medical examiner of Bronx County, says it's the first death due to prohibition.

In any case, substitution of milk and cider for beer, as a solvent for corned beef and cabbage did it. Dr. Riegelman says the beer wouldn't have done it.

The adventurous soul who effected the substitution and subsequent acute indigestion was Maitland Corson, aged forty-three, living at No. 461 East One Hundred and Eighty-third Street. Two hours after his milk and cider mixture he was dead.

You'd startle your tailor if, when you wanted a suit of clothes, you asked him to submit a bid in competition with a dozen other tailors.

"Why," he would say, "this is ridiculous. This man knows what kind of a suit of clothes I give him. He knows he can depend on the quality of the material, the make, the fit. He knows me, and has proved my work. Some fellow around the corner may underbid me—but what will he deliver?"

You don't buy tailoring that way. No man does. You know your tailor you rely on him, you trust him, you give him your work just as long as he turns out good work at prices that are fair.

Do you buy your printing as intelligently? Do you make it your business TO FIND A GOOD PRINTER as you do a good tailor, and then rely on his experience, his ability and his judgment?

Men who do, get good printing. Men who buy printing here and there, wherever the price is shaved closest, are the ones who have printing worries

BUY IN CANADA.

The "Buy in Canada" movement is spreading. Not only have thirty municipalities, of which Peterborough is one, responded to the appeal of the Canadian Reconstruction Association that all public supplies should be purchased from Canadian factories when they can be secured at reasonable prices, but the Council of Women of St. John's has passed a resolution calling upon all its federated societies to buy in Canada. The facts set forth by the Reconstruction Association have created a deep impression, especially the statement that exchange is costing the people of Canada more than $60,000,000 a year. The conclusion reached that Canada must attain a greater measure of economic independence is self evidence as is the necessity for developing to its greatest possible extent a demand for goods that are made in Canada. The result of this, of course, would be an industrial expansion throughout the Dominion, increased production and steady and profitable employment.

WHAT IT SAVES.

It is evident that the economic saving from a national adoption of daylight saving, is by no means the least important feature of the system. Leaning on one side the benefits that are secured from a health standpoint from the extra hour of sunlight after the day's work is over, there is a direct dollars and cents value in the new time, judging by the action of France in putting daylight saving into force this year for a period of six months. France has given the method a thorough testing and its success has been demonstrated beyond the shadow of a doubt. During the six months of daylight saving this year it is expected that France will, in addition to saving 500,000 tons of coal, cut her electrical bills in two and affect a big saving in gas as well.

While it is hopeless to expect that the opposition of the agricultural interests to daylight saving can be surmounted in Canada and a national system adopted, yet the towns and cities can follow the same course as they did last year and institute daylight saving on their own account. There are hundreds of friends of the new time in Peterboro who should lose no opportunity of impressing upon the members of the City Council that they want daylight saving here during the summer months. And now is the time to do it.

THE SPEED LIMIT.

A short time ago the Ontario Safety League issued a bulletin calling attention to the increased number of accidents that have taken place since the automobile speed limit was raised last year, and advising a return to the former limit. It is significant that Mr. Gorge H. Gooderham, ex-M.P.P., the man who moved in the Legislature that the legal speed limit in cities and towns be increased from 15 to 20 miles an hour, has found it necessary to issue a warning to motorists. Mr. Gooderham has discovered, as was pointed out in this paper when the change was made, that many drivers who had been accustomed to drive at 20 miles an hour when the limit was 15, continue to travel five miles an hour faster than the present limit of 20 miles. This is true in Peterboro as it is true everywhere else where there are motor cars and drivers anxious to take chances. The question of speeding is very likely to come up in the next session of the Legislature and a revision of the traffic rules reducing the speed of cars within the limits of towns and cities would not be a surprising development.

NEW CANADIANS.

According to Commissioner Lamb of the Salvation Army, there is likely to be a marked increased in the number of young men from the British Isles desirous of emigratink to Canada and other of the overseas Dominion. Young fellows who have gone through the war and grown accustomed to life in the open, are looking across the seas to Canada, anxious to try their hand at farming or ranching. Such men, it might be expected, would be welcome in the country, and yet the Commissioner states that there has been a tendency on the part of the Canadian authorities in London to discourage these men from going to Canada, even though they had work to go to and friends to receive them. That is, when these men applied for free passages under the British Government scheme for granting free passages to discharged servicemen, and the British officials referred these to the Canadian Emigration Office for approval, the Canadian officials promptly turned the applications of the men down, and they were prevented from getting what they were justly entitled to as men who had done their bit for the Empire. But nevertheless by paying their own fares they were enabled to get away just the same, to arrive in Canada 100 dollars or so out of pocket, remarking that it must be "some" Government that so arranged matters.

"I can say this," says Commissioner Lamb, "that I can conceive of nothing more likely to make the name of Canada unpopular with British exservicemen in the old country, especially after all they had been told about the glorious independence and freedom which pervaded the Dominion. As one man said to me recently, 'we have long been accustomed to red tape in this country, but the Canadian product seems to be even ranker than the home-grown variety.' It seems to me there will have to be some 'let up' in the restrictions against British servicemen, otherwise there will be serious heart burnings in various quarters where, hitherto, there has always been a kindly feeling towards Canada. Of course we know it is necessary that the interests of the returned Canadians should be protected, and undesirables excluded, but it seems to me that this idea has been stretched beyond reasonable limits.

IN YE OLDEN DAYS.

People sometimes wonder what young folk and old used to do to amuse themselves in the days when there were no movies and few theatres and an almost entire absence of the more or less artificial recreations which serve to pass the time nowadays. Probably the world enjoyed itself just as thoroughly then as now. At any rate, there were a multitude of customs, some peculiar to certain localities and others widespread, which involved revels and games and various celebrations from time to time. To most Canadians, for instance, it means very little that next Tuesday is "Shrove Tuesday," and as for "Collop Monday," which precedes it, the majority have not even heard of that. In the Old Land it was celebrated much as Hollowe'en is celebrated here. But instead of going to the doors and crying "shell out" the small boys went from place to place singing:

"Shrovetide is nigh at hand,
And I become a-shroving.
Pray, dame, something,
An apple or a dumpling."

The eating of collops of salted meat and eggs gave the day its name, but it has not nearly the place in the history of festivals which is accorded to Shrove Tuesday, which has long been known as "pancake day." "As fit as a pancake for Shrove Tuesday," says a clown in "All's Well That Ends Well," and the custom was not only to eat pancakes, but to have contests at flipping them. The pancake bell was supposed to ring at eleven o'clock in the morning, but the bell-ringer could easily be bribed to ring it at a much earlier hour — even as modern Parliaments sometimes declare that the hour of automatic adjournment has come although the clock says otherwise. The first pancake was supposed to be awarded to the greatest lie-abed in the party, but as no one was read to admit the title, it generally went uneaten.

In the various schools the day was celebrated with some ceremony. At Westminster a pancake was cooked with much care and thrown among the boys of the upper school, the one securing it being entitled to carry it to the deanery and demand a guinea. At Bromfield in Cumberland the boys of the free school had by usage the right to bar out the master on Shrove Tuesday, and, if they were able to keep him out, to extort sundry concessions from him in the way of games.

But if anybody imagines that the "good old days" were always good, it is only necessary to refer to the "throwing at cocks" which was a shrovetide feature in many grammar schools. The poor cock was tied down and the lads took turns throwing a broomstick at it until it was dead. No school would tolerate that sort of cruelty to-day. Kindness toward dumb creatures is a doctrine which has made great strides of recent years.—Star Weekly.

OPPORTUNITY.

Opportunity never comes in silks and satins and seldom is it heralded with the blowing of horns or led by a brass band. It usually sneaks up to us when we are not expecting it.

Opportunity stands at our side from morning until night. Every time there is work to be done which no one else wants to do, opportunity beckons us to step up and embrace her, because it is here that the first step towards leadership is taken.

The poet that wrote in his verse that opportunity knocks but once did the world a tremendous damage.

Every time a person does you an injustice you are face to face with opportunity, glorious opportunity to prove to yourself and to the world how big you are by applying the Golden Rule, forgiving and forgetting.

Every time you have the chance to get the better of your fellow men in a business deal you are face to face with opportunity—opportunity to increase your own self respect, and gain the confidence of your fellowmen by doing the unusual thing, by not taking advantage of that chance.

It makes no difference what may be your calling in life, or how lowly the work you are doing at present, you have a glorious opportunity to raise yourself into more important work and more profitable work, by the simple process of performing more service and better service than you are actually paid to perform.

You know where your neighbor keeps his family skeleton. You could drag it out and humiliate him. What a wonderful opportunity stands at your side every moment and bids you be big and great enough to let that skeleton remain undisturbed.

The world says mean things about you. What a wonderful opportunity you have to prove the world a liar by your good conduct, your kindness towards your neighbors, your fair dealings in business, your splendid example of forgiving and forgetting.

Opportunity is always and everywhere beckoning to you to embrace her. When you are alone she stands by your side and bids you to impress upon your own heart and mind — through the principle of auto-suggestion — that you are an honourable, sympathetic, just, kind, progressive citizen, and that you are enjoying happiness by helping your fellow-men find it.

What greater opportunity than this could one want?

WHERE BROTHER JONES GOT OFF

A bishop of the African Methodist Episcopal Church in Tennessee was entertaining a number of his preachers at a chicken supper, following the holding of the annual conference.

Except one very small and very black presiding elder all the guests were of an impressive size and bearing. In serving the plates, the host overlooked the little man. Presently the time came for replenishing the plates, and now the bishop saw the small figure, wedged in behind two wide, broadclothed forms.

"Brothah Jones," he inquired in his best pulpit voice, "will you have moah chicken?"

"Moah?" shrilled Brother Jones indignantly — "Moah? Huh. I ain't never had some yit!"

Few People Know This

Large doses of pills for the liver are not as efficient as small doses.

The big dose purges its way through the system fast, but does not cleanse thoroughly.

The small dose (if right) acts gently on the liver, and gives it just the slight help it needs to do its own work, and do it well.

Take one pill regularly, until you know you are all right.

SANDRA THE JEALOUS

BY JANE PHELPS

AN UNPPLESANT SURPRISE AWAITS SANDRA

CHAPTER XLVII.

Rose gushed abominably, when Barrett called for us. She was so effusive in her thanks, taking all the honor of the invitation to herself in a way that really mortified and annoyed me.

Barrett complimented me, looking unutterable things with his eyes, then I turned and said:

"If I may be so bold upon short acquaintance, may I tell you also how charming you look, Miss Grandon?"

"Thank you, a woman is always delighted to be told she is charming," Rose replied, drooping a little curtsy, and smiling at him in what she probably supposed was an irresistable manner. For a moment I felt almost sorry I had asked Rose to visit me. Then I remembered that were she not there I would not be able to go out with Barrett Edmonds.

We laughed and chatted all the way to the theatre and beween the acts. Barrett never left us, although the men all about seemed scarcely able to wait to go out the moment the curtain rang down. Everett never did so, and it pleased me that Barrett remained with us.

The play was delightful, a society drama full of laughs. I enjoyed every minute of it. Barrett sat between us, and was perfectly impartial in his attentions. I saw several people I knew, who bowed to me.

"What lovely looking people you know," Rose said to me.

"That was Mrs. Sloane. A friend of Mr. Edmonds also," I explained. "I know she is wondering who you are."

"She is beautifully dressed."

"Yes, she is one of the best dressed women I know. Everett admires her taste."

"Did you ever see such a devoted wife?" Rose asked, as she turned to Barrett. "If her husband admires anything it is perfectly all right with Sandra."

"She certainly is a devoted wife. And Mr. Graham has exquisite taste," he replied with a meaning glance at me—a glance which I could not fail to interpret, although it had passed over Rose's head.

After the play Barrett urged us to go to supper. I refused although Rose looked pleadingly at me, and remarked:

"It is so late we might as well stay out a little later." The play had been a long one, and it was nearly midnight.

"I say go home." I tried to speak lightly. I wanted terribly to go to supper with Barrett, but something held me back. Rose looked daggers at me, but I paid no attention. She had no husband to please and I did.

"Sandra is getting to be such a prim," she told Barrett as we drove home. "Before she was married she was ready for anything. Really, she was the worst one of all. She seems afraid to stir now unless it's terribly conventional. I can't understand the change in her."

"I can. She is in a different environment. In a place where one has always lived and where everyone knows you, you can do almost anything you please, sure that you will not be misunderstood. But among strangers, many of them critical, you have to be more careful."

It was a long speech for Barrett, and a more serious one than I ever had heard him make. It had the effect of making me uneasy, almost wishing I had not gone to the theatre with him—something he did not intend, I am sure.

"It must be an awful bore to be always thinking what people are going to say," Rose returned rather pettishly. "I would hate to be constantly thinking I must 'watch my step'." Rose was inclined to be a bit slangy.

We were at home by this time, and I was rather glad. The conversation had veered into a channel not conducive to my peace of mind. Barrett promised to call in a day or two, then left us at the door. I walked in, Rose following.

"May I ask where you have been until this time of night?" Everett stood glowering at me as he put the question, ignoring Rose entirely.

WILL RESIDE IN PETERBORO

A PRESENTATION TO MR. AND MRS. BATTEER.

The following presentation was made to Mr. and Mrs. Batteer:

North Monaghan,
February, 16th, 1920.

To Mr. and Mrs. David Batteer.

It was with feelings of deep regret that we, your friends and neighbours learned that it was your intention to leave the locality in which so many years of your life have been spent, and take up residence in Peterborough.

During the twenty-five years that many of us have been associated with you, we have learned to appreciate your many good qualities, and we realize that your going means a gap in our circle, that will be impossible to fill. We trust that you will have many years of happiness in the city to which you are going, and that you will sometimes think of the people you have left in North Monaghan.

As a token of our regard and esteem for you, we ask you to accept these gifts, which we trust will serve to remind you of the years you spent among us.

Keep nuts cold to prevent them becoming rancid.

WATCH YOUR GUMS—BLEEDING A SIGN OF TROUBLE

Medical science knows how serious is the sign of bleeding gums. For it knows that tender and bleeding gums are the fore-runners of Pyorrhea, that dread disease which afflicts four out of five people over forty.

If the disease is unchecked, the gum-line recedes, the teeth decay, loosen and fall out, or must be extracted to rid the system of the Pyorrhea poisons generated at their base—poisons which seep into the system and wreck the health. They cause rheumatism, nervous disorders, anaemia, and many other ills.

To avoid Pyorrhea, visit your dentist often for tooth and gum inspection, and use Forhan's For the Gums. Forhan's For the Gums will prevent Pyorrhea or check its progress, if used in time and used consistently. Ordinary dentifrices cannot do this. Forhan's keeps the gums firm and healthy—the teeth white and clean. Start using it today. If gum-shrinkage has already set in, use Forhan's according to directions and consult your dentist immediately for special treatment.

35c and 60c tubes in Canada and U. S. If your druggist cannot supply you send to us direct and we will mail tube postpaid.

SPLENDID YEAR FOR LONDON LIFE

PROFIT PAYMENTS EXCEED ESTIMATES—BUSINESS SHOWS RAPID EXPANSION.

That life insurance is regarded by the public in the most favourable light is clearly indicated by the reports of all the insurance companies for last year. That Canadians may feel proud of the record made by the life insurance institutions is fully justified by the way in which the very heavy burdens of the war and epidemic have been borne.

No company, however, has probably made a more favourable impression in this respect than the London Life Insurance Company, of London, Canada. It has not only been able to meet the pressure of the extra losses of the last few years, but has been able to maintain a very high scale of profit distributions to policyholders, and more creditable still, has paid and is paying in profit distributions amounts greatly in excess of the estimates published when the present rates were first adopted in 1900. The example published in Saturday's issue will be a revelation to those who have always supposed that life insurance estimates were invariably higher than the actual results. Judged, however, from the viewpoint of 1900 the estimates were undoubtedly reasonable, but on account of the greatly improved rate of interest earned since then and other favourable conditions, aside from the war strain, the actual results the company is paying are quite as reasonable.

In view of the care with which policyholders' interests are conserved, it is not surprising to see the remarkable growth shown in the volume of business transacted. The business in force in 1919 is two and a half times the amount in force at the opening of the war and more than five times the amount in force ten years ago. The other features of the Company's business have shown similar progress, and it is quite evident that this progressiveness, combined as it is with such a solid financial position, means an expansion of the Company's usefulness in the future such as will be most gratifying to all interested in its affairs.

WAR WORDS FROM FRANCE.

The war has added many French words to current English use, and the number of them continues a process that goes back to the Norman French. The word "war," itself, is of Norman-French origin, and so also did a long list of martial terms originate with the French, came over into England, and became anglicized, among them, "battle," "assault," "siege," "standard," "banner," "armor," "lance," "bayonet," "fortress," and "tower." From France came originally the terminology that identifies the separate parts of a British army, the "company," "brigade," "division" and "corps," as well as the officers, "general," "colonel," "major," "captain," and "lieutenant." France developed the art, or as we might now say, the machinery of war earlier than the English, but it is rather surprising to realize how many centuries the terminology has been in use.

Children Cry for Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

What is CASTORIA?

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. DRESSMAKER SAVED FROM OPERATION

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in Time.

Ithaca, N.Y.—"Three years ago I suffered from pains in my right side, so severe that I could not raise my feet from the floor. Pains would shoot down my limbs and through my back, and the doctor said I had an abscess. I was in bed two weeks with an icebag on my side and expected any day that I might have to go to a hospital for an operation. A friend came to see me and told me of your wonderful medicine—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I began taking it, and after taking six bottles I feel well and strong, do my own work and do dressmaking for others. I cannot speak too highly of your medicine and recommend it to others who suffer with female trouble. It is a Godsend to ailing women, and you may use my name at any time."—Mrs. PERMILLA HULSIZER, 218 E. Fall St., Ithaca, N.Y.

Women who suffer from any such ailments should not fail to try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

CANADA'S STATUS

(Canadian Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.— The New York Globe under a heading, "Canada is Right," said editorially on Saturday:

"Most interested Americans will be in hearty sympathy with the protest of the Canadian government against the acceptance of any reservations that would deprive Canada of her vote and full standing in the League. Our interest, as well as our sense of justice should lead us to give our hearty assent, for even those who are blind with hatred of England ought to see that practically independent Canada, with a vote and discretion of her own is a safer neighbor than one that gets dust in its eye whenever a whiff of wind blows along Downing street.

Interests of the United States in the League will be amply protected by the provision which England and her Dominions are quite willing to endorse that no member of the British Empire shall vote in any result in which the Empire or any of its members is a party. On other matters the colonies are as likely to vote with the United States as against her, or if a battle of votes were attempted we can rally to our support the votes of Cuba, Haiti, Honduras, Nicaragua and Panama, which we can control as easily as England can control the votes of Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and India."

KITCHENER FACES A SERIOUS GAS FAMINE.

COAL IS GONE.

KITCHENER, Feb. 16.—Kitchener is face to face with a gas famine as a result of the depletion of the coal pile. The local Light Commission announced that there was only four days' supply of coal on hand, with nothing in sigt. It is alleged that the supply ordered for the Commission, a part of which was en route, has been seized by the railroads.

Unless relief can be secured promptly Kitchener's homes will be without gas for cooking, and as many of the homes depend on gas exclusively, a serious situation is expected.

CLERK HAS "HIGH LIFE" ON SWINDLED MONEY.

PARIS, Feb. 16.—No less than $30,000 is said to be the sum swindled from his employer, a Paris manufacturer, by Robert Foyollet, a young clerk, whom the police have now arrested.

During the past four months this precocious and clever swindler, who is only 17 years old, has appropriated a number of cheques, has cashed them, and, with girls and friends of his own age, has lived a most extravagant life. He invited his friends to the most expensive Parisian restaurants, spending no less than $20 a head for meals.

He has admitted that he never drank anything but champagne at meals during the four months, while he spent $7,210 on taxi-cabs and automobiles he was in the habit of hiring for the night.

He has spent $30,000 in all, and had but a few hundred francs left when arrested.

Y.W.C.A. NOTES

Several events at the Young Women's Christian Association this week call for special attention. No one should forget the Camper's Concert on Tuesday evening, when a good musical programme will be given and a little play will be put on.

Wednesday evening will see the beginning of a Lenten Bible Study course taking up the life of Christ. This course will last until Easter time and should be most helpful. On Friday night His Honor Judge Huyske will give the last of this series of lectures, on "Municipal Affairs". This is a lecture that no thinking person can afford to miss.

In addition to the regular gymnasium classes, the following are the activities for the week:

Tuesday 6.00 — Athena Club Supper; 6.45—Athena Club Gymnasium; 7.30 —Conversational French; 8.15 Camper's Concert.

Wednesday 7.00—Lenten Bible Study; 8.00—Merry Maid's Club.

Thursday 7.30—Beginner's French.

Friday 7.15—Story-telling Circle; 8.00—Lecture, Judge Huycke.

PROGRAMME FOR Y.W.C.A. CONCERT

The programme for the concert to be given by the Camper's League in the gymnasium of the Young Women's Christian Association to-morrow night promises to be a good one. Not only should it bring pleasure to a large number of men and women, but it will also bring, it is hoped, sufficient funds to buy a victrola for the summer camp.

The following is the programme:

Vocal Solo—Miss F. Scott.
Reading—Miss Hazel Davidson.
Vocal Solo—Mr. M. Park.
Piano Solo—Miss Iris Edwards.

BROWNING'S WALKS.

(William Sharp, in "Life of Robert Browning.)

In his early years Browning had always a great liking for walking in the dark At Camberwell he was wont to carry this love to the point of losing many a night's repose. There was, in particular, a wood near Dulwich whither he was wont to go. There he would walk swiftly and eagerly along the solitary and lightless byways, finding a potent stimulus to imaginative thought in the happy isolation thus enjoyed, with all the concurrent delights of natural things, the wind moving through the tree branches, the drifting of poignant fragrances, even in winter-tide, from herb and sappy bark, imperceptible almost even by the alertest sense in the day's manifold detachments At this time too, he composed much in the open air. This he rarely, if ever, did in later life. Not only many portions of "Paracelsus," but several scenes in "Stafford," were enacted in these midnight silences of the Dulwich Woodland. Here, too, as the poet once declared, he came to know the serene beauty of dawn; for every now and again, after having read late, or written long, he would steal quietly from the house and walk till the morning twilight graded to the pearl and amber of the new day.

SALT UP 5 PER CENT.

BUT THE ADVANCE MAY NOT REACH CONSUMERS.

WINDSOR, Feb. 16.—An advance in price to the wholesalers of 5 per. cent. on the cost of salt was announced by the Canadian Salt Company of Windsor, the largest concern of its kind in Canada, which practically controls the salt industry in the Dominion. Heavy discount of Canadian money in the United States, where the cartons in which the salt is packed are purchased, is given as the cause of the increase.

For once, however, the consumer will not suffer, for officials of the salt company to-day declared it probable that the manufacturers, wholesalers, and retailers would absorb the difference in price.

Voice Of The People

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir—Will you kindly allow me space in your valuable paper to voice my opinion on the condition of our sidewalks in the city. I notice that some of our citizens take interest enough in our sidewalks to keep it clear of snow in front of there house, and others don't care one little bit about the snow in front of there house. Now, Mr. Editor, if our City Council would face the issue as it stands before us, and pass a bylaw compelling every citizen to keep clear the sidewalk in front of their house, I think that would be better for everyone; their would be no chance for anyone to complain and I think that it would be a step towards a better city. We need our sidewalks kept clean. The snowplough is all right to open up a passage through the snow especially when we have a storm at night and our citizens have to plod through the snow to get to there work or business. The snow plough is all right for the purpose that it is made for.

Now, Mr. Editor, I don't think it would be a hardship to any citizen to keep his or her walk clear. In the city of Toronto they have a bylaw to that effect, and I think myself that if it is good for Toronto it is good for Peterboro, and especially our aged citizens who are infirm; one in particular. That is Blind Willie, who has to find his way in the dark.

Wake up you citizens, think of your neighbors as well as yourself and do not let the snow shovel rust away in the wood shed. It was made for a purpose. Take advantage and use it for such. Thanking you. Mr. Edtor again, I remain your truly.

F. T. Tuggey.

Editor of The Examiner.

Peterborough, 10th February, 1920.

Sir,—I've noticed quite a lot of reading in your paper this last few days in reference to the C. G. E. fixed assessment at $150,000. I see by your editorial that you are agreed it's a good thing for the city, but I'm not so sure that you are quite correct in saying it is to the satisfaction of the citizens generally. But I hope the people will vote on this measure after having carefully discussed it, and viewed it from all points.

The wage roll of a plant is nothing to go by when you consider the amount of work turned out and the enormous profit made. Could the C. G. E. get the same amount of cheap labour anywhere else in Canada as they get in Peterborough? I doubt it very much as 32½ cents an hour is a very small wage; and that is the gate wage this last three months for unskilled men. And whether the people vote for or against this measure, the C. G. E. will no doubt still put up their extension. It's to their own interest to do so, and not the city's interest, so much. They know what labour in this city is.

It's time the Ontario Government stopped this bartering for factories, and let the factories settle where it suits them. Why should the people have to pay the taxes of these large concerns? If they paid wages big enough, it would not be so bad, but when they pay such small wages and then expect the people to pay their taxes for them, that's expecting too much.

Our Labour representative should have a Bill drawn up as speedily as possible to stop this bartering of factories of all kinds, because the working men are hit, no matter where they eventually settle, and it's a Provincial measure and not a town or city measure, to have it stopped. No wonder labour is so unrestful, and this is one of the first things to be done to get the co-operation of the master and man. I hope our Labour representative will read this letter.

As for the C. G. E. taking their foundry to Montreal, because Peterborough didn't give them what they wanted, rather let it be said that it's because the moulders have a strong union; and it doesn't matter where the factory is, they have to pay union wages.

Surely a factory like the C. G. E., that can make a profit of $2,000,000 in one year, can at least pay their share of taxes. Who gets that $2,000,000 profit? To whom does at least half of it rightly belong? Why, the people—for taxes and wages. If the city does grant this assessment, they should at least have power to fix a minimum wage—which, at the present cost of living, should not be less than 40 cents per hour.

How can a man feed and clothe his family with less? Let any right-minded Christian man try it. How could the C. G. E. directors do on such a cheque for three months? It's not fair to the nation or the city, which as hopes of raising a healthy population, but instead of this, we will in a few years have a nation of weaklings, and as in older countries, our slums. What causes slums? Overcrowding, and people must overcrowd to live on this low wage, or else run up bills with the storekeeper, that they can never hope to pay; so that the storekeeper is also a loser

We want factories, but we want factories that pay their men decent wages, and the Council should have power to fix a minimum wage, if it has power to exempt factories from their full share of taxes.

We hear a lot of the constructive co-operation of the employer and the employee. How can this be brought about when wages are so low? There is always that discontent at the bottom, and men always honing for something better, until at last they can stand it no longer. Then, of course, the working man's only weapon is to strike—not because he wants to, but because he has to.

The C. G. E. is a fine factory, and Peterborough is proud of it, but not its conditions.

Returned men would not have so much need for gratuity if they could only get re-established, with a decent living wage; and it's not the Government who should pay his wages—it's the man or firm who is getting the benefit of his work. A man who left this town when the war started, who was receiving $2.00 a day, should get the equivalent to that, which, at the present cost of living, is not less than 45 cents per hour. If he received $3.50, he should not get less than 40 cents per hour at the very least. No man can honestly pay his way and live, under 40 cents per hour.

It's time our churches took up the conditions of the working man, and remember he has a body as well as a soul, which must be nourished if he is to do his duty properly to his God and King. Now is the time to take the matter up. While the Forward Movement is on, let it be a real Forward Movement and not a sham. Remember, it's not drink now that is keeping him poor.

I must conclude, though I could say more; but I don't wish to say anything that will prevent this letter getting in print, as I hear you will not print anything that is against the manufacturer. But I fail to see why—it's the people who buy The Examiner and it's the people who read it, and as long as the contents are not libellous, I don't see why you cannot print a letter in the "Voice of the People." The manufacturers have the same opportunity to write a letter in reply but the people know whose opinion is correct.

Thanking you for space in our wonderful paper,—I am, sir, yours sincerely,

A. FRICK.
47 Jackson Ave., Peterborough.

To the Editor of the Examiner.—

Dear Sir,—In this world of care, fiction and ideas we are glad and animated to meet with those who have gone through the stern realities of life.

We have every confidence in the unity, stability and active life of the British Army and Navy. When the struggle of the great world war was in its greatest danger at Vimy Ridge, Battle of Marne and Ypres Salient, these are the men that remained firm on the line and stood in the breach. These are the men. The trained nurses and physicians nobly did their part to save us from a relentless foe and Gen. Currie's heroic defence helped to save the day.

The fall of Germany was in the rejection of the fundamental principles of the Bible and the League of Nations is the first step towards Universal peace.

We are all united in the great cause to win the war and now in the mighty army of the Christian Church Forward Movement Victorious.

In speaking of those who fell in the war we say: Heroes, Sleep on, Rest. For who in life's battles doth stand
Shall bear hopes tender blossoms
Into the Silent Land.

Sincerely yours,

BENJ. WHITE.

HEART SO BAD

WAS NOT SAFE TO LEAVE HER ALONE

Miss Eva P. Yatem-n, Krugersdorf, Ont., writes: "I feel that I must write and tell you of the great benefit I have received from Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. About four years ago I was taken terribly bad with my heart, nerves and fainting spells, and was down in bed for about six months. I doctored with two different doctors and seemed to get better although the fainting spells would not leave me. I would take such terrible falls wherever I was, that it was not safe to leave me alone at any time. At last I decided to resort to proprietary medicines, and took several different kinds but seemed to receive but little benefit from them. One day noticing the advertisement of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills I decided to try them. Before I had taken more than two boxes I could see that they were helping me. I have taken about ten boxes and am almost cured of those terrible spells. I sincerely feel that your medicine has proved a blessing to me and I advise anyone troubled with their heart to try them as I am confident they will find relief."

Eugene Quesnel, of Montreal, was suffering from kidney trouble—and had suffered for five long years. This is his letter:—

"I could not sleep nights and on some occasions could hardly walk. I had been treated by some of our best physicians but without relief. I lost over 15 pounds and was very weak, and friends who knew me before were astonished. One day I met one of our leading hotelkeepers, who had been cured by your famous Gin Pills. He advised me to try them. I bought two boxes and before I had used one box I felt a big change. Before I finished the second one I was completely cured, and I can assure you if I had only known what I know now, I would not have spent one hundred dollars for nothing—when two boxes of Gin Pills cured me."

Two-Party Line Telephone Service

NECESSARY curtailment of new construction during the war, followed by the unprecedented development since the armistice, have resulted in a universal shortage of telephone material.

In order to utilize our supply of equipment to the best advantage, to reduce delay in installations to a minimum, and to avoid refusing service to anyone, we ask those intending to order telephones to consider the advantage of two-party line service.

With the central energy system in use here the operator can ring either of the telephones on a two-party line without disturbing the other. The cost to the user is substantially lower than for individual line service.

The rate for two-party line service is, for Business telephones $26.40 and for Residence $22.00 per annum.

We will be glad to furnish full information to anyone interested.

"THE BIG THING IN LIFE," BY REV. GEORGE WEBB, D.D.

INSPIRING ADDRESS TO YOUNG MEN —MEETING WAS UNDER THE AUSPICES OF THE Y.M.C.A.

Rev. George T. Webb, D.D., of New York City, addressed a men's meeting in the Allen Theatre yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A.

Mr. Joseph Wearing, chairman of the Religious Committee of the Y.M.C.A., presided, and introduced Rev. Dr. Webb as "one of the great, outstanding public religious men of the United States."

Rev. Dr. Webb chose as his subject "A Young Man's Religion," and in opening remarked that ministers had the fault of always speaking in the same way by taking a text, and that he was no different from his co-workers in that respect. He took as is text Mark 12, 31: "And."

This text, he believed, had three advantages: First, brevity; second, unusualness; and third, ambiguity; and hence would not be easily forgotten. To understand it, one must refer to the context. It was from the answer of Christ to the young man, a scribe, who stood on the outskirts of the crowd of Pharisees, Sadducees, and Herdians who were trying to confound Christ with questions. At last the great question came to him, and he pushed forward and asked Christ which was the greatest commandment. Christ replied: "Thou shall love the Lord thy God, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength," and the second is like, namely this, "Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself."

"Big Thing in Life."

Continuing, Dr. Webb stated that using the terms of to-day, the question would have been, "Master, what is the big thing in life?" There was no question to-day so dreadfully confused as religion. Politics were child's play in comparison. To-day the young man was confronted with numberless "isms," and he who wished to walk straight knew scarcely what to do. But the answer which Christ gave the young scribe 1900 years ago was as applicable to-day as then, for Christ was the man who spoke in principles. The two commandments of Christ's answer were joined by God and "what God has joined let no man put asunder."

True Religion.

The trouble with most religious people, Dr. Webb believed, was that they did not recognise the "and." As one example, he spoke of once meeting two monks of the Order of St. Anthony de Padua on a cold winter day, wearing only a robe and sandals. This was a part of their devotion to God, which was unquestioned; but their service to men was unknown. Their religion was one-sided, consisting of separation from the world and devotion to God. The complete devotion of self to God and a consequent expenditure of self for men constituted religion. Religious men were not those who merely went to church and went through forms and adopted postures. Religion permeated a man's whole life, giving character to his walk, quality to his conversation, directing his life in business and at home. Church and prayer were not the sum total of religion. A religious life did not meet its fulness and completion merely in going to church. On the other hand the man who said that his religion was to give every man a square deal also had a one-sided religion. Jesus had linked the two inseparably.

Conclusion.

In closing, Dr. Webb reiterated his statement that devotion to God and service to mankind constituted religion.

Mr. Wearing, in his remarks, stated that Dr. Webb's address was particularly appropriate for a Y.M.C.A. meeting, for its sentiments were those of Y.M.C.A. men.

NORTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL MEETING

ILLUSIVE BEAUTY.

I have loved flowers that fade,
Within whose magic tents
Rich hues have marriage made
With sweet unmemoried scents,
A honeymoon delight—
A joy of love at sight,
That ages in an hour—
My song be like a flower!

I have loved airs that die
Before their charm is writ
Along a liquid sky
Trembling to welcome it.
Notes, that with pulse of fire
Proclaim the spirit's desire,
Then die and are nowhere;
My song be like an air!

Die, song, die like a breath,
And wither as a bloom;
Fear not a flowery death,
Dread not an airy tomb!
Fly with delight, fly hence!
'Twas thine love's tender sense
To feast; now on thy bier
Beauty shall shed a tear.

SHE HAD SUFFERED FOR ELEVEN YEARS

ONLY WEIGHED 100 POUNDS---ELIJAH MITCHELL PRAISES TANLAC FOR RESTORING WIFE'S HEALTH.

"As long as I live I will praise Tanlac for what it has done for my wife," said Elijah Mitchell, of Deep Pond, Lahave, Canada, recently. Continuing Mr. Mitchell said:

"For the past eleven years my wife has been in extremely poor health. Everything she ate disagreed with her and she suffered terribly with indigestion. She would bloat badly with gas after every meal and complained of a heavy feeling just like her food had formed in a lump, and she would have the worst sort of cramping pains. She was bothered with constipation so bad she had to always be taking some sort of laxative and at times suffered with intense headaches. She was so nervous the least little noise out of the ordinary would completely upset her and she would tremble all over and become weak after the least little excitement, and was so restless at night she could get but little sleep. She had fallen off from 140 to 100 pounds, and was in such a weak condition and so badly run down she was about as near a physical wreck as any one ever gets to be and live. She would very often have to give up entirely and go to bed, and at one time was confined to her bed for four months.

"She had taken many different medicines, but none of them seemed to do her a particle of good. Well, I had been reading so much in the Halifax newspaper of the good Tanlac was doing others that I got her some, and while she has only taken five bottles it is simply remarkable how it has built her up.

"She is gaining in weight and strength every day, and looks like a different person, and she says she feels better in every way than she has in years. She can eat anything she wants and never suffers any bad after effects; her nerves are getting in fine condition and she can sleep as peaceful as a child all night long. She never complains of a pain of any kind any more and has not a headache since she started taking Tanlac. I was badly worried over her condition, and I can not tell you how thankful we both are for the good Tanlac has done her."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Limited; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowlers Corners by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert by A. J. Scott; in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son. (Advt.)

NOT EVEN STANDING ROOM.

A small-time vaudeville actor lost his aged father. On the day after the burial, a fellow-professional met the bereft one on the street.

"Old man," he said, "I'm sorry I couldn't get to the funeral yesterday. Still, I understand all your father's old friends and most of your friends turned out to pay him the last respects."

"Did they?" said the son. "Did they? My-boy, we turned 'em away."

VALENTINE TEA WAS BIG SUCCESS

In spite of the stormy weather of Saturday afternoon the Valentine tea held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. McClelland, 301 Boswell avenue, proved a great success and was attended by a very large number of people. The members of the Ladies Aid of St. Andrews Church under whose auspices the affair was given had decorated the house very charmingly with tokens of St. Valentine's day which were much admired by all who attended. In the tea room Mrs. (Dr) McLleland and Mrs. Raines poured tea and were assisted by Mrs. Philip Alison, Mrs. Robinson Mrs. Weir, Mrs. Wilgar and the Misses Hazel Eaton, Lillian Fair and May Reid. During the evening solos by Mrs. Davidson, Miss Hazel Davidson and Miss Pilling were greatly enjoyed.

FORMER SHERIFF, WHOM SONG AIDS TO ELECT, DIES.

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 16. — Former Sheriff William Harrigan, probably the only man in the country ever elected to office by a song, died here as a victim of pneumonia. He was 82 years old.

Harrigan was one of the most picturesque men in public life. His white beard seemed in itself to make him a favorite. It was shortly after Geo. Cohan had made "Harrigan, That's Me," popular, that Harrigan, who had held many offices, sought the Democratic nomination as sheriff of Essex County. The song enabled him to beat the Democratic organization for the nomination and sent him into office over a strong Republican candidate.

As a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination in 1910 he received state wide prominence through the clash between his delegates and the supporters of Woodrow Wilson, who were in control of the convention.

Harrigan was a member of the Assembly from 1883 to 1887 and in 1893 and 1894.

LEO FEIST COMMENCES BUSINESS IN CANADA.

Largest Music Publisher in United States.

Toronto music-lovers are quite familiar with the many song hits placed on the market by Leo Feist. The latest one is the new Broadway creation, "Golden Gate."

"Golden Gate," is to out-rival its predecessors. It is written by Kendis and Brockman, who wrote the two favorites, "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles" and "I Know What It Means To Be Lonesome."

Leo Feist was the first man to advertise his songs in the national magazines. He found that the publicity doubled and trebled the sale. Now he is boosting "Golden Gate" by a national publicity campaign.

Mr. Gordon Thompson is managing the new company. The Toronto Office is completely equipped and can supply all the needs of music lovers.

Local Dealers Do Business In Open

Know They Must Face the Music if Their Customers Are Displeased

Meet Patrons Face to Face

Mail Order Men Prefer to Sell at Long Distance Rather Than Deal With People in Their Own Cities

(Copyright.)

One of the stock excuses of the man who orders goods from a mail order house is that there are many things that he wants that the local merchants do not carry in stock, and that it is necessary for him to send away from town to get them.

This explanation may be all right on the theory that a poor excuse is better than none, but it fails to pass muster when it is subjected to a little scrutiny.

Ask the man who offers this as an excuse for his dealings with the mail order man why he does not go to the local merchant and ask him to order the articles desired if they are not to be found in the merchant's stock. The merchant will very gladly do this, and the merchant and customer will both profit. The merchant can sell you whatever you desire at as low a price as the mail order house can make you on goods the same quality and he can make a small profit.

The customer will profit from the transaction, because he will be dealing with a merchant who stands back of the goods that he sells, and who is easily accessible in case the articles purchased do not prove to be all that the customer had expected.

GIVE HOME MERCHANT PREFERENCE.

Why not try this plan the next time you need something which you cannot find in any of your home stores? The merchant in the average sized town cannot carry in stock everything that all of the people in his town may want at all times. It would require a capital many times larger than the average merchant can command to do this, but he does the best he can. He ordinarily does carry in stock at all times many things for which there is no general demand, in order that he may meet the needs of his customers to the greatest possible degree, but there is a limit to his purchasing ability. He is always ready and willing, however, to make every effort to meet the demands of the community. Why not, then give him the preference over the far-distant mail order man if you must have something which is not to be found in the local stores? He will do the business in a satisfactory manner, give you as quick if not quicker service and more satisfactory treatment, and the chances are that he will give you better values for the money. Finally, whatever profit is to be made off the transaction will stay at home and do its bit toward making the merchant and his town and, incidentally, yourself, more prosperous.

No business can be transacted as satisfactorily at long range as it can when the two parties to the transaction meet face to face. The only exception to this rule is in the case of the mail order man himself, who can transact his business with greater success to himself at long distance than he could if he had to meet his customers face to face. That is the reason that he does business by mail instead of selling to the people in his own city. If the goods which the mail order man advertises in his alluring catalogues were the bargains that he represents them to be, he would not have to go outside of the confines of his own city to sell all the goods he could possibly obtain. But the average mail order house not only does not make any effort to sell goods in its own city, but will not sell to anyone residing within the city limits. The mail order man does not want to meet his customers face to face. He can do business better, so far as he is concerned, if his customer is some hundreds of miles away from his office.

DOES BUSINESS IN OPEN.

The man who sells goods over the counter, on the other hand, does business in the open. He cannot hide behind a corporate name or talk to a displeased customer from behind the locked doors of a private office. He knows that he must face the music in case he is a party to any transaction that won't stand the light of day. He knows that he must treat every customer with whom he may be dealing or he will lose not only that customer but probably others who will soon know all the facts if he does not do the square thing by any one of his patrons.

There is no reason in the world for any person to send his money to a mail order house because he cannot find the article he wants in his local store. The local merchant is in business for the very purpose of getting you what you want. He has the information that will enable him to get what you want and to get it as quickly as you could get it from a mail order house. It is only fair to him to give him the chance to make such profit as any dealer would make off the transaction, and it is only fair to yourself to keep that profit at home rather than to send it away to some far-distant city from which it will never return.

Advertising Reduces Cost Of Goods To The Consumer.

There are some economists who say that advertising is one cause of the increased cost of goods. This is not true, says the St. Paul News. Advertising actually reduces the cost of goods. To dispense with advertising in order to reduce the cost of goods would be like threshing grain with a flail to reduce the cost of grain. Advertising is the time and effort-saving device in the sale of goods just as power and machinery are in the production of goods.

All goods, including new and unknown goods, would sell themselves if given time enough—one satisfied customer would tell another. But time is an important factor in the cost of goods, carrying charges in the way of interest and rent from the time of production to final sale. The speed with which goods are sold determines their price, and in another larger way than reducing the carrying charges. The faster a stock of goods is sold, the lower the margin of profit the manufacturer or merchant is compelled to charge the customer. The profit in doing business is not in the large profit on each sale, but rather the number of profits from many sales. Many small profits from each sale make one large profit.

This principle is technically known as "turn-over," and is the number of times a merchant sells his complete stock in a year. Say, for instance, a candy store makes four per cent. net profit only on a dollar of candy sales. But say it "turns," sells the stock, completely, in a week, 52 times a year, is not this merchant making 52 times 4 per cent., making 208 per cent. annual profit? It seems paradoxical that a customer should pay only half a cent profit on ten cents worth of candy to enable the merchant to make 208 per cent. profit, but it will be understood in considering the fact that the investment is in one week's supply only.

Both the manufacturer and the merchant use advertising to speed the sale of goods—to increase the "turnover." If they are able to sell at less individual profit they are thus able to reduce the price—and to increase the market by making the goods with the range of more persons. Advertising is the speed lever, the high gear of sales. It is not only an educational factor to more and better goods, but to a lower price for the consumer by enabling the producer and merchant to live and prosper at a lower margin of individual profit.

SUN COLD AS ICE IN 12 MILLION YEARS

Prof. John McCabe of Australia, says the sun is due to get cold in 12,000,000 years. "Ouch," says a London paper, "we're doomed. Let's fire the circulation manager." It adds:

"The trouble is that scientists are always right in these long-distance prophecies. We are told that the world is getting colder every year. In 4,713,000 years it will be quite chilly, tho for quite a long time the average yearly temperature has been getting higher.

"Tell a man there are 27,160,324,541 stars in the heavens and he'll believe you. But let him see a notice, 'Wet Paint,' and he puts his finger on it to make sure."

OTTAWA DEFEATED CANADIENS IN AN OVERTIME GAME

MONTREAL, Feb. 15. — Playing overtime on a slush-coated sheet of ice, and before a crowd of over six thousand persons, Ottawa defeated Canadiens three to two Saturday in the National Hockey League game here.

The score was deadlocked at 1 to 1 and 2 to 2 for more than half of the regular sixty minutes of play, but Ottawa was never in the lead until Denneny tipped the puck into Canadiens' goal after one minute and thirty seconds of overtime. This followed twenty-two minutes of a fight without score, at two-all.

Ottawa had the edge in the play and their superiority grew more evident as the condition of the ice became worse. It was Vezina's fine work in goal that offset Ottawa's better play. While the ice was good however, Canadiens outplayed the Senators, during the most of the first period. The loss of Corbeau, who was banished to the bench for 15 minutes for cutting down Broadbent, was a bad blow to the Frenchmen. Meantime Broadbent had been so badly injured that he had to be taken to the hospital to have stitches put in his head and face, and Canadiens were obliged to play five men against Sentors' six, which turned the tide in favor of Ottawa. The winning goal in the overtime period came after the puck had struck Veizna in the chest and lay at his feet. Before he could clear Denneny pounced on it and tapped it into the net for an Ottawa victory.

Lou Marsh handled the game with a firm grip. He had a trying time in the first period when blood was being spilled. The special police at the rink rounded up speculators in seats. They were forced to disgorge and the tickets were offered to the public at the regular price.

Corbeau's offence occurred in the second period and as Broadbent was lying on the ice Corbeau, not satisfied with his already glaring foul, hooked Broadbent the second time and drew a fifteen-minute penalty, forcing his side to play a man short. The victory gives Ottawa a strong hold on the leadership of the second half, as they have the advantage of playing their next game with Canadiens on Ottawa ice.

WINTER'S NIGHTFALL.

Dull grey dusk, with the red of the sunset and frost in the feel of the air,
And the sorrowful veil of the mist on the face of the stream;
Faint in the distance the lights of the township shine out here and there,
Trough the murk of the mist, with a fitfully flickering gleam.
Darker and darker, the sunset departed, the moon shining lonely and high
On the dim silent woodlands and hedgerows, with clear frosty light,
And the first faint stars softly stealing into the height of the sky.
And the world gently wrapped in the cloak of the stillness of night.

TYRONE POWER ON SUGGESTED PLAYS

It is a matter of common knowledge in theatrical circles that the eminent English actor, Mr. Tyrone Power, who will shortly be seen here in Charles Rann Kennedy's great symbolic drama, "The Servant in the House," and in the famous play of religious tolerance, "The Little Brother," by Milton Goldsmith and Benedict James, has throughout his professional career been a vehement opponent of the suggestive play which is so much in vogue at the present time —the play of bedrooms and boudoirs, or bathrooms and the privacy of married life.

Responding on the evening of his first appearance in a revival of "The Servant in the House" at His Majesty's Theatre, Montreal, to an insistent demand for a speech at the conclusion of the performance, Mr. Power made reference to this regrettable tendency of the modern drama, and expressed his firm conviction that the fault lay in the main with the public, who could kill this pernicious influence if they really desired to do so.

At the same time Mr. Power expressed his intention of remaining in Canada to finish the term of his professional career and the hope that the public would make it possible for him, in conjunction with Trans-Canada Theatres, Ltd., to present to them the many wholesome, beautiful and attractive plays, entirely devoid of anything suggestive or offensive or immoral which were available for presentation upon the stage to-day.

Mr. Power's remarks were enthusiastically endorsed by a large audience, representative of the leaders of thought in the Canadian Metropolis.

ACCIDENT AT MOUNT JULIAN

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 16. — An accident occurred at Mount Julian last week when Mr. William Shewin was badly hurt.

Messrs. Cecil, William and Victor Shewin were cutting ice at Mount Julian with an ice saw operated by a gasoline engine. They were starting it up when Mr. William Shewin threw in the cluth. His sweater coat caught on the shaft of the engine and commenced winding his coat up and throwing him around and hitting the ice. The engine was stopped but not before his arms and hands were badly bruised and one arm pulled out of joint at the shoulder. He was taken to Mr. Thompson's Hotel and Dr. Smith of Lakefield sent for.

He is slowly improving but it will be a long time before he recovers.

He served in France and was said to be the strongest man in the township of Burleigh.

LONDON'S TAX RATE MAY REACH 39 MILLS

City Rate Limited to 35 mills — School Rate Higher.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 14.—London will likely face the highest tax rate in its history this year. Preliminary estimates from some of the city departments indicate that increased appropriations will be needed for routine work. In addition to this a number of special demands are being made on the city. An appropriation for $35,000 is being placed in the estimates for West [illegible] University. The citizens have voted to spend $20,000 on playgrounds and this will add a half a mill to the tax rate.

REAL QUALITY WAS LACKING.

When Grantland Rice, who now writes verses and prose for one of the New York papers, came from Nashville to Manhattan to live, he brought along his small daughter, Florence, then just five years old. The Rice family established themselves in an apartment uptown; and on the day after they got settled little Miss Florence was taken out for a walk by her negro nurse, also a Tennessee importation. The pair spent an hour on Riverside Drive.

"Well, Florence," inquired her mother when the small promenader returned, "how did you enjoy it?"

"Not very much," said Florence calmly.

"Didn't you see anything?" pressed Mrs. Rice.

"Only a lot of Northerners," said Florence.

Turks Massacre The Armenians By The Thousands

Armenian Slaughter Continues

TURKS ARE STILL BENT ON WIPING OUT THE RACE—BRITAIN RETALIATES WITH A NOTE.

7,000 KILLED

(Canadian Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.— Seven thousand Armenians have been massacred in Cilicia, in an attack by Mustapha Kamel, Turkish and Kurdish troops, which is still in progress, according to advices received here by the Armenian National Union through official channels.

Reports signed by Acting Armenian Archbishop of Smyrna and President of the Armenian Colony of Greece, states that the foes of the Armenians number fifty thousand, who have advanced to Bahtche and threaten to spread a reign of terror throughout the district. The Armenians, the despatch adds, are ready to resist the attack, but lack necessary means for self protection. Immediate assistance alone can save from extermination one hundred and fifty thousand people.

A Threat.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Great Britain it was learned to-day, has instructed Admiral De Robeck, at Constantinople, to announce there the fact that the Allies have decided not to deprive Turkey of Constantinople. If persecution of the Armenians continues, howevr, the Admiral was instructed to say the peace treaty with turkey may be made more severe.

The fact that continued possession of Constantinople had been granted here, should not be misconstrued by Turkey, the British representative was directed to inform the Turkish government in plain words. It did not mean, he was told to say, that the allies would deal leniently with Turkey should the recently reported atrocities continue.

The Supreme Council to-day considered the latest reports of the massacres of the Armenians. Note was taken of the fact that the reports in the main were from Armenian sources.

Admiral De Robeck will point out to the Turks that they must show an inclination to conduct themselves properly or be subjected to a peace more severe than the council is now disposed to arrange

HEAVY LOAD FOR TELEPHONE OFFICE

Public Asked to Co-operate During Next Hockey Game.

On another page, the Bell Telephone Company have issued an appeal to telephone users to confine their calls to those of an essential nature, owing to the great shortage of operators, caused by the "flu."

Last night calls for hockey results came in by the hundreds, at a time when it was impossible to handle the load. The result was that doctors' calls were held up, and with so much sickness in the city, serious conditions could very easily arise, by thoughtless people —the majority of whom are not telephone subscribers — clamouring for hockey scores.

The public can readily understand what could happen in case of a serious fire. And are requested to make an endeavour to co-operate during the present crisis.

THE WEATHER

The temperature went down to 3 points above zero last night. While the thermometer did not go very low there was a strong penetrating wind, which caused much drifting and made it uncomfortable out of doors. Contrary to the usual order the last cold wave which passed over went straight southward, instead of to the east. Heavy snow has again fallen along the Atlantic seaboard, while the cold wave is now over the Southern States. Milder but stormy conditions prevail in the west.—W. P.

SUGAR IS FOUND IN BRITISH COLUMBIA FIR TREES

The Discovery, it is said, will be of Great Value to Chemistry.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16. — Discovery of the growth of sugar on fir trees in British Columbia, is announced in the current number of the American Forestry Magazine. The discovery which is said to be one of great value to chemistry, came as the result of the investigations of Prof. John Davidson, chief of the Botanical Department of the University of British Columbia at Vancouver.

Specimens of the product upon analysis are said to have indicated the percentage of an extremely rare variety of sugar. While the fir sugar is not expected to become a factor in the food supply, like the product of the cane and the beet, the article advances the belief that it will prove useful for experimental purposes.

The Indians have made use of the sugar in British Columbia for many years, the article states.

Discovers New Form Of Sugar

PROFESSOR JOHN DAVIDSON, OF GOVERNMENT BOTANY DEPARTMENT, EXPLAINS NEW DISCOVERY.

DOUBTFUL PRODUCT

(Special to Examiner.)

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 17. — Professor John Davidson, in charge of the Botany Department of the University of British Columbia, today explained his discovery of a rare specimen of sugar, known scientifically as "Melezitose," which is found in extremely limited areas in British Columbia, on the leaf tips of Douglas fir trees.

Melezitose is so rare that previous to its discovery in this province, it was obtained only in Turkestan and Persia.

Prof. Davidson's discovery, which has just been announced in the American Forestry Magazine, is arousing great interest throughout Canada and the United States. The news of the strange phenomenon, first came to Prof. Davidson from some Indian tribes, and he made the trip into the interior of the province for the purpose of verification. His investigations proved that the Douglas fir sugar actually existed and the Indians had used it for many years for food. Prof. Davidson says that the sugar cannot be relied on as an annual crop, as some years it is abundant; other years very little is found. The region in which the sugar bearing firs are most abundant includes the driest and the hottest part of the British Columbia dry belt, namely the Thompson Valley west of the mouth of the Nicola River, near the junction of the Thompson and Fraser Rivers at Lytton, and above Lillooet in the Fraser valley.

Asked about the commercial possibilities of the discovery, Professor Davidson said the sugar-bearing trees were in such a limited area and the conditions under which they exuded sugar have to be so ideal that its use as a household substitute for the Cuban variety is unlikely.. Its chief value according to Professor Davidson is to scientists and chemists with whom it is in great demand. They use it to test other grades of sugar as Melezitose has three times the food value of ordinary cane sugar.

GRAVE RESULTS MIGHT FOLLOW

Allies' Reply Might Cause Another Relapse.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Feb. 17.—It is impossible to emphasise the importance and gravity of the results which may follow the Supreme Allied Council's reply to President Wilson's note relative to the Adriatic settlement, says The Mail.

"Anglo-American relations for a generation may well depend upon the terms of the reply," the newspaper continues.

"This country is anxious that justice be done between Italy and JugoSlavia, and is equally anxious to cultivate the closest friendship with the United States, which is the corner-stone of British foreign relations. We trust, therefore, that moderation and clear-sightedness may characterise reply, so that a very real crisis, with which is country is confronted, may be averted."

Anxiety lest the Allies send President Wilson a reply containing further cause for dissension is expressed by The Times, because in the actual mood they are now in, the American people might believe a very little thing sufficient to make them withdraw their countenance from the Peace settlement, and turn their backs for a season upon the affairs of the Old World.

ANOTHER RISE; PRICE OF GAS

HOUSEHOLDERS ARE BEING NOTIFIED THIS WEEK.

As a result of the rise in price of oils, labor and coal, the price of gas took another jump on February 1st from $1.75 per thousand cubic feet to $2.00 net. Mr. W. G. Ferguson said that the management of the local gas plant has been forced to raise the price from $1.25 at the outset of the war to the new price by the rise of all things necessary to gas manufacture. The same regulations regarding discount if paid by a certain date, still exists. The gloomy tidings of the latest rise has been conveyed to most of the gas consumers by means of a printed circular.

TRAIN SERVICE IN THIS DISTRICT

RECENT STORM HAS NOT AFFECTED THE SERVICE.

Locally the Grand Trunk has not been seriously affected by the recent storm and the districts between Toronto and Kingston seems to have suffered least of all districts. Passenger trains have been running about one hour late, but freight has been practically cancelled for the time being. The local ticket office has received orders not to sell tickets for the Ottawa district, also to points on the Stratford and Brantford district. The Lake Erie district has been hard hit.

On the local line the engines have passed through siow banks of eight feet depth without serious results.

HUNGARY IS IN THE MARKET FOR A TEMPORARY REGENT---NEW LEGISLATION.

PEACE TREATY

(Canadian Press.)

BUDAPEST, Feb. 17.— Hungary's new National Assembly, which was elected on January 25th, convened yesterday. It will be called upon to consider very important matters during the session, among them being the acceptance for rejection of the peace treaty, determining of future form of government for Hungary and economic laws.

Premier Huszar in the course of his opening address, said:

"We solemnly declare it is impossible to dissect Hungary into five countries. There can be no peace until unity is restored. We want a plebiscite and will not accept territorial dispositions provided for in the treaty without it."

After stating that the first task of the Assembly would be ratification of the treaty, the Premier declared that the constitution must be framed, food situation ameliorated, national army organized and new agrarian and social laws passed. He also said new taxes must be provided and that in all workmen must be convinced the government is kindly toward them.

"Government now wants the country put under a temporary regent and asks the House to choose one whose personality may save the nation from complete ruin," he said.

George street church has doubled its allotment and all churches have gone over the top. It is expected when the full reports are in for the district the total figure will stand at over $50,000.

Due to the recent storm and sickness, the campaign in some circuits has been blocked so far, while some of the circuits are completely snow bound.

Spent $1,051,000,000 On Aviation But Only Sent 213 Machines to Front.

Blunders and Waste in This Direction in United States During War Scathing Denounced In Official Report

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17. — In the report of the subcommittee on aviation of the Special House Committee appointed to investigate the cost of the war, made public to-day, were these outstanding assertions:

During the 19 months of war, the War Department spent $1,051,000,000 on aviation, but sent to the front only 213 "clumsy, utterly dangerous" De Haviland-four observation planes.

American aviators at the front recived only 740 planes, the additional 527 having been "begged or borrowed from our Allies."

Secretary Baker and Director Ryan are charged with "full knowledge of the defective and dangerous character of the De Haviland plane, 4,000 of which were built in this country at a cost of $50,000,000 but few of which got overseas.

The War Department spent $28,000,000 on Bristol and Standard I. machines which later were "scrapped as worthless."

Col. E. A. Deeds, in charge of airplane production up to January, 1918, "should have been courtmartialed, as recommended by Judge Hughes.

A close "association" existed between Director Ryan and the Siems-Carey-Kerbaugh Corporation of New York, which had $30,000,000 in contracts.

Col. B. P. Disque, in charge of spruce production "illegally spent" $1,500,000 of government funds, and according to the committee's expert accountant, wasted more than $30,000,000 as based on the contract price of spruce, as produced in 1918.

The committee [illegible] recommendation [illegible] separate air service independent of the War Department.

FINAL DRAFT OF THE ALLIED REPLY TO THE SICK MAN OF AMERICA WILL BE COMPLETED TO-DAY.

BELGRADE APPROVES OF WILSON ATTITUDE

(United Press.)

LONDON, Feb. 17. — The final draft of the Allied reply to President Wilson's Adriatic Note probably will be completed at to-day's session of the Council of Premiers, it was learned semi-officially. No intimation as to the text of the reply will be made public until it is received by the President, it was said.

The Council continued its discussion of the final draft last night.

There is little likelihood that an American representative will be called into the discussion, it was said. Meantime, public opinion was somewhat at sea as to the real course of events.

Among the masses, as a result of the resignation of Secretary Lansing and the Adriatic Note, Wilson's prestige seemed lower than at any time since he appeared in the international horizon, from being almost reverently worshipped as destined to save the world, the opinion of the President here has changed until his name today brought only a wondering smile from many of the people.

WILL STAND FIRM.

PARIS, Feb. 17.—Jugo-Slav representatives here to-day declared that the Belgrade Government will stand firm in its position of refusing any settlement of the Adriatic dispute, except that advocated by President Wilson.

The President's Adriatic Note had noticeably improved the Jugo Slav morale.

In view of this recent development, no Government in Belgrade could survive if it backed down now, one Jugo-Slav official here asserted.

French official circles, however, viewed the Note with mixed feelings.

With Fingers! Corns Lift Off

Doesn't hurt a bit to lift any corn or callus right off. Try it!

Just ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone. Apply a few drops upon a tender, aching corn or callus and instantly all soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you lift it off with the fingers.

Just think! Not one bit of pain before applying freezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the surrounding skin.

Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes, also hardened calluses on bottom of feet, shrivel up and fall off without hurting a particle. It is almost magical.

Ladies! Keep a tiny bottle on the dresser and never let a corn or callus ache twice.

LADES! LOOK YOUNG, DARKEN GRAY HAR

Use the Old-time Sage Tea and Sulphur and Nobody Will Know.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE TO SUPPLY ENORMOUS DEMAND FOR TANLAC

40 CARLOADS SOLD IN JANUARY ALONE

After Shipping 838,400 Bottles of Celebrated Medicine in One Month Factory is Still 380,000 Behind With Orders.

Although the big Tanlac laboratories at Dayton, Ohio, and Walkerville, Canada, have been running at top speed fo onths, it has geen a physical impossibility to supply the phenomenal and every increasing demand for this celebrated medicine.

During the first ten weeks of last year One Million Three Hundred and twenty-seven thousand bottles of Tanlac were sold, breaking all World's record for the sale of proprietary medicines up to that time. This record now pales into insignificance, however, as orders received during January alone of this year reached the astonishing total of One Million Two Hundred and Twenty Thousand bottles, showing an increase of approximately one hundred per cent. over the corresponding period of 1919.

To say that Tanlac now has the largest sale of any medicine of its kind in the world expresses it mildly. It does not begin to tell the story—for no other preparation has ever even approached the marvelous record that is now being made by Tanlac; and it is now conservatively estimated that the sales for the present year alone will amount to from seven to ten million bottles.

Of the orders received during January it was possible to ship only eight hundred and thirty-eight thousand bottles, and thousands of dealers scattered throughout Canada and the United States have been unable to obtain the medicine for weeks.

"Phenomenal and Bewildering" is the way one of the big drug jobbers of the country describes the marvelous demand for Tanlac.

"We know that the day of miracles has passed, and we all know that there are no unfathomable mysteries in the drug buisness, but this Tanlac proposition smacks of both" writes another leading wholesale druggist, whose firm has sold over 34 car loads, or an avetage of nearly one car load per month since they began handling Tanlac a few years ago. Thousands of similar letters and telegrams have been received, but for lack of space they can only be referred to briefly.

Most proprietary medicines are sold by the dozen or by the gross; a few are bought by the trade in quantities of from ten to twenty gross; a very few are sold by the car load, and then only to the largest jobbers, covering extensive territories. The fact therefore that scores of jobbers in Canada and the United States have a demand sufficient to justify them in ordering not one carload, but from two to three car loads of Tanlac at a time makes Tanlac's pre-eminence in the field of medicine all the more note-worthy. It is the biggest thing of its kind in the world and nothing like it has ever happened in the drug trade before.

Think of one retail firm selling one-third of a million bottles of any one medicine right over the counter direct to consumers in only two years' time! It seems incredible, but such is the record made by the Owl Drug Company, through their retail stores on the Pacific Coast.

Think of one retail firm in a single city of 200,000 population, selling approximately eighty-eight thousand bottles, an average of over two bottles for every family, in only four years' time! Such is the record of the Jacob's Pharmacy Company, of Atlanta.

Think of one retail firm giving a single order for an entire car load, twenty-three thousand and forty bottles and agreeing to pay cash for the goods promptly on arrival. Such an order has been received from the Lewis K. Liggett Company, of Winnipeg, Canada.

Another big Canadian retail firm, G. Tamblyn, Limited, Toronto, Canada, recently gave their order for one hundred gross, amounting to $10,-800.00.

Orders from retailers for from fifty to seventy-five gross are not uncommon, and practically all of the leading retail firms buy Tanlac in from ten to twenty-five gross lots to supply their normal demands.

When the magnificient new laboratories at Dayton, Ohio, and Walkerville, Canada with a combined floor space of seventy thousand square feet and a combined capacity of thirty-six thousand bottles were completed, it was thought that the production would be sufficient to supply the demand for years to come. It is now apparent, however, that additional facilities must be provided if the supply is to keep pace with the demand. And this is true in spite of the fact that there are now on the market from fifty to one hundred preparations claiming similar therapeutic value.

Tanlac has now been on the market for five years. It has stood the acid test of time. It is known and honored in every city, town, village, and hamlet on the American Continent from Key West, Florida, to the Northern wilds of Canada, where even the Indians and Fur Traders have learned of its wonderful powers as a medicine.

Its enormous and ever-increasing popularity is the one great outstanding proof of its wonderful merit. No medicine, no matter how extensively advertised, could sell and continue to sell and establish new world's records year after year, if it did not produce actual and positive results.

Tanlac is composed of the most beneficial roots and herbs known to the scientific world. The formula conforms with all National and State Pure Food and Health Laws of both the United States and Canada, and although Tanlac's claims for superiority are abundantly supported by leading authorities, it is the people themselves who have made Tanlac what it is. Millions upon millions have used it and have told other millions what it had done for them.

That is why Tanlac has become the real sensation of the drug trade all over America.

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowlers Corner by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.—Advt.

A FORMER SMALLPOX EPIDEMIC

(By Dr. Adam H. Wright, Toronto.)

The following is published by request:

In my medical student days in Toronto, there was a serious epidemic of smallpox in that city which was said to have commenced in 1870. So far as I have definite knowledge there was an outbreak of a virulent type in the latter part of 1871. I was told at the time that there was what was called a mild form of the disease present from about the middle of 1870 which had continued for rather more than a year. It was evidently very like the epidemic in Toronto. Suddenly, without any warning, a malignant type developed during Christmas week of 1871. A young woman who had been a chambermaid in a downtown hotel, was brought into the General Hospital with a disease which turned out to be smallpox. The house surgeons at the time were medical students, Abbott and Robinson. Abbott contracted the disease and was seriously ill for some weeks. Although the patient was placed in a separate ward, and isolated so far as possible and vaccination was commenced, eighteen patients out of a total of about 100, contracted smallpox and of these nine died. Early in February 1871, a building north of the old goal which had been hurriedly prepared, was opened and used as an isolation hospital and the house surgeon who had not contracted the disease, now Dr. R. H. Robinson, of 532 Palmerston Blvd., Toronto, was placed in charge, and remained there about two months. After his retirement, the late Dr. Riddell was placed in charge. During Robinson's regime about 120 smallpox patients were admitted, and of these about forty died.

Thus within three months there were about fiftly deaths in the main building and its annex. This virulent form continued in Toronto during the whole year of 1872 and it was estimated, so far as I can remember, that there were altogether 200 deaths.

When we consider the present epidemic which is very similar to that of 1870, we ought to realize that a grave peril exists at the present time and a malignant type of the disease may tomorrow replace the mild type of today and we should take serious thoughts of the possible consequences.

Toronto now has a population ten times that of 1872 and a proportionate mortality would now be about 2,000. Let us hope however that we are much better protected now than were the inhabitants in former days. Still it is probable that the advent of the severe form would cause at least 500 to 1,000 deaths. In those days the facilities for vaccination were to some extent limited by the insufficiency of the supply of vaccine lymph prepared from what were known as healthy smallpox crusts or "scabs;" but a successful "take" then, was similar to that of today, and the beneficial results were then so apparent that it was universally believed that successful vaccination made a patient immune to smallpox even under the worst of sanitary conditions in their homes. I, myself, after careful observation, had no doubt about the efficiency of successful vaccination, and my experience afterwards when I acted as assistant to the late Dr. Corey of London, England, in his vaccination station at St. Thomas' Hospital, for three months in 1877, tended only to confirm my optimistic views.

STRIKERS HURT OTHER TRADES

FOUNDERS SAY SHORTAGE OF CASTINGS HAS CAUSED UNEMPLOYMENT.

Union moulders in Toronto and Hamilton, who went on strike on May 1, 1919, and are still not working, have, according to a statement issued by the Canadian Founders' Association on Saturday, brought great loss upon themselves, and injured all other metal workers which were dependent on castings for their raw material. Because of the shortage of castings there has also been considerable unemployment.

The statement points out that the point of contention was "hours of labor," the union men refusing to work 48 hours per week, as provided under the Peace Treaty, but instead demanding 44 hours per week. The need of greater production, the holding down of costs and the fact that many employers also employ other trades who are working 48 hours, seemed to make no impression on the strikers. That it cannot be a question of health which causes the men to demand shorter hours, the statement declares, is shown by the fact that many men have returned and are working 50 and more hours a week.

It is admitted that the strike has caused gerat loss to employers, because business in large measure went elsewhere for months, and some plants will not get their regular business back for a long time. Practically all the foundries in both cities are now said to be running with non-union and ex-union men, and employers have found, in conferences and otherwise, definite lines of difference with the ideals of union leaders. The strike has made it much more difficult for the unions of the two cities and the employers to find any common ground on which to work. The open shop is more definitely established as a principle than it has been before.—Toronto Globe.

LIVER TROUBLE AND HEARTBURN

The liver is the largest and one of the most important organs of the body. Its duty is to prepare and secrete bile, and serve as one of the filters of the body, cleansing it from all impurities and poisons. Therefore when the liver gets out of order it is the starting of trouble in nearly every part of the body.

Keep the liver active by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and you will have no heartburn, constipation, biliousness, sick or bilious headaches, dull, yellow eyes, brown blotches, sallow complexion, coated tongue, jaundice, catarrh of the stomach, or the painful protruding, internal or bleeding piles.

Mrs. John Kadey, Chipman, N. B., writes: "I have used Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills for some time and can recommend them to anyone suffering from heartburn and liver trouble. I tried other remedies but they only relieved me for a short time. I always recommend Laxa-Liver Pills to all sufferers as I think that they are a valuable remedy."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CINDERELLA—700 B.C.

About 700 years B.C., there is said to have lived a maiden, who, though not called "Cinderella," was undoubtedly the person represented in the popular fairy tale.

It was during the rulings of one of the twelve Egyptian Kinks that this beautiful Eastern girl, Rhodope by name, came under the notice of the then known world.

Rhodope had remarkably small feet. One day, whilst bathing in a river near her home, an eagle is said to have swooped down, and playing the part of the fairy godmother, snapped up one of her sandals which was on the bank.

Carrying the little shoe off in its beak, the bird is reported to have dropped it immediately in front of the king, and, naturally, the little sandal soon attracted royal attention.

Struck by its size so small, and the daintiness, too, the king vowed he would find out the charming possessor. Messengers were despatched and the country was scoured for the foot that the shoe would fit.

At length Rhodope was discovered and the shoe placed on her tiny foot. After a triumphal conveyance to the king's Palace, she was made queen to her royal lover, "Kink Psammetichus of Memphis."

Aimless Activity.

Dr. MacRae has been talking about society's aimless activity. The phrase is a good one and should live. What is more to the point is society keen itself busy doing nothing in particular.

ZAM-BUK HEALED SEVERE CUT

Mrs. J. E. Bierwirth of Carnduff, Sask., writes: "My little son cut the end off his finger. As it was such a severe cut, I was going to take him to a doctor, but in the meantime to ease the pain, I applied some Zam-Buk. This stopped the bleeding and gave him such relief that he ceased crying and seemed quite at ease. I therefore decided to see if Zam-Buk would heal the wound. Next day I replaced the dressing, and continued to do so each day, using nothing but Zam-Buk. Complete cure resulted."

N. Y. LIFE'S RUSSIAN BUSINESS SEIZED

SOVIET'S ACTION REVEALED WHEN COMPANY WRITES OFF $64,000,000 OUTSTANDING POLICIES.

NEW YORK—The New York Life Insurance Company has written off its entire Russian business, with the permission of the State Superintendent of Insurance, as a result of the taking over of its Russian assets and liabilities by the Soviet Government. The action of the Soviets was taken more than a year ago, but because of uncertainty here as to the exact status of the insurance company's Russian business, the definite closing out of the account was delayed until the annual report of the year 1919 was compiled. This report will be made public tomorrow.

Darwin P. Kingsley, President of the New York Life Insurance Company, explained that the writing off of these assets and liabilities would entail no loss to Americans, or those of any nationality other than Russian. What has happened, he said, is simply that the Soviet Government, following its practice of nationalizing all industrial and financial enterprises in Bolshevist Russia, had assumed the company's Russian liabilities, composed almost exclusively of about $60,000,000 in outstanding life insurance policies, and had acquired control of the reserve fund, which the company was required under the old Russian Government to keep in that country, and which amounted to something like $30,000,000, all of which was invested in Russian railroad bonds guaranteed by the Imperial Russian Government.

The moneys which the New York Life had invested in these Russian securities all was obtained as premium payments by Russian subjects who had taken out life insurance through the company's Russian agencies. The Russian law required the company to maintain a reserve against its policy obligations there and specified that this reserve should be invested in Russian bonds.

After the overthrow of the Czar's Government, the insurance company continued to transact its regular business in Russia. It maintained this policy under the first revolutionary Government and as long as Ambassador Francis remained at Petrograd. When the Bolsheviki came into control and relations with the outside world were broken off, the company suspended writing new insurance and virtually withdrew from the Russian field. Now, because of the continued uncertainty of affairs, it has decided to write off the whole business.

BASKET SOCIAL FRIDAY NIGHT

EXCELLENT PROGRAMME OF MUSIC WAS PROVIDED.

A very successful basket social was held by Nassau Lodge, L.O.L., on Friday night, when three bus loads of members and their lady friends (ladies with baskets), journeyed to Nassau Hall, where an excellent programme of music was given by the members, assisted by Ford's orchestra from the Salvation Army. Several selections by this orchestra were very much enjoyed also several songs by Mr. Petrie, one of his numbers, "When Father Papered," proving a laugh getter. A violin selection by Baden Green was thoroughly enjoyed and also a recitation by Mr. A. French. Mr. Grant Braund gave a very delightful piano solo, followed by a singing dialogue by Mr. and Mrs. Petrie that brought forth much applause.

At the conclusion of the programme some fifty baskets were auctioned off by Mr. Fred Sanderson in a very satisfactory manner, some of the baskets bringing $5 and $5.50. In all the handsome sum of $90 was netted for the Lodge in this way. After the bidding was finished the contents of the baskets were investigated and put to a very useful purpose. Coffee was furnished by the Lodge and everyonce enjoyed themselves immensely, and it was not until 1 o'clock that the tired but happy crowd arrived back in the city.

THE PREMIER ELECTED

The election of Premier Drury in the by-election in Halton yesterday will occasion no surprise, although the size of the majority polled in favour of the leader of the Government was perhaps larger than was expected. The large vote shows that the electors of the riding had made up their minds that Premier Drury and his government should be given a chance to make good and that there was nothing to be gained by a defeat of the Premier, the result of which would perhaps have eventually involved the turmoil of another general election. The Government only requires the election of its Attorney-General the Hon. W. E. Raney to be ready for the opening of the Legislature.

THE CANADIAN GENERAL ASSESSMENT

During the past year numbers of citizens have been asking the question: "What is the matter with Peterborough", when they have been discussing the recent rapid industrial development of Oshawa, Kitchener, and Windsor. The Council has been blamed, the Board of Trade has been told it was losing its chance to do something. In fact everyone was being made responsible more or less because some big outstanding manufacturing plant had not been brought in during the past year.

Peterborough has done exceptionally well in the smaller plants during the time for which the Council and the Board of Trade should receive credit, but it is a fact that the much looked for big plant did not materialize.

In the three places above mentioned the great activity was brought about by the locating and growth in each city of one big outstanding concern. In Oshawa, it was the General Motors; in Kitchener, the Dominion Rubber Co.; in Windsor the General Motors.

The lead given by these great concerns, brought, in many instances without solicitation, a number of smaller factories all of which are making good.

In Peterborough just now we appear to have the big plant right in our grasp if we take advantage of the opportunity. Our largest manufacturing concern the Canadian General Electric Company is asking for a renewal of its present assessment which ten years ago we had agreed to carry for a period of twenty years and it was embodied in a by law, but the legislature whose policy at that time was not to give a fixed assessment for more than ten years at a time consequently changed it to ten years, adding that there was nothing to prevent a request for an extension of ten years when the time was up.

If ten years ago we felt it good business, and it was good business, to give a fixed assessment to this concern for a period of twenty years, without an agreement of further extensions at the end of ten years, which would be at the present time, it would appear to be an excellent business arrangement if we can right now give no more than we originally intended to give and receive the assurance that from $500,000.00 to $1,000,000.00 would be immediately spent in the city carrying with it an addition of about $1,000,000.00 annually in wages.

This appears to be our opportunity to get the big plant if we want it. If we keep faith with the company according to the original by-law, all the bricklayers in the city who were idle or had to go to outside places to get work would be busy at home.

The carpenters who shipped their tool boxes to Oshawa, Kitchener or Windsor could ship them back and earn and spend their money in Peterborough which is cheaper a good deal than keeping a home in two places and best of all approximately a million dollars extra in wages, would be spent annually in the city, in which every merchant would have an opportunity of getting his share of the business to keep his staff busy.

The addition of several hundred extra families would distribute the taxes that much more and if the spending of our own money on the bridge last year relieved the situation our allowing the Canadian General Electric Co., to spend three times this amount next summer of their own money without any cost to ourselves should relieve the minds of many people at this uncertain period as to what conditions will be like during the coming year in this city.

SINCE 1870 SHILOH 30 DROPS STOPS COUGHS

A WRONG PRACTICE.

A Hamilton police magistrate has acquitted men accused of selling liquor on the ground that the only evidence against them was that of "spotters." In giving his decision he said: "When there is no evidence showing the defendant has been guilty of an offence excepting that of the two men who admit inducing him to break the law, and their evidence is contradicted, it will have no more weight with me than the defendant's ——." His view of the matter is sound says the Ottawa Journal. The evidence of men who induce another man to break the law—should be considered no more reliable than the evidence of the man they accuse. But is it not time that the agencies of the state ceased the practice of tricking men into breaking the law in order to secure convictions? The practice is employed not only by the liquor license authorities but by the Dominion Inland Revenue Department and other branches of the Government. The duty of the branches of the public service charged with enforcing the laws is to see that the laws are obeyed, not to conspire to have them broken. It should be possible to detect lawlessness without tricking men into it.

PASSING OF ST. JOSEPH.

Among the many curious stories that passed over the telegraph wires recently none left a deeper impression among the older newspapermen of Eastern Canada than the news of the passing of the "Queen City" of St. Joseph on Lake Huron, a few miles north of Sarnia.

Some thirty years ago, Narcisse Cantin, a young French-Canadian conceived the idea of building at St. Joseph, a city with a harbor through which the trade of French-speaking Canada could penetrate into the regions of the west beyond the Great Lakes. With the enthusiasm of one inspired by an ideal, supported by personal magnetism and rare gifts of persuasion, the promoter succeeded in convincing many Montreal business men that his scheme was practicable. The Government was persuaded to build at St. Joseph a wharf, while those backing the project erected a hotel—and a unique hotel it was—consisting of about 200 rooms, in which there never was a guest. The bar was 100 feet long, but not one solitary drinker ever placed his elbows on its polished hardwood surface.

One hundred houses were erected, but the only inhabitants they ever had were swallows, bats, or owls that hooted at the moon in the silence of the night. Birds built their nests under the eaves and in the rafters, twitting noisily with the first grey light of dawn, but no human voice ever echoed through the corridors except that of some visitor whose morbidness led him to commiserate with himself in mysterious surroundings. And here indeed, was an uncanny place.

As the chill autumn gales swept over lake and landscape, no light of warmth shone from a single window in the St. Joseph Hotel. The houses loomed indistinctly and gloomily in the shadows of darkness, and, when the moon was shining, the place glowed with faint phosphorescence suggesting supernatural presences.

At last a war hit the world and curious consequences followed. Prices soared to unheard of figures. Lumber increased in value to such an extent that builders cast eyes at mouldering St. Joseph. Wreckers were engaged, and once more the neighborhood is alive with the sound of axe and hammer and crashing timber. Soon their work will be finished, the last load of material will rumble along the country road to a distant railway siding, and the workmen will fold their tents. Thus endeth the "dream city."—Ottawa Journal.

Listen!

Have you heard about Peps? Peps is a scientific preparation put up in pastille form, which provides an entirely new and effective treatment for coughs, colds, chest and throat troubles.

Peps contain certain medicinal ingredients, which, when placed upon the tongue, immediately turn into vapor, and are breathed down the air passages to the lungs. On their journey, they soothe the inflamed and irritated membranes of the bronchial tubes, the delicate walls of the air passages, and finally enter and carry relief and healing to the lungs.

In a word, while no liquid or solid can get to the lungs and air passages, these Peps fumes get there direct, and at once commence healing.

IF FARMERS STRUCK

We ask the city workers to ponder a moment what might happen if the farmers should do what the workers are doing—demanding shorter hours and higher pay. The farmers are their own bosses so they would not have to quarrel with anybody. They could hold out on strike until they got good and ready, for they can feed themselves. You working fellows, suppose for a moment that the farmers adopted the eight-hour day; it would cut down production at least one-half. Suppose they also set a price on their labor and their products based on an eight hour basic scale. Where would you get your food? Only the rich could buy it at all, for [illegible] prohibitive to men on strike. If the cost of living is too high now, how will less food production affect it? How will increased cost of production bring down prices? If you city workers expect the farmers to go on feeding you at the old prices you have got to get back to work at the old wage and make it possible for the farmer to buy cheaper so that he can produce cheaper. This is not a one-sided game. It takes two to play it and, if you city fellows quit, don't get 'sore' if you go hungry soon. Either the farmers must do as you are doing, shorten the hours and demand higher pay, or else they must lengthen the hours and produce more without pay. The farmers have been patient with you. When they lose their patience, look out. If they quit, who is going to feed you? What city workers have in common with farmers is not so much political as economic. What are you going to do about it?

SPECIAL SERVICE AT MURRAY ST REET WELL ATTENDED

Those who found their way to the Murray street Church last night had no disappointment in the service of Mr. Leichliter.

He is a tall boyish looking Southerner, whose very presence inspires the audience with the feeling that something unusual is happening. There is no slang in his address and his methods are all such as becomes the grandeur and dignity of his theme.

The choir gallery was filled and he led the singing of the Gospel hymns himself.

His solo was one of his own composition, "He Loves Me Still." Its sentiment and rendering will abide for many days with those who heard it.

The subject chosen was, "Some Meditations on the New Birth." The appeal was not to the emotions but his illustrations were so well chosen and so impressively delivered that the audience was strangely moved.

To-night Mr. Leichliter will, by special request sing "The Ninety and Nine," by Campion.

The service of song will begin at seven forty-five and as far as possible it is desired that the people shall be in their places at eight o'clock.

Toasted mushroom sandwiches are a novelty.

"DO YOU FOLLOW ME?"

You See the Point, of Course, if You Get the Idea.

No person who values his self respect and who doesn't want to be lied to will ever say "Do you follow me?" when expounding a subject to a friend or acquaintance. There are so many reasons against the use of this interrogatory that only two or three of the best ones need be mentioned.

If you are enunciating words of wisdom the chances are nine hundred and ninety-eight out of nine hundred and ninety-nine that you are not being followed. On the other hand, if you are enunciating foolish words it makes no difference whether you are being followed or not. A still more important reason, however, is embodied in the simple but inescapable fact that no man can ever be quite sure that he understands what the other fellow is trying to express.

Therefore the proper answer to the question "Do you follow me?" is always, "I don't know." That, of course, makes the question itself absurd, and it is made still more absurd by the fact that few are honest enough to answer, "I don't know," but insist upon lying and saying, "Oh, yes; I follow you all right enough."

It is clear, therefore, that the effort is quite hopeless. If you have something to express all you can do is to pick out the most intelligent person or persons you can find, express your idea as well as you can and let it go at that. Do you get the idea?

Cranberry Apple Sauce.

A French Canadian guide came into camp greatly excited. He had a handful of wild cranberries, which he exhibited with pride.

"You know the li'l' cranberrie?" he asked the assembled party. "Well, you take the li'l' cranberrie an' you put him on the fire with plenty of de sug—oh, big lot of de sug—an' you let him cook long time. Then you take him off an' let him cool. An' voila! You have a more better apple sauce than you can make out of de prune!"

SANDRA THE JEALOUS

BY JANE PHELPS

ROSE EXPRESSES HER OPINION OF EVERETT

CHAPTER XLIX

When I saw Everett I was so astonished I lost what little wit I ever possessed, and instead of answering I just stared at him.

"Well, why don't you speak? Where have you been until this time?" again looking at the watch he held in his hand.

"To the theater," I faltered.

"Who said you could go to the theater? I thought I expressly told you in my letter to go to bed early."

"Everett, don' tyou see Rose, Rose Grandon—you met her out home you know?"

"Yes I remembea Miss Grandon," he inclined his head slightly, as with a faint' good night' Rose slipped past us, up to her room.

In a way I was glad she had gone, that she would no longer be a witness to my humiliation. In another way I wished she had remained. Everett might have been less unreasonable.

Neither of us had replied to Rose's 'good night,' but as soon as she had gone Everett said:

"Come into the library!"

I followed meekly, but I didn't feel one bit meek inside. He had been away for days, hadn't told me what he was doing or anything. He had n't even kissed me. Father alv ays kissed mother severa times if he had been away over one night.

I stood opposite him after he switched on the lights.

"Why didn't you obey me?" he asked sternly.

"Because— because —why Everett, I haven't done anything wrong. I only—"

"When I tell you to remain at home, to retire early, I expect to be obeyed."

"But I am not a child!" I don't know where I got the courage to speak up as I did. "I was lonely. I asked Rose to come and stay with me while you were gone. I couldn't read or do anything, I was so lonesome. And after she came we had to do something. I am sure that you wouldn't have talked to Leola the way you do to me. I am ashamed to have Rose go home and tell how I am treated." I stopped, frightened almost to death. I had not meant to mention his first wife — to this day I don' know what made me do it. But I was so hurt and angry.

Everett had turned a pasty gray color when I mentioned Leola, and the knuckles of his hands which gripped the table were white and strained. For a moment he did not reply. Then in a voice I scarcely recognized, he said:

"Go upstairs and go to bed."

"Aren't you coming?" I asked, frightened at his looks.

"Not now—but go!"

I went.

Rose was watching for me, and followed me into my room.

"Your poor dear! I was awfully envious of you—all your wonderful clothes, this beautiful home and everything. But I'm not jealous any longer. He's a bear! I wouldn't live with him for a million dollars! I'd be frightened to death to breathe naturally for fear he wouldn't like it. Give me a young man who likes fun, and loves me!" she fined with a great deal of emphasis on the' loves me.'

"H e was cross because I didn't do as he said," was all I could think of in the way of an apology.

"But you're a married woman! You're not a child living at home with your father and mother. They have a right to boss you, he hasn't. I wouldn't put up with it for a minute. I'd show him where he got off," she finished slangily.

Just then I heard a movement downstairs.

"Run back to your room Rose. He's coming"! and like a frightened rabbit she scuttled back.

"What did your friend have to say to you that couldn't keep till morning?" Everett asked as he closed the door.

"She said she would rather marry a man who loved her than to have all you have given me." I had purposely left out the 'young.'

"So she thinks I do not love you?"

"Of course."

"Why—of course?"

"Because — why — because of the way you act—the way you treat me."

"I see. And you agree with her?"

"Yes. I can't help it. You have been away over a week. You haven't kissed me, nor said a kind word. When father went away for one night he loved mother most to death' when he came back."

He made no reply, and I crawled into bed quivering with anger and disappointment; yet glad he had not asked who took us to the theater.

To-morrow—Rose Goes Home.

Nobody is a "light sleeper" naturally. Give your body and nerves a chance to relax, and you'll sink into a sound, deep sleep.

You'll get rid of all your fatigue poisons and wake up feeling and looking fresh and fit.

But do you ever relax?

If your bed has a loose joint, if it rattles or squeaks, if your spring creaks every time you turn —you can't get deep, sound sleep. You may get up even more tired than when you went to bed.

FOLKS who have been light sleepers and heavy dreamers all their lives, sleep soundly on a Simmons Metal Bed, with Waldorf Box Spring—and Simmons Mattress and Pillows to complete the equipment for restful sleep.

The Simmons Metal Bed is noiseless. It locks firmly at the corners. The corner locks are made of pressed steel — have much longer bearing surfaces than the average—fit true and snug—not a creak, rattle, or feeling of unsteadiness.

It is perfectly rigid—feels and moves like one solid piece.

The Simmons Pressed Steel Corner Locks are protected by basic patents — exclusive with Simmons Limited, not to be duplicated or imitated.

And these patented corner locks have made possible the

HERE'S A CHANCE FOR $50,000 A YEAR MEN.

LONDON, Eng.—Sir Albert Stanley (who is now again controlling the underground railways of London) spoke of the difficulty of finding men who were capable of earning a salary of $50,000 a year, although, he said, it was not difficult to find men for positions of $2,500 to $5,000 a year.

There were plenty of positions, added Sir Albert, that would carry salaries of $50,000 if they could only find the men who would fill the bill.

HOW HE WORKED IT.

(Exchange.)

Her hat obscured his view at the theatre, and in kindly voice he leaned forward and asked if it would be possible for her to remove it.

A stiffening of the head was her only answer. After a few moments he repeated his request. Then she turned on him.

"There is no demand for my doin' so!" she said.

"No demand?" he echoed.

Then he rolled his overcoat and placed it on the seat, sat on it, and, getting his hat from under the seat, placed it on his head.

In a moment there was a cry of "Take that hat off!"

And with a swift movement the lad unfastened her hatpins and removed her hat. So did the man.

WILL HAVE SUPPORT OF THE AUTHORITES

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 16.—There is reason to believe that the stand taken by Canada in regard to the Lenroot reservation to the peace treaty will have the support of the Imperial authorities. The question of Canada's status in the League of Nations raised by the reservation, has been the subject of a number of confidential communications which have passed lately between Ottawa and London. While the attitude of the Imperial government will not be finally determined until the reservation is submitted to the treaty signatories, it is regarded here as very probable that Great Britain would assent to the course in vital opposition to the wishes of the overseas Dominions, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand, it is stated, are equally emphatic that their status and voting power in the League shall no be impaired.

CHIEF THOMPSON MAY ALSO GET A MOTOR DRIVEN VEHICLE—POLICE COMMISSIONERS MEET.

The first meeting of the Board of Police Commission for 1920 was held yesterday afternoon in the committee room of the City Hall, those present being Judge Huycke, Magistrate Dumble, Mayor McIntyre, Chief Thompson and City Clerk Armstrong. Mayor McIntyre was welcomed to the Board by last year's chairman, Judge Huycke, who occupied the chair temporarily. The Mayor thanked the chairman for his welcome and said that he was pleased to be on the Board.

The acting chairman said that the first thing to be done was to select a chairman for 1920 and he advanced the name of Magistrate Dumble, who, however, declined the honor, and seconded a motion by the Mayor that Judge Huycke be re-elected chairman this year. Judge Huycke thanked them for his re-election and expressed the hope that during the year the Board would be carried on as harmoniously as in the past, and in briefly referring to the past year he spoke commendingly of the Chief of Police and of the whole staff, which has been loyal and carried on its duties to the best of its ability.

The Communications.

After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting held on Dec 30 last several communications were read by the Assistant City Clerk.

The resignation of Police Sergeant Arthur Blade from the police force, to take effect on Feb. 29, was read. Each of the members spoke with regret at losing Sergeant Blade, who has been a valued member of the force for eight years and has shown ability and initiative in the department. The Chief stated that the position Blade was accepting was more remunerative and said that he didn't think they could induce him to stay, in answer to Judge Huycke, who suggested that they might induce him to stay if the salaries were considerably increased. The chairman suggested that they get in touch with Sergeant Blade and see if he could not be induced to stay if his salary was increased. Sergeant Blade himself appeared shortly.

Judge Huycke explained how the salaries would in all probability be increased and they would like him to stay as he had been a very efficient officer. Sergeant Blade replied that the salary he had received was too low, and although he liked the work, the larger salary offered by the Imperial Oil Co. was what tempted him.

The matter was left in abeyance until the salaries have been readjusted when he will be approached to reconsider his decision.

Another Resignation

The resignation of Police Constable Leslie Bristow was read. The Chief expressed the regret of the whole force at the loss of this promising young officer, who was a great favorite in the force, and who showed great ability. Bristow had planned to go west and perhaps join the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, but it was intimated by the Chief that their inadequate salary was also responsible for the loss of Bristow, and that if the salaries were increased, he too might be induced to return. The matter was left in abeyance.

A letter was read from the Grand Army of Canada at Toronto, asking permission for the showing of the moving picture of the Willard-Dempsey bout at Peterborough about Feb. 12. The Chief said he could offer no objection. "A brutal, beastly business," the Magistrate termed it, "and I wouldn't encourage it at all." As the date was passed the matter was left over.

Truant Officer.

The reading and adoption of the truant officer's report for January marked the passing of the old system and removed a burden off the shoulders of the Police Commissioners, for from now on the Board of Education will look after these matters.

The annual report of the Chief of Police was read by the City Clerk, the statistical information given being omitted. It was decided to take up some of Chief Thompson's recommendations at the meeting and so the question of the car for the police force was discussed at once. In answer to Mr. Dumble's inquiries the Chief enumerated other cities that maintained automobiles for the police, among these being Brantford, where it has been found very useful. "Ford cars are much in use," said the Chief.

He explained how it was necessary to have a car for getting to the outlying districts, which could not be properly policed now. The chairman pointed out that in the recommendations, a car and two men were recommended, and asked him if either one was secured could the other be dispensed with. "No, I don't think so. More protection is needed for the residential parts."

The Magistrate was opposed to the matter. "We must retrench and cut down expenses," he said, and wanted to know about the cost of upkeep. Magistrate Dumble moved, seconded by the Mayor, that the City Clerk write to police departments having cars and inquire as to the cost of upkeep and their efficiency.

Pension Fund.

Of the Pension Fund or group insurance recommended, the Chief said that he favored the former and went on to describe the system at London Ontario. An annual grant of $500 is given by the Council and some 7 or 8 p.c. of the men's salaries also go into this fund, which has grown until it now amounts to about $150,000. It is looked after by a Board of Trustees made up of the Police Commissioners and representatives of the Force and is looked after by the government, like any other insurance company.

All the members were in favor of some such scheme, but the Magistrate wished to get more information before any definite steps were taken. The need for such a fund was briefly explained by the Chief and it was moved and seconded that the City Council be informed that the Police Commissioners have a pension fund system under view for the police force and ask for their opinion on the matter, as an annual grant of approximately $500 will be required. In the meantime inquiries will be made by the Chief in various cities having such a fund to determine which have the best system which might be adaptable to Peterborough.

Two New Men Wanted.

The addition of two new men to the department was taken up. There are now 13 men on the force, including the Chief. "That's an unlucky number," said Judge Huycke. The Chief explained that the city was not properly policed as they were short staffed and the residential sections could not be very well covered. All the members expressed themselves in favor of the addition of at least one man. "People seem to think there are too many policemen now, but they forget that policemen must eat and sleep," said Magistrate Dumble.

Judge Huycke said that he had heard that Peterborough had fewer police than any other city, but he felt that if they got the car only one man could be taken on, and later on, if another man was necessary, he would be secured.

The Chief agreed to this and it was moved by Magistrate Dumble, seconded by the Mayor, that one more man be added to the department.

The Magistrate brought to the attention of the Board the excessive speed allowed by the Motor Vehicles Act and said that 20 miles an hour was too fast and dangerous, and his viewpoint was the viewpoint of the other members so Magistrate Dumble was instructed to draw up a resolution to memorialize the legislature about this matter and to have it ready for the next meeting.

The most important matter before the Board was that of the increases in salary asked for by the officers at the last meeting and which was left over till the meeting of the 1920 Board. All the members agreed that an increase was necessary, and the Chief showed the scale of salaries in other places and also a new scale drawn up by himself; the new salaries being between those paid by Windsor and Stratford. This mater was left over till the next meeting, to be held on Saturday afternoon next. This meeting will be held then, as the Council desires all estimates to be in by the first of March. The meeting adjourned about 5.45.

WILSON OUTLINES AMERICAN POLICY.

MAY CONSIDER WITHDRAWAL FROM THE ORIGINAL PEACE TREATY.

(Canadian Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—President Wilson, in his memorandum to he Allies concerning their proposed Adriatic settlement, informed them that the United States might have to consider withdrawing the Versailles Treaty from the Senate if the Allies went ahead with their plans without the consent of the United States.

This statement was made officially here to-day, with the further statement that the American position was outlined not in the nature of a threat, but as a statement of the situation created by an act of the British, French, and Italian Premiers, which would place the United States in the position, if it were a party to the Versailles Treaty, of subscribing to the rights of sovereignty and other agreements, to which it was opposed.

To Remove Discolored, Coarse or Chapped Skin

If your skin is chapped, rough or harsh, dab a liberal amount or mercolized wax on the face and allow it to remain over night. When you wash off the wax in the morning, fine flaky, almost invisible particles of cuticle come with it. Repeating this daily, the entire outer film skin is soon absorbed, but so gradually, there's not the slightest hurt or inconvenience Even the ugliest complexion yields to this treatment. The underlying skin which forms the new complexion is so fresh and youthful looking you'll marvel at the transformation. It's the only reliable way to actually discard an aged, faded, freckled, blotchy or weather-beaten complexion. One ounce of mercolized wax, procurable at any drug store, is sufficient in most cases.

PARIS STYLES SHOW A WIDE VARIETY

DRESSMAKERS OFFER THE INDIVIDUAL LATITUDE IN THE SPRING FASHIONS.

PARIS,—According to their tastes and the houses they patronize, women who buy their clothes in Paris next Spring will be rolled like Cleopatra, gowned with dignity and large panniers in the style of their ancestors of 1830 or tricked out sprucely with what is termed an air of Parisian impudence.

There has never been so great a variety of design as is to be seen at the exhibitions of the great shops now going on. What is to be the fashion will be for the buyers and women to decide, for the dressmakers are trying something of everything.

One concession seems to be general. Designers in fixing the length of skirts and the height of the backs of dresses have taken into account what other nationalities than the French will wear. They have had an eye on the American market and among the models are always some of the graceful frocks that suit American women best.

One of the new houses, Madeleine & Madeleine, in the Champs Elysees, has especially given attention to the long-waisted type. In its evening gowns it follows Egyption styles, abundantly embroidered and hung with jewelled chains and ornaments.

Another innovation is the return of the sleeve. Sometimes, it is true, it is scarcely large enough to be noticed. But it has returned and the bare arms of the last season are no longer in favor. When it is long the sleeve is baggy at the wrist and when it is short it makes a puff at the shoulder. As displayed by mannequins, it takes away something from the undressed appearance which has characterized the styles of the last year.

As more shops open their showrooms, it becomes obvious that the pannier is losing the battle which it started last year. Some of its advocates have gone ahead with it and exaggerated its effect until it resembles the crinoline, but others have left it severaly alone. Getting about in an automobile has apparently been too difficult for Paris women when encumbered by hoops. Only for ball dresses and perhaps for garden parties and fashionable race meetings are we likely to see reproductions of what was worn when the United States was young.

The last of three categories into which the styles may be divided finds successful advocates in another new house, that of Charlotte Germaine, which adopted it consistently in all its designs. The skirt is as short as it ever was and the hips have the ease of the pannier effect. In details which follow no historic style, there is a modern touch in these dresses.

Though there is no uniformity there is this at least to be said that out of the anarchy of styles every woman will be able to choose what suits her best.

STILL FIGHTING OVER THE TREATY

ADRIATIC CONTROVERSY REACHES A NEW TURN.

(Canadian Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17. — The Versailles Treaty, and the Anglo-Franco-American pact are considered inseparable, as far as the question is concerned, and if the President should determine to withdraw the Treaty, it would mean that the American-French pact would be withdrawn at the same time, it was explained.

It was reiterated that on 9th December, before Acting Secretary Polk left Paris, the American, French, and British representatives had agreed on the settlement of the Adriatic question, and it was charged that subsequently, without consulting the United States, the Allied Premiers, sitting at Paris, adopted a new agreement, which was transmitted to Ambassador Wallace for the approval of the American Government.

This, it was said, came as a great surprise to the American Government, which sent a communication to the Allied Premiers to ask if they proposed to settle the question without consulting the American Government.

The Premiers were said to have replied that they did not intend doing so, but later sent an ultimatum to Jugo-Slavia, that unless it accepted the new settlement, the terms of the original Treaty of London would be carried out.

Alkali in Shampoos Bad for Washing Hair

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful if all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather cleanses thoroughly and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

AIR SERVICE

Means of Locating Forest Fires in the West.

(Canadian Press.)

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 17.—An air service to be utilized for forest patrol, mail service and police patrols over sparsely populated districts of the west, will be established in the near future, according to Major McLaren, of the Imperial Air Board. It is proposed that an airdome with twelve machines will be built at Calgary and a similar programme has been drawn up for the Peace River district.

CHILDREN'S COUGHS QUICKLY CURED

It is very hard to keep the children from taking cold. They will run out of doors not properly dressed —play too hard and become overheated—get their feet wet—kick the bed clothes off at night.

There is nothing so good for children's coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough or bronchitis as Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It is so pleasant to the taste the youngsters take it without any fuss, and at the same time its promptness and effectiveness in loosening the phlegm and healing the lungs and the bronchial tubes are such that the cough is checked before any serious trouble can possibly develop.

Mrs. Harold Acker, Lake Pleasant, N. S., writes: "I have three children, the eldest eight years old and the baby ten months old. They all had a bad cough. I knew of quite a few persons who had used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup with good results so I got three bottles. I am glad I did so as it is a sure cure for coughs and colds. A home where there are children should never be without it. I highly recommend it to those who need a quick cure."

PETES AND KINGSTON TIE ROUND PLAY OFF IN BELLEVILLE THURSDAY

LOCAL TEAM GIVEN A ROUGH PASSAGE IN TERRIFIC BATTLE AT KINGSTON, THE EASTERNERS WINNING BY 4 GOALS TO 1---PETES ROBBED OF A GOAL THAT WOULD HAVE MEANT THE ROUND TO THEM.

IT WAS A GREAT GAME

After getting as tough a gruelling as ever a Peterborough team has had to endure, and being robbed of a goal in the bargain, the Petes emerged from last night's game at Kingston losers by 4 goals to 1, exactly the reverse of Friday's score. The count on the round, therefore is 5-5, and the teams will settle their difference with a sudden death game in Belleville on Thursday night.

Last night's game was one of the most exciting ever seen in Kingston, the pace being lightning fast from start to finish. The Petes got the only goal scored in the first period, finding the nets thirty seconds before the session ended. Kingston scored twice in the second, getting the first counter in 6.40 minutes and taking the lead ten minutes afterward. It was 2 to 1 at the end of the period.

Less than two minutes of the third period had elapsed when Kingston added another goal to their string and were only one down on the round. The minutes dragged along, however until there were less than five minutes to play, when Elmer scored the tally that evened the count.

Even then, however, the Petes would have won the round if they had obtained a square deal. With a minute to go Ray Rose took a rebound off the end of the rink and slammed the rubber back at Tobin. The puck struck the goaler's pads and caromed into the nets. A Kingston man was goal umpire at this end and he refused to raise his hand. Tobin managed to grab the rubber with his hand and drop it outside before Referee Marsh could lamp the play and the goal was not counted.

The Petes got a rough passage, most of the dirty work taking place behind Referee Marsh's back. Slashing over the ankle and the arm, crosschecking and butt-ending were the Kingston gang's repertoire and they worked the inside stuff overtime. They made a dead set on Keevin Murray, and the Peterborough goaler took the count twice. Stewart viciously chopped him over the foot in the first period and the game was held up until he recovered. Near the end of the second period Murray was knocked unconscious when Cook charged in and cross-checked him across the head, putting him out completely. There was absolutely no justification for the assault, for the puck had been cleared into the corner. Lou Marsh gave Cook ten minutes for the cowardly attack and then reduced the sentence to five minutes.

Every member of the Peterborough team bears on his person souvenirs of the battle, and they were a badly battered bunch of hockeyists when it was all over. Pete Thornton was knocked out in the second period and the rest were all more or less on the casualty list. Referee Marsh did his best to cut out the rough stuff, but a lot of it was not pulled in the open. Two officials are necessary to keep a crew like the Kingston outfit in line. All of last night's winners, with the exception of Tobin, Smith and Derry were guilty of tactics of which they should have been ashamed.

It was a rip roaring game of hockey before a crowd that packed every crevice in the Kingston rink. Some fifty Peterborough fans went down for the battle and had difficulty in getting a glimpse of the ice.

Although their brilliant hockey was marred by the tactics they used, the Kingston crew played much better hockey than in Peterborough. They showed a world of speed on the fast ice and never stopped trying, the chief driving power being supplied by Lloyd Brown, the fast skating defence man, who kept tearing down in rush after rush. He was always going, and it speaks volumes for the work of the Peterborough defence that only one of his rushes ended in a goal. Elmer was also effective and Stewart was much more useful than in Peterborough, while Smith at left wing turned in a good night's work. Tobin made some great stops in the nets.

It is no discredit to the Peterborough team to say that Murray carried off the honors. The Petes goaler has been performing in grand style all along, but in the face of the apparent determination of the Kingston gang to put him out of business, his performance last night was little short of marvellous. Kingston were rushing repeatedly, shooting with speed and accuracy, and tearing in on top of Murray for rebounds, but the goaler picked off the shots with a cool nerve that won the admiration of the hostile crowd. A dozen times he waded out into scrimmages and cleared with two or three Kingston players bunched around him, while he turned aside shots from close in and far out with equal precision. It was a great performance and saved the round for the Petes, for there would have been no play off in Belleville Thursday with a less skilled goaler in the Peterborough nets.

Halpin and Pete Thornton also came through wilth a superfine exhibition of defence work. They were given a busy night and they handled it like the reliable pair they are.

The forward line were not as effective as usual, their chief failing being in their shooting, which was unusually inaccurate. Tobin beat them most of the time when they did get the rubber on the nets, but the majority of their drives were wide or high and this loose aiming cost them many good chances. Ray Rose was probably the most effective of the forwards by reason of his tireless backchecking, which helped to break up many a dangerous rush.

The teams were as follows:

Kingston started with a rush and Murray made several stops in the first minute. Early in the period Stewart took a pass close in and his shot hit the goal post and bounded out. There was a dispute over this decision and a new Peterborough goal umpire was installed. Halpin got away with a rink length rush, but his shot was wide. Kingston came back with a rush, but Murray stopped and cleared nicely. Stewart tore in and chopped him over the foot. Murray dropped on the ice and time was called until he recovered. Stewart got two minutes for the attack. A few second after Elmer tripped Pete Thornton and Kingston were two men short. Brown's great rushing saved the situation for Kingston while the two men were off, for he kept the Petes busy and there was no score while they were off. With the teams even Brown tore the length of the rink and shot for the corner of the nets, but Murray leaped across and deflected the rubber with his hand. The Petes were dangerous a moment later on a combination rush, but Tobin made a nice stop. Harry Thornton was hurt and retired, Evans going on. He signalized his appearance with a rush down the side that nearly wound up in a score. Halpin was chased for hooking, but there was nothing doing while he was off. Then Harry Thornton was sent away for tripping. The teams were at full strength again when the Petes broke away on a three man rush. The rubber went into the corner, but Halpin recovered and passed out to Lornie Rose, who beat Tobin for the first goal of the game. Thirty seconds after the period ended.

It was every bit as hot in the second period, with both teams going at top speed. It was hard going, with the checking very close. Murray made several good stops of close-in shots and Tobin turned aside a beauty from Lornie Rose in the first few minutes. Finally, after nearly seven minutes of fast hockey, Cook secured the rubber when Pete Thornton lost it in starting a rush. The Kingston right wing had a clear run in and beat Murray with the tieing goal at close range.

With the score tied the teams dug in afresh and there was some lively hockey in the next few minutes. A long shot by Harry Thornton struck Tobin on the ear and the Kingston goal minder was groggy for a few minutes, but continued.

Both goalers had a lot of work to do in the next few minutes and the period was drawing to a close when Stewart, after a combination rush, put Kingston ahead.

With one minute to go came the attack on Murray, Cook rushing in and nailing him over the head. There was a long delay until he was revived, while Cook was sent to the penalty box. Referee Marsh gave him ten minutes, but changed it to five when he found Murray was not so badly hurt as at first appeared.

Cook was still off when the third period opened, having four minutes to serve. However, Brown's jaunts down the ice kept the Petes' defence busy in spite of the one-man advantage. Finally, one minute and thirty seconds after the period opened, Brown shot down the rink, outskating the Peterborough forwards and letting loose a bullet drive between the defence pair, registered a beautiful goal.

The counter put all kinds of ginger into the Kingston bunch, but it did not frighten the Petes, and they too let out and some of the fastest hockey of the night was thrown into the next few minutes. Both goalers had lots of work to do, with Murray having more than his share. The Kingston forwards followed in like wild cats on their shots, and Murray had to clear in a hurry. On one occasion three blue and white players charged into him at once, upsetting the goaler and tearing the net from its moorings. But Murray got rid of the rubber before the avalanche hit him. Ray Rose drew a penalty for tripping, but the Petes held the enemy at bay while they were a man short. The end of the game was drawing rapidly near, and with the Petes still a goal ahead on the round and Murray apparently unbeatable in the nets, it began to look as if that counter would do the trick. But with less than five minutes to go Elmer and Stewart broke away together and on a pretty piece of combination worked in on top of Murray for the goal that saved the round for Kingston.

With the score on the round 5-5, and only a few minutes left, the battle started afresh and the Kingston rink was no place for bad hearts for the balance of the game. Brown was chased for slashing and with the Kingston defence man off the Petes tried to pull the round out of the fire. A robbery decision by the Kingston goal umpire foiled them. Ray Rose's shot from close in glanced into the nets off Tobin's pads, but the umpire failed to raise his hand and Tobin raked the rubber out before Marsh could see the play. Brown came back and after one rush that looked dangerous, but was broken up by the Pete defence, was again chased for slashing. Time was called shortly after.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

The play-off in Belleville Thursday night should be the greatest battle of the year.

Referee Lou Marsh declares that last night's game was the hardest game to handle he has had in either amateur or professional hockey this season.

Lornie Rose came off the luckiest of any of the Petes. Murray was knocked out twice, Pete Thornton took the count once and has a bad leg and a bump on the cranium, Ray Rose had his leg hurt and so did Grover Halpin, Harry Thornton got a slash on the head. Walter Jackson collected several souvenirs and George Evans received a sly butt-end in the stomach in the last period that doubled him up.

If all the Kingston hockey teams use the tactics of the Kingston intermediates, Kingston should be a fine place for a doctor to live in.

Lou Marsh fell a victim to an old "sell" on the train last night when Gene Hurtubise bet the referee that he could tell him the score of Thursday night's game in Belleville before the game started. Marsh promptly wagered $5 that the Petes' big trainer couldn't name thee score before the game commenced. "It will be 0-0 before the game starts," said Gene as he grabbed the stakes.

Even some of the Kingston fans hissed Cook for his cowardly assault on Murray in the second period.

When Cook scored for Kingston in the second period last night it was the first time that Kingston had beaten Murray in 48 minutes and 40 seconds. They scored their only goal in the game here with two minutes to play in the second period and from then on until six minutes and 40 seconds had elapsed in the second period of last night's game not a shot passed Murray. He must have stopped a hundred during that long period.

There will likely be two officials, a referee and a judge of play, in Thursday's game at Belleville. One official could not prevent the Kingston rough house tactics.

CRUSHING DEFEAT FOR THE FIRE HALL TEAM

The much-tooted Fire Hall team met a great defeat last evening that will no doubt keep them quiet for the rest of the season, as the Y.M.C.A. (Employed Boys) handed them an awful trimming by the score of 5 to 3. There was no doubt about the issue of the game, as the score at the various periods showed the following standing:

1st period, 2—0; 2nd period, 3—2; 3rd period, 5—3.

Bergoine in goal for the "Y." was easily the star, while Hamilton and Legon, on the forward line, showed up well. For the Fire Hall McDougall and Pethick were the stars. Eddie Foley refereed the game to the satisfaction of both teams.

The line-up was as follows:

Y.M.C.A.		Fire Hall.
Bergoine	Goal.	LeBarr
Hamilton	R. Defence.	Bugg
Ward	L. Defence.	LeBarr
Legon	R. Wing.	Pethick
Long	L. Wing.	McDougall
Hensley	Centre.	Parrington
Dillon, Grimes	Subs.	Turner, Whitlow

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"POLLYANNA."

Standing room only was available at the Grand last evening for the performance of Cathrine C. Cushing's play, "Pollyanna," and any anticiption the large audience had of something really good was more than realised. It was a play with no great plot and no intricate situations—merely the story of a little girl whose gospel of gladness brought sunshine to each home and person she visited; a play changing so suddenly from pathos to sunshine the the audience had not time to shed the tears which involuntarily started to their eyes when Pollyanna, the little orphan, faced some extremely pathetic situations, from which, however, through her own childish efforts, she always emerged serenely.

Mary Pickford, who in various roles has repeatedly proved her superiority as a screen actress, is more human and more accomplished in the role of the child Pollyanna than in any she has yet appeared. The part she played, that of the little orphan daughter of a mountain missionary transplanted forcibly into the home of a maiden aunt, who takes her only from a sense of duty, and who finally, through her guileless ways, gradually wins her affections and those of all about her, was so exquisitely handled that it was hardly believable that she was not indeed a child. Her support was also very good.

The Walsh Sisters appeared in a pleasing musical act during the evening.

A NEW INDUSTRY.

Turpentine Produced in Large Quantities From Douglas Fir.

(Canadian Press.)

VICTORIA, B.C., Feb. 17.—A new industry for British Columbia which, according to its advocate, W. C. Oliver, of the Douglas Fir Turpentine Co., of California, promises to have most wonderful possibilities, is being considered by Hon. T. D. Pattullo and the experts of the forests products department.

The Douglas fir, which Mr. Oliver describes as "the most valuable economic timber in the world, and one of the prime assets of British Columbia," can, he declares, be made to produce hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of turpentine, resin and other by-products, while at the same time the timber growth of the tree can be enormously accelerated.

The schedule games were resumed last night after being postponed for over a week on account of the Bonspiel held last week. Two more games were scheduled but had to be called off. There are still a good many games to be played off and the remainder of the winter should be a busy time for the curlers.

The Oshawa Bonspiel opens on Wednesday and four Peterboro rinks will likely journey to the lake shore town to take in this Bonspiel which is always a top notcher amongst the different Bonspiel.

DISTRICT CUP RINKS GONE.

Peterboro's District Cup rinks changed their minds last night, filled up a couple of gaps in their ranks and left on the early morning trains this morning. Fear of the "Flu" was said to be the deterrent that was holding some of the players it was said. It was remembered, however, that the district play off had been postponed by G. S. Pearcy, secretary of the Ontario Curling Association at the special request of the Peterboro Club, through the president, Mr. G. H. Giroux. It was generally felt, therefore, that the club was more or less obligated to enter the finals of the competition.

Mr. J. W. Fraser's place on J. W. McDermid's rink was filled by moving up his second and first stones. Herb Hair viceing and Jack Lowes playing second. W. C. Weber was assessed as lead.

Walter Oke was taken on Ray Best's rink in his absence. The other members are W. D. Campbell, Alex. Archibald and Ross Lobbin.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN IN CARMEN AT GRAND THEATRE

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, the Grand will present for the first time in this city the most original Chaplin production ever conceived. The presentation will consist of the four reel Chaplin feature, "A Burlesque on Carmen," supplemented by a novel revue consisting of the Carmen Dancing Girls, Spanish Jazz Band, and Carmelita, a famous premier dancer of Spain. The attraction will afford a complete evening's entertainment to the movie goers of the city and combined with the appearance of the famous comedian in the feature picture, Carmen, should prove one of the most remarkable drawing cards ever presented. Following the presentation of the pictures, the Carmen dancing girls, ten in number, will be seen in a series of the latest dance ensembles, led by a well known artist.

A novel feature of the Carmen Revue will be the Spanish Jazz Band, costumed as Toreadors, who in addition to supplying the music for the chorus, will present their original conception of "Spanish Jazz." This will include several solo numbers by various members of the band.

The climax of the act will be the sensational and artistic Spanish dance of Carmelita, a premiere artist, who has appeared for several years in Madrid. During the course of the presentation a special song number, "Carmen," writen by Wm. J. McKenna, author of "Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly," will be introduced for the first time in this city.

MENACE TO CHURCH.

(Canadian Press.)

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 17.— The menace to the Christian church and to Christian ideals which is entailed by immigration from the foreign countries where people have not come under the influence of the Christian church was emphasized by Rev. Dr. C. W. Gordon preaching at St. Stephen's church.

"No wonder there are recruiting grounds of agnosticism, infidelism and Bolshevism in this country," he said when one considered that forty-three per cent. of the people in the three western provinces are people of non-Anglo-Saxon and non-Celtic stock.

FARMERS NATIONAL PARTY ORIGINATED AS A PROTEST

(Canadian Press.)

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 17.—The new agrarian movement represented by the Farmers National party originated as a protest against conditions that prevailed in this country, said Miss Mary P. McCallum, associated editor of the Grain Growers' Guide, speaking at the Grace Church forum. Protests were being made against existing conditions in every country, and she believed they were healthy signs of the times. The farmers national party, she said, looked at national questions from the national viewpoint and sought to deal with them in the national interest and not from the class point of view. In this new movement the women has just as much responsibility as the men, and in some respects it might be said that the women had a greater responsibility than the men. If the women fell down in this responsibility, it would be fair to question if they were worthy of the franchise, she said.

Miss McCallum ventured to predict that the Farmers' National movement would have all the progressive thought on its side.

General Remarks.

On the 1st of February, 1919, Mrs. Bunton, wife of Adjutant Bunton, was appointed Police Matron and she has done her work in a very able and efficient manner.

I desire to express my thanks in a special way to Mr. G. W. Hatton, County Crown Attorney, Mr. Joseph Wearing, solicitor for the Children's Aid Society, also Mr. George Powell, Agent for the said Society for the valuable assistance they have given the Magistrate and myself in dealing with Juvenile offenders.

I take pleasure in commending to you, the members of this Department, who with few exceptions have given their duties diligent attention and put forth their best efforts for the success of the Department and the interest of the City.

Street Traffic By-law.

During the Year there were twenty-six persons brought before the Police Court for a breach of this By-law. I hope that drivers of vehicles will be more careful, particularly in the congested parts of the City where the traffic is heavy.

I would suggest that the drivers of heavy and slow moving vehicles keep as close as possible to the right hand curb or side of the street, thus complying with this By-law, for there is still much room for improvement along these lines.

The Chief Constable's Association of Canada meets for their Annual Convention for the Year 1920 in the City of Moncton, N.B. I trust Gentlement you will provide for my attendance at same.

Recommendations.

I wish on this occasion to renew such of my previous recommendations as have not been carried out on a previous occasion, I ask the Board to consider the advisability of establishing in connection with our Department a Pension Fund and I pointed out at that time the fact that our Department consisted of mostly young men and in all probability it would be a number of years before there would be any drain on the Fund and such a fund would have a tendency of making the men more permsient and permanency makes efficiency.

I understand that the City of Brantford has adopted the pension system in connection with their Police Department, other cities are considering the question of Group Insurance as many of our manufacturers are doing.

I would therefore urge that the Board seriously consider and adopt either a pension fund or group insurance for the Department this year.

In one of my previous reports I recommended that a Motor Vehicle be purchased for the use of the Department. We have arrived at a time when it is absolutely necessary to install one if we intend to keep the Department up to a high standard of efficiency.

The residential parts of the City are without Police Protection as regards Patrolmen and when an officer is wanted it is necessary for the citizen to call the station and it frequently takes a man from twenty minutes to half an hour to reach the out-lying districts. When he arrives the trouble is over and the culprits escaped. this often occurs where women and girls are molested but if an automobile was installed this matter would be overcome by picking up one or two Constables and getting to the scene of the trouble quickly.

I would also recommend that two men be added to the strength of the Department thereby enabling me to place some men on patrol duty in the residential sections so as to give some protection in case of fire breaking out in the early hours of the morning, as it is now whole families might be burned up and there is no one to turn in the alarm for this is one of a Police Constable's most important duties.

In conclusion I desire to thank Your Honourable Board for the deep interest taken in the work of the Department during the Year 1919 and for the valuable assistance rendered and for the courtesy shown me at all times.

All of which is Respectfully Submitted.

Your obedient servant,
Chief Constable.

JUSTICE ORDE WELCOMED BY BENCH AND BAR

BEGAN JUDICIAL DUTIES IN ASSIZE COURT IN THE CITY HIS FOREFATHERS HELPED TO FOUND.

Recently appointed to the Supreme Court of Ontario, the Honourable Mr. Justice Orde began his judicial career with the opening of the Spring Assizes at the Court-House this afternoon. By a happy coincident, deeply tinged, however, by the death of Chief Justice Sir Glenholme Falconbridge, who was to have presided at the local sittings of the Supreme Court, Mr. Justice Orde entered upon his judicial duties in the home of his ancestors, among them the late Judge Hall, who was the first Judge of the County of Peterborough.

Before the opening of the Court, His Lordship met and was introduced to the members of the Peterborough Bar, who afterwards publicly welcomed him to the Court-room, extending to him a warm and affectionate greeting, and congratulating him upon his elevation to the bench. Mr. F. D. Kerr and Crown Attorney Hatton, speaking in behalf of the members of the local Bar, referred to the family ties that connected His Lordship with the City and County of Peterborough, and of the appropriateness of his coming to this city for his initial sittings in the Assize Court.

A cordial welcome was also offered to Mrs. Orde, who was present with Mrs. Huycke, Mrs. J. C. Smith, the Misses Hall and Mrs. F. D. Kerr, intimate friends and relatives of His Lordship.

Judge Huycke added his welcome on behalf of the people of the city and county, and, in reply, Mr. Justice Orde spoke feelingly of his realization that he was in the old home of his forefathers, and of the death of Sir Glenholme Falconbridge, and stated that he began his judicial duties with a feeling of humility.

The lawyers present were: Messrs. R. R. Hall, G. N. Gordon, O. A. Langley, G. W. Hatton, F. D. Kerr, John R. Corkery, J. F. Strickland, Joseph Wearing, George Sherry, J. A. O'Brien, E. L. Goodwill, and R. S. Robertson, of Toronto.

In addressing Mr. Justice Orde, Mr. F. D. Kerr said that the cordial welcome the members of the Bar extended sprang particularly from the fact that His Lordship, through his maternal and paternal grandfathers, had a close connection with the history and the law of the county of Peterborough.

"When we look over the bench and see the photograph of your distinguished grandfather, who, at the age of 26, was the first County Judge of this important county, we feel that it is only just that you should be here," said Mr. Kerr. "We are not ignorant of the fact that your attainment of this high position was brought about by your zealousness in your profession, and that you kept before you the high standards of that great and honourable profession. We feel sure that in the days to come the name of Mr. Justice Orde will be treasured with those that have gone before you. On behalf of the members of the Bar of Peterborough, and indeed of the citizens of this city and county, I wish Your Lordship a long life, happy in the pursuit of truth and justice. After all, that which satisfies a judge is not the applause of the people, but the quiet approval of his own conscience. We feel sure that in your hands that tradition will be worthily and splendidly carried on."

His Lordship's Reply.

Replying to Judge Huycke, Mr. Hatton, and Mr. Kerr, Mr. Justice Orde said, in part: "I thank you very sincerely for your extremely kind words of welcome. So much kindness has been shown me since the news of my appointment that I wonder if I shall measure up to what my friends expect of me."

After referring to his close relationship with Sir Glenholme Falconbridge, His Lordship said that Charles Rubridge came to this place in the early part of the last century with Peter Robinson and helped to settle the present city of Peterborough. "I am proud to think I am his grandson. His daughter married my grandfather. On my mother's side, John Hall owned part of this Court-house hill, and created an establishment at Buckhorn that was afterwards known as Hall's Bridge. Another grandfather was the second Rector of St. John's Church.

"I take my judicial duties in a humble frame of mind. I have not yet overcome the feeling that I am just beginning. I know I will require the help of my brother judges and of the members of the Bar.

"I thank you for your kind reference to my wife. I am not yet fifty, yet in April next we shall celebrate the twenty-eighth anniversary of our wedding."

His Lordship quoted from Micah: "He hath showed thee, O man, what is good, and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God," stressing the tempering of mercy with justice, and the spirit of humility.

"If I can measure up in some degree to that standard I shall be content."

CLAIMS $1,000 DAMAGES FOR INJURY TO THIGH

The only jury case on the High Court docket is an action by Claude Gray for $1,000 damages against the Peterborough Radial Railway Company, the Hydro-Electric Commission and the Bonner-Worth Company. In the plaintiff's statement of claim it appears that Claude Gray, aged 12 years, and son of Joseph Gray, Gilchrist street, was riding on a Bonner-Worth motor truck on McDonnel street on June 3rd, last when it was struck by an east bound street car. The boy was thrown to the ground, sustaining a fractured thigh and permanent injury. It is alleged that the street car was running at too high a rate of speed and that the Bonner-Worth Company was liable for the acts of its agent and chauffeur, Angus Murray.

50TH ANNIVERSARY WAS COMMEMORATED

MR. AND MRS. S. H. BEST ENTERTAIN AT THEIR HOME.

(Contributed.)

The fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs S. H. Best was commemorated quietly and joyously by the happy couple with their three daughters and a number of relatives and friends, whom they entertained at dinner in their pleasant home on Stewart street, Peterborough, last evening.

The bride of fifty years looked very gentle and sweet and altogether charming in a wonderful silk gown, the same in which she was arrayed on her first wedding day. Strangely enough the groom possesses the broadcloth suit and silk hat he wore at his weding fifty years ago; for the pleasure of his guests he was kind enough to dress for dinner in the clothes which—no doubt with infinite care — he had put on therefore the first time.

Those who sat down at dinner with the bride and groom were the daughters, Miss Louise at home, Mrs. (Rev.) J. R. Watts of Ottawa, and Miss Ethel of Toronto; Master Watts of Ottawa, grandson; Mrs. J. Best, Miss S. J. Moore and Mr. D. H. Moore of Peterborough, sisters and brother of the bride; Mrs. J. E. Best of Toronto, sister of the groom; Mrs. Kearsley, Miss E. J. Best, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Weir, Rev. D. W. and Mrs. Best, nieces and nephews, and Rev. Robert and Mrs. Pogue of St. Paul's church, Peterborough, made up the company.

A large sheaf of congraulatory telegrams and letters, with many nice gifts, conveyed the kindest wishes of friends from far and near, while during the afternoon many Peterborough friends dropped in for a cup of tea and to offer their congratulations and good wishes.

The floral decorations were in keeping with the happy occasion.

Voice Of The People

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly permit me space in your valuable paper to ask a few important questions.

I notice that North Monaghan proposes the luxury of a park, The plan and survey of which is submitted to the Council.

What is the size of Lot One which is mentioned as the place proposed; and what is the price to be paid. All this concerns the ratepayers.

Is the property proposed for a park known as "Crawford's Grove or whose property is it?"

Will some of the Park Committee please reply.

Thanking you for space.

GAVE AN ADDRESS LAST EVENING IN REID STREET HALL

INTERESTING ADDRESS BY MISS MARGARET RUSSELL.

A very interesting and instructive address on India was given last night by Miss Margaret Russell, of Bombay, India, at the Reid Street Sunday School Hall of the Trinity Methodist Church. Miss Russell comes to this city as a forerunner to Dr. Carter, who is shortly to visit Peterborough and lecture on India, assisted by beautiful hand-painted lantern slides. Miss Russell has lived in India for many years, her father being an officer there, and has done a great deal of mission work amongst them, so that she is familiar with the life and characteristics of these people, and her descriptive talk last evening, under the auspices of the Epworth League and Trinity Mission Circle was very clear and instructive.

Her address was illustrated by views of India, and the talk was made doubly interesting by having some twenty of the Sunday School girls, dressed in Indian costume, and portraying different Indian scenes, in order to impress on the audience the difficulties encountered by the women missionaries in teaching the harem (Zenana) women. One scene in particular was vividly impressed on the audience, that of an Indian marriage ceremony, showing how little girls of eleven are married to men they have never seen.

The last part of the lecture was illustrated by views, and by this means the speaker took her audience through the Mutiny cities of Delhi, Cawnpore, Lucknow, to the sacred bathing in the River Ganges, and on through the Himilayas to the beautiful country of Kashmir.

A very generous collection followed Miss Russell's appeal for money to assist the Zenana Mission.

Americans Expect the Allies to Yield to Wilson's Plan

NOTE IS EXPECTED AT THE STATE DEPARTMENT TO-DAY—COMMENT ON CONTROVERSY.

THE NEXT STEP

(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. — The allies will yield to President Wilson's stand on Fiume and at least postpone the execution of their plan for a settlement of the Adriatic problem, it was predicted at the State Department to-day.

The answer of the allies was expected to be received at the State Department to-day.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Feb. 18. — It is understood that the reply of the Supreme Allied Council to President Wilson regarding the Adriatic settlement objects to the reopening of the question.

It is said to declare that circumstances existing when Premier Lloyd George, Nitti and Clemenceau framed a virtual ultimatum to Jugo-Slavia in January could not be ignored, and the President, it is hoped, is told that the decisions reached last December to which Mr. Wilson adhered in his note, will be carried out, if Mr. Wilson will indicate how it can be done.

The reply has been forwarded by the American embassy.

While reports emanating from Paris to the effect that the council had modified and softened the terms of the first draft of this reply to Wilson are denied, it is said that the message handed to Ambassador Davis is not identical with the one agreed upon by Lloyd George and Millerand as their first meeting subsequent to the arrival of the American President's memorandum.

REAL GENEROSITY

In his morning sermon last Sunday Rev. J. R. Webb said "There are some who have not given one dollar to the Forward Movement, and yet are quite as generous and sincere as those who have given thousands. I know of some whose gifts have been very small, but have meant more to the givers than the twenty-five thousand pledge I saw signed some days ago. The question is one of simple honesty to God. No man can dictate to another as to what his gift should be."

SPECIAL TRAIN TO-MORROW FOR GAME AT BELLEVILLE

Kingston and Peterborough will settle their differences to-morrow night with a sudden death game at Belleville, with two officials, a referee and a judge of play handling the battle. It will be a great fight between two evenly matched teams, and looks like the most interesting engagement of the year.

There will be a special G.T.R. train from Peterborough for the game, leaving Peterborough at 5 o'clock sharp. The return fare will be $4.00, and it is expected that a huge crowd of fans will journey to the Bay of Quinte city for the game. Peterborough is hockey mad right now, and everybody who can get away to-morrow will be on hand special when it pulls out at 5 o'clock. Arrangements will be made for reserved tickets for the gang in the dressing room.

The Peterboro team have rounded into shape after the shelling they received the other night, and will be ready for to-morrow night. Harry Thornton is the only member of the Quad who is likely to be unable to play.

The Peterboro team will practice at Brock street rink to-night at 7 o'clock in final preparation for the game.

ASH WEDNESDAY

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, Feb. 18.— "Man remember, thou art dust and unto dust thou shall return."

The above invocation was heard by thousands of Roman Catholics throughout the city to-day as they received upon their foreheads the ashes of burned palms in observance of Ash Wednesday, the beginning of Lent. The bestowal of the ashes was carried out following the morning mass and again during the evening devotions in all the Catholic churches of the city.

FIRST RACE FOR AMERICA'S CUP

CHALLENGE HAS BEEN OFFICIALLY ACCEPTED.

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Official acceptance of the challenge of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club to race for America's Cup, was announced last night by the New York Yacht Club. The conditions of the race are identical with those announced semi-officially by the United Press more than a month ago. The first of the races is to be held July 15 off Sandy Hook. The Shamrock IV, owned by Sir Thomas Lipton, will be the challenger and the Cup is to be defended either by the Resolute or the Vanitie.

MEN ARE WANTED AT THE BRIDGE

CONTRACTORS STATE THAT APPLICATIONS FROM LOCAL MEN ARE NOT COMING IN.

From a statement made by the contractors of the new Hunter street bridge, Messrs. Russell and Townsend Co., who have been advertising and looking for men resident in the city to work on the new bridge, it would appear that very few if any, local men are out of work at the present time. Thirty or forty men can be taken on at once for a piece of work that can be gone on with at the present time, and the contractors are making every endeavor to get local men.

Applications should be made at once and if the number of men required is not forthcoming from residents of the city the contractors will be compelled to get the help from other points, where there is a considerable surplus of labor. They, however, wish to avoid this, and request men out of employment to apply at their office at the works immediately.

THE WEATHER

Sharp, clear, crisp and sparkling was the atmosphere this morning — as ideal winter day. The thermometer marked nine below zero but the cold was little felt. A month from the present time should see the spring here. Last year the creeks this section were in full flood on March 17th.—W. P.

NATIONAL DAIRY COUNCIL CONDEMN USE AND SALE OF OLEMARGARINE

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, Man., February 18.—Unanimous condemnation of oleomargarine and of many advertisements of it, which were characterised as fraudulent in intent, with a wording that kept barely within the law, featured the meeting of the National Dairy Council yesterday afternoon.

Dairy Commissioner J. A. Ruddick stated that the Federal Department of Agriculture had never been in any doubt as to where it stood in regard to oleomargarine, and added that if an energetic organisation like the National Dairy Council had been in existence at the time, it might have prevented the suspension of the law prohibiting the sale of this product in Canada.

"The person who states to you," said Mr. Ruddick, "that oleomargarine is as good food as butter, is either not well informed or is guilty of misrepresentation. Further, there is no doubt in my mind that the introduciton of oleomargarine has discouraged the production of milk in Canada. There are hundreds and hundreds of farmers who are hesitating about going into the dairy business; that is to say, just in that condition when a small thing will decide for or against it; and when these people hear that oleomargarine has cut into the dairy industry, a thing which I myself do not believe, they decide against the milk business, and Canada is deprived of that many more milk producers."

ADDRESSED THE PETERBORO WOMEN'S CANADIAN CLUB ON 1920 CONDITIONS IN INDIA

COUNTRY HAS HAD A STORMY HISTORY—THE LOYALTY OF INDIA—29,000 MEN ENGAGED IN BUILDING ONE MOSQUE FOR THIRTY YEARS.

With a thorough knowledge of her subject and a fearlessness in delivering the message she brought from India, Miss Margaret Russell of Bombay gave a most interesting address on the "Women of the Zenares" before the Woman's Canadian Club in the Public Library yesterday afternoon. The speaker was introduced by the President of the Club after which Mrs. J. H. Renwick sang a solo which was enjoyed by all present.

History of India

Miss Russell before dealing with the harems of India gave an interesting account of the history of the great British possession, the wonderful efforts which have been made to keep it in the Empire by the great [illegible] India and some graphic description of the country and more important historical buildings. She spoke of the time the history of the country covers, some 3000 years, of the fruitless attempts of different men to conquer the country from the time of Alexander the Great, of the arrival of Budda in 500 B.C., whose followers still exist in Ceylon and Burmah and who was turned out of India, and latterly of the more peaceful time in the country's history at the time of Elizabeth.

The Taj.

In speaking of the wonderful buildings of India Miss Russell graphically pictured the Taj Mahal built by one of the later Emperors of India at the instigation of his wife for the worship of God. In the building of this wonderful mosque the speaker stated 29,000 men were engaged for thirty years.

Loyalty of India

At the time he attended the Durbar, King George won the hearts of the Indian people, the speaker continued, and gave an interesting account of the wonderful loyal response all India made to the call of the Empire at the time of the outbreak of the war when at the hour of selfish opportunity the Indian subjects preferred to stand by the Empire. The loyalty extended even to the women of the zenares who though ill-fed with fear by the reports of the German invasion prayed continously for the king while the children prayed for British victory. From the Queen Mary School of which Miss Russell is in charge $25,000 was subscribed by Indian girls who had never done probably an unselfish act before. Even the most prejudiced of the princes gave unstintingly to the Red Cross.

India's Need.

After describing the women of India who Miss Russell said are beautiful little creatures with exquisite manners she spoke of the needs of the country where only recently the women have had a chance to become emancipated and for the first time in the history of the country they have been able to leave the harems to mix socially with women. She said that the [illegible] of the harem [illegible] for the Christian religion. As an example of this the speaker said that after hearing of the sinking of the Titanic a gathering of the women of the harems asked to sing the hymn, "Nearer my God to Thee"—which was sung when the ship sank.

The dawning of a free India is a wonderful thing. In India to-day 50,000,000 women are shut up in zenares and King George rules over more Mohammedians than over Christians. The speaker commented upon the difficulty in convincing the women of the haremn that their being shut up is the will of Mohammed not that of God. She spoke at length on idol worship of India which is a filthy thing and of the fact that Mrs. Bessant is endeavouring to block the rescue of the followers of the faith. Through Hinduism 25 million are under the curse of widowhood in India, and there are 2,300,000 child wives.

India's need is appalling. Millions are longing for the message of Christ and the right to adopt His teaching and millions of our fellow subjects are suffering indescribably. She concluded by a brief reference to the wonderful work of the medical mission and the strides education is taking in the country.

In moving a vote of thanks Mrs. James Kendry spoke of the contrast between conditions in Canada and India. In Port Elgin a settlement of 1,800 there are 9 churches she stated while India hungers for workers with a handful of missionaries to go amongst millions.

LENTEN SEASON BEGINS TO-DAY

To-day the Lenten season commences in the Catholic church. Wednesday is known as Ash Wednesday, on that day ashes are placed on the foreheads of the congregation "Dust thou are, to dust returneth." The entire period between Ash Wednesday and Easter Sunday is looked upon as a time of penance and preparation for the feast of Easter in the Catholic church. It is a time of fasting and abstinence, and while all who are engaged in laborious work are exempted from the duty of fasting other methods of self sacrifice are adopted to take the place of fasting, such as refraining from amusement and enjoyment, such as theatres, dancing, concerts, etc. Devotional exercises are held every Wednesday and Friday during Lent.

The season is also observed in the Anglican church by services on Wednesday and Friday.

RELIES ON AIR FORCES FOR DEFENCE

AIR BASES HAVE BEEN ESTABLISHED IN PERSIA AND MESOPOTAMIA—VAST DESERT STRETCH.

AN INNOVATION

(Canadian Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.— Great Britain relies entirely upon her air forces for the defence of Persia and Mesopotamia, according to official advices received here, Winston Churchill, British War Minister, recently informed Parliament, that air bases have been established at Bagdad and Karachi, the latter port on the Arabian Sea and the terminus of an important railway. Military experts here attach great importance to this announcement, because it is an innovation of military strategy in two important particulars. It is the first time, the authorities say, that air forces have been relied upon to so large a degree purely for defence. Also the impossibility of conducting operations in desert regions has been overcome by carrying oil operations in the air. The British maintain communication between Aleppo, near the Mediterranean Sea, and Bagdad, and between Bagdad and Karachi. Much of this is an impenetrable desert, including the Arabian desert and Great Salt and Dashtilut deserts.

AN IMPORTANT MEETING ON FRIDAY EVENING

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE PETERBOROUGH AUTOMOBILE ASSOCIATION TO BE HELD.

Every owner of a Motor driven vehicle in the city and surrounding district should make it a point to attend the annual meeting of the Peterboro Automobile Association which will be held in the Board of Trade rooms on Friday evening, at 8 p.m. next.

In years gone by Peterboro has not been able to boast of the excellence of its roads either in the city or county as compared with what the city and county councils desire to give the taxpayers at the present time, both for commercial and pleasure purposes.

The Automobile Association should have a membership composed of the city man and the farmer, the truck owner and the pleasure car man, in order to discuss questions that might result in suggestions that would be of value to the governing bodies that are going to give us the good roads necessary for the getting around this city and district in a convenient business like way.

THREE HOTEL GUESTS LOST THEIR LIVES

FIRE DESTROYS PROPERTY TO THE VALUE OF $200,000.

(Canadian Press.)

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 18. — Three guests lost their lives in a fire which virtually destroyed the Lorraine Hotel here to-day. The rest of the 78 guests were driven into the street partly clad.

The property loss is estimated at two hundred thousand.

CALLBOY STRUCK BY TRAIN AND DIES AT BELLEVILLE

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 18.—Archibald Wm. Kent, aged 15 years, engaged as a call boy at the G.T.R. station here was struck by a westbound passenger train and received injuries which resulted in his death a few hours later. It appears that at the time of the accident snow was being drifted about by a prevailing wind and Kent in passing from one track to another failed to notice the approach of No. 7 express westbound. His skull was fractured. A few days ago his father was drowned at Orillia. A mother and a younger brother and sister survive. An inquest is being held.

Grand Jury Finds Institutions Are Well Conducted

EFFORT TO COMBAT THE PROPAGANDA

(Canadian Press.)

TORONTO, Feb. 18. — Mr. John A. Stewart, who is at the head of the Sulgrave institution, New York city, and who is to address the Empire Club to-morrow, has a message which should prove particularly interesting at the present moment. During the war, in co-operation with Theodore Roosevelt, ex-Ambassador Choate, Elihu Root and others, he was most active in advocating the cause of the Allies in the United States. He believes that there is propaganda taking place at the present time which has for its purpose the creation of misunderstandings between Great Britain and the United States in particular, and as he regards this as one of the greatest calamities which could occur, in view of the needs of the world at the present moment, he is devoting his energies to combatting this propaganda with every means at his disposal.

SILENT STRANGER IN COUNTY COURT

UNABLE TO SPEAK ENGLISH HE WAS ARRESTED IN HAVELOCK.

A stranger strayed into Havelock on Saturday, roughly clad, and uncommunicative. His silence and general demeanour aroused the suspicions of the villagers with the result that the wanderer was arrested, and brought to Peterboro.

The warrant bore no name, and in the County Police Court this morning Magistrate Langley was unable to make himself understood to the man. A letter in his pocket, written apparently in Finnish, was addressed to Matti Kujanpaa, at For William, and was forwarded from an office in New York. The magistrate assumed that this was the prisoner's name and as such remanded him for a week, while an enquiry is made into his antecedents and an interpreter obtained to enable the stranger to explain his affairs to the court.

PREMIER BORDEN STILL HOLIDAYING

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Feb. 18. — Premier Borden sailed to-day for New York, where he is to meet Lady Borden. For the two weeks that the Premier was in London he was not bothered with business matters. He informed the Canadian Press that his health was much improved since leaving Ottawa and he now intends going to the Southern States to continue his holiday.

CONGRATULATED MR. JUSTICE ORDE UPON HIS APPOINTMENT TO SUPREME COURT AND EXTENDED GOOD WISHES.

PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS

The Grand Jury of the Winter Assizes now in session presented to Mr. Justice Orde this morning the report of their inspection of public institutions, from which the following is quoted:

"The Grand Jurors here assembled for the Spring Assize of the High Court of Ontario, in presenting their report, beg leave to offer their most sincere and hearty congratulations on your elevation to the Bench of the High Court of this Province. It appeals strongly to our personal feelings that your first Court should be held in Peterborough.

"The history of this city and county would be altogether incomplete without the various marked references to your forefathers, beginning with the founding of the city in the early years of the last century. Their high ideals of citizenship are carried through that history, so that our desire to express to you here and now our feelings of gratification to the Department of Justice is well founded. This is more particularly emphasised in view of your own fine qualities of mind and heart.

"Your own accomplishments in the practice of law at the Capital are well known to many citizens of Peterborough, and we know that your elevation to the Bench was in the natural course of events.

"You have, too, been zealous in your duties to the State, referring in one instance only, if we may, to the splendid services rendered by yourself during the mighty world upheaval commencing in 1914, that brought woe and tragic sorrow to so many of our citizens, and deepest suffering to millions. Your wife, sons, and daughters, too, sought the front line in their different spheres.

"May we also mention our appreciation of your earnest, devoted interest in the problems of the Church and their successful solutions. Your position on the Forward Movement was a foregone conclusion.

"In further and final expression of our personal sentiment, we would offer to you our sincere and earnest hope that you may be spared for many years to discharge the responsibilities to this Province of your high calling, believing that the law will be most clearly and soundly expounded, and that justice will be administered with Christian mercy."

The report expresses gratification that no criminal cases were found in the Assize docket. The public institutions were all visited and found to be well conducted, receiving the approval of the Grand Jury. There are six men in the County Jail.

"We would express our opinion that the public service in the matter of these institutions is satisfactory."

PIN THEIR FAITH TO THE CHURCHES

Public men, east and west, are not slow to see the possibilities for national betterment in the great Campaign of the Churches. Premier Drury of Ontario, himself a leader in the little Methodist Church at his Crown Hill farm, says he believes "the Inter-Church Forward Movement can do more for Canada than all other movements combined." Mr. Bell is chairman of the British Columbia executive in the Methodist National Campaign.

BLACK TYPHUS IS KILLING THOUSANDS

Hundreds Upon Hundreds of Children Become Orphans and Wander Until Overcome by Starvation.

The tragedy of the wandering little orphans of Poland and the sorry efforts of the mothers of that war-stricken country to care for the homeless ones, is an appealing phase of the big heart-breaking story of destitution that relief workers bring back from abroad.

Thousands of youngsters, motherless and fatherless through the ravages of the "black typhus," trudge wearily from village to village over the desolate country seeking what food they can find to keep life in their starving bodies. Sometimes bands of refugees find the little folks and take them in charge. Now and then some almost equally poor peasant gives them shelter and divides his small portion of food. And then, in the course of a day or two, the children take up the tramp again like so many small gypsies. Once in a while a woman will mother the little travellers and aid them until starvation overtakes them.

Jacob Rudin, who had been in charge of a relief unit for the Joint Distribution Committee, which handles funds collected by the American Jewish Relief Committee and other Jewish fund-raising relief organizations, told of these tragic pilgrimages.

The Canadian Jewish War Relief Committee is appealing for funds to alleviate this terrible suffering.

NEGROES WITH BROGUE STARTLE OLD MARINE

Charleston, S.C.,—"Shure, there's no man livin' as can mock me good County Clare brogue without feelin' th' weight o' me hands."

Sergt. James Xavier McGillin, United States Marine Corps, told this to the wide world today as he stepped ashore from the transport which had carried im back from two years in the West Indies. He had a tale to tell, and this is how he told it:

"On the way up," he continued (brogue deleted for the benefit of the linotypers), "we stopped off at Nassau in the Bahamas. I was walking along the street when up to me steps one of the natives with a face as black as me old mother's stove.

"Shure, an' 'tis a foine day fer th' Oirish,' says he to me. I makes to slough him, when another marine grabs me by the arm. He'd been there before, this other marine, and he explains it all.

"It seems that a hundred years ago—or maybe it was a thousand—the British sends one of their English regiments of Irishmen to the Bahamas, and the natives learned English from them. Ever since they've talked with a brogue."

ST. JOHN WOMAN GAINS 20 POUNDS

WAS ALL RUN DOWN AFTER "FLU" —IN PERFECT HEALTH SINCE TAKING TANLAC.

According to the testimony of the multiplied thousands who have used it, there is nothing more invigorating than Tanlac to persons suffering from the after-effects of grippe, influenza, pneumonia, typhoid fever, and bronchial troubles, or who are in a run-down condition from any cause.

Among the many hundreds of New Brunswick people who have realised the powers of the medicine is Mrs. Agnes Henwood, residing at 61 Marsh Road, St. John. In relating her remarkable experience with Tanlac, Mrs. Henwood states that she has not only gotten rid of all the after-effects of influenza, but that she has also gained twenty pounds in weight. Here is her statement:

"If anyone who reads this statement is suffering from the effects of the 'flu,' I want to advise them to try Tanlac, for that is the medicine that gave me back my health and built me up so wonderfully after everything else failed to help me. I had three attacks of influenza, and was down in bed from December, 1918, to April, 1919. I was so weak I simply could not walk; my appetite was gone and I was so sick at the stomach all the time that I could scarcely retain a thing. My nerves were so completely shattered that the closing of a door or just any little noise would upset me; I had fearful headaches, with the worst kind of dizzy spells, and my condition was most serious and distressing.

"One day my husband got after me to try Tanlac, saying that other people were getting good from it. So I began taking it, and the very first bottle did me a world of good. My appetite soon returned, I got so I could eat without having that nauseated feeling, and then I commenced to get back my lost weight and strength. I have taken six bottles of Tanlac now, and my headaches, as well as all my other miserable feelings are gone. I have also gained twenty pounds in weight and am feeling stronger and better than I had for years, even before I had the 'flu.' So now that I have tried Tanlac, I can conscientiously recommend it to others who are waiting for something to relieve their suffering, and build them up. It is the only thing that ever helped me, and I believe it will help anyone in a run-down condition like I was."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowlers Corner by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.—Advt.

PREDICTS ANOTHER EUROPEAN CONFLICT

..CLAIMS AMERICA IS INVITINC DISASTER.

(Canadian Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—A warning that the United States will be involved in another European war within ten years unless she accepts her share of the responsibility of putting Europe and Asia on their feet again, was uttered by Henry Morgenthau, former American Ambassador to Turkey, in an address before the students of Columbia University.

Mr. Morgenthau declared that the United States, in refusing to accept a mandate for Constantinople, had lost an advantage which it can never regain.

After asserting that the munificent talk of self-determination has all died away and that the nations of Europe are going back to the old order, the former Ambassador continued:

"Unless militarism is destroyed and a new order of things established, I predict that all you young men who fought in the late war will be called upon again to bear arms in a European war, and that all of you who were trying two years ago will have your first call for service."

GASE CONCLUDED THIS AFTERNOON

STORY OF A COLLISION WITH A STREET CAR.

Joseph Gray's claim of $1,000 damages on behalf of his son, Claude Gray, against the Hydro-Electric Commission as managers of the Peterborough Street Railway, and also against the the Bonner-Worth Company, was completed this afternoon, when the jury retired after receiving Judge Orde's charge.

The addresses by counsel were made by Mr. G. N Gordon for the plaintiff, Mr. Joseph Wearing for the Hydro-Electric Commission, and Mr. R. S. Robertson, of Toronto, for the Bonner-Worth Cimpany (now Canadian Woollens, Limited).

Young Gray was injured on 3rd June last when the Jackson Park eastbound car collided with one of the Canadian Woollens, Limited, trucks driven by Angus Murray.

Francis J. Keating called by Mr. Wearing said he had been in the employ of the Street Railway since October 1918. The accident happened about 6 o'clock on June 3rd last year. Witness was the motorman on the car.

When I turned off the Monaghan Road into McDonald street the road was clear. The car was running about 12 or 15 miles an hour. The "juice" was off and the car was coasting down the grade. That's the usual way we go down, when half way down McDonald I saw this truck, I didn't know whether it was going down Cambridge or not. When I first saw it I started to put on the brakes and to ring the bell. The truck then turned, east on McDonald street, I stayed behind it waiting to see if he would turn down Cross street. I followed behind him from Cambridge nearly to Cross street. The driver didn't make any signal. When he passed Cross street I turned on the power and the car speeded-up. I thought he was going to drive on down the north side of McDonald street.

I caught up close in front of the truck. It swung across the track in front of the car to the south side. I applied the brakes and reversed as quickly as possible. The car traveled a few feet after the collision.

Mr. Wearing—Was there any way you could have avoided the accident?

Witness—Absolutely none that I know of. I kept ringing the gong until he pulled on to the track in front of me.

Mr. Gordon brought out the fact that traffic on McDonald street follows the north side to North street because of the rough and narrow condition of the road.

Heard Bell Ring.

Mr. John Thirnbeck said he heard the gong of the street car ringing as it passed his house two hundred feet from the place of the accident. Looking out the window he saw that a collision was imminent and rushed out the back door. In the meantime the street car had crashed into the truck. That was the second accident at that point on McDonald street that day.

Mr. Thirnbeck said the street gong was ringing as long as he could remember.

D. McKinnon, waiting for the street car, at the Park street corner, heard the gong sounding so long he went out into the street to ascertain the cause.

Police Sergeant Deannard testified that he had examined the street car after the accident. The brakes were on as tight as they could be, and must have been put on before the accident happened. They could not be loosened because the upright rod had become bent.

PETERBORO RINK OFF TO OSHAWA

WILL TAKE PART IN THE BONSPIEL THERE.

Only one Peterboro rink went to Oshawa this morning on account of the "flu" epidemic which has somewhat decimated the ranks of the curlers and on account of many of the players being in Toronto. George Morrow took a rink made up of W. Thompson, H. Foote and W. H. Taylor.

The Oshawa Bonspiel offers two very fine trophies, the R. S. McLaughlin Trophy given to the winners of the primary competition to be held for one year and the W. F. Eaton trophy for annual competition in the Consolation series besides many other beautiful and useful prizes.

In the District Cup games in Toronto to-day Peterboro plays Paris and if they do not win they will in all probability return to Oshawa and get in on the Bonspiel.

CLEANING UP AT THE PENITENTIARY

(Special to The Examiner.)

KINGSTON, Feb. 18.—Quite a stir has been caused at the Portsmouth Penitentiary over the medical examination of officials, and there is much anxiety over who will be retained on the staff.

In 1885 and 1899 there was a general order for medical examination, but it is stated that on these occasions it was for the purpose of weeding out and making room for political hangers on. The present examination appears to be carried on by the Civil Service Commission.

It is reported that the matter may be aired when Parliament meets, and that there will be important developments, unless all the officials are placed upon an equal footing and the same rule aplied to those employed in the Penitentiary Branch at Ottawa, as well as those at the institutions.

STOP CATARRH! OPEN NOSTRILS AND HEAD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Relieves Head-Colds at Once.

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed and you can't breathe freely because of a cold or catarrh, just get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream into your nostrils and let it penetrate through every air passage of your head, soothing and healing the inflamed, swollen mucous membrane and you get instant relief.

Ah! how good it feels. Your nostrils are open, your head is clear, no more hawking, snuffling, blowing; no more headache, dryness or struggling for breath. Ely's Cream Balm is just what sufferers from head colds and catarrh need. It's a delight.

GOOD CONCERT AT ST. JAMES' CHURCH

FOUR ACT DRAMA WAS WELL PRESENTED.

"Dust of the Earth," a charming little four act drama put on by the Cheerful Workers' Bible Class last evening in St. James' Sunday school room, proved a decided success and the hall was filled to capacity by interested spectators. Those taking in the play proved their marked ability as artists and played the different roles most acceptably. During the intermission between acts the South End orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Nicholls, rendered splendid selections, while six young ladies of the Cheerful Workers' Class, acting in the capacity of ushers, spared no efforts in making every one at home.

The statement continues: "We have entered Ovidiopol, on the Black Sea, southeast of Odessa. We have evacuated Pogaevskaya, 20 versts from Novocherkassk, under enemy pressure. COAX 'EM

Stop Whipping Bowels into Activity, but take "Cascarets"

Put aside the Salts, Pills, Castor Oil or Purgative Waters that irritate and lash the bowels into action but which do not thoroughly cleanse, freshen and purify these drainage organs and have no effect whatever upon the liver and stomach.

Keep your "insides" pure and fresh with Cascarets, which thoroughly cleanse the stomach, remove the undigested, sour food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver, and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels which are keeping you half sick, headachy, and miserable.

Cascarets to-night will make you feel great by morning. They work while you sleep — never gripe, sicken or cause you inconvenience. Cascarets cost so little too.

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 18TH, 1920.

BUY AT HOME.

The Kingston City Council has passed a resolution calling upon the merchants and people generally not to purchase any American goods that can be secured elsewhere in order that the exchange rate may be improved. A copy of the resolution is to be sent to municipal councils throughout the country with the request that it be endorsed. There is no doubt that the motion will receive a favorable reception for the seriousness of the exchange situation has made it necessary that a sincere effort be instituted to remedy the present unsatisfactory condition of affairs. Only by purchasing wherever possible Canadian made goods and refraining from buying anything from the United States that can be secured at reasonable prices in the Dominion can the situation be altered. The resolution of the Kingston council is one that should meet with popular approval and that should be carried out as thoroughly as possible.

NOT WANTED HERE.

The Peterboro Branch of the Great War Veterans' Association has added its voice to the chorus of protest that is being heard throughout the Dominion at the entrance into Canada of the Hearst newspapers. Following the example of other Veterans' Associations the Peterboro G. W. V. A. have passed a resolution favoring the barring of all the Hearst sheets from this country. No other course was to be expected from the returned men. There should be no welcome in Canada for newspapers whose favorite pastime is twisting the lion's tail, or in other words, attacking Great Britain, on every possible occasion. If every branch of the G. W. V. A., and other patriotic organizations, would pass similar resolutions, sufficient pressure might be be exerted upon the government to bar the British-hating journals from this country.

POLICE PENSION FUND.

The majority of citizens will be in accord with Chief of Police Thompson's desire to have a pension fund or group insurance scheme for the members of the police force instituted. It is important that when the services of good men have been secured that they shall be retained as long as possible, for permanency in personnel under such circumstances should add to the efficiency of the department A system by which members of the force would feel assured as to the future would be of great assistance in ensuring that changes in the staff should be reduced to a minimum, for a constant breaking in of new members hampers the work of the force. The matter is to be referred to the city council for consideration and the aldermen no doubt will deal with the question in a sympathetic manner. If the city's share of the cost of the scheme is only $500 a year it would be a profitable investment.

DANCING HOURS.

In contending that the dancing academy recently established in Belleville, and other institutions of the same kind which are likely to be opened, the Ontario of that city agrees thoroughly with the stand taken by Ven. Archdeacon Davidson in protesting against the late hours of dancing.

The hours should be limited to a more reasonable time for closing, declares the Ontario. The great majority of those who frequent the dance halls are students or those who have to earn their own living. Except on a few special occasions during the year, such places should be closed not later than eleven o'clock. They could be opened at an early hour if necessary. But there is no argument in favour of keeping the halls open until long part the midnight hour.

Teachers, having to deal with dopy pupils, and employers, who are compelled to put up with stupidity and listless service on the part of their dance-exhausted help, know full well that one cannot serve two masters. Either the dance hall or the work will suffer. And nine times out of ten the work gets the small end of the deal.

Dancing, if indulged in, should be held within due bounds. It should be a pastime, a means of amusement or recreation and not a long-drawn-out test of endurance. Instead of a pastime, it then becomes a serious dissipation.

Dancing for five or six hours at a stretch is a fool performance that affords neither pleasure nor profit. Some of the less robust require two or three days to recover from terpsichorean orgies of that nature.

Since the war, Canada appears to have gone dance-mad. This will persist for a time, and then satiety and sanity will begin to assert themselves.

EDUCATION AND HEALTH.

Some interesting statistics have been issued by the the authorities of Bryn Mawr, one of the leading women's colleges of the United States, with respect to the health of women students in residence, and in answer to charges recently made that the colleges were lowering the health standard of their students by setting too great tasks and driving girls to overstudy.

The figures issued by Bryn Mawr indicate pretty clearly what the faculty claim, namely, that the only time there is sickness is when the students come back from holidays at home and that their health is really at the highest point at the end of the year's work. The number of girls who left this college because of ill-health during the last seven years was ten, and in three separate years not one student had to give up work. Careful examinations by the director of physical training shows that of the senior students of the last seven years, twenty-five to forty per cent. show marked improvement in their health as a result of regular hours, plenty of exercise, and the discipline of study. The number of those showing any deterioration in their general health is but small, and furnishes evidence that college life tends to the strengthening of body as well as mind.

There is a growing disposition today to attend to matters of health in all schools, elementary schools, high schools, and colleges. There is work being done in the public school of London to-day that will repay a thousand-fold in future wellbeing all that it costs to-day. Children who are started in life with some knowledge of the elementary principles of health, who care for their teeth, keep clean, know how to avoid colds and other common diseases, will grow into men and women who will suffer less from ordinary ailments than does the present generation of adults. In London we might well do more of this work in our collegiate institute were the facilities what they should be, for it is at the collegiate that boys and girls pass through a critical period of their lives, both morally and physically.

In the university much attention is being given to the health of students. Western has a faculty director of athletics and physical training, and credit is given in the curriculum for the work done in the physical training classes. The university is a place where some students, if left to themselves, would spend too much time at their studies, while ignoring the need of exercise to keep up their bodily health. With every student in Western expected to give certain hours of the week to physical training, the same as certain hours are given to mathematics or languages, there is less danger of turning out graduates all brains and no body. When statistics are available, as they will be, it will probably be found that the young men and women who are in attendance at Western University are gaining in health during their four years as a result of the stated hours of exercise, and this would be found even more true were there many of them in residence living under a special regimen.—London Advertiser.

PRINCESSES HUNT JOBS

Hungarian Women of Royal Birth Would Be Governesses.

GENEVA — Several Hungarian princesses, refugees in Switzerland, finding themselves poor through the low exchange rate, are seeking positions as governesses and companions, But the people generally hesitate to employ them, fearing they will instil extravagant ideas in their children.

One Hungarian princess, despairing of failure to obtain a position, departed for Zurich recently to take up employment as a waitress. A number of princely and aristocratic Hungarian families here are awaiting funds to emigrate to America, where they hope to find wealth and happiness

MANY BERLIN MARRIAGES

Number for 1918, 28,383, Breaks the Record, Even for Peace Times.

BERLIN—Last year Berlin married and gave in marriage to an extent not known even in the most prosperous years of peace. The number of marriages was 28,383. Not counting 1914, with its 5,793 August war marriages, the highest figure reached in peace times was in 1912, with 22,995 weddings. In 1916 the figure fell to just under 14,000, over which last year's number is an increase of 103 per cent. and an increase of 75 per cent. over the figure of 1918.

WOULD BAR OUT JAPANESE

British Columbia Boards of Trade Want No Oriental Land Owners.

VANCOUVER, B.C.,—Immediate action to prevent Japanese ownership of land in Canada was urged on the Dominion Government today by the Associated Boards of Trade of British Columbia.

The organization announced that at its annual convention it had passed a resolution asking the appointment of a commission to devise a method of making it impossible for "Orientals and other undesirable aliens to own, lease or otherwise control land in Canada."

A sharp debate between H. B. Morley, sponsor of the resolution, and Japanese Consul Ukita preceded the vote. Morley said the number of Orientals in the province was probably a larger proportion of the total population than was the case in California.

Ukita said that many Japanese had taken out Canadian naturalization papers and could not be prevented from owning land. He denied that a Japanese syndicate had bought, of intended to buy, the Cold Stream estate near Vernon. Appealing for fair play to his countrymen, he said they were good citizens and anxious to assimilate, and that Japan had strictly observed the "gentlemen's agreement" with Canada in regard to immigration. He added that Japanese capital would not come to Canada as long as public sentiment continued as strong against his countrymen as at present.

AN ANCIENT ART REVIVED IN PETERBORO

In bygone ages—as to-day—devout people were always seeking something new and beautiful with which to adorn their places of worship.

For many generations beautiful embroideries have been employed for decorative purpose—some of which have taken a life-time to execute.

Eventually—many years ago—a nun in an old convent in southern France invented a method of Pen Painting which rivalled in beauty the most magnificent embroideries and stood out on a background of satin or velvet as though it were repousee.

This beautiful pen painting can be applied to everything that we have hitherto laboriously embroidered with silks. Think of the months and months we have sometimes spent embroidering an altar cloth or pulpit frontal or some other piece of ecclesiastical decoration.

Think of the time and patience we have expended in ornamenting our own homes with embroidered table covers, cushion covers, table centres and d'oyleys. Who has not spent hours in working a simple embroidered design on a dress or evening gown? And yet if you only knew how simple it is to pen paint you would never again waste your time with needle and silks.

I understand that it is possible to learn this most fascinating art in little more than an hour.

It is the most easily worked and the most rapidly accomplished art of the day.

Probably you will have noticed and admired specimens of this most beautiful work in the window at the Cressman store. Each of these most handsome pieces was worked in two hours.

Previous to the war all Europe was in raptures over the chance discovery in that ancient French convent and now again when people can once more take pleasure in things beautiful, Pen Painting is rapidly becoming the "Hall Mark" of good taste in all things ornamental.

Unlike other decorative work it can easily be washed or cleaned without fear of damage.

Why not have your next new gown decorated with pen painting or better still why not learn to do it yourself?

Mrs. T A. Record of 634 Rubidge Street, city, is an expert teacher of the subject from London, England.

She will supply you with a complete pen painting outfit and teach you the art for an exclusive charge of $7.00. She is also prepared to execute orders for customers.

The Cressman Company will also take any orders for the above work. It is understood that this is the first store in Canada to make a feature of this fashionable art.

FLU HITS ONTARIO

Over 11,000 Cases and 900 Deaths From the Epidemic.

During the month of February to date 11,150 cases of influenza have been reported in the Province of Ontario, with 529 deaths from the influenza and pneumonia and 388 deaths from primary pneumonia, it was stated at the Provincial Board of Health today. In the month of February, 1919, there were 812 deaths from these diseases but in February last year, the influenza epidemic was on the wane. In October, 1918, there were 3,015 deaths, 2,608 in November, 1,568 in December, and 1,514 in January, 1919. "We may have reached the peak now," it was said today by the statistician. "The epidemic is general throughout the Province from Prescott to Essex. Windsor has been hard hit with 75 deaths out of a population of 30,000."

SANDRA THE JEALOUS

ROSE GOES HOME

CHAPTER L.

The next morning Everett was coldly, almost freezingly polite to Rose. I wished I hadn't told him what she said— it was going to make it horribly uncomfortabe for me. But I needn't have worried. Rose wasn't the kind to stay where she wasn't sure of a good time, and as soon as Everett had left for his office she commenced to pack.

"I wish you would call Barry up and tell him I am going home," she said.

"All right! but I don't see how you can call him 'Barry,' I have known him ever so much longer than you have and I have called him Barrett only a few times. It seems awfully intimate to give him a nick-name."

"Not if you knew."

I wondered what she meant, but could get her to make no explanation. Finally I concluded she was just 'putting on side' as an English friend of mother's used to express it. So I called Barrett up and told him. He only said: "I am sorry your friends is going, isn't it rather sudden? She said nothing about it last night."

"It IS sudden. Here she is," and I relinquished the telephone to Rose, who talked a good quarter of an hour I am sure.

"He will be at the train," she said when she finally hung up. "You will go down with me, of course."

"Certainly!" I knew by her tone she didn't want me, but neither did I want her to tell Barrett Edmonds how Everett had treated me. I was sure she would if I were not along. "I will order the car as long as you are determined to go."

"I wouldn't be hired to stay! I would feed so uncomfortable. I don't see how you stand it, honest I don't. I'm real sorry for you, Sandra."

That was the last straw.

"Please, Rose, don't go back home telling tales, saying you are sorry for me and all that sort of thing. It will make Mother terribly unhappy, an make her think I am. I am not really, Rose. Everett is awfully nice at times, and"—

"He'd have to be to make up for the other times. The idea of taking a man's warmed-over affections, and then standing what you do! Nix on the widowers and old men for little bright eyes. Love in a cottage for me in preference."

I felt awfully like agreeing with her, and to keep from doing it I made myself think of all the nice things Everett had done for me. I tried ot tell her of some of them but she would'nt listen—just poohhood everyone of them.

I teased her all the way to the station to promise me she would not worry Mother by telling her how she felt about Everett. But she wouldn't promise. Said she thought it her duty perhaps to let my family know the sort of a crank I had married.

Barrett was at the station waiting. When he asked Rose if she wasn't leaving rather suddenly, I broke right in very impolitely and changed the subject. But Rose wasn't to be put off so easily.

"It isn't comfortable for me to stay now that Mr. Graham is back. He won't allow Sandra any freedom, and I couldn't live like that, even as a guest."

He gave me a quick sharp look of sympathy, then he too changed the subject, and talked so rapidly, and with such humor that Rose had no time nor, I am sure, any inclination to recur to it. But she took all this pleasantries to herself, shutting me out entirely. I didn' care—much, if only she would not say anything more about my husband. But I wasn't to get off so easily. Just as we were about to leave her, she said:

"You must be nice to Sandra, Mr. Edmonds. Poor girl! I should die if I had to lead the life she does. Be forbidden to go out, told to go to bed even when he is away. I'll bet his first wife wasn't such a saint."

I felt so ashamed I wished that I could run and hide somewhere. But after she left, Barrett turned to me as if nothing had happened and said:

"May. I bring my music some afternoon next week?"

"Do! I shall be glad to have you." Then I bade him good bye and went home.

That afternoon I cried for hours. I knew Everett would scold, but someway I didn't care. I knew I was a sight with my red nose and swollen eyes, but I did nothing to render them less noticeable before I joined him at dinner.

To-morrow—Sandra Tells Everett a Few Truths.

ANOTHER EPIDEMIC OF THE SPANISH INFLUENZA

A great many authorities have predicted a return of that terrible plague which swept Canada from one end to the other not long ago and left so many deaths in its wake, and those who did survive were left in a great many cases with some serious after effect such as weak heart, shattered nerves, improvished blood and a general weakened and exhausted condition of the system.

QUEEN'S CHAMPION MET TRAGIC DEATH

Of all the tragic incidents connected with the French Revolution, none could be more pathetic than those which ended the lives of Marie Antionette, the beautiful Queen of France, and Count Fersen, her lover. When Marie Antionette found herself transported to the dull decorum of the French Court, and to the reluctant and irresponsive arms of her husband, the Dauphin, she was but a child of 14, but exquisitely beautiful. Her husband was too much absorbed in eating, drinking and hunting, to spare a smile for his girl-wife, and it was little wonder that she resented this neglect. It was on January 12, 1774, that she first met Count Fersen, and in him her fate. Fersen was a young Swedish officer who was visiting the French Court, and very soon the spiteful tongue of scandal was wagging. But the storm of the Revolution was about to burst and Fersen was ready to shield the woman he loved from the dangers which were gathering round her. The people hated her for her beauty and alien birth, and when bloodshed and rapine became rampant Fersen was by the Queen's side, reckless of the death that ever menaced him. But even such love and fidelity could not save her, for she was torn from him and led to death. For seventeen years the Count survived the day of tragedy and became moody and melancholy, his one wish being to die and end it all. One day he went in full ceremonial dress, and his gilded coach drawn by six white horses, to join the funeral procession of Gustavus IV., of Sweden. A cry was raised that the latter had been poisoned by Fersen, and his carriage was surrounded by a fierce mob, clamoring for his blood. They struck him with their fists, tore out his ear-rings, with pieces of flesh, and finally dragged him out of his carriage and trampled him to death. Not content with this, they stripped and mutilated the corpse, and carried the fragments about the town. Thus the devoted lover, who had served the object of his devotion faithfully for herself alone, ended his days in a tragedy even more terrible than that which closed the life of the luckless Queen seventeen years previously.

BITRO-PHOSPHATE IS GOOD FOR THIN NERVOUS PEOPLE

A French scientist has discovered an organic phosphate which should be a very effective remedy for weak nerves, sleeplessness, thinness and lack of strength, energy, and vigour.

Its substance is described by specialists as identical in composition with certain vital elements naturally found in brain and nerve cells and one which when taken into the human system is quickly converted into healthy, living tissue.

This phosphate is already widely known among druggists in this country as Bitro-Phosphate, and some physicians claim that through its use strength, energy, vigour, and nerve force are frequently increased in two weeks' time.

Dr. Frederick Kolle, Editor of New York Physicians' "Who's Who," says it should be prescribed by every doctor and used in every hospital in the United States. As there are a great variety of so-called phosphates, those who wish to test the substance should be sure to get the genuine Bitro-Phosphate.

WHY SILVER WOBBLES

In the days of the Roman Empire it was calculated that the world's stock of gold and silver coin exceeded 350 millions sterling of our money.

Then came the Middle Ages, when the nations slid back into barbarism. There was little mining, and by the tenth century the world's stock was down to something between thirty and forty millions. Silver continued to become more and more scarce, and from being one-fifteenth the value of gold rose gradually until, by the year 1500, one ounce of gold would purchase only eleven ounces of silver. Then came the discovery of Mexico and of Peru by the Spaniards, and at once fresh supplies of bullion began to pour into Europe. All the hoards of the Aztees and Incas were seized and with in the next hundred years Europe's stock of silver was more than doubled.

In the eighteenth century the production of silver became tremendous, and between 1740 and 1770 the Biscayna Mine of Mexico produced three million pounds' worth of silver. About the latter date the Valenciana Mine was pouring out £240,000 worth of silver every twelve months.

At Veta Madre a lead of silver ore was found eight miles long and 130 feet thick.

But the greatest silver mine in all was that of Potosi, high in the Andes, and after this began to be worked the world's output was eighty-two ounces of silver to only seventeen ounces of gold. The value of silver fell again until sixteen ounces of silver could be purchased for one of gold.

Since the tremendous discoveries of gold in Australia, California and South Africa, the production of silver as compared with that of gold has fallen off. There is, however, plenty of the metal in existence, and the reason of the present extraordinary value is not so much a real scarcity as the fact that the gold coinage has been replaced by paper. If a gold currency were restored, the price of silver would slump speedily.

MEN, WOMAN, AND FIFTY

Doctor Osler's famous remarks about the man of forty may have been a joke. But they would hardly have been taken so seriously but for the misgivings which the middle-aged man of today is beginning to feel. When in one large business plant after another the limit of age, in engaging new men as workers, is placed at thirty-five, and when the man of fifty must dye his hair and lie about his age to get any sort of work, it is scarcely a joking matter. The queer thing is, however, that alongside of the shortening which seems to be going on in the period of man's prime, woman, on the contrary, is extending her limits of power and importance.

The woman of thirty-five used to go into caps and inocuous desuetude. Does she do it now? The woman of forty never got into a novel, except as a grandmother. Nowadays she is the heroine as often as not. As man's star wanes, that of woman appears to rise and brighten.

The witty Frenchman of old who gave, as his summing up of the choicest experiences of human life, "to be a woman till thirty, a soldier till fifty, and then a monk," would have to revise his age limits nowadays. The woman who bids farewell to the joys of living at thirty is not up-to-date. The place to look for the woman of fifty today is not in the chimney-corner, but in the automobile. She appears to be able to keep up with the strenuous life, while the tyrant man drops by the wayside from overwork. She lives longer than man, all the statistics show, and so she ought to have a longer prime, logically. It looks as if she were going to get it: and perhaps, in the Utopia of the future, while the man of sixty is being gently but firmly chloroformed, the woman of sixty will be buying a pale blue hat with ostrich plumes, and enjoing her youth.—Harper's Bazaar.

ORDER MARRIED MEN HOME.

NO MORE MARRIAGES OF SOLDIERS IN COBLENZ AREA ARE ALLOWED.

AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS, Coblenz, Feb.17.—Two hundred and fifty soldiers of the American forces in Germany who have married European girls have been instructed to start soon for America with their wives, in accordance with a recent order of Major-General Henry T. Allen, in command.

"In connection with this order it was also announced that army authorities would not consent in future to marriages of American soldiers on duty in the occupied area, officers contending that men without wives in Germany are better soldiers under the present circumstances.

About two hundred soldiers have married German girls since the American forces reached the Rhine, the others included in the order having married principally French girls or young women from Belgium or Luxembourg.

JOHNSON MUST SERVE HIS TIME.

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—If Jack Johnson wishes to return to the United States and surrender to the Federal authorities to serve a sentence of a year and a day in Leavenworth Penitentiary, it must be unconditionally and on the same terms accorded any other fugitive from justice, Charles H. Clyne, District Attorney, announced here.

Mr. Clyne said he would pay no attention to Johnson's plea in a letter from Mexico City, that he be allowed 36 hours' grace to arrange bail if he returned. Johnson fled the country after being found guilty and sentenced for violation of the Mann Act.

Healthy Mothers Healthy Babies

Every true mother realizes the fact that her baby's health depends upon her own, that the very vitality of her child is influenced by her own physical condition. How important it is, therefore, to guard against any derangement of the female organs, which induce general weakness, nervousness, constant fatigue and utter inability to properly care for her child. Please remember, that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and strength to thousands of such mothers.

Mitchell, Ind.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me so much during the time I was looking forward to the coming of my little one that I am recommending it to other expectant mothers. Before taking it, some days I suffered with neuralgia so badly that I thought I could not live, but after taking three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was entirely relieved of neuralgia, I had gained in strength and was able to go around and do all my housework. My baby when 7 months old weighed 19 pounds and I feel better than I have for a long time. I never had any medicine do me so much good."—Mrs. Pearl Montman, Mitchell, Ind.

Good health during and after maternity is a most important factor to both mother and child, and many letters have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., telling of health restored during this trying period by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

50,000 ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN

For six months or more, arrangements have been under way to inaugurate an extensive "Canada Product" campaign, directing the public's attention specially to the shoe trade. Mr. J. D. Palmer, of the Hartt Boot & Shoe Co., Limited, Fredericton, second vice-president of the Association, delivered a splendid address covering the whole situation, and ably spoke, in moving the resolution supporting the spending of $50,000 on an educative campaign, directed to the general public, retailers and their clerks, with a view to placing the high standard of the Canadian shoe industry before the Canadian people and earning the place in the public mind that the importance of the industry warrants. The resolution was unanimously carried, and Mr. Palmer is the chairman of the committee charged with the proper carrying out of this campaign.

Although much important business was dealt with at the meeting, the outstanding feature of the whole convention was the spirit of camaraderie that was in evidence throughout the whole membership, composed as it is of two large elements, English-speaking and French-speaking Canadians. It was most interesting to note the approval with which was met on all sides the various proposals that came up.—Industrial Canada.

Is Your Blood Starving For Want of Iron?

Modern Methods of Cooking and Living Have Made an Alarming Increase in Iron Deficiency in Blood of American Men and Women

Why Nuxated Iron so Quickly Helps Build Up Weak, Nervous, Run-Down Folks—Over 3,000,000 People Annually Taking It to Increase Their Strength, Power, Energy and Endurance.

"Is your blood starving for want of iron? If you were to go without eating until you became weak, thin and emaciated, you could not do a more serious harm to yourself than when you let your blood literally starve for want of iron—iron that gives it strength and power to change food into living tissue," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital.

"Modern methods of cooking and the rapid pace at which people of this country live has made such an alarming increase in iron deficiency in the blood of American men and women that I have often marveled at the large number of people who lack iron in the blood, and who never suspect the cause of their weak, nervous, run-down state. Lack of sufficient iron in the blood has ruined many a man's nerves and utterly robbed him of that virile force and stamina which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life.

"I strongly advise those who feel the need of a strength and blood-builder to get a physician's prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—or if you don't want to go to this trouble, then purchase only Nuxated Iron in its original packages and see that this particular name (Nuxated Iron) appears on the package."

In commenting upon the value of Nuxated Iron as a means for creating red blood, strength and endurance, Dr. George F. Baker, formerly physician and surgeon, Monmouth Memorial Hospital, New Jersey, says:

"What women need to put roses in their cheeks and the spring-time of life into the step is not cosmetics or stimulating drugs, but plenty of rich pure red blood. Iron is one of the greatest of all strength and blood-builders and unless this iron is obtained from our food it must be supplied in some form that is easily assimilated if we want to possess power, energy and endurance. I have found nothing in my experience so effective for helping to make strong, healthy red-blooded men and women as Nuxated Iron.

Manufacturer's Note: Nuxated Iron which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. To Ward Off Trouble Build Up With Milk

Says Dr. Leonard Keene Hirshberg

Of Johns Hopkins University: "Morbid states of health and infections are most common among those who have forgotten that there is such an excellent preventative of sickness as milk."

Proofs in abundance show that Pasteurized Milk is probably the greatest factor of safety for your nutrition, and protection against disease."

"Milk used in combination with butter, or each used separately, either cold or warm, are excellent 'warders off' of many physical troubles. They act as preventatives because they build up bodily resistance to the disease."

Use milk liberally, either hot or cold. If you want to get a greater variety, a great number of delicious milk drinks are recommended by Dr. Hirshberg.

SOME PECULIARITIES OF THE CALENADR

Ash Wednesday, this year comes on February 18th. Last year the first day of Lent was March 5th. Easter Sunday, 1919, fell on, April 20th. This year it will be April 4th The earliest that the Ash Wednesday can fall on is February 4th; the latest March 10th. And as the date of Easter Day depends on that of Ash Wednesday, the beginning of Lent, the earliest day that Easter Sunday can fall on is March 22nd, the latest April 25th. To find Easter in any year, one has but to calculate from the first full moon, on or next after the 21st of March, the following Sunday being Easter Day. Should the full moon happen on Sunday, the Easter festival is celebrated one week later.

HOW YOU CAN GET THE INFLUENZA.

Kansas City Times: A nurse had been taking care of influenza cases for several weeks. She had been perfectly well and had come to think of herself as immune. One evening she sat in an open window until she was chilled. By morning she had a well-developed case of influenza. The bacteria had been in her throat all the time. The protective forces of the body had kept them from developing until her resistance was lowered by the chill.

If you want to get influenza when it is prevalent take little sleep, eat a lot of rich food, deny yourself fresh air at night, let yourself get chilled in a draft, and in general pay no attention to the rules of commonsense living. The influenza germs are always on the lookout for such as you.

HAD ECZEMA For Over 28 Years

Eczema or Salt Rheum manifests itself in little round blisters, which contain an extremely irritating fluid. These break and subsequently a crust is formed, and the intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night or when the part is exposed to any strong heat is almost unbearable.

The success which Burdock Blood Bitters has met with in skin diseases of such severity is due to its wonderful blood cleansing and purifying properties, and we know of no other remedy that has done or can do, so much for those who are almost driven to distraction with the terrible torture.

Mr. James Walker, 152 Niagara St. Hamilton, Ont., writes:—"I have been using Burdock Blood Bitters for some months past, and find it an excellent remedy for skin eruptions. I have suffered with eczema for over 26 years, and have tried almost everything you could think of. I was recommended to use Burdock Blood Bitters, and I am now clear of my skin trouble. It is certainly a good remedy and I shall recommend it to all my friends."

MARRIAGE BOOM IS ON— LAST WEEK A RECORD.

Women Seeking Compensation in Motherhood Now.

PARIS, Feb. 17.—The "marriage boom" which has been going on here for some time reached its height during the past week, no fewer than 1,870 couples aplying for licenses.

French psychologists see the explanation in this unprecedented "marrying craze" in the desire for warrtired men for quiet home life.

They also believe the departure of the Canadian and United States soldiers has something to do with it—that French women seek compensation in motherhood for the lack of constant excitement and attention provided by entertaining the Allied soldiers.

AN ADDRESS BY MR. R. L. DOBBIN

JOINT MEETING ENGINEERING INSTITUTE AND BOARD OF TRADE.

The many lantern slides which will be used on Thursday night by Mr. R. L. Dobbin, Superintendent of the Waterworks, to illustrate his address on Water Filtration, were collected at the expense of much effort on his part, and will give his hearers a good idea of the construction and operation of a modern filter plant.

All phases of this problem will be discussed, and as it will soon be necessary for Peterborough to build a filter plant, the subject should interest every citizen. Members of the Peterborough branch of the Engineering Institute and the Board of Trade, under whose joint auspices the meeting will be held, will welcome the presence of any persons who may wish to attend.

The meeting will be held in the Board of Trade rooms at 8:00 p.m.

Tells How to Stop a Bad Cough

If you have a severe cough or chest cold accompanied with soreness, throat tickle, hoarseness, or difficult breathing, or if your child wakes up during the night with croup and you want quick help, try this reliable old home-made cough remedy. Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth). Pour this into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. This recipe makes 16 ounces of really remarkable cough remedy. It tastes good, and in spite of its low cost, it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. It loosens and raises the phlegm, stops throat tickle and soothes and heals the irritated membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes with such promptness, ease and certainty that it is really astonishing.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is probably the best known means of overcoming severe coughs, throat and chest colds.

There are many worthless imitations of this mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

TO MAKE GOOD A CLAIM

A FORTY-EIGHT HOUR TEST IS BEING HELD.

The makers of the Barnet Refrigerator claim that a miscellaneous collection of food can be kept in their refrigerator for an indefinite period and it will be as sweet and wholesome as when it went in. In other words it will not taint. To substantiate this they have placed in one of their refrigerators the following: Milk, cream, butter, fish, beef steak, oranges, lemons, salt and matches.

The refrigerator is on the main floor of the Cressman Co., Ltd. (their local agents) and will be opened at 3 o'clock on Thursday afternoon. The key is held by a reliable person who has had long service with the Cressman Co. Anyone interested in this test is invited to be present to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Miss Gray, a representative of the Barnet Co. will explain to you the merits of the Barnet kitchen cabinets and refrigerators if you desire.

Dandruff Surely Destroys the Hair

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

General Lerond referred to the Peace Treaty provisions and promised to practice justice in his administration.

It is announced that French troops are arriving in Upper Silesia in large numbers.

WAR VETERANS HELD ANOTHER LENGTHY SESSION LAST EVENING

SATISFIED WITH THE COUNTY COUNCIL GRANT—INSTRUCTIONS TO DELEGATES.

Several important matters were brought up at the regular meeting of the G. W. V. A. held last night, but in spite of the urgency and importance of these affairs, only about 25 members turned out to discuss them.

Comrade W. Clancy acted as chairman in the absence of President Muir.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted, after which the correspondence was read by the secretary.

One application for membership was received by the secretary from Frank Keene, who saw service at the Front with the 13th Batery, and he was accepted and duly initiated.

Pleased with Grant.

The secretary spoke on the grant of $150, that had been received by the G. W. V. A. from the County Council towards the building fund. Mr. Whatley said that they were very pleased to get this grant towards their building fund. As the cheque received stated it was the first instalment, in all probability the same amount will be voted each year, but on this point the secretary expressed some little doubt, and thought that the matter might be put on a surer basis.

Comrade Batley, chairman of the Billeting Committee, reported that letters had been sent to the different branches, getting lists of the delegates, and that appeals had been made through all the churches, so that it was confidently expected that the delegates would be placed.

The committee that was appointed to draw up a resolution on the Conscription question, drew up one placing the Peterborough Branch on record as opposed to Conscription of any kind and against military training in the schools of Canada. It was moved and seconded that the resolution be adopted.

Committee Reports

A communication from the local Musicians' Union in reply to a letter received from the Entertainment Committee, on the matter of bringing outside orchestras to the city for dances, was received. They wished to go into the matter more fully with the Entertainment Committee, so the letter was turned over to them.

A resolution from the Preston Branch was read. This resolution asked that the Ontario Legislature be requested to change the Municipal Act that now exempts all returned men from taxation for a period of ten years, to include soldiers' widows and widowed mothers who own property.

This point occasioned much discussion. The secretary explained that their duty lay pre-eminently in looking after the soldiers' widows and widowed mothers, and said that the resolution should be endorsed. It was moved by Comrade Williams, seconded by Comrade Bacon, that the resolution be endorsed, and the motion carried unanimously.

Instructions to Delegates.

The matter of instructions to be given to the delegates was the most important business attended to during the evening. The first question to be settled was that of the "Re-establishment Scheme." Several complaints were made by the members as to their vocational course, but Secretary Whatley said that he had investigated several cases, and found out that mistakes had occurred, but they were all settled, and he would be glad to settle any troubles.

Political Action.

The chairman brought up the question of "Political Action." Comrade Lebarr: "I think we decided on this before." The secretary said that it was a debated question, and the stand of the association had not changed since its last resolution, when the Peterborough Branch went on record as opposed to political action. All over Ontario the branches are in favour of it, and the Peterborough delegates will have little influence. The fact remains that political action is going to be taken, notwithstanding the reverse vote of this association.

Comrade White moved, seconded by Comrade Wood, that the delegates be instructed to use their own discretion on this matter. The motion carried unanimously.

The delegates were also instructed to use their own discretion on the matter of the extension of the membership. The motion carried.

Pension Scheme.

After much discussion on pensions, it was moved by Comrade Batley, seconded by Comrade McKinley, that the secretary collect data about certain reported cases of the pensions being cut off, and that these matters be laid before the convention, and that he use his influence for the betterment of the pensions scheme, and also have the period of time allowed for conditions arising out of military service to develop, be extended.

The delegates were given power to deal with the land settlement scheme, and the question of a co-operative store run by the G. W. V. A. was brought in. These stores are carried on by the War Veterans in the West, and have proved very successful, but it was pointed out that the great difficulty was the boycott that the manufacturers and wholesalers put on these stores. Many points in connection with such a store were shown by the secretary and chairman.

Secretary Whatley said there was no use starting the store unless the members would support it and help to make it a success.

After much discussion, it was moved and carried that the delegates be instructed to support any resolutions at the convention favouring co-operative stores, and the motion carried unanimously.

At the conclusion of the instruction to the delegates, some general business was attended to.

The matter of there not being enough chairs in the soldiers' ward at Nicholls Hospital came up, and was turned over to the Visiting Committee.

Comrade Perks introduced a resolution "that the Peterborough Branch of the G. W. V. A. was strongly in favour of banning all Hearst papers from Canada," and explaining how these papers had had to be banned during the war on account of their open anti-British sentiments.

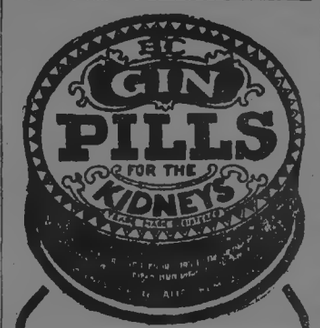
This motion carried unanimously.

The meeting closed about 10.45 with the singing of the National Anthem.

When The Day Is Over

When the household cares and the worries of everyday life have dragged you down, made you unhappy, and there is nothing in life but headache, backache and worry, turn to the right prescription, one gotten up by Dr. Pierce fifty years ago.

Everything growing out of the ground seems intended for some use in establishing natural conditions. Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., long since found out what is naturally best for women's diseases. He learned it all through treating thousands of cases. The result of his studies was a medicine called Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This medicine is made of vegetable growths that nature surely intended for backache, headache, weakening pains, irregularities, inflammations, and for the many disorders common to women in all ages of life. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is made of lady's slipper root, black cohosh root, unicorn root, blue cohosh root and Oregon grape root. Dr. Pierce knew, when he first made this standard medicine, that whiskey and morphine are injurious, and so he has always kept them out of his remedies. Women who take this standard remedy know that in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription they are getting a safe woman's tonic so good that druggists everywhere sell it, in liquid or tablet form.



are the quick, sure and safe remedy for Kidney and Bladder troubles.

They relieve the awful pain, reduce congestion, eliminate stone and gravel, and restore the organs to usual active health.

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS

30 Days Hard Labor or—

"JUST a minute, your worship."

AN Officer in uniform steps forward, and holds a quiet conversation with the Magistrate and other court officials.

THE story is simple and oft repeated. Just a lad — in this case from N——. Got into fast company. Gambled, took money from employers. Hoped to win and pay it back.

FOUND out — arrested and jailed.

OF course he's sorry—but the Officer has sized him up. Believes he has the stuff to make a man of. Knows that a jail sentence may only harden him and start him toward continued criminality.

THE Officer in uniform was the Salvation Army Probationer. By manly counsel, supervision, and prayer he enables the lad to regain control of himself and get another start, free from the stigma of a prison sentence.

IF someone you know makes a false step, don't judge them harshly.

All but six of the houses damaged by bombardments have been repaired. The pre-war value of property was taken as a basis in the calculation of compensation to be awarded.

BOOK STORY OF FIGHTING FOURTH

MANY PETERBORO MEN IN FAMOUS UNIT.

A book which is especially interesting to many Peterboro citizens has been published. It is called "The Great Adventure with the 4th Battery, C.F.A."

This book as it is explained in the preface has been prepared solely from stories and recollections of the members of that famous unit and so it can hardly be classed as a history yet it presents a living story of the Battery from the time of the enlistment of most of its members in the early days of the war in the Cobourg Battery, of the days at Valcartier and of the crossing of the sea and the beating of them into artillerymen in the mud of Salisbury, of the inception of the 4th Battery there on Dec. 19, 1914 and of their long, long service at the front.

It is a sorrowful yet proud tale for many to read for it tells of the heroic death of many Peterboro boys in action. It tells of the first two casualties in the second battle of Ypres, Sergt. Boone and Gunner O'Toole, whose names will go down in the immortal pages of history. The story of the Battery in France is traced through all the important engagements and the story of the self-sacrifice of the men and their bravery and even humour with death facing them any minute is one we should all be proud of.

The "Fighting Fourth" is traced traced through to the Armistice and its story as a part of the Army of Occupation is indeed interesting. The Battery later returned to England and to Canada the end of March last year.

Throughout the entire book many references are made to Peterboro men and the book should be a treasure to any of these men who returned for it will recall old scenes and old faces dear to the heart of these men for the comradeship amongst the men was responsible for their daring deeds, which won them the name of "The Fighting Fourth."

CONTROL OF FISHERIES

The following article written by E. Kingsmill Morgan has been discussed by Mr. F. Tuggy with the local representative, Mr. Thomas Tooms, M.P.P., who has taken it up with the Government.

(By E. Kingsmill Morgan.)

There is a man living on the north shore of Lake Superior whose family have for generations supported everything Canadian—including the Conservative party. These people are sterling, dyed-in-the-wool Canadians, the sort of people who are the backbone of our country. For many years they had large fishing interests along the north shore, and several of the family sat in both Dominion and Local Houses—belonging to the small minority of conscientious politicians. But all this was, as I have said, many years ago and part of the history of the north country. Two generations have reduced the circumstances of this family. A grandson of the old head of the house has been applying to the authorities in the park for two years, asking for a fishing permit in a well-known northern lake which holds thousands of tons of the finest fish. He practically knows every rock, every shoal, every fish, in this lake for he has been brought up on its shores. He had figured out the whole matter and told the Government that he could catch, with his little company of Canadian men of the north, quantities of those wonderful northern trout and whitefish and land them in Toronto to sell at eight or nine cents a pound, fresh caught, at the same time paying the Government a fair royalty. He has been refused this contract and told finally this spring that the matter had been definitely thrown out. And at the same time Toronto people are paying twenty-four cents a pound for fresh caught whitefish.

The fishing season is drifting by. This northern lake is swarming with fish, so much so that it is to the detriment of the fish to leave them there. Yet no Canadian has been given a permit to fish in the lake. Every wide-awake northern Canadian knows the reason why. What happens to the thousands of tons of fish caught in Lake Superior? The biggest proportion of it goes down to Booth Bros., of Chicago, and much of it is SOLD BACK INTO CANADA. The Canadian householder pays the shot, and instead of paying nine cents, he pays twenty-four cents a pound for his fish. Is the average Canadian aware that one of our greatest industries—is practically controlled, by AMERICANS? They all but own our fisheries at the present time. A Canadian wholesale dealer complained last week of having received a somewhat impertinent letter from an American firm which had been shipping fish into Canada—Canadian fish. Millions of our good Canadian dollars are going over to make fortunes for Americans out of Canadian industries.

"The Country Cousin" the Selznick picture featuring Elaine Hammerstein the beautiful young Selznick star during a three days run at the Empire Theatre has delighted Peterboro theatregoers. In this picture Miss Hammerstein appears as a wealthy land proprietor in Ohio, a lover of nature and of the pure free life of the open. In the same village lives her cousin and her aunt. Her aunt is separated from her husband, who lives and rejoices in the false and superfluous life of the great city. His dapghter has a fortune that would come in very handy for him so he seduces her away from her mother and she, blinded by the luxury and gaiety of the new life, gives him as much of her inheritance as he desires.

Her "Country Cousin" as she is termed by the parasites into whose clutches her cousin has fallen are finally outwitted by her and her cousin is taken back to her mother and the true life of the country and incidentally a man also finds his way to Elaine's farm in Ohio and claims his prize.

In all the picture is a very delightful one and the pretty love story cannot fail to appeal to everyone and will not soon be forgotten. Anyone who enjoys a good picture should not miss seeing this feature this evening.

THE PETES PLAYED GOOD GAME OF HOCKEY, SAYS MARSH

Lou Marsh, who refereed the Kingston-Peterborough game the other night, has the following to say about it in the Toronto Star:

In one of the toughest battles fought in the east this season, Kingston intermediates batered their way to a 4-1 victory over Father Gorman's Peterborough team and tied up their second round. The game was played on Kingston ice and as the score duplicated that at Peterborough the "Petes" and the "Kings" will have to play it off at Belleville Thursday night.

It was a red hot game all the way from the deuce to the ace. Peterborough got their solitary goal in the first period and looked all over like round winner until the last session.

In the first Kingston looked by far the best, but could not beat Mike Murray, the Peterborough goal keeper. Jimmie Stewart tried to cut the toes off his left foot in this period but that didn't stop the game Peterborough lad. In the second period Kingston landed two after twenty minutes of the best hockey ever played in the east. The puck travelled up and down a mile at minute and the lads gave everything they had. Time after time players came together going at full speed and smashed each other down only to stagger to their feet dazed and dizzy, and leap into it again. There were many man to man melees but none surpassed the little tilt between Jimmie Stewart and Banty Evans. Stewart prodded Evans and the game Peterborough lad came right back with a butt end. Stewart tore one to Evans' jaw and Evans retaliated with a cross check that opened Stewart's eye. By this time the referee discovered "the battle of Verdun" and skated over to penalize the pair. They smiled, shook hands—and on the very next opportunity started all over again. It was one sweet little duel from then on until the end of the piece, with Stewart battling Evans or his substitute every last second of the piece.

Plenty of Knockouts.

There were half a dozen knockouts during the second session and butt ends and elbows flew freely, but nothing really bad occurred until Cook slashed Murray, the Peterborough goal keeper, over the head. Murray went down in a heap and Cook was benched for five minutes. The score then was 2-1 in favor of Kingston, and with a two-goal lead still in their favor Peterborough looked to have the round cinched, but in the final period the Kingston crew came like wild men. They backed the Petes into the corner even though playing a man short, and looked all over the best, but they did not beat Murray for 10 minutes.

From then on they bombarded desperately and finally tied up the round.

With the round a tie the Petes broke loose and looked to have cinched the issue with a goal by Halpin, but the goal umpire said that the puck wasn't inside. When the referee arrived it was outside. Both sides tried desperately the last 10 minutes, but they couldn't break it. The players could scarcely stand up on end.

The Stars.

For Peterborough Murray was the outstanding star, but the entire lineup played good game hockey, and refused to back up under punishment.

For Kingston the defence, Elmer and Brown, were superb. There wasn't much choice on the forward line, though Cook and Smith on the wings scintillated at times.

MURRAY SAVED ROUND SAYS KINGSTON STANDRRD

The Kingston Standard says of Monday's game:

In what was probably the fastest and most exciting game seen here for years Kingston Intermediates came from behind last night and defeated the Peterborough team by the score of 4 to 1, making the score on the round a tie and necessitating a sudden-death game on Thursday, in Belleville. For the full sixty minutes last night the players went at it hammer and tongs, the local team setting a terrific pace, which the Peterborough forwards couldn't keep up with. It was a most exciting game, for with four minutes to go, and Peterborough leading one goal on the round, a three-man combination by Kingston resulted in Elmer slamming in the tying goal.

On the play last night Kingston were much the better all round team, and were it not for the miraculous saving of Murray in the nets for the Petes, the score would easily have been much larger. He stopped shots which seemed impossible to stop and was the sensation of the game. Time and again Kingston would carry the puck into Peterborough territory only to be beaten by Murray. He sure is one sweet goaler and seemed fifty per cent. of the team. The puck was in Peterborough territory fully sixty per cent. of the time, and Murray was the busiest man on the ice for sixty minutes. There were, however, four disputed goals. Right off the bat Stewart slammed a hard one at Murray, which hit the post and seemed to roll into the nets. An argument with the goal judge ensued, but to no avail. Three others were disputed in the same way.

It was a wonderful game, and one which a fan is seldom privileged to see.

Lou Marsh [illegible] the game and was far from [illegible] satisfactory. His decisions at times were questionable, and as in the McGill-Queen's game, someone got his "goat." The play became too fast for him, and he had a hard time handling it. Incidentally he hung on to his bell for the full sixty minutes.

You've got to take off your hat to Murray, the Petes' goaler. He was the shining light last night, and luck or no luck, he sure was the big factor in saving the round for Peterborough.

The game last night was sure some scrappy argument. It was not a pink tea affair by any means but it may be mentioned that no fan hit a Peterborough player.

Pete Thornton has more accurate information on this later point than the Standard man. Some one took a crack at him as he was going down the side and Pete put on a demonstration with his hockey stick that stopped further interference.

INTER-CHURCH FIVE-PIN LEAGUE

The Inter-Church Five Pin League got off to a fine start when St. Andrews and George street played the opening game of the League in which George street proved themselves too many for St. Andrews by a small margin in two out of the three games. The third game went to St. Andrews. It is hoped that all teams will be as evenly matched in the league as were those of last night.

The next games scheduled are St. Pauls vs. Murray street, on Thursday at 7.30 p.m.; All Saints vs. Excelsiors Friday at 7.30 p.m.

BASEBALL

Connie Mack's batterymen will head the parade of major league players to the training camps in Dixie. They will leave Philadelphia on Feb. 20, for Lake Charles, La. The regulars will follow a week later.

Among the Cincinnati players who have not yet signed contracts for the 1920 campaign are Hod Eller, Earle Neale, Ivy Wingo, Billy Kopf, Heinie Groh, Eddie Roush, Jake Daubert and Walter Ruether.

Cleveland teams have trained at New Orleans in fourteen out of the last eighteen years, and the 1920 team will also do its conditioning in the Crescent City. No other team has stuck to one training camp so consistently.

LARGE AUDIENCE AT MURRAY STREET

THE CHOIR WAS PRESENT IN FULL FORCE.

The large audience were delighted with the service of Rev. G. A. Leichliter at Murray street church last night. His rendering of Campion's "Ninety and Nine was superb and many people were expressing the desire that he might be heard in more than one solo each night.

The sermon was on the familiar words of Christ "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest." For half an hour the interest was intense and many were moved by the appealing nature of the discourse.

The choir was present in full force and the organ was in the capable hands of Mr. J. H. Renwick. To-night the sermon will be on the question "What is Salvation?" and Mr. Leichliter will be heard in another solo. It is expected that he and Mr. Asa Huycke may be heard in a suitable solo.

The first offering of the week will be made at this evening's service.

CHINESE WILL CELEBRATE NEW YEAR TO-MORROW

PETERBORO CHINAMEN WILL OBSERVE THE DAY IN A QUIET WAY.

To Canadians to-morrow, the 19th, means nothing, but to the Chinese residents of Peterboro it is the biggest day of the year—the Chinese New Year's Day, the beginning of 1920.

While Canadians have been enjoying the freshness of the new resolutions that are supposed to come with the New Year, and have long since shaken the dust of 1919 from their feet, the Celestials have been still following the calendar of 1919, but at last have reached the end of their year, too, and to-morrow the East and the West will both find themselves treading down the paths of 1920.

In China, to-morrow is the biggest day of the year, a national holiday, and a regular Fourth of July. In the bigger cities, Toronto and Montreal, it will be fittingly celebrated but the local Chinamen will have to forego these festivities owing to their number being few.

57th REGIMENT HELD MEETING

Selections on a Victrola kindly loaned by the Heintzman Company added substantially to the success of the evening.

The characers were as follows:

Margaret—Verna Burgess, a society girl.

PANCAKE SOCIAL A SUCCESS

Success attended the Pancake Social held last night by the Ladies Aid of Knox Church in Knox Church Lecture Hall.

The programme given before the flap-jacks were served, was well carried out and thoroughly enjoyed and great credit is due to the ladies for preparing such a delightful programme. The first number was a song by Herbert Read followed by a recitation by Mr. J. John which was given in his usual excellent manner. A humorous dialogue entitled, "How Mrs. Gaskill did not Hire a Cook," caused much laughter. A song by the Rev. J. H. MacKenzie was much enjoyed and a piano solo and vocal solo by Mr. Walden, gave Mr. Walden full scope for his artistic musical ability. A reading by Mrs. Carpenter and a piano solo by the Reid boys followed.

At the conclusion of the programme the pancakes and refreshments were served after which the very successful entertainment broke up.

DOMINIONS VOTES WERE NOT POOLED

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—"There was absolutely no binding together of the Dominion's votes as alleged by Republican Senator McCormick," declared P. M. Draper, secretary of the Canadian Trades and Labour Congress, and who was one of Canada's delegates to the International Labour Conference at Washington.

Senator McCormick had alleged during the debate in the United States Senate on Monday that at the first gathering under the League of Nations, the British Government delegate, the Hon. G. N. Barnes, had found no difficulty in binding together the votes of all the British Dominions.

Mr. Draper, who represented Canadian labour at that conference, said the records would show that on many questions, the delegates from the Dominions had not voted in accord with the British Government.

PRINTING Done Here

COMPARED WITH ELSEWHERE

You'd startle your tailor if, when you wanted a suit of clothes, you asked him to submit a bid in competition with a dozen other tailors

"Why," he would say, "this is ridiculous. This man knows what kind of a suit of clothes I give him. He knows he can depend on the quality of the material, the make, the fit. He knows me, and has proved my work. Some fellow around the corner may underbid me—but what will he deliver?"

You don't buy tailoring that way. No man does. You know your tailor you rely on him, you trust him, you give him your work just as long as he turns out good work at prices that are fair.

Do you buy your printing as intelligently? Do you make it your business TO FIND A GOOD PRINTER as you do a good tailor, and then rely on his experience, his ability and his judgment?

Men who do, get good printing. Men who buy printing here and there, wherever the price is shaved closest, are the ones who have printing worries

WILL OPPOSE PROPOSED IMPROVEMENT

CLAIMS ENGLAND WILL HAVE A CHANNEL DOWN THE "VERY THROAT OF THE STATE"—FIREWORKS AT MEETING.

ACTION DEFERRED

United Press:

ALBANY, Feb. 18.—On motion of Cornelius F. Burns, former Mayor of the neighbouring city of Troy, a special committee was appointed at a conference here to-day to fight the St. Lawrence River improvement. The conference, called for the purpose of stimulating sentiment in favour of a [illegible]-five million dollar bond issue to complete the New York State barge canal terminals and elevators, was attended by upwards of two hundred representatives of the various municipalities of the State and the leading Chambers of Commerce. Various State officials, including Governor Smith, were also present. As the conference was about to adjourn tonight, after nothing had been discussed but the proposed barge canal development, former Mayor Burns asked for the floor. Mr. Burns, who is known but little outside of his home town, and therein chiefly because of his political activities, inquired if the conference was going to adjourn without taking any action on the St. Lawrence River improvement.

Not on Programme.

The chair informed him that the St. Lawrence plan was not on the programme, but that a meeting had been set for March 25 in New York City to take action on it. This did not prove satisfactory to the gentleman from Troy.

"We must act at once," he exclaimed. "This is no time to put off action on this St. Lawrence matter. Although the meeting was not called for that purpose, do we want all our barge canal work and expenditure to amount to nothing. It will, if Canada is favoured in this scheme."

He said, "Suppose we have a war with England." There were cries of disapproval. "It is possible," continued the Jingoistic Trojan. "Would we want England to have a channel down the very throat of our State? As far as I am concerned, we must do something now." The chair announced that there would be a meeting in Buffalo on March 11, and at which Dime Government engineers and other experts would look into the St. Lawrence project. Mr. Burns, backed by Dock Commissioner Murray Hulbert, of the Cabinet of Mayor Hyland, of New York City, and Francis E. Cullen of Oswego, put through a motion that the conference appoint a special committee to attend the Buffalo meeting and to "fight the St. Lawrence plans to a finish."

Protest at Washington.

Mr. Burns then moved that a second special committee be appointed to go to Washington to protest against the Federal authorities against the carrying out of the Canadian border waterway plan. "It is the only thing we can do," said Mr. Cullen, speaking on the motion. "Shall we stand for the United States or Canada? Our way is clear." The special committee was appointed, consisting of Commissioner Hulbert, State Engineer Williams, and State Superintendent of Public Works Walsh. They were instructed to leave for Washington at once. Earlier in the evening the conference unanimously adopted a resolution urging the two dominant political parties include in their platforms planks advocating the completion of the barge canal terminals at Oswego, Tonawanda, Ithaca, Watkins, Buffalo and New York City. Oswego was not originally included in the resolution, but a speech of Mr. Cullen, in which he said that unless the Oswego terminal was completed, Canada would continue to take trade to its side of Lake Ontario caused Oswego to be included.

"Canada," said Mr. Cullen, "is improving the Welland Canal to let the grain come through in larger quantities. The only way we can stop it is to provide proper facilities for handling it at Oswego. We can then stop it and put it through the barge canal."

A SCHEME TO PROMOTE GREAT COMBINE FINANCIAL RESOURCES

LONDON PAPER CREDITS THE J. P. MORGAN INTERESTS WITH A DARING SCHEME TO PROMOTE FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL ENTERPRISES.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Promotion of important financial and commercial enterprises is the object of the present visit to Europe of Henry P. Davison, of J. P. Morgan and Co., according to the Pall Mall Gazette to-day. The first plan to be promoted by Mr. Davison, the newspaper declared, is for the establishment of great money combine, with the object of financing great national and private enterprises in Europe, while the second is the re-establishment of great international trading companies backed by the resources of the Morgan House and Guaranty Trust Co. Under the projected plan, says the newspaper, American banks would enter the combine for financing enterprises to supply necessities occasioned by the war. The Gazette adds that it is stated that Mr. Davison has met with the greatest encouragement and welcome, both in England and France. Newspaper's story, however, has not been confirmed, and in many respects is absurd.

IN A SHAKING VOICE WILLIAM IVENS ADMITS HE COMMITTED CONTEMPT

(Canadian Press.)

WINNIPEG, February 19.—In a shaking voice, and at times on the verg of tears, William Ivens admitted statements alleged to be in contempt of Court before which he is being tried, said he did not intend contempt, and made apology, before a full Court of King's Bench, consisting of Chief Justice Mathers, Judge Galt, and Judge Prendergast.

The Court's decision will be handed down on Tuesday morning at ten o'clock.

Ivens had been called upon to show cause why he should not be committed for contempt for statements made at a meeting in Columbia Theatre, 28th December. "Bob Russell was tried by a poisoned jury and a poisoned Judge, and received a poisoned sentence," he said. "If Tommy Metcalfe says that a general strike is illegal, then I say that he speaks illegally."

$5,000 Damage Suit Heard in the Supreme Court

STORY OF MERGER

Alleging breach of duty as a solicitor and negligence in advising him to sell twenty shares of stock in the Auburn Woollen Company, Limited, Mr. John I. Davidson brought suit in Supreme Court of Ontario before Mr. Justice Orde, yesterday, against Mr. J. E. L. Goodwill for $5,000.00 damages.

Plaintiff also asked for an accounting of all moneys received by defendant in connection with the sale of these twenty shares.

Mr. C. R. Widdifield is solicitor for Mr. Davidson, assisted by Mr. R. R. Hall; and Mr. J. F. Strickland, with Mr. V. J. McElderry, represented the defendant.

The merger of the Auburn Woollen and Bonner-Worth Companies into the Canadian Woollens, Limited, last spring was promoted by Messrs. Ferguson & Ormsby, investment bankers of Toronto. In his preliminary statement of the case, Mr. Hall said that controlling interest in the Auburn Mill held by the late James Kendry had been sold at $200.00 a share. Mr. Ormsby had told Mr. Davidson that the best price to the minority shareholders was par value of $100.00, and had emphasised that because of the fact that the controlling interest had been secured the rights of the minority stockholders could be ignored.

Was Secretary-Treasurer.

Mr. Davidson, examined by Mr. Hall, said he would be 85 years old next month. He had lived in Peterborough 60 years, and for 21 years was secretary-treasurer of the Auburn Woollen Company, severing connections from them in 1904. He had held twenty shares of the company's stock, having bought $1,500.00 worth of it from James Kendry and $500.00 from John Carnegie.

Mr. Davidson said he had not received any statement of the company's finances. The stock had paid 8 per cent. since October, 1915, and for some time prior to that the rate had been 6 per cent. On 16th May, 1919, a bonus of 10 per cent. in war bond was declared. Plaintiff said Mrs. James Kendry had told him in the spring of 1919 that she intended to sell her stock. She called to see him twice.

Mr. Hall: What position did Mr. Goodwill hold in this company?

He was a director.

Plaintiff told of asking Mr. H. Rush to tell Mr. Goodwill he wanted to see him. Mr. Goodwill did not call until 17th of June, 1919. Mr. Ormsby, of Toronto, accompanied him.

"Mr. Goodwill told me Mr. Ormsby was the representative of the syn-

[illegible] that you [illegible] the Auburn. I asked him what his proposition was, and Mr. Ormsby said he would pay par for the stock or would give me shares in the new company.

"I asked him why he wouldn't give me as much as Mrs. Kendry got. She had told me she got $200.00 a share for her stock.

"Mr. Ormsby said the company had to pay her that because she held control of the stock, and that my shares were just a minority. I said it was very unfair, and that I was entitled to as much as she was.

"Mr. Ormsby said that was not so, and that the par price was the best his company would do. I told them I would think it over and let Mr. Goodwill know my decision.

"Mr. Goodwill was present during the conversation. Nothing was mentioned as to whom Mr. Goodwill was acting."

Mr. Hall: Did you know he was acting for Mr. Ormsby?

No, I didn't.

Was anything said about the shares being worth three for one?

No.

No, nothing was said about the value of the shares.

"When Mr. Goodwill and Mr. Ormsby were going out, Mr. Goodwill was with me for a few minutes in the sitting-room, and I asked him what would he advise me to do."

Mr. Hall: What did he say?

Mr. Davidson: he said, "Take the cash." I didn't make a decision then.

Mr. Hall: What took place next?

On 24th June I got my daughter to telephone Mr. Goodwill that I would take the cash.

"I went down and saw Mr. Goodwill and took the certificates to him. I got them out of Mr. E. H. D. Hall's office. Mr. Goodwill told me I was lucky to get par, as some stockbrokers were getting only 80 cents on the dollar."

Plaintiff said the next time he went, he recalled, was when he got word the cheque had come from Toronto.

"That was 17th July. Mr. Goodwill and I went to the Dominion Bank. I don't remember whether Mr. Crane, the manager, or Mr. Goodwill produced a cheque."

Mr. Hall: Who made the cheque?

I don't know, but I remember Mr. Ferguson's name at the bottom.

Did you associate that with Mr. Ormsby?

Yes, Ferguson & Ormsby.

Mr. Justice Orde asked whether the cheque had been made in his favour or Mr. Goodwill's.

Plaintiff was uncertain on this point, but recalled having endorsed the cheque.

Had Received a Bill.

Mr. Davidson, continuing, said he had received a bill for $3.00 from Mr. Goodwill for advice rendered in connection with the sale of the stock, and paid this account on 10th December.

Cross-Examination.

Cross-examined by Mr. Strickland, Mr. Davidson said he and Mr. Goodwill had been friends for years.

Did he ever do any other business for you?

No.

Injunction Granted.

(Canadian Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19. — Temporary injunction to prevent the sale of thirty former German passenger liners recently offered by the Shipping Board, was granted by Associate Justice Bailey of the District Supreme Court to-day. He claimed that statutes did not show an intention on the part of Congress to place in President or in Shipping Board the power to sell the ships.

MINOR CHANGES IN TARIFF BILL

REFERENCES IN SPEECH BY HON. ARTHUR MEIGHEN.

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 10.—References to the tariff made by the Hon. Arthur Meighen in Winnipeg last night are interpreted in political circles as implying that any tariff changes made in the next Budget will be of a minor character. Such a course, in fact, would be in line with what has been the general expectation.

When the tariff changes were made last year, the hope was expressed that with the year industrial conditions would have become so stabilised as to permit a general revision.

There was also the intimation of a tariff inquiry by the Minnster of Finance and at least two of his colleagues, but owing to the prevailing conditions the inquiry has been postponed, and there is so far no definite indication when it will open.

SCOTCH DESCENT

Mr. Webb prefaced the Leichliter address last evening with an interesting announcement. He said that in making certain visits, he and the evangelist had discovered people who had received deep wounds during the recent war, who seemed afraid of the name "Leichliter," and were depriving themselves of the privileges of the week. He explained that Mr. Leichliter and his parents were Americans and that as far back as the family tree could be traced they were of Scotch descent.

The service of last night was one of great power. The subject was dealt with in a scholarly and appealing fashion. The large congregation sang as though their very souls were in the hymns and the two solos of the speaker will be long remembered. Two nights only remain of the services. The full choir will be in attendance to-night.

ALLIED NOTE TO THE DUTCH GOVERNMENT CAUSED EVIDENT CONCERN

THE EAST INDIES

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, Feb. 19.—Suggestions that the former Emperor William be sent to the Island of Curacoa, off the Venezuelan coast, are received more favourably in some quarters at The Hague than the idea of transporting him to one of the Dutch East Indies, according to the Matin.

Newspapers say the last Allied note to the Dutch Government caused evident embarrassment at the Dutch capital.

SUPREME COUNCIL MET AGAIN TO-DAY

(Canadian Press.)

LONLON, Feb. 19.—The Allied Supreme Council spent most of the first session to-day in what was characterized as "preliminary discussion" of Russian situation. What phase of the question was debated was not officially disclosed, the official statement in this respect being that the Council considered it inadvisable to let the public know what feature of the situation was discussed. The Council also considered the activities of commissions on Turkish question appointed by it early in the week.

Particular antagonism has been aroused by the decision to allow the Sultan to retain sovereignty over Consantinople. Keenest interest has been manifested by the public regarding the proposal which has developed to force a debate on the whole subject in the House of Commons late to-day. When the Allied Supreme Council met this morning it again took up discussion of the Turkish question.

FRIENDLY TOWARDS UNITED STATES

(Canadian Press.

LONDON, Feb. 19.— The Pall Mall Gazette quotes Premier Nitti of Italy as having said in an interview that he feels very friendly towards the Jugo Slavs, but that decisions were reached by France, Great Britain and Italy on January 20th which place a definite imprint on the Adriatic question.

Regarding the United States, Nitti is quoted as saying:

'America is the object of warm regard to me personally. My desire is to maintain the best possible relations with the United States now and in the future. For I firmly believe the interests of the two nations are one and the same. Italians have regarded with warmest sympathy the ideals of the American people."

STERLING OPENED STRONGER TO-DAY

SPECULATIVE ISSUES IN THE STOCK MARKET EASED OFF.

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Demand sterling opened strong to-day at $3.40 1-2 up 2 cents.

In the first half-hour sterling rose further to $3.41. Francs opened at 13.87 up 23 centimes; and lire 18.02 up 13 centimes. Marks also show a slight increase at $.0105.

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—The stock market opened irregular to-day, but the trend of prices was generally downward. Most of the more important speculative issues eased off, but the rail group continued strong. U. S. Rubber opened at 98 1-2 off 1-8, Republic 99 7-8 off 1-2, U. S. Steel 98 5-8 up 1-4, Pan-American 84 3-8 up 1 3-8, Mexican Petroleum 173 1-2 off 1, Reading 72 3-4 up 1-2, Atchison 83 up 1-4, Bethlehem B. 88 off 1-4, International Paper 77 1-2 unchanged, Southern Pacific 95 3-4 up 1-8, Marine 31 up 1-4, American Woollen 125 off 1, Baldwin 111 1-2 off 1-4.

Traders sold stocks down early in the first hour, but made little headway. Baldwin, after touching 117, bounded back to 112 1-4. Oil stocks were still in demand. Sinclair held around 40.

While oils were buoyant, there was a lot of pressure of a professional character against steel stocks. Republic went below 99. Crucible was leaning flat to-day.

INTERESTING VIEWS ON THE EXCHANGE SITUATION BETWEEN CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES.

LET CANADA STOP BUYING LUXURIES

(Special to The Examiner.)

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 19.—Interesting and significant views on the exchange situation were given to the Examiner correspondent to-day by Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan and Company and by Alexander Legge, head of the International Harvester Company of Chicago. Messrs. Lamont and Legge are fellow passengers to-day on the steamer Empress of Asia. The former will confer with Japanese bankers on a proposal for a joint loan of twenty millions to China by J. P. Morgan and a syndicate of Japanese. The present situation between Canada and the United States, said Mr. Lamont, is dependent on the rate of sterling exchange as between New York and London. It is not a condition that can be done away by Canada and the United States independent of the situation, existing between Great Britain and the United States. At the present moment Canada is shipping her surplus products, wheat and other natural resources to Great Britain. Nowadays the transfer of these goods to Great Britain does not involve a cash transaction, but means merely that an entry is made on the credit side of Great Britain's ledger with Canada, Britain having assisted Canada financially to a large extent during the war.

No Quack Remedy.

I have no quack remedy to propose for the [illegible] unnecessary for me to remind Canadians of the attitude of American financiers in general and of the House of J. P. Morgan in particular during the war. Time and again America showed that she had only the warmest feeling for her neighbor. Loans were arranged for the Dominion government and for the provinces in some cases, and the House of Morgan was "turned inside out" to assist in every possible way. At this point Mr. Lamont turned to Mr. Legge for endorsement of the warm sentiments he expressed for Canada.

To attempt to arouse any feeling of animosity between Canada and the United States over the present situation is foolish to say the least," said Legge. "It only shows that there exists an erroneous impression in the public mind. By all means let Canada and Great Britain stop buying luxuries in the United States and encourage her home manufacturers to the greatest possible extent. Americans will be the first to be glad at the success of such a movement, but to make of the exchange situation anything in the nature of a boycott of United States' manufacturers will not profit any one, the least of all Canada. To encourage the depreciation of the value of Canadian currency as a means of preventing normal trade between the two, countries, Mr. Legge thought was akin to "cutting off one's nose to spite one's face."

"In conclusion," said Mr. Lamont, "let me urge upon you to remove the mistaken feeling of friction which appears to have some hold in Canada on account of the present International financial relations. We have none but the warmest feelings for Canada and such a matter as this of exchange should not be allowed to interfere with the furtherance of these relations from any misunderstanding of the situation."

How I Cured My Rheumatism

by PETER SAVALA

I threw away my crutches in seven days, in two months, I was a well man—and I have never had a twinge from rheumatism since. This is what the remedy, which I obtained from my uncle in Greece, did for me

I went home to Greece crippled, broken in spirit—sick. I returned to this country in two months, absolutely free of every trace of rheumatism.

The whole story of my life in America—how I became crippled with rheumatism and how I found the treatment which uprooted the disease and drove it out of my body—I will gladly tell you FREE.

It makes no difference how swollen or distorted your joints may be; how severe the pain; or how discouraged you are; I feel sure that I have the means of helping you to find relief in a few days and a lasting cure in just a few weeks.

Just write me personally. Say:—"Tell me how you cured your rheumatism and how I may cure mine."

PRELIMINARY WORK ON NEW DAM AND CANAL AT 'CAYGEON 200 MEN TO BE EMPLOYED

SURVEYOR AND THREE MEN AT WORK—CONTRACTOR BUILDING THE SHACKS FOR MEN.

BOBCAYGEON, Feb. 19.— During the early fall several times the question was asked as to whether the canal works were going on or not. Well, for some time now that matter has been settled. Mr. Spence has had three returned soldiers, Messrs. Thos. Edgar, George Walker and Allen Taylor helping him make a survey and plan of Sturgeon Lake, and the contract having been let to Mr. McDonald, of Toronto, things are now looking forward to a busy summer. Already the contractor has arranged for housing grounds from Mr. Edward Beck and is building his shacks for 200 Italian laborers, so that by the opening of spring everything will be on the hum. The first operation will be the rebuilding of the dam. It is expected that this will take the first summer and the canal operations will commence some time next fall, which will occupy, perhaps, a couple of years. Then with brand new canal and a new dam and a new survey of the lakes and a new channel for the boating, Bobcaygeon will take on a new swing.

G. H. LEICHLITER, PASTOR-EVANGELIST

AN IMPRESSION, BY JOSEPH WEARING.

Professionalism evangelism has without doubt fallen into disrepute. The last two attempts to stage a campaign for a professional evangelist in this city turned out to be practically failures if the truth be told. There is a general feeling that those men are in the business of evangelism purely as a business and with a sharp eye to the collections. Moreover their manner of presenting the truth is to many people crude and unconvincing and to some people offensive and impious.

We have in the city at the present time, however, a man who while a regular and singularly successful pastor is especially gifted in the presentation of the Gospel message in the manner usually designated as evangelistic, so gifted indeed that the people of Adelaide Street church, London, have the greatest difficulty in preventing their pastor from being used by every Baptist church in Ontario.

Mr. Leichliter is typical of the Southern States, where he was born of an old Southern family that originally hailed from bonnie Scotland. It is a source of amusement to him that his name is sometimes mistaken for a German name, though anyone hearing it pronounced would recognize it as Scotch at once.

What instantly captivates one meeting him for the first time is the winning smile and easy manner so true of the South, coupled with the soft Southern accent, with the broad "a" sound not too pronounced but just sufficiently so to give the music to the voice that is so lacking in our Northern speech. There is nothing to indicate the orator. You have simply, a fine, big, handsome grown up lad of about thirty, who charms you with his personality at once.

But what a man he is on the platform! He is indeed a dual personality. To listen to him sing is to listen to one with a golden voice and a throbbing heart. It is the woodnote wild, the song which comes from a throat attuned to God and a heart attuned to humanity. He has the trick of the negro, too, caught from the mocking bird, of introducing a different melody into his song at times as a sort of interlude.

As a speaker, Mr. Leichliter is nothing short of an orator with that vehement simplicity which is the highest type of eloquence. If as Aristotle says, Rhetoric is a science of persuading then the man from the south is a scientist indeed.

What strikes the hearer too is that the man is a born poet and it has been said that the poet is the nearest borderer on the orator. Not that he composed hymned verse! But his prose, particularly in the purple patches of eloquence with which his address abounds ,is of that quality that it really transcends common speech and enters into that higher realm that we call poetry. And his art while natural, is perfect. Sometimes his message pours forth in trumpet tones; at other times he whispers low in winged words, It is noticeable too how he inserts little beautiful day visions to place every thing in the most effective light. Like Spurgeon too he makes his meaning clear with illuminating figures from homely experience, so beautifully described and so delicately handled that the most personal references are wonderfully effective without having one jarring note. To the trained listener it is interesting to notice that he generally gives three illustrations right after the other, and each making more clear the point intended to be illustrated. And how descriptive those, illustrations are! After describing a nest of birds last night one man whispered to his neighbor — "I could just see those birds plain as day."

Unfortunately his church will not allow Mr. Leichliter to remain here over Sunday. Those who wish to hear him must go to the Murray St. church to-night or to-morrow night. If you wish to hear a beautiful singer and a silver-tongued speaker who preaches the Word in simplicity and truth, go to-night.

A Never Failing Way to Banish Ugly Hairs

(Aids to Beauty)

No woman is immune to superfluous growths, and because these are likely to appear at any time, it is advisable to always have some delatone powder handy to use when the occasion arises. A paste is made with some of the powder and water and spread upon the hairy surface; in about 2 minutes this is carefully removed and the skin washed. You will then find that your skin is entirely free from hair or fuzz. Be sure, however, to get real delatone.

RUMORED THAT "BABE" RUTH WILL RECEIVE $40,000

BOSTON, Feb. 18.—From a reliable source—from a close friend and advisor of the slugging behemonth—it leaks out that "Babe" Ruth signed a two-year contract with the New York Americans and that he will receive $40,000 for the two years.

Before Ruth could be induced to sign by Miller Huggins, who made a special trip to Los Angeles to confer with him, he demanded a part of the purchase price of $125,000 reported to have been paid for him and received it. The sum that he was made a present of amounts to $5,000.

IRELAND MAY BE THE FIRST TO ADOPT PROHIBITION.

DUBLIN, Feb. 18.—Ireland is likely to be the first in Europe to adopt prohibition, the results of the recent municipal elections show.

In Dublin scarcely a man connected with the liquor trade has a seat in the new Council, and similar results are reported all over the country.

This has been brought about largely by the increase in the number of women electors.

Two-Party Line Telephone Service

NECESSARY curtailment of new construction during the war, followed by the unprecedented development since the armistice, have resulted in a universal shortage of telephone material.

In order to utilize our supply of equipment to the best advantage, to reduce delay in installations to a minimum, and to avoid refusing service to anyone, we ask those intending to order telephones to consider the advantage of two-party line service.

With the central energy system in use here the operator can ring either of the telephones on a two-party line without disturbing the other. The cost to the user is substantially lower than for individual line service.

The rate for two-party line service is, for Business telephones $26.40 and for Residence $22.00 per annum.

We will be glad to furnish full information to anyone interested.

Dramatic moments from two great stories!

SUDDENLY, round the corner whirled a shabby old depot hack; it was plainly empty, but the well-known negro driver seemed to be in a desperate hurry. He lashed the horses to a run.

"Wonder who's goin' to miss his train to-night," laughed Mr. Ludlum.

But the driver turned in to the Ludlum curb, threw his weight backward, and checked the horses so sharply that they slid, and their shoes scratched sparks from the stone.

The driver stood up in his pulpit and shouted at the porch.

"Oh, Miz. Ludlum, your boy's drowned!"

Then he struck out with his whip; the horses plunged, the hack careened round the next corner and was gone.

THE frightened mare swerved and reared perilously near the edge of the road. Choked with rage, I tugged at the reins, keeping my eyes on Somers. There seemed no escape, and I couldn't even curse. I opened my mouth to shout; but the sudden rush of blood to my head caused a warm trickle in the very center of my forehead.

Somers instantly perceived it. It seemed to stagger him, for my eyes never left his face as I struggled with the reins. His imagination thoroughly tricked him. Slowly, with an expression of horror, he backed away into the darkness, still covering me uncertainly with his revolver but not daring to fire again. Then to my ears there came another sound from up the valley, the ringing of the tonga horn.

SAYS DEAD POET WROTE THESE STANZAS

WINNIPEG, Feb. 19.—Lieut.-Col. John McCrae, Canadian Hero-Poet, who was killed in France soon after he wrote the immortal "In Flanders' Fields," lives on in the spirit world, and continues to write verses as beautiful as any he did while on earth, according to Mrs. Ward Watson, of Roland, Manitoba.

Mrs. Watson is showing among her friends a sequel to "In Franders' Fields," which she asserts was transmitted to her from the spirit world by Col. McCrae. She says she does not know how the poem was communicated, whether a spirit hand guided her pen as she wrote, or whether some unknown psychic force was responsible. But she is positive the words are those of the warrior-poet written after his death. This is the poem she accredits to the spirit of Col. McCrae:

In Flanders' Fields our bodies lie;
Our souls are God's, they never die;
But on and down through endless years

We live to help dry others' tears.
In human hearts God's love will grow
Till all who love the Master know
That He is love, and love alone

That love alone has sin outgrown.
We die because we loved you well.
Because we feared not war nor Hell;
To win you glad and lasting peace,

Our aims were true;
God give you grace to keep the faith for which we died.
On, bear it on, our banner bold—
We held it high, 'tis yours to hold;

Throughout the peace we won for you
Guard well your hearts and keep them true,
That we may sleep in Flanders' Fields.
Stand guard o'er these we left behind;

We know and watch you, and we find,
Often in bodies rough and rude,
The heart that wins its way to God—
Who is our all.

Mrs. Watson, who declares she is not a Spiritualist, claims—and her claim is supported by a number of friends in Roland—to have been the medium through which many other departed notables have communicated with the living. The list includes Theodore Roosevelt, George Eliot, John Greenleaf Whittier, and James Russell Lowell.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

THURSDAY, FEB. 19TH, 1920.

HOCKEY AND THE SICK

Tonight there is a very important hockey match at Belleville and naturally there is intense interest in Peterboro over the result. At the same time, however, hockey enthusists should bear in mind that there is an influenza epidemic in the city which has depleted the staff of the Bell Telephone Company to a considerable extent with the result that the girls who are able to remain on duty are working long hours and a constant use of the telephone in order to make inquiries as to hockey scores is not only a heavy strain upon the operators but results in a slowed-up service that makes it difficult to put through emergency calls for doctors or to allow the later to get into touch with serious cases when their instructions are urgently required. The public is asked to bear these facts in mind tonight and to avoid as far as possible the use of the telephone for the purpose of securing hockey information, The Grand Opera House and other places in the city have made arrangements to secure reports of the game, so that those interested should if possible endeavor to get their information at first hand at one of these centres instead of depending upon the phone service. Emergency calls should have the right of way in a crisis like the present.

AUTOMOBILE ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of the Peterboro Automobile Association which is to be held in the Board of Trade rooms tomorrow night should be regarded by every motorist in the city and district as an important event that should be attended if possible. Every owner of a motor car, whether it be a pleasure vehicle or a truck has or should have a direct interest in the welfare of the Automobile Association whose aim is to make conditions better for motorists generally. There are many matters in which the Association is able to exercise a strong influence and its powers in this respect would be materially increased if the membership included practically all the car-owners in the district. Particularly in the question of good roads for Peterboro can much be accomplished by a co-operative effort on the part of motorists and the Automobile Association offers them a means of uniting in such an effort. Tomorrow night's meeting should therefore be very largely attended as it marks the beginning of what should be a very successful years' operations.

NOT FOR SIR THOMAS.

The name of Sir Thomas White according to Ottawa advices may be removed from the list of possible successors to Sir Robert Borden. The ex-Finance Minister has declined to accept the task of trying to lead the struggling Union Government to firmer ground or of heading a reorganized Conservative party. For some weeks there has been a White boom under way. A strong newspaper campaign into which a number of the most influential Conservative newspapers entered has been used in an endeavour to secure Sir Thomas as a candidate for the Premiership. He was the only man that could save the situation, according to Conservative journals, but Sir Thomas has turned a deaf ear to the Macedonian cry. The empty honour of leading a disorganized ministry such as present exists at Ottawa has no appeal for the former Minister of Finance. He is quite willing to relinquish whatever temporary glory there might be in the position to somebody else. And meanwhile the leaderless Government continues to drift along, hoping against hope that some happy constigency may arise that will tighten its grip upon the reins of office.

THE ARMENIAN FUND.

It had been the intention of the Examiner to discontinue the appeal for the Armenian Fund this week but the news despatches from Armenia are of such a distressing nature that it seems a duty to continue the campaign for the present and to point out that conditions are still at their worst and that more money is imperative to insure the carrying on of relief work, 150,000 Armenians are in immediate fear of death, the despatches state and all the funds that the more fortunate nations can contribute will be necessary to prevent a terrible fate overtaking thousands of these hapless victims. The people of Peterboro have already made a noble response to the appeal, contributing through the Examiner $3,500 for Armenian relief and this in the face of the Forward Movement Campaign and other calls upon thier funds. But more money is still needed and so the Examiner will continue to receive donations for the present to afford an opportunity for those who have not already subscribed to help in the great mission of saving women and children from starvation. Subscriptions left with the Examiner will be acknowledged gratefully and submitted to the Canadian Headquarters of the Fund.

EAST WELLINGTON CONTEST.

Although the result of the election in Halton is generally accepted as a proof that the people are anxious to see that the Drury Administration is given an opportunity to prove its fitness, a much better test of popular opinion in this respect will be afforded by the coming by-election in East Wellington. In the Halton contest, Stephenson the defeated Independent candidate was an outsider and a stranger to the voters. In East Wellington, however, the Attorney-General, Hon. W. E. Raney is to be opposed by one of the best known residents of the constituency, Lieut.-Col. Pritchard, who not only has a good war record but has been a Warden of the county as well. He is to be in the field as an Independent and is not seeking endorsement by either of the old political parties, although he was the Conservative candidate in the last Provincial campaign. Lieut.-Col. Pritchard will undoubtedly provide formidable opposition to the Attorney-General and if Mr. Raney triumphs in the coming battle of the ballots, Premier Drury and his associates will be quite justified in viewing the verdict as an unmistakable proof that the people want his Government given a fair chance to demonstrate its ability to carry on the Government of the Province.

WHAT SENTIMENT CAN DO.

That aroused civic sentiment can accomplished great and lasting things is shown in the case of Chicago.

Twenty-three years ago the Windy City had but a few meagre parks, small isolated squares, narrow streets and scarcely any boulevards: today it has a park system that is not second even to that of Paris. All of this involved, of course, considerable cost and enormous energy, but both were cheerfully given by the people. A wave of enthusiasm swept over the entire city for more modern and beautiful conditions.

For several years expert engineers in Chicago, at the request of the corporation and public spirited bodies, worked on plans dealing with the establishment of boulevards, parks and playgrounds in all parts of the city. Great areas of vacant land were bought up, and later on became splendid parks and playgrounds. Other lands were utilized for the boulevards.

Those urging the improvement realized that the time was fast approaching when Chicago would be one of the great cities of the world, and that if it was to be made attractive to the masses there must be no niggard policy as to expenditure.

After enlisting the sympathies of the press, capable men were engaged to go into every ward of the city and, with the aid of lantern slides, explain to the people the need of creating vast new park, playground and boulevard areas. To obtain all these blessings the people were asked if they would bear a little more taxation. The result of over a year's lecturing, in which the system of government was explained, was the casting of an immense vote authorizing the improvements.

Through the press and other channels the campaign of education was was continued and, as the parks, boulevards and playgrounds began to appear, the confidence of the people was more and more evinted and the improvements in consequence assumed greater importance.

Just what Chicago has accomplished in its fight for a beautiful city may be realized by the fact that it has today over one hundred and thirty-five miles of great boulevards, which run solely through magnificent parks. The parks are immense in area and most imposing. Playgrounds literally exist by the scores. Great areas of the lake front are being recovered and utilized for boulevards and places of recreation. The people are made acquainted with every move that is being made, and little or no complaints are being heard concerning the footing of the bills.—Montreal Star.

WARSAW NEWS HAPPENINGS

WARSAW, Feb. 18.—Mr. Harry Morgan is home again.

Mr. John Selkirk, Jr., has gone to Winnipeg, where he will make his home in future.

Mrs. George Taylor returned home on Sunday afternoon.

The stage was unable to get to Peterboro this morning.

The Warsaw R. R. 2 mail was not delivered Monday. As this is the mail which came to Warsaw, Saturday evening it was rather disappointing, but the courier bravely attempted his work and could not possibly get through.

Rev. Roberts of McMaster University, Toronto, took the service in the Baptist Church Sunday and will be here all week. He will take the service next Sunday. There was no service at Indian River, as there is still so much illness. Next Sunday Mr. Roberts will preach on the Forward Movement. This congregation has been without a regular pastor so has not been able to attend to the Forward Movement as they would have liked.

The Presbyterian Session will meet at the Manse at 2.30 p.m. Tuesday.

Forward Movement

The Presbyterian S. S. was well attended yesterday and the S. S. collection for the Foreward Movement reached the objective $20.00.

The morning service was fairly attended but the cards etc. that came in did not come up to the objective for the Forward Movement. The evening attendance was small. The Anglicans had their Sunday School Service but not the preaching service. Dr. Archibald was expected there for his last regular service, but he could not get all the way and is still stranded at a farm house as the near road to Lakefield is unbroken and the English line is not broken all the way to Bethel.

The Methodist S. S. was well attended in the morning, but at the evening service there were only 13 people could not get out in the storm.

Some Warsaw people feel that the people fo Warsaw and surrounding country have missed a great deal because so little attention has been paid to the Forward Movement. One outside clergyman expressed the opinion that the Forward Movement was nothing, if the spirit of it did not enter into the lives of the people. If it did the money would have come as people would have realized the responsibility of their stewardship.

Women's Institute.

The meeting of the Women's Institute last Thrusday afternoon was well attended. More visitors were present than actual members. After the regular business was transacted suggestions were made as to and about prizes for the School Fair. It was urged that the prize lists be out and in the hands of the teachers by end of April or beginning of May, also that there be age limits, viz. work be done by girls (or boys) under 12 and over 12, also that the domestic science work be certified that it is done by the girl or boy who exhibits it.

A letter was read from Mr. H. E. G. Choate stating that the church wardens of St. Mark's Church would do what they could to see to improving the appearance of the cemetery, it will be difficult to get word to all the plot-owners, as they are scattered across the Dominion. Mrs. Robert Moore gave notice that the Institute give $25.00 towards the Memorial Fund. The matter of Consolidated Schools was pretty freely discussed. The majority seemed in favor of them, some few thought that for them, as they were situated they were better as they were. Not one lady objected on the score of taxes. One lady said that some people who advocated them admitted there were disadvantages, but there are some things to be said against any reform that comes.

There were only five pupils at the school this morning. Miss Sandy, who boards near the school, was there. Miss Dewart, who lives at some distance, was unable to get there.

There was no service in the Young's Point Anglican Church last Sunday night, as the roads were blocked.

Farmers Almost Unanimous in Opinion.

(Canadian Press.)

CALGARY, Alta., Feb. 18.—Several farmers, interviewed in Calgary are all inclined to the belief that the present moisture in the ground is better than has been the case for several years past, and all agree that this will be ample germination next spring in practically every section of the province. "I am convinced myself that the drought has been broken," said H. W. Wood, President of the United Farmers of Alberta. "Farmers should put in every ounce of seed they can this spring," was the remark of another farmer who has had long experience in Alberta.

SANDRA THE JEALOUS

BY JANE PHELPS

SANDRA TELLS EVERETT A FEW TRUTHS.

CHAPTER LI

To my astonishment Everett said nothing about my looks. He was late and after giving me a cold little kiss, we went immediately to the dining room.

"Your friend has gone?" he asked.

"Yes." Then emboldened that he had not scolded because I had cried I added, "She couln't very well stay after—"I hesitated.

"After what?" Everett demanded.

"After the way you talked to me, and the way you acted last night," I replied desperately. But someway when Everett looked at me so sternly, and in that voice questioned me, I just had to speak the truth.

"Did I tell you you might invite guests?"

No, Everett. But I was lonely. I don't know any young people my own age to talk to and I didn't think you would object to my asking Rose as long as you weren't here to be annoyed with her. I get so tired of knowing no one but old people older than I am. I used to have so many friends, all the boys and girls in town Now I have no one." Tears of selfpity rolled down my cheeks. I was nervous, my head ached, I hadn't slept the night before because of Everett's attitude, and I had cried nearly two hours. Was it any wonder that I said things I would not have dared had I been in a normal condition?

"I am so old I don't count for any one." His tone was bitter. "You will please leave the table. I will send your coffee and desert to your room. One would think you needed dolls to play with instead of the boys and girls whose society you say you miss so dreadfully!"

I rose from the table, but something, I don't know what, made me stop and lay my hand on Everett's shoulder and say:

"I am sorry I annoyed you by having Rose."

He made no reply, and I went to my room. In a moment Hetty brought me my desert and coffee. I couldn't eat, but I drank the coffee, then threw myself on the bed and again sobbed as if my heart would break. I was in the hysterical throes of sorrow for myself and heard nothing until Hetty came in to undress the bed for the night.

Then I heard the front door close. I hurried to the window. Everett was walking rapidly away from the house. Once I thought he looked back, but I couldn't be sure. My tears flowed afresh. He knew I was unhappy, sick and utterly miserable, but he had gone out— leaving me alone without trying to console me.

"Please don't cry any more, Mrs. Graham, you'll surely be sick if you do," Hetty begged after she finished her work.

"I'm sick now, Hetty, so it won't make any difference."

"Can—I —help you—do anything?"

"No, thank you, Hetty. Just leave me alone." As she closed the door in response to my request, I impulsively called her back. She was only a servant, but she was a girl my own age. "I didn't mean to speak so sharply, Hetty. But my head aches."

"Let me bathe it for you." She took the bottle of eau de cologne from the dressing table, and for half an hour she bathed my head, smoothing away the pain in both head and heart with her hands. Finally she said: "I think you'll sleep now—thank you for letting me do it for you," and was gone. But somehow I felt comforted.

I was not asleep when Everett came in altho I pretended to be. He spoke, but I made no answer. Then he came over to the bed and leaning down he kissed me ever so lightly. As he turned away, he sighed so heavily I was tempted to ask him what was the matter but restrained myself. I was so surprised at his gentle kiss, so puzzled by it after his leaving me alone in my unhappy mood the very first evenin after his return, that I hated even to speak for fear he would again say something to hurt me.

He undressed in the dark, and was so quiet I scarcely heard a sound. "He is nice not to wake me up", I thought. So I went tosleep—kind thoughts of the man who wouldn't understand my craving for companionship in my mind.

GROCERIES TO BE DEARER

BRITAIN SENDING GOODS BACK—WHOLESALERS ESTIMATE THAT THE COST OF LIVING HAS ADVANCED FROM 4 TO 10 P.C. SINCE 1ST OF JAN.

That the cost of living has advanced from four to ten per cent. since the first of the year, and is due for further advances in the immediate future, is the concensus of opinion of wholesale grovers of this city Prices have been steadily advancing since the end of the war, and until the new crops are in they will continue to advance, they say.

"It is all a matter of production," said one. "Exchange rates and other factors are immediate causes of advances in the cost of living, but these causes are themselves the results of unusual conditions affecting production. Take sugar as an instance. Prior to the war we imported large quantities of raw material from the Ukraine, Germany ad other European countries. Now we are compelled to import all our supply from Cuba and the Indies. This gives the exchange situation a chance to get at us. When normal production in the former countries is resumed the cost of sugar will come down, because the supply will be greater, and because the American exchange rate will cease to be a factor affecting our purchases."

Sugar To Go Up.

Sugar will very likely go up in price immediately. The exchange is adding from a cent to a cent and a half a pound to its cost. Just now Canadian refineries are for the most part shut down waiting for supplies of raw material. When they resume grinding the prices, it is anticipated, will go up. This is for granulated sugar. There is a slight downward tendency just now for raw sugars.

Products requiring sugar in their manufacture are also expected to go up in cost soon. Jams in two months will be selling at from 20 to 25 per cent. higher that at present. Present stocks of jams held by local wholesalers are fairly full, and the consumer has here a good chance to beat out the H.C. of L.

Several causes contribute to the present high cost of sugar, of which there is a scarcity on the entire continent. Strikes have tied up many vessels at Cuban docks on which refineries must pay heavy demurrage charges.

Alleviation Possible.

Owing to the exchange situation Great Britain and other European countries are not purchasing American sugar and other grocery products, a circumstance which some wholesalers over might cause a glut on the American market. Some commodities purchased by Great Britain have already been thrown back on the American market, and it is rumored that some goods actually delivered, to Great Britain are to be shipped back to America. If this situation developes to any extent it will, of course, have a tendency to reduce the cost of these commodities; and if producers the dealers become apprehensive as to the future of the export market they might, in a panic, throw much produce on the markets at a lower rate than that now prevailing. This is considered a possibility by wholesalers.

Cereals and Canned Goods.

No change in the cost of cereals is anticipated, as is also the case with canned vegetables and products not requiring sugar in their preparation. Soaps, however, which have been going steadily up for some time owing to the world-wide fat shortage, are expected to go still higher Laundry soaps are now selling at $10 a box, and it is expected that the price will go up to at least $12.

"Whether prices go up or remain about the same as they now are is conjectural, entirely, speaking broadly," said a wholesaler. "But of this I have reasonable assurance: There cannot possibly be a drop in prices for some time to come. If the cost of living does not stay where it is, it will go up. It is the only way in which it can move just now."

Constipation or Costiveness

Constipation, although generally described as a disease, can never exist unless some of the organs are deranged, which is generally found to be the liver.

There is nothing more productive of general ill health than constipation of the bowels, and a regular action is absolutely essential to general health. One of the most common, painful and troublesome troubles caused by constipation is piles, and unless the bowels are kept open by the use of a good laxative such as Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills the whole system will be poisoned and many different complications of diseases arise, so if you would be well, keep your bowels regular.

Mr. A Roder, Hastings St. E., Vancouver, B.C., writes:—"I desire to express my thanks for what Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills have done for me. I had been suffering from constipation for two years, and also had a bad cough and headaches. I tried all sorts of cures and remedies, but got no relief until I was advised to try your pills. I got great relief after the first few doses."

Get Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills when you ask for them or send 25c. and they will be sent by return of mail by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

FAIS EXCHANGE.

Harry Burke, of the editorial staff of the New York Evening World, has a friend in the New York East Side, who in turn has a friend who is alleged to have lately arrived from Russia after serving as color bearer of a Russian regiment in the campaign in Eastern Prussia.

When the newcomer reached the congenial atmosphere of a Yiddish cafe on Allen street, he wore a large medal on his breast, which he explained had been given to him by the express command of the Czar. Shortly after receiving the decoration he had become ill and was mustered out of service, hence his appearance in America.

"What did you do to win a medal?" inquired Burke's friend.

"I brought in a German battle flag," said the ex-soldier with becoming modesty.

"No wonder you got a medal," said the East Sider. "Were you shot in getting it?"

"No."

"Didn't you have to kill any Germans to get it?"

"No."

"Didn't you run great personal danger in getting it?"

"No."

"Well, how did you get it then?"

"Well," said the hero, "I was in the Russian trenches with my regiment nad in the trenches just in front of us was a German regiment; and I saw the man who was carrying the battle flag, and he looked like a good business man. So I waited that evening until everything was quiet and then I went over all by myself, when nobody was looking—and we traded flags."

GLASS OF SALTS IF YOUR KIDNEYS HURT

Eat less meat if you feel Backachy or have Bladder trouble.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste, and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's poisonous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to avoid serious kidney and bladder disease.

LISTEN TO THIS! SAYS CORNS LIFT RIGHT OUT NOW

You reckless men and women who are pestered with corns and who have at least once a week invited an awful death from lockjaw or blood poison, are now told by a Cincinnati authority to use drug called freezone which the moment a few drops are applied to any corn, the soreness is relieved and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts out with the fingers.

It is a sticky ether compound which dries the moment that it is applied, and simply shrivels the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. It is claimed that a quarter of an ounce of freezone will cost very little at any drug-store but is sufficient to rid one's feet of very hard or soft corn or callus.

Your are further warned that cutting at a corn is a suicidal habit.

McADOO DECLINES TO BE A DELEGATE

A SKETCH

(By Rev. G. E. Ross.)

J. Walter I. Dawson, the subject of this sketch, was born in the township of South Monaghan on the 20th day of June, 1899, and died at the General Hospital, in the city of Guelph, on Saturday morning, Jan. 31st, 1920, in the 21st year of his age.

Walter was the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Dawson of Baillieboro, lived a bright, happy, joyous boyhood on the farm with his parents, attending school and drinking deeply from the fountain of rural delights, with the other members of a happy and prosperous family. In a word he was a "Child of Nature" and loved her as a child would love his mother.

Later he attended High School, and being possessed of a lofty moral character, clean and manly habits, upright and noble principles; with a lovable disposition, and a clean and studious mind, he soon won for himself the respect and confidence of a large circle of friends. The fact, that he was the youngest of the judges at the Toronto Exhibition last year, speaks more than much for his good judgment and general ability to take his place among rising men.

At the beginning of the present year he entered the Agricultural College in the city of Guelph, feeling that such a course of training would better prepare him for his life's work. This, however, was not according to the Divine Plan, and another sphere of usefulness was opened for him just beyond the veil, for surely Paradise will mean blessed activity.

His course at College was never completed. Contracting Spanish Influenza, resulting in pneumonia, he was removed to the General Hospital where he died on Saturday morning, after one weeks' illness, and the sun of his earthly life was eclipsed at early noon, while he, himself, passed beyond the shadows.

The career of this bright young man shall long be remembered by those who knew him best. Having been converted to God early in life, he learned to love and trust the Methodist church, of which he was a faithful member. Her doctrines and teachings were dear to him, and he held in contempt and lifted up his voice like a trumpet against the social evils and questionable amusements of the present day, and his dying messages to his young companions at home were warnings against the folly of such things. Nor did he live in vain. Even in death, his influence on those about him was mighty. His simple faith in Christ, and wondrous grasp of God and Divine Things deeply impressed the staff of the hospital, for they saw before them a young man, who could triumph as he entered the Valley of the Shadow of Death, and smile in the face of the Last Enemy. As he lay softly dying, with his parents by his side, "Jesus" was on his lips, his conversation was in Heaven, and the Light of Immottal Beauty covered his face.

Owing to the illness of his pastor, Rev. M. W. Leigh, B.A., the funeral service was conducted by Rev. G. E. Ross of Peterboro. Messrs. Edmund, Charles, Handrill, Frank and Gerald Dawson, and Willard Waterman laid him down to slumber in the quiet little cemetery, not far from the scenes of his childhood. And he will sleep sweetly when the Spring walks o'er the hills, and the summer comes again. When the robin sings in the old familiar tree, and the woods of spring-time deck themselves once more in glory. But he shall not sleep forever. No, in the morning of the Day Eternal, mid the reverberating strains of the trumpet of God, he shall rise a victor o'er the grave to enter with his Lord into Glory and Eternal Life.

THE TRADES AND LABOUR COUNCIL ENDORSE THE SUNDAY STREET CART

REGULAR MEETING WAS HELD LAST EVENING—ADDRESSES BY TWO TORONTO SPEAKERS—THE PLUMBING BY-LAW.

Several important resolutions were brought in to the Trades and Labor Council at the regular fortnightly meeting last night.

President A. J. Bolwell was in the chair and a representative number of delegates were out, no doubt in anticipation of the splendid addresses given at the close of the meeting by Mr. John Noble of Toronto, and Mr. Fred Bancroft, also of Toronto, both of these men being in the city in connection with the Conciliation Board now in session.

After reading and confirmation of the minutes of the last meeting a sergeant-at-arms was appointed, on the recommendation of one of the members.

A resolution was introduced that occasioned much discussion and caused considerable difference of opinion.

This resolution was opposing the introduction of Sunday street cars in this city, as it was against the interess of the toilers. The mover of the resolution claimed that the men would be robbed of their day of rest and that it was not right to have such things going on on Sunday. "We are fast losing our grip on the Sabbath," he said.

Several members took the opposite point of view and upheld the City Council in their action on the matter, seeing no harm to the men, as long as they were allowed one day off, and got overtime nay. They held that Sunday cars were badly needed, and would prove a boon to the toilers on Sunday in enabling them to get away to the parks and the water.

"The poor man's auto," one member termed them in endorsing the Sunday street car resolution introuced in the council and it seemed the unanimous opinion of all that Sunday street cars would be a great convenience and benefit to the workers and their families.

The first resolution was replaced by another one approving of Sunday street cars for Peterboro and the motion carried with but few dissenting hands.

Plumbing Bylaw.

A letter was read from the local Plumbers Union asking them to see that the plumbing bylaw was corrected and enforced and also asking why the report of the Toronto plumbing inspector, who came here at the request of the council, and made a full report, was hushed up. The request was made for more protecion for the plumbers trade.

As the Plumbers Union were meeting in the Labour Hall near by, a member was invited in to explain the statements of this letter, which he did in no uncertain way. He claimed that the bylaws were not being properly enforced and proper inspection was not being carried out, with the result that the plumbing did not quite measure up to the Torono standards although our bylaws are as good as those of the Queen City. He said that the report of the Toronto inspector should be made public, as plumbing was a vital matter which affected the health of all citizens.

"Evidently the plumbing is not what it ought to be," said the secretary. "The public should know about it, and it should not be hushed up."

The delegate from the Plumbers advocated that the control of plumbing be taken over by the Board of Health, and said that a bill was being introduced in the Provincial house to enact this change. "Peterboro should get in ahead of them," he said.

As some reflections were cast on last year's council and the Labour representatives for letting the matter drop, Ald. Joseph Crowe gave a short explanation, saying that the report was a "damaging one," and it was left over for the new council to deal with and it would be brought up by the Property Committee in the near future. Ald. Crowe assured them that he would do all he could in the matter but was not in favor of publishing the report.

It was brought in that the plumbing could not be changed very well now and that if it was it might come pretty hard on the workers who owned their homes and who had got "stung." Some doubt was expressed as to whether the city could be compelled to rectify it. It was suggested that the plumbing inspector be superannuated and a younger man put in and properly bonded so he can be held responsible for inspections.

A motion carried unanimously that the City Fathers be written to by the secretary to take immediate action on the matter and to have published the report of the Toronto inspector.

Invitation Accepted.

An invitation extended by Manager Harry Dahn of the Grand Theatre to the members of the Trades and Labor Council to set the great Labor Picture, "The Right of Happiness," was received, and the President extended many thanks to Mr. Dahn for the kind invitation.

It was moved and seconded that the Council be asked to have the moving of night soil during the day stopped, after one of the members brought up this objectionable practice.

The Addresses.

As the business of the council was now concluded Mr. John Noble was called on for a short address, and during his speech Mr. Noble touched on several matters vital to every working man. Group insurance was referred to and he said it was only a means to keep the men out of trade unionism and in what might be called industrial slavery.

He said that the men should get an adequate enough salary to carry their own insurance and advised them to have nothing to do with such schemes, and profit sharing plans were classed in the same lot.

Mr. Fred Bancroft in his address greatly impressed the council last night. The keynote of his speech was the need for stronger organizing. "Do not rest on your oars," he said. He said he was very pleased to be present and he had recognized the importance of the matters discussed. He remarked on the difference of composition that had marked the board's four aldermen, an M.L.A., being present in contrast to other years. If a mistake is made by any Labor delegates Mr. Bancroft asked for them to help and assist these men and offer good honest criticism if it was needed.

Mr. Bancroft spoke on the many problems facing the Labor men in Canada, the same problems that face them in Europe. "Petty jealousy amongst our ranks must be eliminated. If I could leave one thought it would be this: While congratulating the Trades and Labor Council and the I.L.P. on getting in Labor candidates on the city council and a Labor man in the Provincial House, do not rest on your oars. Go ahead and get new members and strengthen their ranks."

United States Unions.

Mr. Bancroft paid tribute to the great help given by the United States Unions to the Canadian ones by backing them up with their larger treasuries and told of wha the International trades unions had done for them.

The growth of trade unionism in America was briefly reviewed, and Mr. Bancroft said that by next June when the American Federation of Labor meets at Montreal, the membership will have reached 4,000,000. In England there are some 5,000,000 members with an equal number in France. The speaker said that Labor men had taken their places as leaders in state and other other matters and spoke on the Labor men who have risen from the ranks.

The International Trade Union was compared to a business organization —they were selling Labor but want better wages and conditions for it.

In conclusion he said that the workers were entitled to a better standard of living and this should not be circumscribed by the cost of living. He urged them to prepare and study so they could take any office they might be called to and made a strong appeal for unity amongst their ranks; and also called for the assistance of the women, urging them to interest themselves in this movement for the betterment of conditions for themselves and their families.

Mr. Bancroft's address was very much enjoyed and a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Bancroft by the President.

Alkali in Soap Bad for the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

THREE LIVES LOST IN LAMP EXPLOSION

TERRIBLE TRAGEDY IN A PRAIRIE HOME.

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, Man. 19.—Mrs. Robert Davidson and two young children Gordon Davidson and Margaret Davidson are dead as a result of a coal oil lamp explosion at their farm home, 18 miles south of Elrose, Sask. Mr. Davidson had gone to the barn to do chores and had barely reached there when he heard screams from the house. He ran to his wife and children and found them in flames. He smothered the burning clothes of his wife and carried her outside, returning immediately for two children. The two tots had been suffocated before he reached them and were dead. Wrapping up Mrs. Davidson in blankets he rushed to a neighbor and did everything that could be done for her, but of no avail, for she died the following day.

JUDICIAL INQUIRY OPENED OPENED THIS MORNING.

FORTY WITNESSES WILL BE CALLED IN HOSPITAL CASE.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Feb. 18.—The judicial inquiry into the charges made against the administration of the London Hospital for the Insane was opened this morning before Judge MacBeth.

The press was excluded, the Judge declaring that he intended adopting the same plan as was followed at Hamilton.

The charges are based upon complaints of Harry Lawder, a returned soldier, who claims forty witnesses will be called in an effort to substantiate his charges of ill-treatment of prisoners, gross negligence, and theft from the supplies of the institution.

The investigation is expected to cover some days.

A FAIR PROPOSITION

According to the story they are telling in New York, the German Kaiser was complimenting a soldier named Einstein, who had distinguished himself on the field of battle.

"I am told," so the Kaiser is quoted as saying, "that you are a very poor man and the only support of your aged parents. Because of your poverty you shall have your choice between taking the Iron Cross or a hundred marks.

"Your Majesty," inquired the canny hero, "what is the cross worth in money?"

"Not much," said his emperor; "it is the honor that makes it valuable. It is worth perhaps two marks."

"Very well, then," said Private Einstein, drawing himself up to his full height and saluting. "I will take the Iron Cross and ninety-eight marks in cash!"

The Hacking Cough Strains the Lungs

The terrible, hacking, lung-wracking cough that sticks to you in spite of everything you have done to get rid of it is a great source of danger to your health, and the longer it is allowed to stick the more serious the menace becomes.

You can easily get rid of the cough or cold at its inception by using Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, a remedy that has been universally used throughout Canada for the past 30 years.

Mrs. Samuel Matthews, Portage, P. E.I., writes:—"Last winter I caught a heavy cold, and was laid up for sometime. I had such a hacking cough I could not sleep at night and did not think I would ever get over it. One day a friend dropped in to see me and was surprised to see how bad my cough was. She advised me to use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, so the next day I sent for a bottle and soon got relief and by time I had taken two bottles my cough was all gone. I doubt there is anything to equal it."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; 3 pine trees the trade mark; price 25c and 50c. Manufactured only by the T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

A Merry Collection of New Things for Spring Time Needs

ANYONE not used to store-keeping would be puzzled as to how we dispose of all the merchandise that is arriving these days. There are packages, boxes and bales being unpacked in our basement that reveal a great variety of articles from the finest of silks to tins of paint for Spring renovating. All will be necessary in one way or another when the snows of winter melt before the warm sunshine of Springtime. Every department is now proudly displaying its new stocks and many people are taking excursions through our store to become informed as to what will be worn in a few weeks time. : : : : : : : : :

The Matter of Spring Veiling

can be decided right now, and indications are that there will be much of it used this season. Black will be popular once more and next will come brown instead of navy, although there will be plenty of the latter in evidence.

A handsome Six-sided Mesh that is quite open, and is finished up with round open-work dots, can be had in Black, Brown and Navy, and is priced at 75c yard.

One Must Have a Feminine Ruffle Around the Neck-line

There is much to choose from if this is your quest. Some are of organdie, trimmed with val lace, and others are of filet lace; some have scalloped edges and others are mitred. Priced from $1 to $2.25 yard.

Patent Leather Skate Strap Belts Can Be Had at 45c

Many suits and dresses feature belts of this order. They are inexpensive and furnish a nice finish to a garment on the smock order or tailored pattern for that matter.

Tweedie Boot Tops and Pumps or Oxfords Are Inseparable

Many women have purchased their Pumps and Oxfords and are putting them to use already by combining them with Tweedie Boot Tops, and in this way receiving the maximum of service. Some interesting lines of both are on display in the Shoe Dept., 2nd Floor.

Spring Must Be Here When New Suits Are Being Shown

Those now hanging on our racks are a representative assortment of what will be worn a few weeks hence. The lengths of the coats range from the waist line to below the finger tips. The Ping Wing coat is just hip length. It is modish and no doubt will depend upon slight figure for its popularity. Vestees of contrasting colours show themselves in many instances; tricollette is often used for this purpose. The skirts have a circumference of from 54 to 57 inches around the bottom and are worn about eight inches from the ground.

We have one very handsome model in mind of navy tricotine. It is semi-tailored and the skirt of the coat flares out from the hip line and the upper portion of the back is form fitting and paneled with raised seams. The pockets are slot style and the edges throughout are finished with a black military braid. A row of bone buttons extends from the waist line to hem, which is finger-tip length. The skirt is fashionably cut and the price is $98.

An extensive assortment of other models from $55 to $80.

Satin Hats for Early Spring Weat

For in-between seasons they are prime favourites, and even then their usefulness does not end.

We have a pretty collection in our Show Rooms right now. Some were prepared in our own Workrooms, and some came from a Millinery Wholesaler that is noted for chic styles.

A Happy Combination is Pearl Grey Georgette combined with grey shadow lace to match and a touch of cerise discreetly used.

The pleasing effect of this combination came to our attention the other day when they were lying on the counter in a haphazard fashion. The georgette is elbow proof and is $3 yard. The lace is 18 inches wide and sells at $3 Yd. Cerise silk or satin can be had in various widths and prices.

Floral Linings That Deserve To Be Used With a Good Material

Some are Satin and others Poplin. There are Blues, Greys, and Fawns. The designs are conventional, with large spots, relieved by scroll effects. The width is 36 inches, and the Satin is $5.50 yard and the Poplin $4.75.

A Bit of Ribbon for a Sash or Trimming is always being needed, and if it be a Dresden pattern, then so much the better, for we will be able to supply it from some new arrivals. The width is five inches, and the colours are blue, green and helio. Price 98c yard. Also a check pattern in blue and black with a brown border. A seven-inch width. At $1.19 yd.

$700 DAMAGES AWARDED BY JURY TO JOSEPH GREY AND SON CLAUDE

MR. ROBERTSON, OF TORONTO, MOVED NON-SUIT WITH RESPECT TO THE BONNER-WORTH COMPANY AND RAISED INTERESTING POINT IN THE INTERPRETATION OF SECTION OF MOTOR VEHICLES ACT.

JUDGMENT RESERVED

A jury in the Winter assizes yesterday afternoon awarded Claude Gray, twelve years old, $600, and his father Joseph Gray, Gilchrist street, $100, in the action to recover $1,000 damages from the Hydro-Electric Commission, as managers of the Peterboro street railway, and the Canadian Woolens Limited, for injuries sustained by the boy in an accident on McDonnel street last June when a street car collided with a Canadian Woolens truck on which he was riding. The plaintiffs were also given costs.

Mr. Justice Orde reserved judgment as to the assessment of the damages between the two defendant corporations, and also upon the motion of R. S. Robertson, solicitor for the Can-Woolens Limited, for non-suit in so far as that company was concerned.

The jury found that Frank Keating, motorman of the street car was negligent in not having the car under control when the collision occurred, and that Angus Murray, driver of the motor truck, was also negligent in failing to look backward before crossing the tracks. They also decided that either of these drivers could have avoided the accident by taking proper precautions.

The award of damages was made jointly against the two defendants, and Mr. Justice Orde announced that he would reserve judgment as to the allocation of the damages allowed by the jury.

Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the plaintiffs, Mr. Joseph Wearing for the Hydro-Electric Commission and Mr. R. S. Robertson for the Canadian Woolens, Limited.

Mr. Robertson's Point.

Arguing in support of his motion for non-suit, Mr. Robertson raised the point that the Motor Vehicles Act did not provide that a person riding in a motor car whose driver was guilty of negligence could obtain compensation from the owner of the car in the event of injury or for similar cause.

The Act says that the OWNER of a motor vehicle shall be responsible for any violation of it unless the automobile was in the possession of some other person without the owner's consent. The statute intended, Mr. Robertson held, to protect the right of any person to use the highway. In this case, he said, there was no interference with the plaintiff's use of the highway.

"The plaintiff claims in this case that in giving him a ride on the motor truck we didn't operate it properly. This statute was surely meant for the protection of other persons on the highway and not for the passengers of the motor car."

Mr. Gordon contended that the owners of the truck were responsible in that they had consented to Murray's use of the truck after working hours to deliver wood bought by some employees. He quoted precedents, which with those cited by Mr. Robertson, His Lordship stated he would take into consideration in preparing his judgment.

ANNUAL MEETING OF HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION OF THE QUEEN MARY SCHOOL

The Home and School Association of Queen Mary School held their annual meeting on Friday afternoon, in the school.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—

President—Mrs. S. T. Medd.
1st vice-President—Mrs. Connolly.
2nd vice-President—Mrs. E. W. Borbridge.
Treasurer—Mrs. Hetherington.
Treasurer of Flower Fund—Mrs. Shiner.

A standing vote of thanks to the present executive for their services during the past year was moved by Mrs. M. A. Morrison and heartily responded to by those present.

The regular monthly meetings will be held as usual on the second Friday of each month.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Barnes, Mr. Clark, and the ladies of the refreshment committee who contributed so much towards making such a success of the opening evening held in the school on the 6th of February. The Treasurer's report was then read and also the report of the Treasurer of the Flower Fund.

An invitation has been extended to parents and teachers of the Association to be present at an open evening to be given by the Home and School Association of King Edward School on the evening of Friday, Feb. 20th.

The following annual report of the Secretary was then read:—

With the passing of 1919 the Home and School Association of Queen Mary School have brought to a close a very successful year, both in a business and social way.

The sewing classes were continued on through last season and until the closing of school at midsummer, but this very necessary branch of work having been added to the curriculum of the school, they have been discontinued.

In April last Mrs. Courtiss, one of the committee of the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations, addressed this Association in the Collegiate Hall on the subject of Mothers' Clubs.

A tea was also held in April at the residence of the President, Mrs. S. T. Medd, for the purpose of raising money to defray Mrs. Courtiss' expenses.

During the past year a Musical Club was formed by pupils of the school under the supervision of the Association.

It was resolved by the Association to help re-organize Associations in all the public schools of the city, and a committee for this purpose was appointed.

A resolution was sent to the School Board requesting that all dances given by pupils of the Collegiate be held in the Collegiate Hall in future.

Another resolution was sent to the Local Council of Women endorsing women holding office on the school board.

At a meeting held last June the name "Parents' Circle" was changed to that of "Home and School Association," the Association being now affiliated with the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations, whose aim is to awaken public interest in all educational matters by means of organization and discussion and by providing literature and speakers. The sympathy and support of parents and teachers is invited.

Some very interesting and instructive talks and papers have been delivered to the Association during the past year by the following—Mrs. W. R. Morris on "The Woman Voter;" Dr. J. Malcolm McCullough on the newly installed system of medical supervision in our schools; Dr. Middleton on "The Care of the Teeth;" Mrs. J. M. McCullough on "The Teacher from a Parent's point of view;" Miss Ross, of Queen Alexandra School, a paper on "How Parents might be of Assistance to Teachers."

The first aid kit which was installed in the school, by the Association last year, and proved of such great value, was loaned to the Public Playgrounds Association, for use during the summer months, and was much appreciated by them.

A few cases of needy families, reported by the teachers, were provided with clothing and footwear.

Two very successful and enjoyable open nights were held during the season at which the social and get-together spirit were strongly evinced.

Through the efforts of the Association a piano has been placed in the upper hall of the school for a month, and is of great benefit to teachers and pupils in marching and forming classes. The Association hope to be able, sometime in the near future, to purchase a piano for this purpose for the school.

In November a Rummage Sale was held and the sum of One Hundred Dollars realized, which has helped the Association out in many ways.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Florence N. Borbridge.

OLDEST LIVING LANGUAGE

"Viri trahite jugum" ("men drag the yoke") sighed the Roman politicians when Nero turned down the request of the Amalgamated Toga Makers' Union for an eight-hour day and raised taxes to pay for the autumn series of orgies and a new fiddle.

"Vyrai traukite jungan" echoes the Lithuanian of the present day as he and his fellow-refugees shoulder their packs and set out for the return trip to the farms whence they were driven by the Germans before Lithuania had set up its present republican form of self-government.

The striking similarity between the modern Lithuanian and the ancient Latin languages is no mere coincident applying to those few words only (says the "Bulletin of the Lithuanian National Council.") Lithuanian is the oldest living language in the world today. It resembles most the primitive Sanskrit and is probably older than Greek or Latin, with which philologists find it has much in common. It is entirely different from German and Slavic tongues.

Professor A. Meillet of the College of France says: "If you wish to hear from the human lips some echo of what the language originally common to the Indo European may have been, go and listen to Lithuanian peasants talking."

Emmanuel Kant, the German philosopher, wrote 110 years ago: "Lithuania, having a loyal character, deserves the protection of the state. She must be preserved, for her tongue possesses the key which opens all the enigmas, not only of philology, but of history."

MANAGER'S FIFTH ANNUAL REPORT TO PETERBORO UTILITIES COMMISSION

NEW WORK COMPLETED BY THE COMMISSION---FEW INTERRUPTIONS.

At a meeting of the Utilities Commission, held yesterday afternoon, the following reports were submitted:

The beginning of the year 1919 which may be called the year of reconstruction after the sensation of the Great War, found us with our power demand considerably reduced and not until October did we reach a point where we did not have to pay for power not used, due to the clause in our contract with the Hydro, to the effect that we would pay for not less than 75 per cent. of the greatest amount of power taken at any one time.

For the first nine months of the year we paid $5,020.21 on this account. This made a sad cut into what would have been our handsome profits of something like $10,000.00. However, from October to the end of the year, there has been a steady climb of our power demand, and it would appear that we will not be penalised on this score during 1920.

During the year interruptions of service have been few and the frequency and voltage have been well maintained. A few severe storms visited us during the summer, with their usual temporary effects, particularly on the 17th and 24th of August. On the 18th of August considerable power had to be dropped temporarily on account of low water in the river, as the City Council

We also suffered from the same cause on 10th September.

New Work.

A considerable amount of work for the benefit of the plant in general was carried out, particularly the erection of the three wire circuits on George Street, and the complete removal of all wooden poles from Murray to Charlotte Streets, and arrangements have been made whereby the clean-up will be extended down to the C.P.R. Station and from Murray to McDonnel Streets.

Two hundred and twenty-six cedar poles have been set, costing $649.75, and nearly 65 tons of wire have been strung, covering over 100,000 feet; 100 transformers, having a capacity of 1,304 kilowatts, have been erected and connected, 10 transformers having a capacity of 100 kilowatts, have been burned out from lightning, tree trouble, and old age.

One thousand and forty meters passed through our Meter Department this last year, 740 were re-varified by the Government inspector for which we paid in fees $342.05. 81 were scrapped, being unfit for further work.

The street lighting has not undergone any change during the year, except the addition from time to time of a few incandescent lamps as ordered by the City Council.

PETERBORO LOST IN THE FINALS

PETERBORO' CURLERS RUNNERS-UP FOR SECOND YEAR IN SUCCESSION.

TORONTO, Feb. 19.—With C. A. Tobin and W. Gemmell at the helm, Queen City yesterday afternoon won the District Cup from Peterboro', skipped by W. D. Campbell and J. W. McDermid. This is the first occasion since the cup was put up for competition in 1907 that it has been won by Queen City and the only occasion on which the same club were able to reach the finals.

History repeated itself, and, as in 1919, Peterboro, led by the same skips, were runners -up. Owing to illness the personnel of the Peterboro rinks was not quite the same as that used while the district games were on, but nevertheless the newcomers put up a sterling game.

Gemmell's rink started to make a runaway race of it from Campbell, and at the eighth end were nine up, but the latter finished strong and finished on even terms with Gemmell.

Tobin and McDermid had a pretty race, with the former taking command on the seventh end with a four count and following it on the next with two, and was never afterwards headed. On the eighth end with Tobin rink had three in the first ring and protected them with a guard. McDermid wasted three removing the guard and was obliged to draw on the last shot, and after the measuring rule was applied by Referee Bastedo, Queen City were found still lying two.

In the semi-finals in the morning Peterboro' won from Paris by nine shots. Campbell being two down to Flahiff, but McDermid was eleven up on Gourley.

Queen City reached the final by trouncing Agincourt by twelve shots, Tobin getting five on R. J. Green and Gemmell seven on D. Thompson.

The finalists curled in good form and the spectators behind the glass partitions were unanimous in their opinion that the four competing rinks were easily the equals of the famous Rice rinks.

"THE BETTER WIFE"

$5,000 DAMAGE SUIT IN SUPREME COURT

Who did legal business for you? Who made your will?

Mr. E. H. D. Hall.

Plaintiff said he had done very little legal business.

Mr. Davidson said he had been with the old firm of Dennistoun & Dennistoun for five or six years when Mr. E. H. D. Hall was with them.

When you sent that message by Mr. Rush to Mr. Goodwill, did you also send one to Mr. Hall?

No, not that I remember.

What did Mrs. Kendry tell you?

She said a syndicate was going to take over the Auburn Company. She said she was going to get $200.00 a share. I asked if I would get the same price. She said no, that the new company would not agree to that. Mr. Kendry and Mr. Carnegie had agreed that one would not sell out without the other. The new company would give $200.00 a sare for only this stock. Mrs. Kendry said she tried to get that price for all the shareholders, but the new company refuse l.

Referring to the plaintiff's statement that he had asked Mr Goodwill for advice, Mr. Strickland asked: "You wanted to know whether it was better to take cash or stock in the new company?"

"I wanted his opinion as to what was best for me to do."

Reverting to the incidents of 12th July, Mr. Davidson recollected that he had driven home with Mrs. Kendry and Mr. Goodwill, who drove on to attend a directors' meeting at Auburn. Plaintiff admitted that he had probably expressed himself as pleased with the transaction. "I didn't know my rights then," he added.

Mr. Strickland: Who told you about that?

I wanted to know why I didn't get as much for my stock as Mrs. Kendry.

Who did you discuss this with?

With lots of people. Mr. E. R. Hall and Mr. Widdifield were two. I discussed it with Mrs. Kendry, but that didn't help me any.

Plaintiff asserted that he believed Mr. Goodwill was acting for him, not as a personal solicitor, but as representing the stockholders of the company.

Mr. Strickland: Who told you Mr. Goodwill got a commission from the sale of the stock.

Mr. Davidson: My daughter met Mrs. Carnegie. She said, "What a shame it was that Mr. Davidson didn't get as much for his shares as we did. That man Goodwill got thousands out of it."

Mr. Strickland: Who else?

There were dozens around town.

Mr. Strickland: Did you think he got it out of your twenty shares?

No, out of the whole thing, Mrs. Kendry's stock and all.

Do you think he made any undisclosed profit out of your shares?

I think he did, but I don't know. I have my own opinion. That was the report going around town.

Referring to the payment of Mr. Goodwill's account for three dollars, Mr. Davidson said it was paid in December by his daughter upon his instruction, settling a family account between them for that amount. He could not remember when he first saw Mr. Widdifield about legal action. It might have been December or November.

Satisfied in July.

Mr. Justice Orde: You were satisfied on 17th July with the transaction?

Yes.

When was the first time you realised that you didn't get enough for your stock?

From the word go. I always felt I should have got as much as Mrs. Kendry.

When was it you thought Mr. Goodwill had not acted properly?

Soon after I got the money.

Who suggested that you pay Mr. Goodwill that account?

I did myself.

Were you getting ready for a lawsuit?

I don't think so. I had talked it over at home with my daughter.

Did anyone suggest that it would be a good thing to get a receipt for that account?

I told my daughter it might be good to get a receipt.

Miss Davidson.

Miss Flora Davidson, daughter of the plaintiff, stated that on June 24 she telephoned to Mr. Goodwill telling him her father had decided to take his advice and to take par for the stock.

Witness first heard of the legal action about the middle of December. She had never heard her father speak of any liability by Mr Goodwill.

Referring to the genesis of the suit, Mr. Justice Orde recalled that Mr. Davidson in his examination had been hazy as to when he first contemplated legal action.

W. H. Meldrum.

Mr. W. H. Meldrum testified that he had bought fifty shares of Auburn Mill stock in 1905, paying $5,000. He had been a director for several years prior to Mr Kendry's death until the plant was sold. Witness said that from his experience in cereal manufacturing for thirty years he had acquired a knowledge of machinery. Mr. Goodwill became a director before Mr. Kendry's death, when Mr. Hayes left. The directors received each $300 a year.

Mr. Hall submitted a financial statement presented at the annual meeting of the Auburn Woolen Co. in April 1919, showing the assets and liabilities of the company.

Mr. Strickland objected to it and repeated a previous statement that the crucial point at issue was whether or not the defendant was under any obligation to protect Mr. Davidson, that is whether or not he was solicitor for him or gave advice as solicitor.

Mr. Justice Orde allowed the question pointing out that it was only fair to Mr. Hall to bring out any evidence as to Mr Goodwill's knowledge of the affairs of the company and the value of the stock.

Mr. Meldrum stated that the capital stock of the company fas $176,200. The profits for three months was $70,000. Information regarding the earnings of the company and negotiations for sale witness learned at the directors' meetings. He presumed that Mr Goodwill knew as much as the other directors, as he attended practically every meeting.

Speaking of the negotiations for the sale of Mrs. Kendry's stock, witness stated that Mrs. Kendry had told the directors of an option, early in 1919 on the company, which had been given for $250 cash a share. It would have been satisfactory to all the shareholders. These negotiations fell through, but were taken up by Ferguson & Ormsby. They refused to buy anything but Mrs Kendry's stock.

I took it for granted that Mr. Goodwill as solicitor for the company, was acting for Mrs Kendry, but she didn't tell me so. I was informed that the option was given on Mrs. Kendry's, Mrs Carnegie's and Mr Carnegie's stock. I was one of the minority.

"The original offer to me by the new company was $5,000 cash or $5,000 in preferred stock and fifty per cent. common. I subsequently got $10,000 preferred stock and $2,500 common."

Mr. Hall—Did you have any conversation with Mr Goodwill?

Mr. Meldrum—After Mrs. Kendry's sale had gone through I said: "I hope you will see that the minority shareholders are protected. They belong to my wife and I want to see that she gets the value for it." He said: "You can rely on that. I will do the best I can."

Mr. Meldrum said that all the shareholders had a very high opinion of Mr. Goodwill.

"At a later meeting in his office I asked him what he had been able to do in the selling of my stock. He said he had not been able to get anything better than Ormsby's offer of par or $5,000 preferred and 50 per cent. common.

He said: "I am satisfied you won't get better. I think you had better accept. It is unfortunate that in a joint stock company the party in control can do pretty near as they liked."

I asked whether the laws of Canada permitted them to play fast and loose with shareholders. He shrugged his shoulders and said: "They do it anyway."

I didn't engage him as my solicitor, although I went there for that purpose. That conversation changed my mind. I said I thought I had come to the wrong shop.

Mr. Goodwill told me Mr Davidson had accepted cash and that Mr Hamilton had practically done the same.

I said there was three dollars value in every dollar stock issued. His an-

STIRRING PLAY AT THE GRAND

FORCEFUL, SMASHING EXPOSURE OF LABOUR SITUATION.

An industry that cuts wages below the living level, that refuses to re-employ former service men who return for their old jobs and an industry that permits the working conditions to be unsafe and unhealthful, cannot survive.

This is one of the points driven home in "The Right to Happiness," a photoplay of the hour which is to be seen at the Grand Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

"The Right to Happiness" is not a propaganda picture, neither is it a mealy-mouthed smoothing over of a bad situation. It is a forceful, smashing exposure of certain existing conditions with the solution pointed out clearly and dramatically.

Even were it not for the picture's own merit the name of the star would assure it success.

Dorothy Phillips, whose work in "The Heart of Humanity" and "Destiny" was epochal, stars in "The Right to Happiness." She depicts a dual role; a pampered child of society and a child of the Russian soviet.

Allen Holubar, who produced "The Heart of Humanity", directed this latest Universal starring vehicle of Miss Phillips.

A notable Universal cast of favorite players supports the star. The cast is made up of: William Stowell Robert Anderson, Hector Sarno, Henry Barrows, Winter Hall, Margaret Mann, Stanhope Wheatcroft and Alma Bennett.

William Stowell, who has supported the star in many of her Universal successes, including "The Heart of Humanity," also plays opposite her in "The Right to Happiness."

"The Better Wife" is described as an interesting and delightfully woven romance, introducing Miss Young as an American girl who is visiting friends in England. While she is there, she becomes acquainted with Sir Richard Beverly, Lady Beverly and their son, Little Dick. Lady Beverly is having an affair with another man, and one afternoon, when she is racing in her car to keep an appointment with him, the car overturns and she is killed. Little Dick, who was riding in the car with his mother, is seriously injured, and Charmian Page (played by Miss Young), takes an interest in him and tries to nurse him back to health.

It is discovered, however, that an intricate surgical operation is necessary in order to effect a cure. Sir Richard is found to be in straightened circumstances and cannot afford the services of a specialist, but Charmian has her father undertake the matter without the Baronet's knowledge. Other circumstances tend to throw Charmian constantly in Sir Richard's path, but the sacred memory of his dead wife keeps him from speaking of his love. Later he is acquainted with the double life of the late Lady Beverly, and he is brought to the point where a single decision will change his life from one of unhappiness to one of happiness and love.

INTERESTING TELEGRAM BROUGHT TO LIGHT

Recalls an Enterprise of 50 Years Ago.

(Canadian Press.)

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C., Feb 18. — A reminder of the days when kid-gloved pioneering in Central British Columbia was unknown came to Prince Rupert recently. It was a telegram, probably the first of all Skeena district telegrams, for it bore the date November 23, 1865.

The telegram is a souvenir of the time when the Western Union Telegraph Company was trying to beat the Atlantic cable enterprise by establishing communication with Europe by way of Behring Straits and Siberia. To this end, engineers were sent into the then remote Skeena and Caribou countries to establish a wire service through to Yukon and Alaska. They did not get much further than the Buckley Valley, however. The Atlantic cable won out, so the Behring Strait route was abandoned.

The ancient telegram was dispatched when the line had been partly built. The message appears on Western Union Telegraph paper bearing the words, "Russian Extension." On the upper left hand corner of the yellow envelope is a flamboyant cut of the upper half of the globe rising out of the mist, with a telegraphic line traced across North America and heading to the far north.

LABOUR LEGISLATION.

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—The Government has decided to introduce certain labour legislation at the coming session of Parliament.

The precise nature of it is not known, but Senator Robertson stated to-day that it would include four amendments to the Industrial Disputes Act. There will also be an amendment to the Technical Education Act.

The Minister stated that the Government has under consideration some proposed legislation dealing with questions discussed at the International Labour Conference, but would not commit himself when asked whether this would include the Eight-Hour-Day Bill.

PRICE OF WHEAT.

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—The dispute which has arisen over the price of the wheat sold by the Canada Wheat Board to Greece shows no signs of being immediately settled. It was stated a week ago that Lloyd Harris was coming to Ottawa for a conference with the Government, but Sir George Foster to-day refused to discuss the matter, stating that he had no knowledge of Mr. Harris' movements or intentions.

BIG IMMIGRATION EXPECTED

Many Foreigners Returning Home and Others Coming Out.

(Canadian Press.)

EDMONTON, Alta., Feb. 18.—"One hundred thousand foreigners will be leaving Canada this year to go back to their former homes," said J. Normand, travelling passenger agent for the White Star and associated lines, who is on a trip through western Canada.

"Immigration this year may even run as high as 200,000, he said. We are expecting a very heavy passenger business this year, most of which will be immigration. The bulk of the immigrants will come from Poland. The Poles are getting very anxious to get over to Canada and the United States. You will find that the former class of immigrant will not be coming from Europe this year. There will be only a very small percentage of agriculturalists. Most of them will be city folk. "Scores of foreigners, Mr. Normand said, in Canada are now sending over to Poland and other countries in central Europe for their families.

GREAT INCREASE IN CATTLE IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

(Canadian Press.)

VICTORIA, B.C., Feb. 18.—The live stock department here reports a great increase in the herds of cattle in the province within the past year. The chief areas of increase are the route of the Grand Trunk Pacific and Peace River country. Owing to drought conditions in Southern Alberta many cattle have been shipped in within the past year. There has also been an increase in the Cariboo district. The number of pure-bred cattle is steadily growing and the health of live stock throughout the province is reported as excellent.

OPERATIONS HINDERED

Great Depth of Snow in Northern Woods.

(Canadian Press.)

EDMONTON, Alta., Feb. 18.—Too much snow in the woods is the word that comes down from the northern lumber camps. In the country around Lesser Slave Lake there is an average depth of four feet, with frequently five and six feet, whereas the usual snowfall in the woods in an Alberta winter is not more than two feet. As a result, lumbering operations are being somewhat seriously handicapped.

ANOTHER CLINIC FOR PETERBORO

NEW BUILDING WI L BE ERECTED IN THE SPRING.

Doctors G. Stewart Cameron, J. H. Eastwood, J. Malcolm McCulloch, J. R. Mann, A. Moir and F. Neal who have been practicing for some years in the city, have formed a clinic on lines similar to those which have been followed in other places, both in Canada and in the United States.

"The field of medicine has become so great that it is impossible for any one man to be equally proficient in all branches," said Dr. G. S. Cameron this afternoon. "Further, it is impossible to maintain the necessary laboratories and equipment that are essential to-day in the practice of modern medicine and surgery."

Continuing Dr. Cameron said: "In order to give a service that will be of the very best, the above doctors have decided to unite their forces and in the spring erect a modern office building in the site of the old Trinity Methodist church at the corner of Reid and Charlotte streets. This building will be fully equipped with clinical and X-ray laboratories and it is their intention to have a well trained technician in charge of their laboratory work. It is hoped that the institution will be in running order in the autumn.

"We trust that in the near future when the full details are worked out we may be able to give a more extended account of the work that is to be done."

It is stated that at least $50,000 will be spent on the building.

$5,000 DAMAGE SUIT IN SUPREME COURT

swer was: "If you could find a purchaser there is."

Mr. Meldrum said he went to Mr. R. R. Hall a few days later to arrange for the sale of his fifty shares. In the end Mr. Meldrum received for his 85,000 Auburn stock $10,000 preferred and $2,500 common in the new company.

Offered to Sell at $125.

To Mr. Strickland witness recalled an offer he had made to sell his stock at $125 a share to Mr. Ormsby. The latter did not accept.

Mr. Strickland—Why did you offer to sell at $125 if you thought it was worth $300?

Mr. Meldrum— The money would have been of great value to me then.

Mrs. Elizabeth Kendry.

Mrs. Kendry testified that the Kendry and Carnegie block of Auburn mill stock was 1210 shares, of which 1,011 shares were held by the Kendry family. The 1,210 shares were sold for $242,000. There had been a written agreement that the Kendry stock would not be sold separately from that held by the Carnegie family.

Mrs. Kendry corrected former evidence, saying that Mr. Goodwill did not become a director until after she succeeded her husband as president in December 1918. And he wasn't solicitor for the company until after Mr Kendry's death. Previous to that time Mr. Peck or Mr. Goodwill were engaged when legal advice was required.

"After Mr. Kendry's death I thought it better to have a solicitor. Mr. Goodwill was then engaged and was placed on the Board of Directors.

Referring to the negotiations for the sale of her stock, Mrs. Kendry said she was anxious to include Mr. Meldrum, Mr. Davidson and Mr. Hamilton in the first offer. It was blocked by a Toronto shareholder. That offer exceeded $250 a share, but it fell through.

Witness said she had advised Mr. Davidson to accept the cash offer he had received for his shares. She said her reason was simply a woman's reason that she had sold for cash.

THE BOARD MET AGAIN TO-DAY

The Conciliation Board resumed its sessions again this morning, with His Honour Judge Huycke presiding.

Mr. J. G. Merrick, of Toronto, is representing the C. G. E. Company, and Mr. Fred Bancroft, of Toronto, is appearing for the employees.

The Board has been called together to arbitrate a dispute between the Company and the winders at the plant. Much of to-day's session was taken up with detail work.

The men are making the following demands:

A 20 per cent. increase all round.

A minimum rate of 50 cents an hour to all men in the winding department after three months' service with the company.

Seniority in the winding department shall prevail under all circumstances.

That the men shall receive time and a half for all overtime up to 12 p.m., and double time for Sundays and holidays.

That no employee shall be changed from a day shift to a night shift for a shorter period than one week.

FIREMEN HAD AN EARLY CALL

The firemen's slumbers were disturbed at 3 o'clock this morning by an alarm from box 21. A spark from the anvil in Peter Hamilton's blacksmith shop had evidently lit in a wooden box sitting in the centre of the concrete floor and the box had smouldered all night likely, but did not blaze up for a long time. It presented the appearance of a real fire but there was nothing to it and it could have caused little damage anyway.

COR. RUBIDGE AND SHERBROOKE STREETS : 'Phone 342

When the Auburn company went out of existence Mrs. Kendry resigned first as vice-president, Mr. Herbert Kendry next and Mr. Hilliard Carnegie next. Mr. Goodwill did not resign.

Mr. Hall—Who acted as your solicitor throughout the transaction?

Mrs. Kendry—Mr. Goodwill.

Did you get a bill of costs from Mr. Goodwill?

Mrs. Kendry said she did, and that there had been an understanding with Mr. Goodwill in that connection.

Mr. Justice Orde—Did you consult Mr. Goodwill as to what you should take for your shares?

Mrs. Kendry—I remember when my son was ill Mr. Goodwill came up to his room and we talked it over there. I had a great deal of confidence in Mr. Goodwill's opinion.

His Lordship— Was it as personal solicitor you got his opinion as to the value of the stock and the price? —Yes.

And you paid him for that service?—Yes.

Was Offered $65.

To Mr. Strickland Mrs. Kendry stated that on Dec. 12th, 1918, she received a letter from Mr. Parry Hayes of the Toronto company, who offered to sell his shares of Auburn stock at $85 a share. Mr. Hayes was twice president of the Auburn Woolen Company and held $300 shares.

When she sold her own stock she was influenced by the fact that with the armistice there had been a cancellation of orders. There was also the fact that Mr. Kendry's death was a loss to the company because of his wide acquainfance throughout the trade.

Speaking of Mr. Goodwill, Mrs. Kendry said: "I have no reason but to think the very best of Mr. Goodwill. I always found him upright, honest, candid and capable."

Mrs. Kendry recalled the occasion when she had driven Mr. Davidson home. He told her he had received the cheque for his stock that day and said he was pleased to get it.

Mr. Hall, re-examining— Are you aware that Mr. E. Parry Hayes never sold his stock and that he is a director in the Canadian Woolens Limited?

Mrs. Kendry said she had had no knowledge of that, but had simply been told by Mr. Raye, who was promoting the amalgamation, what Mr. Hayes intended to do.

Mr. Hall—There's such a thing as duplicity in this world.

His Lordship—Mrs. Kendry says she can't explain anything about Mr. Hayes.

Mr. Hall—But you know now?

Mrs. Kendry— I saw Mr. Hayes' name in the prospectus of the new company.

GETTING READY TO TRY ACCUSED GERMANS

MR. R. L. DOBBIN GAVE AN ADDRESS ON FILTRATION AT MEETING OF ENGINEERS

WATER FILTRATION IS A SUBJECT THAT IS BEING SERIOUSLY CONSIDERED BY WATER WORKS DEPARTMENT OF THE CITY.

WILL INSTALL PLANT

At a joint meeting of the Engineering Institute and the Board of Trade held last evening in the Board of Trade rooms, Mr. R. L. Dobbin, Waterworks engineer for the city, gave a very instructive address on filtration and its application to Peterboro.

Mr. R. H. Parsons, City Engineer took the chair in the absence of Mr. Reid Munro through illness, and expressed regret at Mr. Munro being unable to be present. He spoke briefly on how important the matter of filtration was to the citizens at this time and he felt that the address and the lantern slides would be very instructive.

He announced that on next Thursday night meetings would be held when Mr. W. R. Breyfogle will address the members on "Organization."

He also announced that on March 4, Mr. John Murphy of Ottawa, electrical engineer, in the Department of Railways and Canals will address the Engineering Institute on "Ice".

Water Filtration.

"In municipal water filtration," said Mr. Dobbin, "problems two primary objects are sought, namely, improvement of the physical imperfections of the raw water and the removal from it of bacterial life. Mud, silt, clay and amorphous debris give to the water an unpleasant appearance; make it turbid or muddy, and form a sediment in pipes and in vessels in which it is stored. Vegetable stains impart a distinct color to some waters, our own Otonabee is a good example of a stained water, and the removal of this color is desirable.

So far as it is known, the presence of mud and silt, dead amorphous debris and vegetable stain, is not of significance so far as affecting the hygienic quality of the water is concerned, but by lending their individual and collective characteristics to it, the human imagination is sometimes aroused in a hostile manner and most people prefer a clear, colorless, sparkling water to a muddy or yelloiw stained colored water.

The misroscopic life in water is of both harmless and harmful kinds. The higher forms are the microscopic plants which sometimes evidence themselves in the form of green or yellow slime on stagnant bodies of water: or miscroscopic animal life which lives upon the vegetable life, but which, so far as is known, does not directly and of itself produce disease. Even the basteria, the lowest form of known life, are of two groups the harmless, and the disease breeding kind. Both forms are of vegetable origin and constitution, but the harmful varieties always come from the human sewage.

Water Supplies

The writings of antiquity are silent on the subject of filtration of public water supplies. The first comprehensive and purposeful attempt to filter water for public use began with the construction of the filter plant at East Chelsea, London, England in 1849. The avowed purpose of this filter was to strain out the suspended matters in the water and make it clearer. That such filteration would improve the hygienic qualities of the water was not then known, or even suspected, for the germ theory of disease was not seriously advanced until 1849, during the severe cholera epidemic in London. Three years later an Act of Parliament made compulsory the filtration of the entire water supply of the City of London.

But the idea was slow in gaining the confidence of the public, and it has only been during the present generation that municipal water filtration has grown to the dignity of a science, an all important agent in the prevention of disease. To-day of the 110,000,000 people in the United States and Canada, over 20,000,000 or something like one in every five being supplied with filtered water.

At this time there are in operation or building in Canada some 70 municipal water filtration plants, having a total capacity of 214,000,000 gallons per day, or enough to furnish 30 gallons daily to every inhabitant of the Dominion.

There are two main kinds of fil-

TIME TO BUY IS THE PRESENT

An old Scottish proverb has it:—"The proof of the pudding is in the preeing o't." If it's good to taste, then the diners are satisfied. The same rule applies to other lines of offerings in which the public is interested, and particularly to clothes, etc.

Not withstanding the increased cost of everything, particulaly clothes and furnishings, as a result of war conditions, Oak Hall's sale at this time offers an excellent opportunity to obtain Men's, Youth's and Boys' Clothes and Furnishings at exceptional values.

Oak Hall's sale gives a rare opportunity in really good value offerings. Their advertisements represent a type of reliability that is standard of merchandising. When statements such as no allowance for profit, and prices cut without regard to original cost, means just as they say. Read the offerings on another page in this paper, and attend this sale while the picking is good.

"I have not heard that he is coming and I hope that I don't."

HENRY GLENDINNING DEAD AT MANILLA

Well-known Agriculturist Resided in Peterboro for a Short Time—Well-known All Over Canada.

Friends in Peterborough of Mr. Henry Glendinning, of Manilla, will regret to learn that he died at his home on Thursday. Mr. Glendinning resided in Peterborough for a few months in 1909. He was then on the staff of Farm and Dairy as an associate Editor.

Mr. Glendinning was one of Ontario's most successful farmers. He was best known all over Canada as "the Canadian Apostle of Alfalfa." Twenty-five years ago he discovered what a priceless boom alfalfa might be to the live stock farmers of the province. From that time until his death he preached its merits to his fellow farmers everywhere. No small amount of credit in the widespread interest in alfalfa culture to-day is due to the efforts of Henry Glendinningthrough the agricultural press, and from the platform.

For two score years, Mr. Glendinning has been a prominent figure in the agricultural life of Canada. He was closely identified with the work of many farm organizations, especially the Dominion Grange and the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association, and more recently, the United Farmers of Ontario. As a Farmers' Institute speaker, he travelled Canadafrom end to end.

He was closely identified with Peterborough in his connection with Farm and Dairy. He was one of the several dairy farmers who united some years ago to establish a dairy paper in Canada, and throughout the years since he has been a director of the company which publishes Farm and Dairy. Incidentally he was one of the judges in the eastern divisions of Farm and Dairy's inter-provincial prize farms competition that was conducted about ten years ago.

In spite of his public interest in agriculture, Mr. Glendinning was at his best right at home on his own farm. He practised what he preached. He owned a 300-acre farms that was one of the best managed in the province. He was a good farmer, in both senses of the word

Arguments Will Begin Next Week

GERMAN GOVERNMENT IS RUSHING PREPARATIONS TO TRY GERMANS ACCUSED OF WAR CRIMES.

Canadian Press.

LONDON, Feb. 20. — The German government is rushing preparations to try the Germans accused of violations of the laws of war and the examination of witnesses and arguments will begin next week, says the Berlin despatch.

Pleadings will open before the Leipsig court within the next month it is said

Germany's reply to the last allied note relative to the trial of the Germans accused of war crimes will point out the issues upon which Greater clearness is desirable, according to a decision reached by the German cabinet, on Wednesday, says a Berlin despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co.

It will be contended, the despatch states, that the accusations against several persons, notably Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, General Ludendorff, and Admiral Von Tirpitz, are too general.

The newspapers at Berlin declare that the Imperial Public Prosecutor will be required to test the allegations and make inquiries and that it is possible he may conclude there are no grounds for instituting proceedings.

LONDON, Feb. 20. — Persons living in Great Britain, France and Belgium, who are witnesses against the Germans accused of war crimes, will not have to go to Germany to testify, it is declared in a Berlin despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company to-day.

Such witnesses it is stated, will be examined by commissioners sent to the countries named.

THE WILSON NOTE BREAKS MORALE

POPULATION STARVING IN FIUME—REBEL COLLAPSED,

(United Press.)

ROME, Feb. 20. — President Wilson's Adriatic note has "cast a gloom" over the entire city of Fiume, according to direct advices here.

"The Wilson note has struck a staggering blow to the morale of the population," one despatch said. The situation in the disputed city now held by the forces of Gabriele D'Annunzio, poet aviator and formerly an officer in the Italian army, was described as pitiful. There is an acute food shortage and the lack of raw materials which cannot be brought in because of the blockade, and industry is paralyzed.

The despatches said that D'Annunzio was reported to be ill from nervous prostration. He collapsed several weeks ago from overwork, it was said, and was unable to fulfil an engagement to address the Fiume council.

GREAT BRITAIN'S LOANS TO RUSSIA

Amounts Revealed in Letter From Chancellor.

(United Press.)

LONDON, Feb. 20. — Austin Chamberlain, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, in an open letter, revealed that Great Britain's loans to Russia total 568,000,000 pounds. Other loans he said were as follows:

France 471,500,000 pounds.
Italy 470,000,000.
Belgium, 86,500,000.
Other nations, 71,000,000.

These loans the Chancellor said, were exclusive of 21,500,000 pounds to be granted the allies and other powers for reconstruction work.

LECTURE WAS MUCH ENJOYED

'EGYPT, ANCIENT AND MODERN,' WAS SUBJECT OF ADDRESS.

Last evening in the Conservatory of Music Hall, Professor J. F. McLaughlin, of Toronto University, gave a most interesting illustrated address on "Egypt, Ancient and Modern," under the auspices of the Women's Art Association The speaker opened his address with a description of the country, making special reference to the Nile and the fertility of the country surrounding the river, and after outlining the history of Egypt from its earliest days, brought his audience to present day conditions, imparting interesting information regarding the people and their customs. The views shown by the speaker of the ruins and the cities were particularly interesting and clear.

The Programme.

Previous to Professor McLaughlin's address, a vocal solo by Miss Allen and a violin solo by Mrs. Percy Hooper were much appreciated by the large audience. Mr. F. D. Kerr, who introduced the speaker, occupied the chair.

A hearty vote of thanks was moved to the Professor by Mrs James Kendry and seconded by Mrs. Vincent Eastwood

Council Invited to Reconsider

SHARP DIFFERENCE OF OPINION AS TO DISPOSITION OF CONSTANTINOPLE.

Canadian Press.

LONDON, Feb. 20. — Very sharp differences of opinion as to leaving the Turks in possession of Constantinople, have arisen between the members of the British Cabinet, according to the Daily Mail, which says the position of the government in this matter is in no wise easy although it would be inaccurate to say there is a crisis.

Earl Curzon, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, and some of the Unionist Ministers, strongly support the plans formulated by the Supreme Allied Council, but the Liberals in the Cabinet, almost without exception oppose the projected agreement.

It is stated that a final decision will be reached on Monday and if a majority of the Cabinet opposes the plan, the Council may be asked to recossider its decision, the newspaper says.

The evidence gone into yesterday was of a very detailed character, but this has now been completed, and the Board is on the home stretch.

PROF. STEPHEN LEACOCK WOULD DISPOSE OF ALL SPIRITS WITH RIDICULE

HAS NOT INVESTED IN A OUIJA BOARD AND CONFESSES TO BEING SOMEWHAT OF A FAILURE HIMSELF.

IS IMMUNE

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—Prof. Stephen Leacock, of McGill University Montreal, interviewed at the Biltmore Hotel just as the time Sir Oliver Lodge was delivering his last lecture in New York and making for Toronto, said he would "lay" all spirits with ridicule. He admitted that as a scientist and author he was himself something of a failure, but frankly confessed that he had not yet caught the infection of spirits, which he referred to as "Tommy Rot". He said he has not invested in an ouija board, and has not even come to New York with a message, however having been snowbound on his way here from Canada, Mr. Leacock says he has been doing considerable thinking on the hereafter. "And I don't think I'm going to like it", he said adding another load to his waning smoke screen, "being snowbound on earth is bad enough, but think of what is in store for us when we pass into the great beyond that Conan Doyle has prepared for us. Doyle is the worst of them. He says in his vital message that we all go on doing in after life the things that we have been doing on earth. Every man to his craft. The banker must eternally stand behind a counter and be a banker. The day laborer goes on laboring. Think of it, for all we know, you and I are booked to go on interviewing and being interviewed for ever and ever. I say Doyle is the worst of them and yet I like Doyle. His detective stories fascinate me—still, I have read and re-read them until I know the solution of every mystery, when Watson says, I was seated with my friend Holmes in his rooms in Baker street, I can tell at once what kind of a person is coming up the stairs. I'm as good as Holmes himself at that. And yet this same Doyle, who has written such wonderful mystery tales, now turns his hands to Spiritualism. Is he sincere?

SINN FEIN LEADERS TO CONTINUE FIGHT

Lloyd George's Plan for Home Rule Will Not Make Any Difference.

(United Press.)

DUBLIN, Feb. 20. — Sinn Fein leaders said to-day the introduction of Premier Lloyd George's new plan for Home Rule in Ireland, would make no difference in their attitude toward Irish relations to the British government. The Sinn Fein will continue its fight for full Irish independence, the leaders said, and the introduction of the Premier's plan in the House of Commons—probably next Tuesday—will not cause any modification in the Sinn Fein policy. The introduction of the Home Rule plan is viewed with indifference in Ireland, they declared.

LOCAL DELEGATES SAW THE PREMIER

AMENDMENTS TO THE ONTARIO TEMPERANCE ACT.

Sympathetic and encouraging reception is reported by Mr. A. B. Cunningham the local representative on the special committee of the Dominion Alliance which yesterday went before the Government on the question of tightening up the Ontario Temperance Act and remedying the defects. The deputation was introduced by President Steele of the Dominion Alliance, while Mr. Ben Spence, the Secretary, outlined the amendments the Committee wished remedied. Mr. A. B. Cunningham, Mr. Aikens of Toronto, Father Minehan of Toronto and Mr. Pearson of Newmarket, also spoke on the desired changes.

Amendments Requested

In the fact that it is impossible to prohibit the importation of liquor in to the province the deputation asked that the Government should take charge of all liquor directly it enters Ontario annd sieze it either in transportation of at point of delivery in order that the liquor rather than the individual might be dealt with.

That an inventory should be taken of all private stocks of liquor and a tax be thereupon placed upon the stock.

That a law should be established preventing the giving of a bottle to a friend without it is consumed upon the giver's premises.

That private parties should be prohibited from serving liquor to a social gathering of more than three individuals.

That magistrates be given the option of imposing imprisonment for the first offence of selling liquor instead. This latter would catch the bootlegger. Regarding the abuses that have risen along medical lines, the deputation asked that the amount allowed on prescription should be limited to 8 in tead of 40 ounces.

That all alcohol prescribed for external use should be medicated that it may not be taken internally.

That prescription forms with stubs attached with a seria' number be made compulsory. In this way the repeater will be caught.

That drastic punishment be imposed upon all who disgrace the medical profession and have no regard for the ethics of the profession, in other words the medical bootlegger.

That native wine of an intoxicating nature which is at present allowed to be sold be placed on the basis of other liquors.

Premier's Reply.

Premier Drury, who with Attorney-General Raney, the Provincial Secretary and Hon. Mr. Doherty, heard the delegations request assured the delegates that the referendum represented to him the voice of the people of Ontario and the Government is desirous of fulfilling the regulations to the fullest manner. He said the many of the points which the deputation has brought up had already been covered by proposed legislation and that other points involved contained legal difficulties but that the best legal authorities in the Province are looking into the disputed points. He emphasized the point that he is desirous of amending the O.T.A. laws to the fullest extent tion about that. Doyle's reputation is made. He has won great success with his writings. There is no reason for him to launch out into Spiritualism merely for the money in it. It could not be that way with him. What is the answer? I give it up. When you put the question to me—the question of spiritism—I say as a wise man I do not know, and as a Christian it isn't so. The whole thing strikes me as absurd, simply absurd and yet the people seem to be going over it. The thing which we thought died with the middle ages turns out not to be dead at all. On the contrary it is very much alive and, I fear, unless something is done about it, it will get us into very serious trouble. Let credulity go a little further and the teachings of the spirits will be presently accepted in the law court as evidence and when that happens we will be back in the seventeenth century, when I don't know how many witches were burned. What does as much harm as anything, is that the beliefs of such men as Sir Oliver Lodge are accepted as having real scientific value because of the standing and reputation of the man who holds them. Sometimes they are even put forth that way. This is altogether wrong. Sir Oliver is a great physicist. We concede that but when he talks of spirits and he is not talking as a physicist or at any rate he ought not to be I think Sir Oliver ought to explain that to his audiences in the realm of spiritualism. Physical knowledge does not count. My friend Sir Ernest Rutherford, is one of the great est living physicists. He has chased the atom all around the block and back again, but he does not pretend to have arrived at the ultimate truth about lite in the present or the hereafter

The Best Cure.

"I do not think the cure for spiritism will be found in scientific disputes or controversies or challenges or beta ge charges and counter charges and all the rest of that sort of thing we are getting just now. The best cure for it is ridicule. It does little good to get angry about it. It can stand that but if we ridicule it, make fun of it that is something it cannot stand. Mr. Leacock again allowed himself to become all but submerged in his pipe. In this attitude despite what he had just said, it was impossible to confirm the suspicion that something was being held back. Could it be that Mr. Leacock was bluffing—that he was saving up the announcement of his conversion to spiritualism for his new book, somewhat ambiguously entitled, "The Unsolved Riddle of Social Justice". Mr. Leacock received the question with a laugh, "Oh, that! No, that's nothing but dry political economy." "Not even a side slip into the spirit world?" he was asked. "No, not even a reservation", he assured. "Then you deny absolutely that you are about to break out as the foremost spirit propagandist of Canada?" "Absolutely," declared Mr. Leacock. "You see, we can't afford any really first class spirits in Canada they come too high."

LADY ASTOR HAS ROUTED LOWER HOUSE GLOOM

LONDON,—Lady Astor is hugely enjoying the attentions she is receiving in the House of Commons Her vivacity is infectious. Veteran members of Parliament are always smiling at her. They enter and leave the House with a new elasticity. There is a scramble to sit near her. The Labor leaders seem to look up at her, and are fed with a smile that illumines the whole chamber.

She wants to chat with everybody, and when, the other night, "Order, order!" because she was talking to a member on the floor of the House, Lady Astor at once skipped across the bar and airly waved her hand at the chair as if to say, "All right, old man; never mind, I daresay I'll do it again before long."

To Grow Hair On Bald Heads

Specialist Gives Simple Recipe That Works Fine

Thousands of people suffer from baldness, and falling hair who, having tried nearly every advertised hair tonic and hair-grower without results, have resigned themselves to baldness and its attendant discomfort. Yet their case is not hopeless, the following simple home prescription has made hair grow after years of baldness, and is also unequalled for restoring gray hair, to its original color stopping hair from falling out, and destroying hair from falling outhdrl destroying the dandruff germ. It will not make the hair greasy, and can be put up by any druggist: Bay Rum, 6 ounces, Lavena de Composee, 2 ounces, Menthol Crystals, one-half drachm. If you wish it perfumed add 1 drachm of your favorite perfume. This preparation is highly recommended by physicians and specialists and is absolutely harmless, as it contains none of the poisonous wood alcohol so frequently found in hair tonics. Ladies using this prescription should be careful not to get it on the face or where hair is not desired.

BARRY HAYES SOLD 500 SHARES OF AUBURN STOCK AT $90 A SHARE

MR. J. Y. ORMSBY RELATED FURTHER INCIDENTS IN THE PURCHASE OF THE AUBURN WOOLEN COMPANY STOCK---MR. GOODWILL DENIED THAT HE HAD ADVISED MR. DAVIDSON TO SELL-

HEARING DRAWING TO CLOSE

Mr. J. E. L. Goodwill, defendant in the action before Mr. Justice Orde in the current assizes for $5,000 damages claimed by Mr John I. Davidson for alleged breach of duty and negligence in advising him in his sale of 20 shares of Auburn Woolen Company stock to the Canadian Woolens Limited, positively denied yesterday afternoon that he had given the plaintiff any advice.

Examined by his counsel, Mr. J. E. Strickland, Mr. Goodwill stated that his first contract with the promoters of the merger, Ferguson and Ormsby of Toronto, was when Mr. Ferguson asked him to approach Mr. Davidson, Mr. Meldrum and Mr. Hamilton, minority stock holders, and submit the new company's proposition to them.

Defendant said he refused to do so, but agreed to draw up the necesasry papers if the promoters came to an arrangement with the minority stockholders providing it did not conflict with his duties to the Kendry and Carnegie families.

"On June 17th Mr. Ormsby called at my office and asked me to make an appointment to introduce him to Mr. Davidson, Mr. Meldrum and Mr. Hamilton. That evening we went up to Mr. Davidson's. I introduced Mr. Ormsby. He offered par cash or shares in the new company. I did not pay much attention to the conversation. Mr. Ormsby told Mr. Davidson to let me know when he made up his mind as I was acting for Ferguson and Ormsby.

After Mr. Ormsby had finished I asked Miss Flora Davidson if I might use the telephone. I called up Mr. Meldrum's house and after that we said good-night and went out.

Mr. Strickland— Was that everything that took place?—Yes.

Did you advise Mr. Davidson to take cash for his stock?—No, I never advised him to sell for cash or to take stock.

Did you tell Miss Flora Davidson you had advised her father to sell?—No.

You heard their evidence in that respect?—Yes. They are mistaken.

"On June 23, Mr. E. H. D. Hall informed me he had been consulted by Mr. Davidson about the sale of his stock and that Mr. Davidson had decided to accept cash. Mr. Hall asked me what papers I required in connection with the transfer. I told Mr. Hall my instructions were to receive an option and proxy. I prepared the option and proxy and sent them to Mr. Hall's office that afternoon."

When these were signed they were returned to Mr. Goodwill, who took them to Toronto, and was told to inform Mr. Davidson that the option would be taken up. Returning to Peterborough defendant called up Mr. E. H. D. Hall, but he was out. He then telephoned, to Mr. Davidson's home. Miss Flora Davidson answered and defendant conveyed the message from Ferguson & Ormsby and instructed her how to deliver the certificates.

"I never saw the stock certificates until Mr. Davidson brought them to my office on July 10th. I refused to take them, and told him to take the stock to the bank and send them through the bank with draft attached, to Ferguson and Ormsby.

I asked Mr Davidson who his banker was. He said Mr. John Crane of he Dominion Bank. He asked me if I would go to the Bank with him. We saw Mr. Crane and I told him I had advised Mr. Davidson to send his stock through the bank. I left Mr. Davidson there. I hadn't been with him more than two minutes.

Mr. Strickland—When Mr. Davidson says you had the stock certificates on June 24th, he's mistaken?—Yes, he is mistaken.

Make Somebody Pay.

The next incident was a visit from Mr. Widdifield, who called at Mr. Goodwill's office. "He said Mr. Davidson hadn't been treated fairly. I told Mr. Widdifield I was sorry, Mr. Davidson got as much as Mrs. Kendry."

Mr. Strickland — Did he intimate that you had used him badly?—No not at first, but when he was going out he said he would make somebody pay for it. I asked him if he applied that to me. He said, yes, and walked out.

Asked For Account.

Mr. Strickland directed his examination to the circumstances under which defendant had given a receipt for three dollars to Mr. Davidson.

"On December 9th," said Mr. Goodwill, "a lady came into my office. She said she was a daughter of John I. Davidson. I hadn't met her before. She told me her father was seriously ill. I expressed regret to hear that. She stated that she had come up from Montreal and had been home two weeks nursing, requiring her attention night and day. She said her father had one matter on his mind. It bothered him a good deal and he couldn't rest. It was the fact that he owed me some money. I told her that her father owed me nothing. She went on to state that her faher thought he did owe me. I told her I had never done any work for him and that I had no charges on my books.

I offered to give her a letter that I had no charges and I called in my stenographer for that purpose. She asked me if I wouldn't give her an account, saying that her father had been a bookkeeper and had this matter on his mind and that the account would best serve the purpose.

I demurred and my recollection is that we talked five minutes. She said her father was not going to live long and that the bill would ease his last months. I then agreed to give her an account.

Mr. Justice Orde—Did she indicate the particular business for which her father thought he had a liability?

Mr. Goodwill—Not at that time.

"I called in my stenographer and made out an account for professional services. She then asked me if I would put in it a reference to the Auburn stock. I told her I would give her an account marked paid. She wanted me to take money and told me she would have to pay me, for the first question he would ask her was whether she had paid and she didn't want to tell him a lie. I then accepted three dollars."

Thought Business Would Decline.

Mr. R. R. Hall, cross-examining defendant, took up the question of the value of the Auburn stock and the usual procedure with joint stock companies.

Mr. Hall—There was nothing to indicate that the business of the company was following off?

Mr. Goodwill—While the last report presented was good we were just entering upon the change from war to peace basis. I looked with some apprehension to the future.

You became a director just after the armistice was signed?—Yes, about November 14.

Defendant said he had discussed the business situation fully with Mrs. Kendry and Mr Herb Kendry, who was general manager, early in December, 1918, and they were almost sure there would be a falling off in business.

Referring to the prospectus of the Canadian Woolens Limited, Mr. Hall asked defendant if he didn't know that an appraisal of the Auburn mill had been made.

Mr. Goodwill replied that he understood that an appraisal was being made, but it was not at the instance of the directors.

Mr. Hall—You didn't learn that the assets of the three companies in the merger were going to be consolidated?—No. I was told that Ferguson and Ormsby were purchasing the shares and not taking the assets of the company.

Mr. Goodwill stated that he had not taken the $300 fee as director of the Auburn company. He felt that his retaining fee as solicitor was enough.

Mr. Hall—Didn't you know that the Auburn surplus was about 4 1-2 times as much as the capital stock?—I don't know anything about that. You would have to take into account the liabilities and the improvements that were needed at the factory.

Mr. Goodwill said he had received from brokers the prospectus of the new company. He said he didn't challenge the statement it contained as to the assets of the Auburn company.

Mrs. Kendry, he said, had practically made up her mind in regard to the price offered to her before consulting him.

"She asked me what I thought of $200 a share," defendant continued, "and I told her I thought it was good value and that she was getting more than it was worth."

Mr. Hall—You were a director of the company. Why did you go to Mr. Davidson?—To introduce Mr Ormsby.

Why as a director didn't you show Mr Davidson what the earnings were? It didn't occur to me.

Were you satisfied to see an old man of 85 give away his money?—He seemed to be quite able to look after his own affairs.

Didn't you think that Ormsby was creating a false impression in Mr. Davidson's mind as to what a majority shareholder could do with a minority?—No.

Did it occur to you that you were lending moral support to the purchaser?—No.

You charged a fee to Ormsby for going up to Davidson's with him?—No, I did not.

In an argument over the prodyction of the defendant's account to Ferguson and Ormsby, His Lordship interposed the remark that up to that point it seemed to him that the plaintiff had failed to lay the ground to show that Mr Goodwill was in any way acting for Mr Davidson.

THE MELDRUM STOCK.

Defendant testified that on June 21st he had made a strong appeal to Mr. Ferguson to reconsider his offer to Mr. Davidson and Mr. Meldrum.

"My recollection is that a day or two after Mr. Ferguson telephoned me that he was sorry he could not make his offer more."

Mr. Goodwill remembered Mr. Hall's advising Mr. Meldrum not to sell at all. He had never learned what Mr. Meldrum had got until he heard him in court.

Mr. Hall—Did it surprise you what he got?—It did surprise me.

Mr. Hall— Do you deny that you stayed behind at Davidson's to talk to Mr. Davidson?—I deny that positively.

Mr. Hall—When he says he asked you what he had better do—?

Mr. Goodwill—He's mistaken.

Did you use the words—"You'd better take the cash?"—Never.

Do you mean to say that is an invention?—I say he was mistaken.

What do you say about protecting Mr. Meldrum and the minority stockholders?— I say Mr. Meldrum was mistaken. It was with regard to his personal stock that I promised to do the best I could.

Do you now think the minority stockholders were over-reached when they took $100?—I don't think so.

In the light of Mr. Meldrum getting $10,000 stock for his $5,000 in a few weeks do you think so?—I don't know the circumstances under which he got it.

Didn't you consider at that time knowing there was a surplus of $54,000 in the company that some duty devolved upon you to intervene Mr. Davidson.—I didn't think the company had a surplus. I thought the war tax would take it all.

You knew that he didn't know it was a money-maker?—I didn't.

You didn't consider his interests at all?—No.

You didn't want to suggest anything?—I wasn't asked to.

There is his statement that he asked you—I deny that.

Mr. Edgar Worth.

Mr. Edgar Worth, general manager of the Canadian Woolens Limited, was the last witness called for the plaintiff yesterday afternoon. The minute book of the Auburn Woolen Company, which he produced, showed that Mr. Goodwill was appointed director and solicitor of the company on November 14, 1918, and attended the meeting of the directors until July 17th, 1919, when the new company formally came into being.

WAR GRATUITIES.

American returned soldiers are preparing to request of the United States Government a war bonus in recognition of their services during the great conflict. Canadian veterans will be interested in knowing that the maximum amount their comrades across the line are asking is less than the gratuities that have already been paid to ex-members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force. The American soldiers have not received nearly as generous treatment from the nation as the Canadian veterans and the present movement in the United States is designed to bring the war allowances in the two countries more nearly level than they have been up to the present. The Sammies will doubtless be surprised to learn that the Canadians are now asking for much bigger gratuities that the sum they themselves have fixed as the limit.

THE NAVAL POLICY.

Journals which are close to the Ottawa Government intimate that, notwithstanding the recent visit of Admiral Lord Jellicoe, there will be no declaration of naval policy by the Government at the approaching session fo Parliament says the Journal of Commerce. If this proves to be correct nobody is likely to be keenly disappointed. That Canada must ultimately do something more than is being done at present in the matter of naval defense will be pretty generally admitted. As to the extent of such a movement there may be much difference of opinion. But the matter is one on which there is no need of hurry at present. Important as the naval question is there are just now many questions of greater urgency and the country will lose nothing by taking more time to consider the whole subject. Meanwhile it is interesting to note that on his arrival in England Lord Jellicoe, according to a cabled report, has given the public a brief expression of the impression he formed from his visit to Australia, New Zealand and Canada. "He has returned to England" he says, "greatly impressed with the loyalty of the Dominions, where he found a very keen perception of the importance of sea power. The Dominions fully realize that if they maintain their own naval forces they would require to act in close co-operation with the Imperial Navy should circumstances call for war operations."

Lord Jellicoe is no doubt correct in this statement of the case. Whether intentionally or not he has used the spirit—and in a measure the words—of the resolution adopted unanimously by the Canadian House of Commons in 1909 and unfortunately abandoned in the later party strife. That resolution declared for exactly what Lord Jellicoe speaks or, a Canadian Navy to be created and managed in co-operation with the Imperial Navy.

PROFIT-SHARING.

Organised labour has never regarded with much enthusiasm any of the numerous schemes of sharing profits with the workers. It has been suspicious of these proposals—suspicious that perhaps they are designed to take the place of fair regular wages. Such suspicions are usually unwarrantel, for almost always the schemes in question have behind them a genuine desire to promote the welfare of the workers—the ultimate motive sometimes being, perhaps, making them contented and satisfied and with little or no incentive to strike.

But there is another reason why profie-sharing has not been cordially approved by the workers. It is a realization of the fact that after all there are so many workers to divide the available profits that the share of each would be comparatively small. A writer in the current number of a popular magazine has dealt with this subject statistically. He mentions sixty-six extremely prosperous munition plants which during the war made immense profits. The companies operating these plants have a combined capital ... $645,000,000. This writer points out that the entire profits of these companies, for a period of ten years, if divided among the employees, would have increased their wages just 2¼ cents an hour. He also demonstrates that if the most profitable concerns were to agree to divide all their profits among their workers, the results would amount to a wage increase of not quite 5 per cent. Nowadays a wage increase of 5 per cent. is not greeted with cheers.

John M. Oskison, an economic writer of repute, estimates that out of every five industrial enterprises one fails, and that of those which continue only 20 per cent. show profits earned. If this estimate is correct, it follows that only 16 per cent. of business enterprises would yield anything at all under a profit-sharing plan.

After all, the wage system, much maligned though it be by the Socialists, is a pretty safe system for the worker. Anyhow he knows what he is getting, and, if he is prudent, will cut his coat according to the cloth. Dependence upon a division of profits which may or may not come would often be the cause of bitter disappointment, and of material loss too.

For profit-sharing which is in the nature of a distribution of bonuses, supplementing the regular wages, we have no word of criticism—only commendation.—Hamilton Herald.

TURKISH SITUATION.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Latest developments in the Turkish situation have for the moment pushed the Adriatic question into the background in both public and official interest.

Reservations which France and Great Britain are said to have made regarding the Turkish peace terms, including the retention of the Turks of Constantinople, have aroused a strong feeling in Parliament, where the Opposition strongly objects to the settlement of the Turkish question without reference to the Commons.

SHORT ON SUGAR? PAGE QUEEN BEE!

KANSAS CITY, Mo.,—Here's the latest solution of the sugar shortage—go out and seductively woo her majesty, Queen Bee.

"Already honey is the sweetening ingredient in many products," said one of the delegates to the convention held here recently. "It often is used in the sirups of soda fountains, in ice cream and in cakes and crullers." Incidentally, it was pointed out, honey was once mankind's only sweet.

TO LET DETROIT MEN MAKE OWN CLOTHES

DETROIT—"Buy the cloth, buttons and thread for your suit from us, and take them to your own tailor, or make your own suit."

That is a summary of a sales appeal which will be made this spring by the Crowley-Milner Co., one of the largest retailers of men's clothing in the country.

There is a peculiar situation in Detroit upon which this new policy is based. Hundreds of small tailors have, since the country first entered the war, abandoned their professions to go into the automobile factories. These men, it is figured, will welcome the opportunity, with prices so high as they are, to make their own clothes and perhaps take on a few jobs on the side for their friends.

In addition there are still a large number of small tailors who are having a hard struggle because they cannot show the same selection of goods which the customer can see in the bigger tailoring shops or the ready-made houses. The new system is expected to simplify the problem —— men and their trade.

WOMEN ASK COUNTY FOR HOMESTEADING

TORONTO, Feb. 19.—Asking that a county in Northern Ontario be turned over for experimental purposes and that women should be allowed to acquire land by home steading as associates a deputation of women headed by Mrs. C. Louisa O'Briene, 12 Wood street, waited upon Premier Drury yesterday. The deputation included Mrs. Courtice, of the Toronto Board of Education. The request, which Mrs. O'Briene first made twenty-five years ago to the Government, is to set aside the Township of Shackleton for co-operative settlement with special advantages for women.

THE "CUSTOM OF KISSING" FAILS TO SAVE HER.

LONDON, Eng. — In disposing of a divorce action from Stornoway in the Court of Session, Edinburgh, Lord Sands commented on the practice of kissing among church people attending communion in the Highlands. It had been alleged by the respondent in the case that she had been kissed by the co-respondent as a religious custom.

Lords Sands said that the existence of such a custom seemed somewhat startling but it was explained by the fact that it had been the practice for only a mere handful of the adherents of the church to participate in communion although the communion service was a far more solemn occasion in the Highlands than in the Lowlands. It might be very well for elderly saints to greet one another with a chaste Oriental religious salute, but it was a different matter when it came to young married women being promiscuously kissed by casual acquaintances who happened to be fellow communicants. That extension of the custom was viewed with disapproval by many, but still to a certain extent the custom persisted.

His Lordship held however that the kissing in the case in question had exceeded religious custom and he granted a decree of divorce.

FRESHMAN AT 70.

PHILADELPHIA.—Luke Dillon, seventy years old, who served fourteen years in a Canadian prison for dynamiting the Welland canal, will enter the University of Pennsylvania next year as a freshman. Mr. Dillion whose motto is "It is never too late to learn," will probably matriculate in the college department, although he seriously considers the advisability of entering the Wharton School.

News of Mr. Dillion's plans leaked out following a meeting of the Sophomore Vigilance Committee to pass resolutions compelling the "freshies" to live up to the sophomores' regulations. It was unanimously decided that the prospective freshman, despite his age, would have to abandon the tile hat, wear blue socks and azure ties.

MUST SAY "TO THE" TO GUARD TRADE NAMES

NEW YORK—The only way in which a trademark can be made permanent in France is to dedicate the ... es to some saint or some ideal, according to a recent announcement of the Butterick publishing house, which says:

"The French laws requires that when a partner whose name is part of the firm name dies, the firm name be immediately changed. For a long time there was a great puzzle as to how it was possible to perpetuate the name of the company. A clever lawyer found out that if the business was dedicated to something, either an ideal or a disembodied spirit or a saint, the title could be made permanent.

"That is the reason why you see the word "Au" "To the"—before many firm names—"Au Bon Marche" (To the good bargains)—"Au Samaratain" (To the Samaritan)—"Au Louvre" (To the Louvre), so that never mind who runs these shops, the title is perpetual.

"Fortunately there is no American law that limits a trademark to the life of any individual or firm.

"Some trademarks represent the lifework of three generations."

SANDRA THE JEALOUS

BY JANE PHELPS

EVERETT QUESTIONS SANDRA.

CHAPTER LII

The next morning at breakfast Everett read his paper in silence. He looked so stern I did not dare interrupt him. Before he left for the office, however, he said:

"I shall be at home early. Try and meet me without red eyes."

"Yes, Everett." was my inane reply.

"And please remain in doors today. Read or practice as you like". Again I answered:

"Yes, Everett." I seemed to have lost all the courage I had the night before, and could only say the most ordinary thing to him — evidently what he expected, however, for he gave me a careless kiss and said:

"That's a good girl."

A 'good girl!' I didn't want to be a good girl. I wanted to be like Leola, impulsive, indiscreet, so he would love me as he had loved her.

"I won't be good! I'll be just as bad as I know how!" I said violently as I watched him go swinging down the street. "Leola wasn't good, and you cared much more for her than you do for me. I just will not be good!" I stamped my foot childishly as I turned from the window.

"I wonder did he ever order Leola to stay indoors, and if she obeyed him?" I asked the question aloud. "I'll bet she didn't!" I resumed my soliloquoy. "And I won't be treated so! I won't! and again the ready tears flowed.

As I looked back, I think that had it not been for the ideas I had formed of Leola, her attitude toward life and toward Everett, I should have been far happier than I was, and probably should have been content to do the things Everett told me to do. But constantly Leola, her terrible indiscretions, of which I knew nothing, and had no means of finding out, were in my mind. But more than that was the jealousy caused because I had been told of Everett's love for her, which I believed was greater than that he gave me.

It was only a little after five when Everett came in. I had spent a miserable day, doing nothing he had advised, but walking aimlessly from one room to another, trying to kill time.

I thought of calling up Barrett Edmonds, but didn't quite dare for fear Everett would object. He did not yet know that Barrett had escorted Rose and me to the theater the night he came back. He would be sure to find it out, and it might make him unpleasant to Barrett— a thing I couldn't endure to consider. I had seen the effect of his actions upon Rose, and I wouldn't let him demean me before anyone else—especially before Barrett.

"What have you been doing all day? What have you read?"

"Nothing—to both questions," was my apathetic answer.

"You mean that you have neither read nor practiced?"

"Yes."

"No wonder you are fretful and unhappy. Moping about doing nothing. I shall lay out a course of reading and study for you at once; and shall expect you to adhere strictly to it."

I made no reply.

"Where had you and Miss Grandon been that evening I came back?"

"To the theater."

"By yourselves?"

"No."

"Who was with you?"

"Mr. Edmonds."

"How did he come to ask you?"

"We met him while out in the motor. I introduced him to Rose, and then he asked if he might help entertain her since you were away."

"I forbade you to go out to places of amusement while I was away; to receive calls—yet you deliberately ignore my wishes. I am very glad your friend had sense enough to go home." As he finished it seemed as if something broke in me and I exclaimed:

"I am glad too! you don't suppose I wanted her to stay and see how awfully unhappy you make me, do you? As it is she will tell everyone at home how I am treated— how you insulted her! I wanted terribly to go home and see Father and Mother and the boys. Now I never want to go home—I'd rather die! There isn't one of the boys and girls in the whole town who won't pity me for being married. They all said I wouldn't be happy if I married you, that you would not let me say my soul was my own. But I didn't believe them. I do now!"

BULB FOR BRIGHTENING

Outdoor Culture of Hardy Spring Flowering Bulbs.

An Open Situation Desirable and Reasonable Care In Planting With Protection During the First Winter—Fall Pasture for Stock.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

THERE is probably no class of plants that gives more satisfaction and are more thoroughly appreciated by the flower lover than a collection of spring flowering bulbs, flowering as they do from quite early in spring, even before the winter covering of snow has entirely left us, until well on into the early months of summer before but very few of the other border plants are in flower. Their bright flowers are doubly acceptable on this account.

Location.—Bulbs are best planted where there is good drainage and where no surface water lies in winter or early spring. When planted in masses or beds, it is best to have the soil in the centre of the bed a few inches higher than the margin, so as to pitch the water off readily. Bulbs succeed best planted in an open situation and not too close under buildings or under the dense shade of trees. For the later flowering kinds of bulbs, however, that flower about the end of May, such as the Darwin type of tulip, a little shade prolongs the length of the blooming season considerably.

Soil.—The best kind of soil for bulbs in a moderately, rich, light, loamy soil. They will succeed fairly well in a sandy soil, but do not give as fine blooms as in soil of a loamy nature. If the soil is of a clayey nature, dig in some sand or black soil from the bush, or both, to lighten it. Fresh strawy manure should never be dug into the soil when planting. If manure is applied at planting time, it should be well decayed, barnyard manure, almost the nature of the soil itself, even then it should be dug in an inch or two underneath the bulbs so as not to touch them.

When to Plant Bulbs.—The best time for planting outdoor bulbs is about the second or third week in October, although bulbs may be planted until the ground is frozen over for the winter, even as late as the end of November or early in December. Later planted bulbs do not, as a rule, however, give as good results. The soil should be thoroughly dug and raked fine before planting.

Depth to Plant.—All of these smaller growing bulbs should be planted from two to three inches under the soil and quite thickly together, an inch and a half or two inches apart, to give a good effect. The Tulips, Dutch Hyacinths and Narcissi grow about twelve to eighteen inches in height and can be dotted in masses or blocks in flower beds, or in groups more towards the back of a perennial border. They are also very effective planted in groups among or around shrubs. Tulips and Narcissi should be planted about four inches under the surface of the soil and about six inches apart. A group of these of a circular or oval shape, fifteen to twenty inches in diameter, especially Narcissi, has a very pleasing and bright effect in early spring, dotted here and there over the perennial or mixed border.

Protecting Bulbs in Winter.—All bulbs, especially late planted ones, are best protected during the first winter, as it prevents the bulbs from heaving and lifting. Bulbs that have become well established in the border require very little if any protection in winter. Long, strawy manure, straw or coarse grass about three or four inches in depth, make a good winter covering. Green pine boughs laid over the manure prevent unsightliness. Pine boughs alone make a good winter protection. Dutch Hyacinths especially need some protection in winter, as they are not as hardy as Tulips and Narcissi. The covering should be taken off about the end of March or early in April, when the weather has become settled. Remove the covering part at a time, taking away the wet underneath part first and replacing an inch or so of the lighter part for a week or so until the top growth of bulbs becomes hardened to the weather. Hot sun is often as injurious to bulb growth as late spring frosts.

Hardy Kinds to Plant.—Tall growing, 1 to 2 feet:

Narcissus—Emperor, Empress, Bicolor Victoria, Golden Spur, Poeticus, Poeticus ornatus, Barri conspicuus, Mrs. Langtry, Stella, Poeticus Elvira.

Tulips—Darwin, Cottage Garden and Early Flowering in variety.

Dwarf-growing kinds, 6 inches to 1 foot high—Crocus in variety, Scilla, Chionodoxa (Glory of the Snow), Leucojum (Snowflake). The Paper White Narcissus, Chinese Sacred Lily, and the Roman Hyacinths are not hardy enough for planting out of doors. They are only useful for growing indoors.—W. H. Hunt, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

Pasture Necessary for Stock In Fall.

One of the essential factors in keeping live stock in good condition through the fall and early winter, which is highly important, is good fall pasture, says Andrew Boss, vice-director of the Minnesota Experiment Station. Nothing excells the grasses for pasture, though mixtures of the grasses and clover are better than either grasses or clover alone and furnish the best kind of feed for all kinds of stock. Where an abundance of cultivated grasses can be obtained for pasture no further attention need be given the subject. Meadow aftermath containing clover, or timothy and clover, makes good fall feed. Clover growing in the stubble field is also an excellent fall pasture.

RUPPEE ADVANCING ADDS TO COST OF TEA

A cable received yesterday states that the rupee has now advanced in value to 2s 114d. Before the war the rupee was worth 1s 4d and, as money has to be changed into rupees to buy Ceylon and India products such as Tea, this greatly enhances the cost to purchasers here.

THE GIRL IN TROUSERS

LONDON, Eng.—A new attempt is being made to get women to accept the trouser fashion in skirts.

Hitherto similar persuasions have failed, but the dressmakers think there is hope now, for the eye of the public has become accustomed to knickered land girls, forestry workers, motor riders, trousered window cleaners and railway women.

The trouser skirt just now has the best chance it ever had.

The last time a well-known dressmaker introduced the fashion a customer quoted Deuteronomy 22:5.

"The woman shall not wear that which pertaineth unto a man . . . . for all that do so are an abomination unto the Lord they God."

Only a few houses, however, are producing trousers pure and simple. Paquin sends her customers out with skirts giving but the appearance of Turkish trousers.

Stomach Disorder

ONLY 6 MONTHS TO LIVE

READ WHAT B.B.B. DID FOR HIM

Mr. Hanz Kehki, Magnolia, Alta., writes:— "Some time ago I became very sick from stomach disorder, which the doctor told me had started from drinking bad water. I tried local doctors, but finding I got worse from day to day I went to a doctor in Edmonton. He told me that I must have an operation, and that if I didn't I couldn't live any longer than six months. I told him I had better die after six months than be cut to pieces. I did not have the operation, but returned home. No one was there to meet me at the station, because they did not know I was coming. I felt so bad I couldn't walk further than 10 yards without resting. It took me 6 hours to walk 2 miles; the distance from the station to my home.

Some weeks later I read an advertisement about your Burdock Blood Bitters. After I had used one bottle I felt much better, and after I had used three bottles I was completely cured; therefore you see your B.B.B. has saved my life, and I cannot praise it too highly."

Burdock Blood Bitters puts the stomach into shape by promoting perfect digestion, and restoring health and strength to the system. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Bring Back Its Color and Lustre With Grandma's Sage Tea Recipe.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it ad draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

HURLS CASH FROM WINDOW

Mill Officer Gives Employes a Vivid Illustration of Waste.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass.—Silver and gold were thrown away to illustrate a talk on the waste represented by carelessness among the factory workers of the McCallum Hosiery Company. George B. McCallum, treasurer of the company, told the operatives that in a week 11,760 needles, worth 12½ cents each, had been lost.

The effect was the same, he said, as if $147 were thrown from the shop window, whereupon the Treasurer took from his desk a pile of 147 silver dollars and tossed them out of the window.

Silk scattered under foot was as much destroyed as if thrown away, he added. Estimating the amount of loss from this cause last week at $50, he tossed a shower of gold coins among the workers. Some listened to the Treasurer's later remarks, others scrambled for the gold, while many rushed out of doors to search for the silver in the snow.

BABY DROWNS IN PAIL.

New York, N.Y.—Love for a Christmas doll caused the drowning of a one-year old baby in four inches of water in a pail. The little tragedy occurred aboard the steamship Nieuw Amsterdam, which arrived from Holland.

Mrs. Jan Pustus, who is on her way to Des Moines with her husband and family, bathed Jan, Jr., and put him in his bunk.

Jan, Jr., awoke and started playing with Santa's gift. The doll fell out of the bunk, and Jan reached for it. He fell head first into a pail. The water covered his face, and he could not extricate himself. When the family returned from dinner he was dead.

"Gee-Whiz! How it Hurts—The Pain in My Foot!"

"Sometimes it is in my arm. Merciful Heaven, how my back hurts in the morning!" It's all due to an over-abundance of that poison called uric acid. The kidneys are not able to get rid of it. Such conditions you can readily overcome, and prolong life by taking the advice of Dr. Pierce, which is "keep the kidneys in good order." "Avoid too much meat, alcohol or tea. Drink plenty of pure water, preferably hot water, before meals, and drive the uric acid out of the system by taking Anuric." This can be obtained at almost any drug store.

Send a bottle of water to the chemist at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and you will receive free medical advice as to whether the kidneys are affected. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog, you suffer from backache, sick-headache, dizzy spells, or twinges and pains of lumbago, rheumatism or gout; or sleep is disturbed two or three times a night, take heed, before too late. Get Anuric (anti-uric-acid), for it will put new life into your kidneys and your entire system. Ask your nearest druggist for it or send Dr. Pierce ten cents for trial package.

OH, DEAR, WHAT A SHOCKING BREACH OF GOOD TASTE

There Girlish Highwaymen Actually Forgot to Lift Some Rouge!

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—"I'm awfully sorry to trouble you, but may I use your telephone?"

R. G. Samuel, a druggist at 400 South Hardesty avenue, now knows that he ought to have sensed something wrong when a pink-cheeked youth with a lyric-tenor voice tripped into his store one night recently and made this girlish request. But Samuel, being busy, merely replied:

"Sure, go ahead. It's a pay phone."

A moment later he heard a click and, glancing up, saw that the lady-like person in trousers was cutting the telephone wires with a pair of manicure scissors. Meanwhile, however, two other tenors had entered and, producing revolvers, proceeded to hold up the store in approved Wild West fashion.

While one of them covered the druggist, the others went over to the cash register and removed $50 and then visited the toilet goods case, from which they removed a considerable quantity of face powder, toilet water, fancy candy and several manicure sets. Then, still covering Samuels, the trio backed out of the store and disappeared, unmindful of the druggist's warning that they had forgotten to take some rouge with them.

Now the police are watching the stage doors of the local theatres, trying to find three bold bad chorus boys who've gone wrong—for Samuels can't figure out who else in trousers would find use for the goods which his midnight visitors risked jail to secure.

Faint and Dizz Sypells

Weakness and Shortness of Breath

You can generally tell when the heart is affected by the faint and dizzy spells, the shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensations, weak, sinking, all-gone feeling, choking sensation, etc.

Many men and women becomes run-down and worn out when otherwise they could be strong and healthy if they would only pay some attention to the first sign of heart weakness.

No remedy will do so much to make the heart regain strength and vigor, regulate its beat and restore it to a healthy and normal condition as Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. C. A. S. Drake, Paris, Ont., writes:—"I have used on towards the second box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and find they have done me good. I had the se tainting, dizzy spells, once in a while, and also weakness and shortness of breath, and would become so choked up at times I could hardly sleep without sitting up in bed. When walking too fast I would have to stop and try to catch my breath. I feel a lot better since I have used your pills and know that they have helped me wonderfully as I have improved very much."

EVERYTHING TO MATCH

In the first few days of the European war the English War Office enrolled for drill service every ex-non-commissioned officer who still remembered the manual of arms. Among the veterans who answered their country's call was one grizzled Irishman, who according to Fred Grundy, made a sorry hash at roll call of some of the artistocratic names that appeared on the company muster.

Halfway down the column he halted over one name and spelled it painfully—M-o-n-t-a-g-u-e. Then he called out:

"Montaggy!"

No one answered. The sergeant scowled at the list and tried again.

"Montaggy!" he bawled.

"Probably you mean me," said a gentleman recruit standing in the second row with his hands at his sides and his monocle fixed in his eye. "My name happens to be Montague," he explained, giving the word its customary pronunciation.

"Is that so?" thundered the old non-com. "Very well, then, Mister Mon-ty-goo; you drop out of line and do two hours' fat-ty-goo!"

FEWER SWEETS NEXT YEAR.

London, Eng.—Restrictions on the use of sugar for manufacturing purposes are to be imposed at the beginning of next year.

The "Daily Chronicle" was told at the Food Ministry that the amount of sugar used for manufacturing is not sufficient to make any considerable difference to the home ration. To cut down supplies at once would cause hardship to thousands of workpeople and disaster to many small sweet-shops.

IS A COCKEREL A BIRD OR A ANIMAL

London, Eng.—Is a cockerel a bird or an animal?

This nice problem in natural history was put before Mortlake Petty Sessions when Mr. Thomas Kendall, of Barnes, was summoned "for keeping noisy animals, to wit, cockerels."

Sir James Szlumper (a magistrate) I have yet to learn that a chicken is an animal.

A police inspector: There is no doubt about it. There have been convictions.

One of the magistrates, who is a barrister, said the Protection of Animals Act defined a fowl and a bird as an animal, and, therefore, it was Common Law.

The chairman (Sir Charles Rugge-Price) (reading from a dictionary) said an animal was described as "a living corporeal being endowed with sensations and voluntary motion." In my opinion, said the chairman, a cockerel is so endowed. (Laughter.)

Neighbors said the cockerels crowed continually throughout the night and disturbed their rest.

A fine of $5 was imposed.

Sure Way To Get Rid Of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

BOOST GUELPH SALARIES

Mayor to Receive $1,200 and City Manager $3,500.

GUELPH, Feb. 18.—Substantial increases have been granted in almost every department of the civic service. The Mayor's salary is increased to $1,200, the City Clerk and manager gets $3,500, so does the City Engineer, the treasurer $2,500, fire chief $1,900, and chief magistrate $1,800. The increases range from $500 per year to $2 a week.

THIN, NERVOUS PEOPLE NEED BITRO-PHOSPHATE

Weak, thin people—men or women—are nearly always nervous wrecks; thus conclusively proving that thinness, weakness, debility and neurasthenia are almost invariably due to nerve starvation. Feed your nerves and all these symptoms due to nerve starvation will disappear.

Eminent specialists state that one of the best things for the nerves is an organic phosphate known among druggists as Bitro-Phosphate, a five-grain tablet of which should be taken with each meal. Being a genuine nerve builder and not a stimulant or habit-forming drug, Bitro-Phosphate can be safely taken by the weakest and most delicate sufferer, and the results following its use are often simply astonishing.

By strengthening the nerves, weak, tired people regain energy and vigor; thinness and angularity give way to plumpness and curves; sleep returns to the sleepless; confidence and cheerfulness replace debility and gloom; dull eyes become bright, and pale, sunken cheeks regain the pink glow of health.

CAUTION.—Bitro-Phosphate, the use of which is inexpensive, also wonderfully promotes the assimilation of food, so much so, that many people report marked gains of weight in a few weeks. Those taking it who do not desire to put on flesh, should use extra care in avoiding fat-producing foods.

FAMILY GROWS RAPIDLY.

CRYSTAL SPRINGS, Miss. — Jno. R. Taylor, who furnished more man power to the army in the war than any other man in the United States, has married the third time.

Mr. Taylor is not yet 60 years old. When a young man he married, and there were born to the union 16 sons and daughters. Six of the sons had grown to manhood at the outbreak of the war. They enlisted.

Mrs. Taylor died and Mr. Taylor married Mrs. Thornton, a widow with five children, which brought the Taylor household to 21 persons. To that union were born six children making in the household at one time 27 sons and daughters.

Several months ago Mr. Taylor's second wife died. He married a Mrs. Brown of Magnolia, Miss., a widow with four children, which brings the total number to 31 now under his fatherly care.

Some of the children have married and have sons and daughters of their own, so Mr. Taylor's sons and daughters, stepchildren and grandchildren number more than a hundred.

IS IT NOTHING TO YOU

Think of them, Mother, passing by
The firelit door of your child's white room,
Hearing his laughter passing by.
What if he hungered in Erzerum!
Is it nothing to you—to YOU?

Think of them, Father, even as yours,
But old with the eyes of a tortured man,
Starved and tormented without a cause
Broken and gaunt at Marsovan.
Is it nothing to you—to YOU?

Think of them, Children; it might be you,
Tossing in paint at Erivan!
Is it nothing to you that it may be you
Who shall send succor to Teheran?
Is it nothing to you—to YOU?

Think of them, pray for them, aid them now,
Tarsus is cold in the winter rain!
Succor the little children NOW;
They will not pass this way again.
Is it nothing to you—to YOU?

LIGHTHOUSE SERVICE NOW HAS 16,075 AIDS TO SHIPS

New York.— The co-operation of the Lighthouse Service in war activities continued throughout this year, nearly all the lighthouse tenders and a number of other units serving with the Navy Department and at the same time continuing the work of maintaining aids to navigation, according to the Commissioner of Lighthouses in his annual report.

Three important new light and fog signal stations were established. They are at Lorain Harbor, Ohio; Sand Hills, Lake Superior, Mich., and Lime Kiln, San Juan Island, Wash. There was an increase of 400 in the number of aids to navigation maintained by the Ligthhouse Service, and the total is now 16,075.

POST TOASTIES

THE DEAD SEA.

Some Interesting Facts About This Curious Body of Water.

For a number of years many persons have declared the Dead sea, in Palestine, is diminishing, but a recent careful survey by experts has established beyond all doubt that the sea is steadily increasing.

At many points on its southern and eastern borders there are vast forests with large trees becoming submerged.

The sea is about forty miles in length and ten miles wide at the broadest portion. Should it continue to enlarge it will take in valuable country, but, so far as known, there is no way to prevent this.

Mediterranean waters are 1,300 feet higher than the Dead sea level, but this is no proof the waters of the Dead sea are drying up.

A survey of the wonderful region of years ago shows islands that are now gone. It is declared these are covered.

There is so much solid matter in the water that it makes about one-fifth, or 20 per cent. of the matter solid. It is so intensely salt and bitter that no creature can live in it.

The bed of the sea is rich with mineral deposits. Salts, copper, lead and zinc and marble are found in vast quantities, and experts are of the opinion there is a great deposit of petroleum beneath the vast body of water.

A man's body is lighter than the amount of water it displaces, and it is therefore impossible for a person to sink.

Vegetation is scarce and greatly stunted for miles about the sea.

Alexander in Mesopotamia.

The marshes of Mesopotamia were famous in the time of Alexander the Great. One of the last acts of his life, within a few weeks of his death, was a voyage down the Euphrates to the great dike of Pallakopas, about ninety miles below Babylon. This sluice has been constructed by the ancient Assyrian kings to let off the water of the river when it became excessive into the marshes. It was reported not to be working well, and Alexander proposed to construct another sluice lower down. He sailed on into the marshes, steering his vessel himself, with his diadem on his head, to explore them and the tombs of the kings, and so extensive were the lakes and swamps that Alexander's fleet lost its way among them.

CRIPPLES TOO NOISY

LONDON, Eng. — A claim by Mrs. C. A. Cowell of 75 Queen's Gate, London, who was disturbed by the noise made by limbless men, has been heard by the War Losses Commission.

Her counsel stated that the Ministry of Pensions acquired houses on either side of her house for the purpose of hostels and workshops for the making of artificial limbs for disabled soldiers. Owing to the noise caused by the limbless men walking about on the bare boards life became unbearable for his client. In consequence of the nuisance she had to remove to another dwelling.

The chairman said that it was not within the province of the commission to consider a claim made in respect of the alleged annoyance. He could only deal with the claim relating to the acquisition of the house by the government.

The result will be communicated in due course.

Mother and daughter were removed to Bellevue. The little one will be christened Sophia Andreas Alvarez.

The minute book did not show a record of Mr. Goodwill's resignation and Mr. Strickland stated that the reason for this omission was that no quorum of the directorate remained. The book contained an enclosure of Mr. Goodwill's written resignation, bearing the same date as that of the winding up meeting.

Mr. Justice Orde stated that a resignation took effect as a result of the director's decision and not by the decision of the directorate.

To Mr. Strickalnd witness said that Mr. Goodwill had never been appointed solicitor for the Canadian Woolens Limited.

Resuming the cross examination this morning, Mr. Hall traced the receipt to Mr Davidson into defendant's records. The cash-book showed an entry for three dollars in full amount of account with John I. Davidson, but there was no corresponding entry in the ledger.

His Lord-ship You never opened an account in your ledger in Mr. Davidson's name. You treated it as casual cash? Yes.

A charge was made against Ferguson and Ormsby for attending the bank with Mr. Davidson. There were also charges against the Auburn Woolen Company.

Mr. Hall You evidently had accounts against the Auburn Co. at that time? I had done work for them.

Two accounts against Mrs. Kendry and Ferguson and Ormsby? Mrs. Kendry made an arrangement with me on a commission basis.

His Lordship So there was no occasion to enter an account for fees against her?—No.

Defendant explained that his commission depended upon the success of the negotiations.

Mr. Hall Why did you write that account to Mr. Davidson? At the solicitation of Miss Kate Davidson, to ease her father's mind.

Mr. Hall You are noted for your geniality, but I would hardly have expected you to make an untrue statement.

Mr. Goodwill said that in the conversation with Miss Davidson, he had suggested the word advice in the account. The only thing she wanted was an account dealing with the Auburn stock.

Mr. E. H. D. Hall.

Mr. E. H. D. Hall was called next by Mr. Strickland.

Were you ever consulted by plaintiff regarding Auburn stock? I can't say I was consulted. I remember discussing it with him. He said Mr. Goodwill and another man had been up to see him about it. I remember telling him that he had better take cash for his stock. I thought it was a good offer, the cash at par.

Had you any other interviews with Mr. Davidson? I had discussed Auburn matters with him before that.

Witness recalled talking to Mr. Goodwill about Mr. Davidson's stock. On one occasion when he telephoned for defendant to find out what papers were required in connection with the sale of the stock.

I spoke to Mr. Goodwill, asking him if he wouldn't try to get a better price for Mr. Davidson's stock. He said he would do so. I understood Mr. Goodwill was acting for the purchasers of the stock. Certainly I didn't think he was acting for Mr. Davidson. I wouldn't have asked him at all if I had thought that.

Witness related that Mr. Goodwill had asked him to act as counsel for him. Mr. Hall declined, because he expected to be called as a witness, and would not wish to be engaged against either of his friends Mr. Davidson, whom he had known for fifty years, and Mr. Goodwill.

To Mr. R. R. Hall witness said he had made no charge against Mr. Davidson.

Did you ever look over a financial statement of the Auburn Company?—No.

Witness said he knew Auburn stock was hard to get rid of. He had a block in 1918 and couldn't get a purchaser.

Witness said the company's earnings in war time would not have changed his opinion of the Auburn stock because of Mr. Kendry's death.

His Lordship If Mr Davidson had been an old friend you wouldn't have done that work for nothing?—Oh, no.

John Y. Ormsby.

Mr. Ormsby, called next, told of his coming to Peterborough. Because he was a stranger, he asked Mr. Goodwill to accompany him to Mr Davidson's.

I told Mr. Goodwill on the way that if I bought the stock I wanted him to make the transfer and look after those details. I told Mr. Davidson my firm had bought Mrs. Kendry's stock and another block, and that my firm was organizing a new company, the Canadian Woollens, Limited."

Witness told of the offer of par cash or exchange of stock. Mr Davidson had said he couldn't see why he [illegible] Mr. Davidson [illegible] majority of the stock and that the shares were not as valuable to him if [illegible] didn't [illegible] then or at any time [illegible] that a minority shareholder had the same rights as a majority. It was Ferguson and Ormsby who were taking the stock. The Canadian Woollens didn't exist [illegible]

Mr. Ormsby said he told Mr. Davidson to notify Mr. Goodwill when he made up his mind as to the price of his stock. At the close of that meeting he and Mr. Goodwin left the house together.

Did you hear Mr. Goodwill advise Mr. Davidson to sell his stock?—I did not.

Mr. Ormsby After we left the house I said to Mr. Goodwill that Mr. Davidson seemed a pleasant old gentleman, and I thought I would be able to deal with him satisfactorily.

Mr. Goodwin was not associated in the promotion of the Canadian Woollens, Limited. We employed him to look after a few odds and ends here. He was employed by Ferguson and Ormsby. He was not a promoter."

Mr. Strickland Did Mr. Goodwill make any large commissions from you?—He did not.

Did he make any profit out of Mr. Davidson's stock?—Not unless Mr Davidson gave it to him. We certainly did not. Ferguson and Ormsby paid nobody a commission.

Was there any understanding with Mr. Goodwill that he would ever get a commission? There was not, and we wouldn't have paid it if there had been.

Witness said his firm hadn't yet received Mr. Goodwill's account for his work, and one never could be sure about lawyer's charges.

The cross-examination turned to the finances of the Auburn Co. In 1917 its war taxes were about $2,000, in 1918 about $20,000, and in 1919 approximately $98,000.

Hayes Sold at $90.

Returning to the relations of Mr. L. Barry Hayes with the Auburn Company and the Canadian Woollens, Limited, Mr. Ormsby said that Mr. Hayes had been a director of the Auburn Company, and later of the Canadian Woollens, Limited, but there was no continuance in that connection. Mr. Hayes had sold his Auburn stock to Ferguson and Ormsby at $90 a share.

"We paid cash," witness said, "some 28,000 odd dollars. He had over $30,000 of Auburn stock. He gave us an option at $90, but that option expired before we had investigated the condition of the company. A few days after the expiry we wired Mr. Hayes, who had gone to California, that if his offer still held good we would take it. He wired back accepting."

Mr. Ormsby objected to answering Mr. Hall's question as to what sum Ferguson and Ormsby had paid for the Auburn.

"We bought it in other units. It is anybody's business what we paid."

His Lordship decided that because other mills were involved, witness need not answer Mr. Hall's question.

Witness said that at first the Canadian Woollens, Limited was a holding company. The assets were transferred later. Mr. Goodwill had nothing to do with the Canadian Woollens.

Mr. Hall It was a successful issue?—Yes. Peterborough people didn't seem to think so. We tried to sell them, but they wouldn't have it.

Six thousand copies of the prospectus had been sent out to investors, witness said.

"You overlooked me," His Lordship remarked.

"I must apologize for overlooking you, Your Lordship," Mr Ormsby replied, smiling.

The Meldrum Price.

His Lordship How was it you gave Mr. Meldrum a better price than other minority shareholders?

Mr. Ormsby I would be glad to answer that in justice to myself. Mr Meldrum was not the only one who was paid more. When we had the complete holdings of Mr. Hayes and the Kendry and Carnegie block, there was about $25,000 outstanding stock. There were two methods of procedure for us. One was that which we followed, to buy this balance. The other was to let the remaining stock stand and simply transfer the control of the mill to the majority, the others who continue to hold the Auburn shares. We concluded that it was preferable to pay for all of it if we could. We bought Mr Hayes' stock at $90. He was an experienced and well-known man in business. We felt that if we paid more than 100 per cent. that would be more than the stock was worth. We felt that as far as cash was concerned, $100 would be our limit. The equivalent of $100 cash would be $100 preferred and 25 per cent. common in the new company, but as there would be no underwriting expenses connected with the minority Auburn stock we decided to give them the advantage of another 25 per cent. common. This would make $100 preferred and 50 per cent. common for each share.

Mr. Maurice was the first man we got up against. We wanted him as a director on the board of the new company because of his experience. He was in bad health, and said he wanted to get out. He asked $300 a share, the same as Mrs. Kendry got. We decided then to get one of his associates for the board. We were taking a chance. We then gave him $300 a share for his 50 shares. That was not putting our name on the stock.

His Lordship—Did you get one of his associates?—Yes.

Mr. Ormsby About Mr. Meldrum, when Mr. Goodwill and I called on him he said that his wife owned 47 of the fifty shares they held. His own explanation, he said, was to raise the stock. I made a mistake not there. I thought that everything was all right and went back to Toronto. Mr. Ferguson told me shortly afterward that Mr. Meldrum had been refusing our offer. He wanted 125 [illegible] preferred and 75 per [illegible] commons. I said [illegible] was not worth it. Mr. Ferguson said he had agreed to say that we would take Mr. Meldrum's offer. I said I [illegible]

Catarrh Of The Stomach Is Dangerous

"Thousands Have It and Don't Know It," Says Physician. Frequently Mistaken for Indigestion—How To Recognize and Treat.

"Thousands of people suffer more or less constantly from furred, coated tongue, bad breath, sour burning stomach, frequent vomiting, rumbling in stomach, bitter eructations, gas, wind, and stomach acidity and call it indigestion when in reality their trouble is due to gastric catarrh of the stomach," writes a New York physician.

Catarrh of the stomach is dangerous because the mucous membrane lining of the stomach is thickened and a coating of phlegm covers the surface so that the digestive fluids cannot mix with the food and digest them. This condition soon breeds deadly disease in the fermented unassimilated food. The blood is polluted and carries the infection throughout the body. Gastric ulcers are apt to form and frequently an ulcer is the first sign of a deadly cancer.

In catarrh of the stomach a good and safe treatment is to take before meals a teaspoonful of pure Bisurated Magnesia in half a glass of hot water as hot as you can comfortably drink it. The hot water washes the mucus from the stomach walls and draws the blood to the stomach while the bisurated magnesia is an excellent solvent for mucus and increases the efficiency of the hot water treatment. Moreover the Bisurated Magnesia will serve as a powerful but harmless antacid which will neutralize any excess hydrochloric acid that may be in your stomach and sweeten its food contents. Easy, natural digestion without distress of any kind should soon follow. Bisurated Magnesia is not a laxative, is harmless, pleasant and easy to take and can be obtained from any local druggist. Don't confuse Bisurated Magnesia with other forms of magnesia, milks, citrates, etc., but get it in the pure bisurated form (powder or tablets), especially prepared for this purpose.

Montreal, Feb. 19. — Accompanying the announcement of a stock dividend of 22 per cent. payable to shareholders of Price Brothers, on February 25 to record of the same date, is the interesting statement that this dividend is paid out of profits earned by the company previous to 1917.

WOMEN IN THE PULPIT.

London, Eng. "The shortage of clergy is a question which must be faced seriously," said the Bishop of Chester. "I should like also to extend the sphere of lay help. I am more anxious than I can say to enlist the services of highly qualified women. They form the larger part of our congregations, and the church will fail disastrously and, I will almost say, deservedly, unless it tries its best in a responsive spirit to enlist the services of qualified and able women."

"I am a weak nervous and sick woman to a well, strong and happy one a long step but Tanlac enabled me to accomplish it in a few weeks," said Mrs James A Henry, a well-known resident of Lingan Road, Sydney, Nova Scotia, recently. "It is not only a pleasure but I regard it as a duty to tell how much Tanlac has benefitted me," she continued, "for it was by reading such statements from others that I was put on the right road to health.

YOUTH CARRIED GOGGLES AND A LOADED REVOLVER

YOUTHFUL JESSE JAMES APPEARS IN POLICE COURT THIS MORNING.

A local youth appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning, charged with carrying a pistol.

"Guilty or not guilty?" said the Magistrate, but the boy became lost in the midst of these terms, and he admitted that he did not know the meaning of the word "Guilty."

"I had the gun," he said.

It was brought out that the boy, who will be 17 next month, had left school when he was 14 in spite of all his father could do and was now working. He had been carrying the gun for about a week and it seems that last night when the father attempted to take the revolver away from the boy it went off, and the lad fearing that he had shot his father, gave himself up to the police. The pistol, which is a .32 calibre, was exhibited, and also a pair of goggles was produced. What this latter part of the equipment was for was not revealed.

His Worship was greatly perturbed over the father allowing the boy to leave school at such a tender age, and gave the boy's father a severe lecture, and the Magistrate explained to the boy the danger of carrying a revolver. "A little provocation will often cause one to draw the gun." His Worship said that he never had had occasion to carry one or had anybody else that kept respectable company, and blamed the boy's departure from this to reading trashy novels where the heroes carry dirks and pistols, and he strongly advised the boy to cut these out and read sensible books written for sensible people.

The magistrate was a little incensed at the boy's nonchalance through this oration.

"What are you chewing?"

"Gum," was the lad's reply.

"Take it out," and the boy acquiesced.

"How much are you earning?" said the Magistrate.

"Two and a half a day."

"Just two and a half a day?" said the Crown Attorney.

"That's all!"

The magistrate convinced that the boy could pay the fine set the tariff at $5 and $9.10 costs.

"Give me a cheque, boss," said the boy with the ease and the air of a plutocrat.

The revolver was confiscated and the goggles returned to their owner.

MILLBROOK CORRESPONDENCE

MILLBROOK, Feb. 19.—The three days' stock judging course, held in Millbrook on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of last week, was a success from every viewpoint. The weather and roads were excellent, the stock brought in for judging were splendid animals, and the correct placing by the young men showed that their study at various courses held has proved very valuable.

Winners in the Judging.

The prize, donated by Millbrook Farmers' Club, which was a handsome set of military hair brushes, was won by Harry Earl for being the highest man in the competition, with Lloyd Sutton second and H. Lee third.

The contest was a keen one, and the young men showed marked ability in being able to place classes correctly, as in some cases almost all the contestants placed the classes correctly, and the winners were decided on the reasons alone.

The class of stock secured for demonstration purposes was of the highest order, and great credit was due to the various committees in charge of the work, and the kindness of the breeders in the vicinity of Millbrook in bringing out their stock for demonstration purposes was very highly appreciated by the committees and the public in general.

The debate on "Free Trade v. Protection" was given on Wednesday evening in the Town Hall. It was closely contested, and was decided in favour of the affirmative.

TRAINS FROM EAST HAD DIFFICULTY

Travellers arriving in the city on the Montreal and Ottawa trains this morning and last night tell vivid tales of the journey from Smith Falls to Tweed.

The wheels of the locomotive and cars refused to "clinch" on the frost covered tracks with the result that the passengers were pitched about in their sleepers in a most undignified manner, making sleep an impossibility and necessitating the use of the half-Nelson on window sills or any support that came to hand. When the locomotive attempted to gain or slacken speed the cars almost telescoped each other and more than once during the journey the train was stopped until the wheels, made brittle by the frost, could be examined. After Tweed was left to the east the trains seemed to make better progress and after a change of engines was effected at Havelock the difficulty was passed.

The Ottawa train due to arrive at the C. P. R. station at 4.55 a.m. hove in sight at 5.30 but due to some mechanical difficulties the air brakes ground on the wheels of the rear car bringing the train to a halt on the west end of the bridge. After a careful inspection on the part of the train crew the difficulty was overcome and the train proceeded to Toronto after a ten minutes delay.

WINDSOR SCENE SHOOTING AFFRAY

JAP HELD ON A SERIOUS CHARGE

(Canadian Press.)

WINDSOR, Feb. 19.—Andrew Mofie lies in the Hotel Dieu at the point of death to-day, suffering from gunshot wounds in his right shoulder, received, it is alleged, by a gun in the hands of Hakam Koyanna, a Japanese, and also from cold and exposure, having been forced to walk for a distance of four block after being wounded, clad only in a suit of underwear. His alleged assailant is being held, charged with intent. Police officers found Mofie in a state of collapse, and so far he has divulged nothing beyond the fact that he had been shot. Groans were heard by occupants of the house to which Mofie staggered at two a.m. and officers called to the scene, discovered tracks made by a person walking in stocking feet. The tracks led to a summer cottage on the river front in Sandwich East Township and when admittance was demanded, Koyanna threatened to shoot. He was finally overpowered and admitted that the shots had been fired from a gun found in his room. He will be arraigned this afternoon.

MADE IN CANADA

MALTESE ARE NOT DENIED ADMISSION

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 19. — The statement that immigrants from Malta are to be denied admittance to Canada on the ground of [illegible] denied by the Department of Immigration here to-day.

An official of the Department pointed out that only nationals denied admittance to Canada at present as immigrants are Germans, Austrians, Hungarians, Bolsheviks and Turks. Settlers of [illegible] nationalities are allowed to Canada if they conform to the immigration regulations and if there is no economic reason why they should not be admitted as settlers.

Despatches from New York last night credited Dr. Rutherford, representative of the Canadian Immigration Department at Ellis Island, with the statement that the Ottawa Government had issued instructions that no more Maltese will be received as immigrants in Canada under any circumstances whatever. The only ground for such an understanding is the recent request sent to Dr. Rutherford from the immigration authorities here that special attention be paid to the fitnesses of prospective immigrants for work in Canada under present industrial conditions.

A number of Maltese have been recently found in Toronto without work and unfit to engage in any available employment.

IRELAND MAY BE THE FIRST TO ADOPT PROHIBITION

DUBLIN, Feb. 18.—Ireland is likely to be the first in Europe to adopt prohibition, the results of the recent municipal elections show.

In Dublin scarcely a man connected with the liquor trade has a seat in the new Council, and similar results are reported all over the country.

This has been brought about largely by the increase in the number of women electors.

tration plants, the slow sand or English type and the rapid sand or American type.

A slow sand filter consistes of a tight reservoir containing some five or six feet of stratified filtering material of progressive degrees of fineness, beginning at the bottom with broken stone or gravel, and ending with an upper layer of fine sand, the whole being suitably underdrained.

After the filter has been in operation for a time a mat of bacterial jelly forms on the top surface, which also coats each particle of sand to a considerable depth, and attracts and holds bacteria and other finely suspended matters.

When the filter sand becomes so clogged that it offers considerable resistance to the passage of the water, the sand must be taken out of the bed and washed, and then put back. This process is very difficult in Winter.

Rate of Filtration

The rate of filtration used in this type of filter is 3 million gallons per acre per day.

Rapid sand filtration consists of adding to the water to be filtered, a minute dose of some coagulating materials such as alum, and then after a short sedimentation period, admitting the water to the filter. This latter may be a tank of wood, iron, or concrete, containing a filter bed consistin of about 27 inches of sand resting on about 9 inches of gravel. Above the sand surface the water stands about 24 inches deep.

The coagulated matter collects on or near the surface of the sand bed. If the coagulation has been correctly performed, the filter will retain practically all the suspended matter and the bacteria.

When the sand bed becomes so clogged that the water passes through it too slowly for the economical working of the plant, the sand is washed by reversing the flow of water, the upward flow carrying off all the dirt and the bacteria collected in the sand.

The rate of filtration used in this type of filter is 150 million gallons per acre per day, and it may therefor be seen that a rapid sand plant will be much smaller in area than a slow sand plant.

Comparing the results obtained with slow and rapid sand ters, it may be said in a general way that they are equally effective in removing bacteria, the slow filters are much less effective in removing fine suspended matters and color.

Either slow or rapid sand filters will remove 99 to 99.5% of all the bacteria present. There are several methods of treatment in common use for distraying the bacteria, but which do not remove them or any other matters. These are known as disinfection of sterilization The methods commonly employed use chlorine as the agent, but ozone and violet rays have been successfully used. In Peterboro Liquid chlorine is used, and has been successful in producing a safe water.

The water in the Otonabee River is during all except the winter months, a highly colored one. Passing as it does through a comparatively thickly settled rural district, with a large summer population on its water shed, it is very liable to pollution.

The tests which are made every day at the Pumping Station show that for the months of June, July, August and September, almost every sample showed infenotch our ertde sample showed infection from sewage. It has only been by the use of large doses of chlorine applied to the water that it has been safe to drink. The chlorine process has been very valuable in this way but it is not as reliable as filtration.

The Lantern Slides.

At the conclusion of this address the lantern slides were thrown on the screen by Mr. H. O. Fisk while Mr. Dobbin gave a short description of each slide. These slides had been prepared at much expense and trouble by Mr. Dobbin but this was well compensated for last night by the graphic way in which the different plants and different processes were shown and by means of them they were easily explained to those present.

The first slide showed the first plant in England at Yorktown, and which was started in 1829. This was of the slow sand filter type. The next slide showed a plate in which hundreds of bacteria colonies could be seen in all some 1,187 colonies but after filtra[illegible] could be seen This Mr. Dobbin said was striking evidence to the success of filtration in eliminating the bacteria.

Rapid Sand Plant.

A diagramatic view of a rapid sand filter plant was thrown on the screen and Mr. Dobbin gave a detailed account of the construction of the plant and of each process. The course of the water from the time it entered the plant dirty and polluted till the time it passed into the reservoir clear and sparkling was pointed out in the diagram and everything was gone into to make the working of the plant clear to his listeners.

Many slides both exterior and interior were now shown of the big 30,000,000 gallon rapid sand filter plant at Akron, Ohio and the large plant at Little Falls, New Jersey. Pressure rapid sand filters were now briefly explained by the speaker and a slide shown of one of them but Mr. Dobbin said that they were not as satisfactory as the others.

Several views of the 3,000,000 gallon plant at St. John's Quebec, was shown. This plant was erected in 1910 after a very severe epidemic of typhoid fever created public sentiment in favour of it and it was hinted that something similar might happen here. Several other slides were shown of large and up-to-date plants among these, the handsome, new one at Harrisburg, Pennsylvania and the immense 100,000,000 gallon plant at New Orleans.

Various Pumps.

Many slides were shown of the different apparatus, pumps, rate controllers, dry feeders all of the necessary machinery being explained very clearly by Mr. Dobbin.

The new filtration plant at Toronto about which much criticism has been heard on its cost and upkeep was explained in its entirety. This plant which cost $1,000,000 is of the Ransome drifting sand type and has a capacity of 50,000,000 gallons a day. It differs from the rapid sand filter in that no coagulating basins are used and therefor it is much more rapid as no time is lost in coagulating.

This plant is very compact and takes up little room where as the old slow sand filter formerly in use in Toronto, occupied a large acreage.

Concluding Slides

The concluding slides showed the Peterboro Waterworks and the proposed filtration plant located on the old Carnegie property. This will be a six million gallon plant there being six million gallon filter tanks but only five need be fitted up till the sixth is needed. A reservoir of two million gallons will be needed; this will be just north of the water works.

Mr. Dobbin was questioned by the members on the plant and it came out that the city would have to pay some patents for he rapid sand filter is patented by a man by the name of Jewell in the states. The Jewell people are now engaged in a legal fight with the Ransome interests over patents. To a question as to the Ransome system being adopted for Peterboro Mr. Dobbin was very dubious as to its merits for in Toronto no information will be given out on how efficient it has been or its upkeep and things look a little queer.

"The royalty would not be so much on the Jewell filters," he said.

Chlorine Method.

In conclusion Mr. Dobbin said that the chlorine method had been in use for five years here and had been very effective at first but the pollution in the water was increasing each year and the method was not effective if the water was very dirty. "At one time last year it was not killing the bacteria", he stated. With the filtration there is no danger of the bacteria getting through and where it is in use deaths from typhoid have greatly decreased.

Mr. Dobbin placed the cost of upkeep at $36,000 per year and this meant an increase of 50% in the water rates which may have to be increased anyway as the maintenance of the water works is fast catching up with the revenue.

Between the slides the effect of alum in polluted water was shown graphically by the speaker.

Two large graduates of polluted water were exhibited and in one a small piece of alum was put. At the conclusion of his address they were examined and the one in which the alum had been placed was quite clear except for the coagulated particles floating about in it. Mr. Dobbin showed the members how tests for bacteria were made and also exhibited glass plates in which old bacteria colonies were visible.

Mr. R. H. Parsons expressed the thanks and appreciation of both the Board of Trade and Engineering Institute to Mr. Dobbin for his interesting address.

Mr. McIntosh brought up a matter that evinced much interest namely the need of having an engineer on the Board of Health and said that in Quebec it had been found necessary because of the many engineering problems confronting this body.

Mr. H. B. Rogers was [illegible] favor of it and other[illegible] voiced with the sug[illegible] he was left in a[illegible]

CERTIFICATES ON SALE HERE

The New Dominion of Canada Savings Certificates replacing the War Savings Stamps are now on sale at the local post office.

The government has decided to discontinue the sale of war saving stamps last December and intended to issue the Canada Savings Certificates at the first of the year, but the certificates were not issued to the post offices until last Saturday.

The new certificates have many interesting features, not the least interesting being interest at 5½ per cent. instead of 5 per cent. which the war savings stamps bore. As in the case of the war savings stamps, (WSS) the new certificates may be obtained for thrift stamps. The certificates mature in three years instead of in five years as was the case with the WSS. The old WSS were issued in one denomination only, that of $4 and purchased for $4. The certificates are issued in five denominations, $5, $10, $20, $50 and $100, but like the WSS are purchased at par. The $5 certificate costs the purchaser $4 as the $4 certificates cost $3.20 the $20 certificates $16 and the $100 denominations for $80.

Selling Prices.

The new certificates are negotiable and will be redeemed at any time at any post office or chartered bank. If presented within six months of purchase the purchase price will be returned. If presented after six months but within 12 months $4.03 will be paid for the $5 denomination and the other denominations at the same percentage. If presented after payment after 12 months, but within 18 months $4.05 will be paid for the $5 certificates; if presented after 18 months but within 24 months $4.07 will be paid; if presented after 24 months but within 30 months $4.09 will be paid; if presented after 30 months but within 36 months $4.11 will be paid; if presented after 36 months, $4.13 will be paid.

The names of the purchasers will be recorded on the certificates. Provision has been made for the death of the holder by allowing the surrender of him, her or them to be effected in the same.

Change Explained

In a circular issued to postmasters the Post Office Department states that the certificates are replacing the WSS since the emergency aspect of thrift is to provide a medium for small investment of small sums.

The word "war" has been eliminated from the nomenclature of the new certificates and purchasers will receive interest at the rate of Victory Bonds. The old WSS bore only 4 per cent. interest or 1½ per cent. less than Victory Bonds.

The new certificates are legal tender in Canada and are countersigned by T. C. Boyle, Deputy Minister of Finance. In appearance they are 8 inches by 6 inches.

NICKNAME FOR WILLIAM IVENS

JUDGMENT RESERVED UNTIL NEXT TUESDAY.

(Special to The Examiner)

WINNIPEG, Feb. 20. — William Ivens, a former Methodist preacher, any one of the strike leaders on trial here on a charge of seditious conspiracy, has acquired a nickname as a result of his famous "poisoned jury" "poisoned judge" and "poisoned sentence" speech.

"Poison Ivy" is the name by which the strike leader is now known to the court hangers-on who are following the trial. Ivens was charged with contempt as a result of his "poison" speech and the full court of the King's bench reserved judgment in the case until next Tuesday.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

AT THE GRAND.

Long before the rising of the curtain at the performance of "Carmen" at the Grand Opera House last evening every available seat was occupied, and Charlie Chaplin in the leading male role received an ovation from the time of his first appearance guarding the walls of the Spanish city to his death at the bull fight at Seville. The burlesque of the famous opera followed the original story closely, and each of the scenes had been turned by some master hand into side-splitting situations. All the main roles were played by famous comedians who, like the star, excelled themselves in the burlesque.

"Better Times."

"Better Times," which also figured on the programme, was a pleasing picture, with the necessary satisfactory ending, and told the story of a little girl who after struggling for years to bring her father's hotel up to the standard of the opposition, on the eve of realizing her hopes, finds that her father has gambled away the hotel to his rival. She, however, manages to go to college at the finish of her blighted hopes where, after a short time she meets a happy fate.

MINT MAKES RECORD.

Philadelphia — In a valiant effort to meet the abnormal demand for "small change," the Philadelphia Mint established a new high record in 1919, having turned out coins to the total of 509,915,000 pieces for domestic use and 90,529,195 for foreign account. The 1918 output was 378,450,000 of domestic and 28,481,000 of foreign. The value of the 1918 output was $14,080,391.04, while that of 1919 was $13,849,610, the tremendous demand for pennies being responsible for the decrease in value in 1919.

What Women in Their "Forties" Need

BY A SPECIALIST

Many women approach the critical changing period of their lives that comes between the ages of forty and fifty, unmindful of its tremendous importance to their future health and happiness. Not understanding the functional changes taking place in their bodies, they work beyond their strength, often break down, becoming nervous wrecks, their bodies suffering with fatigue and their weakened nerves trembling at every step. Often in their weakened condition capillary hemorrhage becomes excessive this added drain compelling them to take to their beds from nervous exhaustion.

What these women need is something that will instantly relieve the pressure on the overworked nerve centres and give them the vitality to stand up under the grueling strain. Wonderfully effective results are often given in such conditions by the simple use of Ferro Peptine, a skillful combination of six of the best nerve vitalizing elements known to modern chemistry. These little tablets contain no dangerous habit-forming drugs and are entirely harmless in their action.

Thousands of women can testify that Ferro-Peptine strengthens the jaded nerves revives the tired brain and puts the energy and courage into the body that enables one to stand up under the unusual strain of the changing period. Ferro-Peptine has to do these things or it costs nothing, as all leading druggists sell it on a positive guarantee of relief or money back.

THE LOST VILLAGE

It way May. The apple blossoms were seas of bloom, the air was fragrant with sweet perfume as I walked along the country road in search of the village I had left.

For a long time I had been away and in many a tired moment my thought returned to this village. It filled me with memories which grew brighter and brighter as time went on, and now I was returning.

I had walked a long way and it was getting late. Wearily I climbed to the top of a hill and the sun was a great red globe just above the pine tree away out on the horizon. Perhaps it was only a dream village—but no, the associations were too vivid, the memories of this quiet little village in the valley so soothing.

I watched the sun begin to slide behind the trees leaving behind it tints of mauves and pinks, when down in the valley I spied my village with its roof tops shining a deep golden red in the fading glow of the sun. I hurried down the hill and it was still a golden village in the sunset splendor I recognized the streets, the houses, they were the same but somehow they did not look quite familiar. How small they looked! How quiet and peaceful everything was. Yes, this was my village. How I loved [illegible] ward to resting here after my wanderings. Peace, quiet and comfort were the only things I longed for most.

The people came out and gazed at me. The setting sun lit up their faces. They were excited at my arrival and laughed and talked a great deal, but I seemed to know no one. They gathered about me and they laughed. I listened to them and wondered. My wonder was like efforts to remember things just out of reach but not finally out of reach.

I did not understand them they were so happy, so happy just picking pine cones. How stupid of them I thought. I did not laugh. I was bored. So long I had looked forward to my little village, but to see them contentedly grubbing on one spot of ground, roused something in me.

Suddenly I wanted to be "getting on." I wanted to live. I wanted to get into everything, to do everything and do it all at once, to be everywhere and to be everywhere at once. When I thought of the Fire Corps I knew that was impossible and I wanted it all the same.

[illegible] village, [illegible] sweet perfume, and I was not [illegible] sight of these people plodding along on one bit of ground when there is —but they were happy.

I sat down and all I could feel and realize was, how beautiful, how peaceful! And I repeated my thoughts aloud, how beautiful, how peaceful!

"Only that? Nothing more?" I heard these people whisper. "Yes" I replied, "something more, but I don't know what it is. Something I have lost."

Thoughts, memories, hundreds, thousands, came and went like lightning so that I could not arrest them, —nor even one.

These people would not help me. They laughed. But was it sad or glad? I was not sure, but it was a beautiful peaceful sound, soft and musical, like the murmuring brook in the summertime, it seemed familiar yet it stirred me in a strange way.

"What is it?" I asked. "Why are you so happy, or is it sadness." What have I lost?" "Think" they all cried laughingly. Then I cast my eyes down and there was perfect stillness as if all were waiting and watching and faintly I heard, "it is the way you pick pine cones." The sudden stillness was too strange it startled me. I looked up and they were gone, all these merry laughing people, and the golden sunlit village in the valley had vanished.

THE MARCH OF TIME

Sometimes I almost wish I could
The March of Time delay
So quickly moments grow to hours
And hours become a day.
And when the day has bowed to night,
So much seems yet undone
And work that I had planned to do
I have not yet begun.

And then I think me yet again
What better would it be
If time were at my beck and call
To stop or go with me
I might be wishing time would halt
To please my sluggish soul
While others wished in other mood
That time would onward roll.

Thy hand sets the stars in place
And made the glorious sun
That hand controls the course of time
Until all time is done
And what we were not meant to do
We should not long to see
But fill the years God giveth us
With deeds that cannot die.

GROCERS ADVERTISE THEIR COST PRICES

UTICA, N.Y.—The Utica Retail Grocers' Association will maintain a novel publicity campaign to keep patrons of local stores informed as to their efforts to lower the high cost of living. The association will publish a series of display advertisements in local papers giving the actual cost to the retail grocers of standard food commodities. SHORT STORY

"That Stupid Boy"

By ALLEN CHAPPELL

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

"Drat that stupid boy!"

John Drew, proprietor of an extensive factory, uttered the words with vim and threw down his pen, which he had poked into the inkwell to find it full of red instead of black fluid.

"Don't scold him, Mr. Drew," coaxed Lettie Duncan, cashier of the establishment and a general favorite with everybody about it.

"But I can't have this kind of work going on," remonstrated her employer. "Yesterday Jerry mailed all the letters with a one-cent stamp and they came back for extra postage. He seems to be wool-gathering half of the time."

"I happen to know the reason why," spoke Miss Duncan, "and I had better reveal it to you. I guess Jerry Lawton is a thoroughly good boy, but he came here with a great object in view and it has so obsessed him that all he thinks of is wedding trousseau."

Mr. Drew regarded his informant with a wondering and incredulous stare. "You are jesting," he observed. "Surely you don't mean to intimate that Jerry is contemplating matrimony?"

"Surely not, but his sister is. Jerry is something of a hero, Mr. Drew. It seems that his sister is to marry a quite worthy young man next month. Her people are poor and Jerry has been working and scraping and saving to surprise her by handing her the price of a complete bridal outfit."

"Well! well!" commented Mr. Drew indulgently. "We must keep track of this romance, encourage it and help the happy couple along." He repressed a slight sigh, and his eyes sought those of Miss Duncan. She smiled back at him, flushing slightly, for she fancied she surmised what was in his thoughts. As to himself, there was a moment of sadness as he thought of a wife he had loved and lost.

The hum of industry caused the incident of the moment to pass into forgetfulness for the time being. Jerry came in swinging the satchel containing the mail. He placed it on a desk as Miss Duncan called to him.

"Is the auto outside, Jerry?" she inquired.

"Yes, ma'am," he responded.

"I must get to the branch plant with the pay roll," she said. "You can drive me over, if you like."

"Crackey! that will be fine," chirped Jerry. "Yes, ma'am, I'll take charge of it," as Miss Duncan went to the safe and filled a satchel with packages of bank notes and rouleaux of coin. He dropped the satchel to a chair to open for Miss Duncan a wardrobe where her wraps were. She had some orders to leave with the stenographers and her other assistants. Then: "All ready, Jerry," and he hurried ont, satchel in hand, and tossed it on the rear seat of the machine. Miss Duncan got in. Jerry proudly seated himself at the wheel and directed the machine down the plant alley, turned into the street, almost came bump up against another auto waiting there, and his jaw dropped as one of the men sprang to the front seat, the other to the rear. Jerry's eyes were like miniature moons—Miss Duncan screamed.

"Quit that, or you'll have trouble!" sounded gruff, menacing tones and a revolver gleamed. Its possessor shot out his free hand, seized the satchel and with his companion backed towards the other automobile in waiting.

"Don't you make an outcry or a move to follow," was ordered threateningly to Jerry, "or there will be a rain of lead." Then the driver and his colleagues spun away and Miss Duncan, white to the lips, murmured faintly:

"Give the alarm, Jerry."

"Thunder! a real holdup," gasped Jerry, and ran to the nearest factory entrance and shouted out that the branch pay roll had vanished.

All was excitement and turmoil as once more in the office of the works Lettie and Jerry were surrounded by an eager interested crowd.

"Hold on!"

It was Jerry who uttered the words in a ringing shout and with a forward pounce. Of a sudden his glance had fallen to what he at first supposed to be the mail satchel. Now he knew better. He seized the object, lifted it, gave it a swing and yelled hysterically:

"Hurrah! They got the wrong one."

"What's that?" demanded Mr. Drew.

"I made a mistake. Oh, say! Miss Duncan, we've fooled those hold-up men grandly. It's the paper mail satchel they've got, and the money—"

Jerry slipped a catch and the opulent contents of the satchel tumbled out. He gloated over the heap of money. The color returned to Miss Duncan's face. Mr. Drew looked immensely relieved and pleased, congratulated Jerry on his fortunate mistake, and arranged with Miss Duncan to promptly see that Jerry had a suitable reward sufficient to more than supply his sister with her trousseau.

And he and Lettie were quite delighted in helping along a romance, and somehow this nurtured the sentimentality in their own lives, and there was the prospect of another wedding.

"That blessed boy!" commented Mr. Drew, forgetting the past stupidity of the lad who had brought about all this happiness.

PARTING SALUTATIONS.

These Used In Different Nations Are Very Much Alike.

The parting salutations of various nations are strikingly alike. The vale of the Latins corresponds with the similar expression of the Greeks, and, though piety is not expressed distinctly in either, it was doubtless understood, for who can be kept in health without, as the ancients would say, the will of the gods?

The Greek word perhaps has a higher signification than the Latin, for it was not a mere complimentary salutation. St. John forbids it to be given to heretical teachers.

The French on taking leave say, "Adieu," thus distinctly recognizing the providential power of the Creator, and the same meaning is indeed conveyed in our own word "goodby," which is a corruption of "God be with you."

The Irish in their warmth of manner and love of words often extend the expression.

A well known guide, upon one of our friends leaving one of the loveliest spots in Wicklow, shook hands with him heartily and said in a voice somewhat more tremulous than it rough ago than it was when Tom Moore loved to listen to it:

"God Almighty bless you, be with you and guide you safely to your journey's end!"

This salutation, when used thoughtfully and aright, has not only a pleasant sound, but deep meaning.

When He Was Bad.

It has been said that you never know a man till you travel with him, and certainly traveling has a tendency to bring out all the depravity innate in human nature. Out of this test, however, Benjamin Disraeli emerged with flying colors. This is what was said of him by Mrs. Austen, who, with her husband, traveled with him when he was quite a young man, as related in Mr. Monypenny's biography:

"Your brother," she says (the letter was addressed to Disraeli's sister), "is so easily pleased, so accommodating, so amusing and so actively kind that I shall always reflect upon the domestic part of our journey with the greatest pleasure. Your brother has behaved excellently, except when there is a button, or, rather, buttons, to be put on his shirt; then he is violently bad, and this happens almost daily."

Power of Words.

"For me," writes Lafcadio Hearn in the "Japanese Letters of Lafcadio Hearn," "words have color, form, character. They have faces, ports, manners, gesticulations; they have moods, humors, eccentricities; they have tints, tones, personalities."

A good instance of this power appears in a description of Patti's singing: "There was a great dim pressure, a stifling heat, a whispering of silks, a weight of toilet perfumes. Then came an awful hush. All the silks stopped whispering. And then suddenly sweetened out through that dead, hot air a clear, cool, tense thread gust of melody unlike any sound I ever heard before save—in tropical nights—from the throat of a mocking bird. It was 'Auld Lang Syne' only, but with never a tremolo or artifice, a marvelous, audacious simplicity of utterance."

When Baronets Were Sold.

It was in the reign of good King James that baronets first came into existence. Today you could hardly tell a baronet from a banker. But in the year 1611, when James I. needed ready money and created 200 "little barons" to supply him with cash, they swaggered about in their baldrics and sashes and behaved in the courtliest of fashion. Each baronet in order to justify his title had to maintain a small army of thirty soldiers for three years. In this way the crafty king not only increased his revenue, but actually lightened his expenses.—London Telegraph.

A New Method of treating an Old Complaint

ANCIENT TOBACCO.

Tibetans Are Said to Have Used the Weed 2,200 Years Ago.

It is generally supposed that tobacco was unknown in the old world until after the discovery of America. But there is excellent evidence that it was known and used in Tibet as early as 377 B. C. In a note to an article in the Geographical Review Dr. Berthold Laufer of the Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago, writes as follows:

"Among the many curiosities of the Tibetan English dictionary, published in 1902 by Sarat Chandra Das, the well known Bengali student of Tibetan and explorer of Tibet, we read that the evil drug tobacco (in Tibetan tha-ma kha) appeared in ancient time about 165 years after the death of Buddha, which would yield the date 377 B. C., and that mention is made of tobacco also in the writings of a lama who is dated in the twelfth century A. D.

"In 1908 I enjoyed the privilege of spending several months in Lama-villa, the house of Das, in Darjeeling, and when one evening, in the course of a learned conversation with him, I ventured to draw his attention to this chronological anomaly and the post Columbian introduction of tobacco into Europe and Asia he replied, 'This is your tradition, and that (pointing to the passage in his dictionary) is our tradition, and our traditions certainly are as good as yours.'"

UNAVOIDABLE.

Miss Oldby—I would never get married in leap year because everybody would say that I had done the proposing.

Miss Keen—Don't let that deter you. They would say that anyway.

CARRYING OUT HER OBLIGATIONS

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Feb. 19. — Premier Lloyd-George was asked whether any financial or otherwise was still being given to any Russian army or organization whose aim was to overthrow the Soviet system.

The Premier replied that no aid was being given except that the Government was continuing, as far as circumstance permitted, to fulfil the remainder of its obligations to the Russian leader.

Replying to the question as to whether Great Britain was trying to bring about peace between Soviet Russia and Poland Lloyd-George said the question of peace or war with Soviet Russia was one which Poland must decide for herself.

The first squad of Washington players will leave the Capitol City for the Senator's training camp at Tampa, Fla., on Feb. 27, and work will be started on March 1. Two veterans of the team will report for work on March 8.

Ray Demmitt, one time Yankee and a member of the St. Louis Browns for the past two seasons, is not to be a member of the St. Louis Club in the coming campaign, according to reports from the Mound City.

Most of the veterans of the Detroit Club have returned signed contracts for the coming season, enough, in fact, to enable Hugh Jennings to put a strong team on the field if the season were to open tomorrow.

Manager Fred Mitchell will leave only a small squad of Cubs to the training camp at Pasadena next fall. The Chicago rooster now includes twenty nine players, and some of these may be let out before the season opens.

WORLD OF SPORT

WEAKENED PETERBORO TEAM IS BEATEN IN PLAY-OFF AT BELLEVILLE

WITH RAY ROSE, HARRY AND PETE THORNTON OFF AND HALPIN AND JACKSON SICK, PETES LOSE BY 13 TO 5 TO KINGSTON.

A HUGE CROWD THERE

Minus three of the regular line-up and with a couple of others so ill that they should have been in bed, the Petes were knocked out of the O.H.A. race in the play off game at Belleville last night, Kingston winning in hollow fashion by 13 goals to 5. It was an unsatisfactory ending to a fine season but in those days of epidemics even hockey teams cannot expect to escape and the Petes accept the decision without complaint.

Ray Rose, Harry Thornton and Pete Thornton were all absentees last night while Grower Halpin and Walter Jackson were both sick but figured in the line up. The result was a team that was more or less disorganized both on the forward line and the defence, while the subbing system that has been so satisfactorily operated in recent games was knocked out of gear. The two regular subs Jackson and Evans replaced Rose and Harry Thornton on the forward line while Cliff Lowes took Pete Thornton's position on the defence. The subbing was done by "Red" Sheehan of the juniors and Leith Battley of the C.G.E. City League team.

The game was settled in the first period. While they lasted the Petes had the edge on the Easterners. They scored the first goal and at the end of ten minutes were leading by 1 to 0. Then Murray was knocked out in a mix-up and before he recovered from the effects of the smash, Kingston ripped a couple of goals past him and the issue was decided then and there. The Petes had skated themselves into the ground by this stage trying to hold the Easterners and they had litle left. It was merely a question of the final score and Kingston developing an effective combination had the figure 4 to 2 at the rest period and ran in six goals in a row in the second session while the Petes were blanked. Each team scored three in the last period which was just a case of playing out the string.

The Petes gave everything they had and went down battling. With the breaks all against them and the team badly shattered, they went out and tried with every ounce, and the Peterborough fans who saw the game are satisfied. Pete Thornton's steady work on the defence was sadly missed, while the absence of Ray Rose and Harry Thornton from the forward line was felt, especially the backchecking of the former. The centre player has been the means of breaking up scores of enemy rushes and the difference was soon noticeable.

As a game, the contest did not approach in brilliancy or interest the last two meetings between the two clubs. The hockey never approached the class shown in the games at Peterborough and Kingston, and after the first period there was never any doubt as to the result. The chief feature was the enormous crowd, which threatened to bulge the sides out of Dick Arnott's barn-like ice box. Kingston sent up nearly 700 rooters on a special train, while there were 400 from Peterborough, divided between the regular afternoon train and the special which left Peterborough at 5 o'clock. In addition, Lindsay, Port Hope, Oshawa, Trenton, Picton and other hockey centres in the district were all represented by contingents of fans. The jam at the doors was something to remember, while inside the rink was so tightly packed that it was impossible to move. So crowded were the galleries that it is a miracle that they did not collapse. A section of the railing on the Kingston side of the rink did crack under the strain, and a couple of spectators were precipitated on to the ice, but fortunately without any ill effects from the sudden drop.

The game was handled by two officials, Tom Munro of London as referee, and Percy Lesuer of Toronto, as judge of play. The system was not a complete success, because the two officials did not work well together, and Munro would probably have made a better job of it if he had been alone.

The Kingston team showed more system and combination than in their previous games, passing with much better judgment, and the result is seen in the score. In the other games between the two clubs the Easterners showed a tendency to hog the puck, but last night they were unselfish in their methods and looked like a much more formidable team as a result. Tobin was a star in the nets, and Brown and Elmer on the defence rushed in stellar fashion. Stewart was the most effective forward, getting a bunch of the goals, while Cook and Smith were both good.

For the Petes, Murray, although he made a lot of nice stops, was not as air-tight as usual. It was little wonder, however, for the crack on the head he got early in the game left him dizzy. Halpin went strong on the defence and rushed nicely. On the forward line, Walter Jackson turned in his best game of the season. He scored three goals for the Petes, and his stick-handling was of stellar variety. Lornie Rose also contributed some fine rushing and shooting, and George Evans worked to good advantage. The three newcomers to the line-up, Lowes, Bartley and Sheehan, all did their bit.

The teams:

The Petes started out at a good clip and had the first shot of the game, Tobin blocking. For a couple of minutes the green shirts were almost continuously on the attack, and finally Jackson scored the first goal on a side shot.

Kingston began to come, but could not beat Murray although there were several close calls. Finally in a mix-up around the Petes' nets, Cook hit Murray over the head, knocking him out. Cook was penalized, and as he went to the penalty box "Red" Lowes dropped him with a uppercut to the jaw. It looked like a free-for-all for a few minutes and in the midst of the confusion, the railing in the gallery cracked and a couple of Kingston spectators fell over on the ice. Finally, after Murray recovered, the game was started again, and after ten minutes playing, Stewart tied the score on a rush by Elmer.

Lornie Rose went off for tripping, and while he was in the penalty box Kingston took the lead, never to be headed. Elmer made it 2 to 1 on a long shot and Cook and Brown followed with two goals in rapid succession. Rose got the last goal of the period just before the bell rang on a rush by Jackson, leaving it 4 to 2.

The second period had hardly opened when Smith scored for Kingston on a long shot which Murray never saw. The Easterners had a big edge on the play in this period and registered five more counters while the Petes were blanked. The green shirts had a number of chances but Tobin was unbeatable in this period. It was 10 to 2 when the second rest term arrived.

The last period was marked more by exciting mix-ups than by good hockey. Kingston, satisfied with their big lead, avoided coming to close quarters as much as possible, and they showed judgment in their policy, for the Petes were mixing it with a vigour that showed they had not forgotten the tactics used against them in Kingston. A number of the Kingston team went on the casualty list in this period. Smith being knocked out when he was hit on the head with the puck, while Brown was chopped over the ankle, and Stewart got several rough passages. The scoring was only an incident of the last twenty minutes. Jackson opened the scoring with a goal and Kingston got two in succession. Bartley made it 12 to 4, but the Easterners came back with another. Jackson got the last goal of the game.

In the last few minutes Murray, the Petes' goaler, and Brown, were sent off for slashing at each other, and Lowes played goal for two minutes, turning aside the only two shots sent in his direction.

T.C.C. DEFEAT LINDSAY 17-5

TORONTO, Feb. 20. — Toronto Canoe Club Juniors qualified for the next round in the O.H.A. series when they beat the Lindsay Midgets here last night by 17 to 5. Their margin on the round was 11 goals, Lindsay having been returned the victors on their own ice by 6 to 5. As the score indicates the game was too one-sided to be as interesting as was expected.

The local team played the best game they have shown this season and squelched any hopes Lindsay had of winning the round when they tallied nine goals in succession in the opening period. The Midgets were not at full strength, and some of their players had been ill during the past week, but they had no excuses to offer and freely admitted that T.C.C. were vastly the superior team.

T.C.C. — Goal, Worters; defence, Conacher and Appleegtha; wings, McCurry and White; centre, Burch; subs, Mollenhauer and Heuston.

Lindsay—Goal, McClory; defence, Green and Garnett; centre, Bell; wings, Chambers and Sutton; subs, McElroy and Mills.

PRINTLESS PRINTING.

KANSAS CITY. — Philip Young, a Chinese student at the Kansas State Agricultural College at Manhattan, says the Literary Digest, was not the first in conceiving that a magazine could be printed without the aid of printers. He claims to be the first person to put the idea into practice.

Young was a Y.M.C.A. man with the chinese coolies in France, and wanted to publish a paper for them, but he found that there was not a font of Chinese type to be had. He wrote the matter in long hand — or whatever the Chinese call it — and then had each page photographed. From a print of the photographic negative an electrotype was made and from this the printed page.

This is the principle that was later used by the Literary Digest, and other New York publications during the recent strike.

PERFECT MENTAL REST

The little group of men who make a living by serving as fishing and hunting guides to city sportsmen on the shores and waters of Great South Bay, which indents the sea side of Long Island, are a race unto themselves—uncommunicative, competent and tremendously silent. Not long ago Bozeman Bulger—who is by way of being the worst duck shot and one of the most persistent in the world—was in a blind with his favorite guide. He endeavored to draw out his companion.

"Tom," he said, "what do you fellows do down here when the bay freezes over and stops the hunting and fishing?"

"Well," said Tom, after a contemplative pause, "we git round the stove in the boathouse and just set and think. Sometimes we jest set."

MAY OUST TENANT HELD "UNDESIRABLE."

New York.—The Appellate term of the Supreme Court handed down a decision upholding the right of a landlord to oust a tenant whom he deems undesirable without giving any reason for his action.

The judgment of the Municipal Court declaring that Miss Jeanne Lorraine could not be dispossessed from her West Side apartment by the Waitt Construction Company was reversed and a new trial ordered.

"It may well be," said Justice Lehman in writing the opinion, "that the landlord need not show in fact that the tenant was undesirable, or that he had any reasonable grounds for deeming it undesirable, and yet, since his option to terminate the lease arises only if the deems the tenancy undesirable, the petition should allege this."

STIRRING PICTURE AT THE GRAND

LABOUR MEN WILL ATTEND IN A BODY.

The star chamber sessions of the Russian Soviet are relentlessly unveiled in "The Right to Happiness," the Universal photo-drama of modern Russia which comes to the Grand on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of next week.

The spectator sees the "comrades" and cohorts of the two principal Russian agitators in the chamber of deputies in Petrograd.

Silk-hatted envoys arrive from Berlin. They leave an issue of gold with the mob-rulers and retire, confident of the support of the Russian radicals.

A girl skips lightly into the room, leaps to the marble rostrum and inflames the smouldering brains of the "comrades" by her creed of violence. Then she leaves Petrograd for New York as an envoy of destruction from leaders of the radicals.

How she finds her sister living in splendour in New York and how the whole fury of her heart is directed against her own father, who is known to her only as a stone-hearted money king, forms the theme of the unusual film drama.

Dorothy Phillips, star of "The Heart of Humanity," rises to dramatic heights in a dual role in her latest starring vehicle, "The Right to Happiness." She is sensationally tempestuous as Sonia, the little comrade of the reactionaries and fastidious and self-centred as Vivian, her twin-sister, daughter of the money lord.

William Stowell, well remembered for his excellent supporting work in "The Heart of Humanity" and "Destiny," two previous Universal successes, supports the star. Robert Anderson, Hector Sarno, Henry Barrows, Winter Hall, Margaret Mann, Stanhope Wheatcroft, and Alma Bennett are the other members of the cast.

The production was written and produced by Allen Holubar who also created "The Heart of Humanity."

SMALLPOX CLAIMS ITS FIRST VICTIM

DISEASE IS ON THE INCREASE IN IN THE CITY.

Smallpox claimed the first victim in the city this morning in the death of Mr. G. Rose, 708 Stewart street, and Dr. A. W. McPherson, M.O.H., said to-day that the epidemic is still on the increase, each day a fresh victim being reported to him. At present some 25 persons are in quarantine, in several cases two and three being ill in the same house. Vaccination has practically, unfortunately, been at a standstill, which has resulted in whole house holds being detained from work at a time when work is most needed. Had the other persons in the house in which a case of smallpox developed, been vaccinated, after a thorough fumigation they would have been allowed to continue their work from a different dwelling place, vaccination rendering each person absolutely immune from the disease.

No Serious Complaint.

No serious complaint has arisen from influenza in the city, though there are a few cases spread about the city.

INCREASE IN PRICE OF SUGAR

A rise in price of $2.00 a hundred on sugar is looked for by the local retail men in the near future, due to the shortage caused by a strike in Cuba. The retail men had not, up to noon, been advised of the increase, but believe it to be inevitable. It is at present retailing at $15.75.

SMOKER WAS BIG SUCCESS

The smoker held by the carpenters and wood workers of the city last night in Labor Hall was a great success. A delightful entertainment was given and several short addresses were heard from Mayor McIntyre and Mr. Thomas Tooms, M.L.A. and Mr. Fred Bancroft and Mr. John Noble, guests of the carpenters for the occasion, spoke briefly, their interesting speeches being very much enjoyed. Mllady Nicotine was much in favor during the evening and the smoker and entertainment was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

THE STOCK MARKET OPENS IRREGULAR

SOME OF THE BIG ISSUES MADE GAINS—STERLING EXCHANGE

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb 20 — The Stock Market was irregular at the opening to-day. Some of the big speculative issues made gains. General Motors up 1 1-4 to 238 3-4; and Mex Petroleum up 1 3-4 to 178,b ut U. S. Steel again eased off losing 3-8 to 98 1-8. U. R. Stores opened at 70 off 1-2, Southern Pac. 23 7-8 off 1-8; Baldwin 110 7-8 up 7-8; New Haven unchanged at 31 1-8, Sinclair, 39 3-4 off 1.

The strength in sterling exchange, which made a new high on recovery to-day of 3.47 1-4 created a decidedly favorable impression in the stock market and resulted in a big advance in prices which took in virtually the whole list.

General Motors advanced about 8 points to 244. Mexican Petroleum rose above 180; Pan American sold at 87 1-2. At its highest Mexican Pet. was up nearly 20 points from its low on the break.

DEMAND STERLING.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20. — Demand sterling continued to regain strength to-day. The British pound was quoted at the opening to-day at 3.46 3-4, a gain of 2 3-4c.

In the first half hour sterling gained 1-2 cent more to 3.47 1-4; Francs opened string at 13.27, up 30, and lire 17.62, up 26. Marks were .0107, and Vienna kronen .0041.

At 3.47 1-4 sterling touched a new high on the present move, and shows a recovery of 29 1-4 cents from its record low of 3.18 on Feb. 4th

NEW YORK, Feb. 20. — Sterling reacted to $3.43 3-4 this afternoon.

After rising to 3.47¾ Sterling reacted to $3.46 Francs declined to $13.29 and lire to 17-42.

ECONOMY FOR KING.

London, Eng. — King George is again asserting the necessity for economy in view of the high cost of labor, and has decided that hand-picked Welsh coal must no longer be provided for the royal yachts. Naval storekeepers in the future will supply coal free from dust in 100-pound bags similar to those used on the admiralty vessels.

Some comment is being made as to the reason for not fitting the royal yachts with oil burning engines on the ground of cleanliness. In well informed circles it has been suggested that the King vetoed the proposal on the ground of the expense involved.

THE LUCKY CLOVER.

London, Eng.—Quick proof of the saying that four-leaved clover brings luck to a person who finds it unawares was forthcoming in the case of Mrs. A. Bagley, of Beaconsfield, Bucks. Walking down her garden to gather some herbs, she found a spring of four-leaved clover by the side of the path. Later, she was walking along the London-road when she picked up a 10s. treasury note.

LAST MINUTE DESPATCHES

(Canadian Press.)

DUBLIN, Feb. 20. — With a tank and two armored cars the military today carried out a raid near Grafton street where they are reported to have made several arrests. The raid followed early morning fights between civilians and police in which a constable was killed and another constable and civilian were wounded and several persons were arrested.

STRONG CRITICISM VOICED AT MEETING

OTTAWA, Feb. 20.—Strong criticism voiced at meeting of G. T. R. shareholders in London yesterday is not regarded in official circles here as being of great moment. Charges made at the meeting that shareholders had been held up by the Dominion Government are, it is asserted in themselves a reply to accusations made here of too great generosity on the part of the Government. "If the Grand Trunk shareholders had been as critical of the service given to Canadian people, the situation might have been different" was one remark made. The Government nominees to a temporary board of management will probably be appointed in a couple of weeks. There are still a number of formalities before the actual appointments can be made.

EXCHANGE ARE HIGHEST LEVEL

(Canadian Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—Exchange on London and principal European centres was at highest level to-day since the low record of February 4, when demand bills sold down to $3.10 To-day's rates for the same bills was $3.47 1-4. Remittances to all European countries all improved. The recovery is ascribed to partial readjustment of conditions, and moderate demand fo bills especially on London and Paris.

ACCOMMODATION FOR PERMANENT FORCE

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 20.—Whether or not revision will be made at coming session of Parliament to erection of new barracks to house re oganized Canadian permanent force is not yet known, but it is apparent that lack of barrack accommodations is causing militia department gravest concern. It is stated that in only two out of eleven points were units of permanent force are stationed is accommodation adequate and at remaining nine places it is either nil, inadequate or unsuitable. At Winnipeg militia department, by taking over Tuxedo Park has secured good accommodation and at St. John's Que. There are suitabe quarters for one squadron of cavalry stationed there but this cannot be said of Halifax, Quebec, Montreal, Kingston, Toronto, Calgary, Regina, Vancouver or Victoria.

HEAVILY ARMED

(Canadian Press.)

DUBLIN, Feb. 20.—It is believed early morning disturbances were part of organized plan for simultaneous attack upon police in different parts of city. Plan was frustrated for most part, by arrests of suspicious persons, many of whom were found to be heavily armed.

REV. F. E. MALLOT WAS INVITED FOR ANOTHER YEAR

At a meeting of the Quarterly Official Board of Trinity Methodist Church, held on Wednesday evening, Rev. F. E. Malott, B.A., B.D., was invited by a unanimous vote to remain for a third year as pastor of the church. An increase of two hundred dollars in salary was also granted Mr. Malott.

DUTCH GOVERNMENT TO BE RESPONSIBLE

ExKaiser Must Not Endanger the Peace of the World.

(Canadian Press.)

THE HAGUE, Feb. 20.—Before answering the last Allied note relative to extradition of ex-Kaiser William, the Dutch government is expected to assure itself that the erstwhile monarch is willing to settle down for life at Doorn and not disturb the world's peace. Holland will undoubtedly reply she is willing to guard William at Doorn and accept responsibility for preventing any danger to the world peace, but it will probably be necessary to consult the exile. No difficulty is anticipated in this connection, as Count Hohenzollern is reported to be ready to accept Doorn as a haven for the rest of his life.

B. GERTRUDE PRICE.

Many were the expressions of regret heard in the city to-day when it became known that Miss B. Gertrude Price, third daughter of Mr. David Price, City Treasurer, had joined "the great majority." Her illness was of such short duration that many of her intimate friends were not aware that she was ill. On Thursday last she was taken seriously ill with an attack of pneumonia, and all that medical skill and loving care could do proved unavailing. The end came peacefully on Sunday night at the Belleville Hospital.

She was born in Belleville, and had resided here practically all her life. Miss Price was a member of B. [illegible] Street Methodist Church, and also a member of the choir. For some time she had taken an active interest in church and Sunday School work, and being a talented vocalist was ever ready to assist at concerts and church services. Both in church and social work she will be greatly missed.

She was a deservedly popular young lady, and to her father and the surviving members of the family will be extended the heartfelt sympathy of many friends. Two brothers, Harry of Winnipeg and Frank of Chesterville Ont., and one sister, Mrs. Harry A. Davidson, of Moose Jaw, survive. Recently she lost her mother and her sister by death.

On Tuesday afternoon, at the family residence, 210 William Street, an impressive service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Scott, pastor of Bridge Street Methodist Church, who referred feelingly to the departed and the loss the church and the community

MAN'S ATTIRE WILL BE STRIPPED OF UNESSENTIALS

Atlantic City—Man's attire for 1920 will be stripped of unessentials, such as cuffs on trousers and coat sleeves, to reduce as far as possible all waste of material, according to reforms predicted as the probable outcome of the convention of the National Association of Merchant Tailors. The convention will be held here and will last one week, beginning January 22.

It was stated that the organization is likely to set its official frown upon "flashy" clothes for men, and that male habiliments for 1920 are to be soberer in tone and cut than recent fashions have dictated.

JUDGMENT RESERVED IN DAVIDSON-GOODWILL CASE

MR. JUSTICE ORDE STATED THAT PLAINTIFF'S CAUSE WAS NOT HELPED BY THE MANNER IN WHICH RECEIPTED ACCOUNT WAS OBTAINED FROM MR. GOODWILL.

CONCLUDED YESTERDAY

Judgment in the Davidson-Goodwill case was reserved by Mr. Justice Orde at the conclusion of the argument by counsel at five o'clock yesterday afternoon. The last witnesses were the defendant's stenographers, Miss Hardwick and Miss Kennealey, who corroborated his evidence regarding the request of the plaintiff's daughter for an account which she said her father believed he owed Mr. Goodwill in connection with the sale of Mr. Davidson's twenty shares of Auburn Woollen Company stock.

Mr. Goodwill had testified that Miss Davidson said her father was seriously ill and had not long to live, and that his mind was uneasy about this matter. Defendant had told her he had no account against her father, but finally he acceded to her request, gave her a receipted bill and, under her urging that her father would ask whether she had paid it, and that she wished to avoid telling a lie, Mr. Goodwill accepted three dollars. He stated that he had no right to the money, and had taken it only as the result of Miss Davidson's representation that the bill would comfort her father in his last moments.

Mr. R. R. Hall, who with Mr. C. R. Widdifield, appeared for the plaintiff, began his argument by discussing the value of the evidence regarding the visit of Mr. Goodwill and Mr. Ormsby to Mr. Davidson's home. He submitted the principle that affirmative evidence carried a preponderance over negative, when the credibility equally balanced. In this case the credibility of Mr. Davidson and Miss Davidson was not imputed.

Mr. Justice Orde said he had been impressed by Miss Davidson and the intelligence she displayed in giving her testimony.

Mr. Hall pointed out that Mr. Davidson and his daughter had stated that Mr. Goodwill advised Mr. Davidson to sell his stock for cash. Mr. Goodwill had denied this, and Mr. Ormsby said he had not heard it. Mr. Hall argued that under the principle he quoted the affirmative evidence took a place above the negative.

Referring to the value of the stock, Mr. Hall said that Mr. Goodwill knew that the Auburn Company's surplus was $2.50 for every dollar of stock, and that its profits for three months were $50,000. Wasn't it natural to expect that Mr. Goodwill would have called Mr. Davidson's attention to the assets of the company.

His Lordship—A director is under no legal obligation to protect a shareholder in the sale of his stock. Suppose Mr. Goodwill had advised him not to sell his stock, mightn't it have been possible that he could have been charged that he had unnecessarily interfered in a question with which he had nothing to do. There was no professional relationship between Mr. Goodwill and Mr. Davidson before that. The sale had been discussed by the shareholders for some time.

Mr. Hall directed his argument to Mr. Davidson's evidence that he had asked Mr. Goodwill: "What would you advise me to do?" and that the reply, "Take the cash," constituted legal advice.

His Lordship—Wouldn't that put every solicitor in an extraordinary position if it was to be assumed from casual questions that they were under legal obligation? Explain how it was that when Mr. Davidson came to sign the documents Mr. Goodwill had prepared to be forwarded to Ferguson, and Ormsby. Mr. Davidson had them witnessed in Mr. F. H. D'Hall's office.

Mr. Hall—That is explained by the fact that Mr. Davidson had his stock certificates in Mr. Hall's vault.

His Lordship—But the proxy and option were not taken out of Mr. Davidson's box.

To Mr. Hall's reference to the refusal of Account Mr. Goodwill had given the plaintiff, His Lordship noted that it was because Miss Davidson had pressed them.

Following up this point that Mr. Goodwill did not refuse to make out the bill, Mr. Hall said he could have written a letter to Mr. Davidson, assuring him he had no indebtedness if there was none.

His Lordship—He did a very foolish thing because it helped create a piece of evidence.

Mr. Hall—Take Mr. Goodwill's conduct when Mr. Widdifield wrote him. He didn't reply that he was never solicitor for Mr. Davidson. He doesn't assume to tell Mr. Widdifield that.

His Lordship—When a man is threatened with a law suit he hasn't to reply. It has no weight against him.

MR. JUSTICE ORDE ENJOYED HIS VISIT

Upon the conclusion of the Assizes yesterday evening, Mr. Justice Orde thanked Sheriff Hall, Mr. Sherre and the other officials for the courtesy and kindness that had been extended to him during his stay in Peterborough this week. "I wish to express my appreciation of the kindness shown to one who is a newcomer in this court. I have enjoyed my visit of the last three or four days very much indeed."

PREPARING TO TRY ACCUSED

ALLIE WILL NOT CONSIDER OFFER OF FORMER CROWN PRINCE OF GERMANY.

(United Press.)

PARIS, Feb. 21.— The Allies have decided not to respond to the offer of the former German Crown Prince to surrender for trial before an Allied tribunal on charges of war crimes, it was learned to-day. The Prince's offer made it a provision that charges against other accused Germans should be dropped. It was submitted recently by cable to the heads of the principal Allied and Associated Powers. It also was learned that the recently created Allied Commission of Justiaries have been collecting documentary evidence to submit to the German tribunal at Lipsig, which is to try the accused Teutons as named in the lists submitted by the Allies. Provisions for the trial in a German court was made in the latest Allied note on war guilty to the German government. The Allies reserved the right to press their charges further if not satisfied with the investigations and decision of the German court.

Special to Examiner.

TORONTO, Feb. 21. — Eggs again sold for $1.00 a dozen, at the St. Lawrence market to-day. Chickens were 40c to 45c; turkeys 60c; geese, 35c, and porterhouse steak, 30c a lb.

COMMENT ON THE STOCK MARKET

(Canadian Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Rallies of substantial proportions attended an active week in the securities market. Rails leading the list out of its acute depression of the preceding fortnight. The advance in Transportations, which ranged from two to eight points in better known issues and even more in others of speculative character was popularly ascribed to approaching termination of government control and satisfaction at the probable outcome of Federal legislation.

Various features of proposed Congressional Bill are meeting with disapproval from railway executives and bankers. In essence, however, the measure is regarded by association of owners of railroad securities as a most satisfatcory programme of business legislation ever devised by a lawmaking body.

Elsewhere in the stock lists there was evidence that the market had weathered the recent way of liquidation. This was seen in the sharp rebound of high class industrials notably Oils, Motors, Steels and Equipments also in recovery of affiliated specialties.

Quite as important in their relation to improvement were the better tone shown by foreign exchange and relaxation of monetary accommodations. Remittances on London made an extreme rise of almost thirty cents in the pound, and call money was freely supplied at six per cent. Encouragement was offered also by additional easing of commodity prices, especially in grain, provisions and leathers and textiles, although it was realized that this reaction resulted from curtailment of exports.

PROVIDING SUFFICIENT SALARIES

ROYAL COMMISSION RECOMMENDS LARGER SALARIES FOR SCHOOL TEACHERS.

THE REPORT

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, Man. Feb. 21. —How can enough competent school teachers be obtained and retained, to assure the rising generation and the generations that are to come an education commensurate with the enlightenment and demands of the times. An answer to this question, a problem uppermost in the minds of educationalists and parents throughout Canada, has been evolved by a Royal Commission, appointed a year ago by the Manitoba Government. The answer contained in the report of this commission just submitted to the Legislature is "Salary—Pay enough to attract to the teaching profession and to keep in it men and women who are intelligent and competent, pay enough to keep up a steady flow of new blood into the profession to replace those who die, or who marry, or who drop out for any other reason." An adequate salary in this province, the Commission suggests, is a minimum of $1,050 for teachers holding second class, and those with 3rd class $950

Permanent Board.

The report states the task of solving the problem can be accomplished only by degrees. It suggests the appointment of a permanent board composed of representatives of the school trustees and teachers, with a disinterested person to act as chairman. This board, it recommends, should be empowered to make orders relative to the standards of minimum wages for teachers, to determine what are reasonable increases, and to investigate all cases of disagreement between teachers and trustees. The report concludes with the statement that the placing of the profession on a proper footing is a matter of great difficulty and can be done only step by step and tentatively by a permanent body closely in touch with the situation with power to adjust as circumstances warrant.

LEGISLATION WILL INTEREST FARMERS

New Act Covers Sale of Farm Implements—Protection For Both.

Special to the Examiner:

WINNIPEG, Feb. 20.—Legislation of interest to implement manufacturers in Western Ontario is now before the Manitoba Legislature. One section of the amendment to the Farm Implements Act gives the purchaser the right to return and recover his money, together with interest, on a machine or implement which sold as new, is found to contain any part or parts of second-hand, used or rebuilt character. The second amendment affords similar privilege to the purchaser of a machine or implement which turns out to be less effective than the agent or manufacturer verbally, or by printed advertising, in advertising in newspaper, pamphlet or other publication, maintained it to be prior to sale re clause, makes it unnecessary that the buyer of machine shall have seen or acted upon such advertisements. The fact that they have been published and that the machine does not live up to them is held sufficient to warrant the return of the purchase price.

TERRIBLE SUFFERING IN VIENNA

A CROWN IS WORTH LESS THAN HALF A CENT --WOMEN AND CHILDREN SUFFER.

FOOD FOR MONTH

Canadian Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Cable message to American relief administration of the European Childrens' Fund from a representative of the organization in Vienna tells of conditions of financial chaos and extreme want and suffering rampant there.

A crown is worth less than half a cent the message stated. There is no coal and street cars have stopped running.

"People badly clad walk miles to work. Vienna is a picture of desolute helpless misery. Last fall 225,000 was a fair estimate of the number of under-nourished children, but to-day we believe three hundred thousand would be more correct. We are informed that the city has sufficient foodstuffs to last only one month, even at present starvation rations.

If you could see endless lines of people, including even old women and little chillren, trudging into Vienna through slush and snow, bent under huge loads strapped to their backs, if you could see pinched, sallow faces in kitchens, you would wonder how human endurance could stand up under such strain."

ANOTHER LEVEL CROSSING DEATH

(Special to The Examiner.)

STRATFORD, Feb. 21 —Struck by a G.T.R. train from Sarnia at Erie street level crossing this morning, Mrs. J. Boyce, of Downie, was instantly killed, and her husband seriously injured. They were driving to the city and were hit while crossing the track. Adam Stevenson, a local G.T.R. fireman, who was injured in a wreck at Ridgeway on Monday, died in the Buffalo hospital this morning.

Concludes Series Five Interesting Addresses on Law

JUDGE HUYCKE GAVE INTERESTING LECTURE ON MUNICIPAL IMSTITUTIONS---THE CREATION OF MUNICIPALITIES.

STORMY PERIODS

Last evening His Honour Judge Huycke concluded the series of five lectures on "Law" which he has given in the Y.W.C.A., with an interesting adress on "Municipal Institutions."

Municipal institutions, he said, are a creation of modern days, and were originated for the purpose of self-protection and mutual benefit. Persons gathering together in a locality realised that they would do better by co-ordinating, and that by standing together, better police protection, school accommodation, etc., could be obtained by working together.

Ontario municipalities have a rather peculiar history in the fact that they may trace their direct origin to New York through the influence of the U. E. Loyalists, who came mostly from New York. Our municipalities commenced when, shortly after the capitulation of Quebec, Lord Dorchester divided the country into four municipalities — Lunberg, Mecklenberg, Nassau, and Hesse—the origin of the names having been the Hessian soldiers who fought during the preceding war. These divisions were made for judicial purposes. The centres where courts were held—Kingston, His Honour said, the irony of Fate, those for the first section being Cornwall and Johnston, for the second Kingston and Adolphustown, for the third Nevak, and for the last, strangest of all, Detroit, then a part of the Province. This was the early history of municipal institutions. Presently the names of the divisions changed to Eastern, Midland, Home, and Western. As time went on, the districts became large and cumbersome, and were later divided into counties and different centres for justice and local affairs.

Cause of Unrest.

The manner in which the administration of this district and counties was carried on forms an interesting chapter, and is one of the reasons of the unrest Lord Durham was sent out to rectify.

The counties were governed by a Court of Quarterly Sessions, established not only for justice but for the administration of public affairs. The officers, Government appointees, were mostly dignitaries wholly untted to suit the needs and require-

Many houses and business firms were searched and a large number of young men were arrested. Armoured cars and tanks were used by the military. SPECIAL MUSIC TO-NIGHT.

To-night "The Harmony Five" will render an especially good programme although still handicapped through some of the members being ill.

The organisation feels that this evening's programme will make up for their inability to play a week ago.

A fine catchy number, "In and Out," which is at present one of New York's one-step crazes, opens the concert. "Chu-Chu-San" and "Ruffles," two of Sam Fox's hits, are included. "It's the Smart Little Feller That's Stocked Up His Cellar That's Getting the Beautiful Girls," one of Leo Feist's Prohibition song hits, is a snappy number, with plenty of comedy, and will be sure to please.

For those who like Grand Opera, the special "Operatic Sensation" is being programmed, and include "Lucia," "Faust," "Zampa," "Il Trovatore," "William Tell," and "The Bohemian Girl."

Programme:

1—"In and Out."
2—"Alabama Lullaby."
3—"Chu-Chu-San."
4—"Oh, What a Pal Was Mary."
5—Extra

Intermission.

1—"Smart Little Feller."
2—"Miracle Man."
3—Grand Opera Selection.
4—"Fluff Ruffles."
5—Extra.

Annual Meeting of the Peterboro Automobile Association Was Held Last Evening and a New Board of Officers Elected For Ensuing Year

At the annual meeting of the Peterboro Automobile Association in the Board of Trade Rooms, last evening it was decided to endeavour to get the Hon. H. F. Biggs, Minister of Highways, to come to the city and meet a deputation of citizens with regard to the taking over of the road from Port Hope to the Kawartha Lakes through Peterboro, as a provincial highway.

At the Ontario Motor League dinner in Toronto the Minister in enunciating the policy of the government with regard to good roads stated that in addition to the main artery from Windsor to Montreal lines would be built to every large city as well as one to the Muskoka Lakes. The local Automoblie Association believes that this vicinity has as much claim on the government for a road as the Muskoka Lake district and have already done considerable work in this respect to the extent of having resolutions passed by the City Council and the township councils as far as the Kingston Highway.

An Appointment Suggested.

The Secretary, Mr. H. O. Fiske, read a letter from the Secretary of the Ontario Motor League suggesting that the local Association make an appointment with the Minister of Highways regarding the Kawartha Lakes road as soon as possible as the road work for the next five years is now being planned and offering to give assistance.

The Officers For 1920.

The following officers for the year were elected:—Hon. President—R. H. Turner; President—C. R. Banks; Vice-President—R. B. Rogers; Secretary-Treasurer—H. O. Fiske.

Directors—E. W. Borbridge, R. Dobie, J. E. A. Fitzgerald, M. Burnham, A. Brown, W. R. Breyfogle.

Resolution of Condolence

A resolution of condolence to Mrs. A. E. Bookhout was adopted and the secretary was instructed to communicate it to her. Mrs. Bookhout is the wife of the late Alden Ferris Bookhout, who was a member of the Association.

FEW CHANGES IN STOCK MARKET

DEMAND STERLING OPENED WEAK TO-DAY— PRICES IRREGULAR.

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 21—The Stock Market opened irregular to-day, but with only fractional variations in prices. General Motors was the only important issue which moved more than a point from its previous close, opening at 251 1-2 up 1-4. U. S. Steel opened at 98 3-4 off 3-8, U. S. Rubber 101 7-8 unchanged, Sinclair 40 1-2 up 1-4. Central Leather 80 1-4 up 1-4. Baldwin 112 1-2 off 3-8. American Locomotive 94 up 1-2. Reading 75 3-4 unchanged. Bethlehem B. 88 1-4 off 1-2. American Woollen at 128 3-4 up 1-2. Republic 101 3-4 off 1-8. Marine Pref. 84 1-4 off 1-4.

DEMAND STERLING.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Demand sterling, which failed to sustain a rally yesterday, opened weak to-day, declining 2 3-4 cents to $3.41 3-4.

It costs $3,775,750 a week to maintain the British forces on duty in Ottoman territory.

THE GOLD STREAM

United Press:

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—The flow of American capital into Canada, according to A. E. Ames, of the Canadian investment house of that name, is reaching unprecedented proportions, "largely as the result of the exchange situation," said Mr. Ames to-day, "and doubtless in recognition of the underlying strength of Canadian economic conditions. Investment in new issues of Canadian securities during the last eight weeks alone approximated $40,000,000. The same elements, coupled with the existence of the preferential tariff with the British Empire, find expression in the fact that some $125,000,000 have been invested during the past year by American companies in the establishment of new industries and branch plants in the Dominion. However, concomitant with this situation which has grown out of conditions that have now placed Canadian exchange in the United States at a discount of about 17 per cent. is the expectation of the return of exchange to normal levels, and those figures suggest gratifying opportunities for United States business men and investors in the ultimate solution of the problem.

COBOURG TEAM IN CITY TO-DAY

WILL MEET THE Y.M.C.A. BASKETBALL PLAYERS

This afternoon the Cobourg Collegiate Institute basketball team will play the Y.M.C.A. team in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium. A Cobourg girls' team will also meet the local Collegiate Institute girls' team.

Two fast games should result, though the local girls are handicapped by the illness of several of their players.

MAY AGAIN RESUME DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS.

(Canadian Press.)

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 21.—Persistent reports that diplomatic relations between Mexico and Great Britain were about to be resumed, were partially confirmed yesterday when it was learned from semi-official sources that Robert Leech, the British Minister to Cuba, is to be sent to this city.

General Candido Aguilar it is said will go to Britain as soon as formalities are completed.

APPLICATION TO PARLIAMENT

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that application will be made by the Corporation of the City of Peterborough to the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario at the next session thereof for an act to confirm and declare legal, valid and binding upon the said Corporation and the rate payers thereof, a by-law number 2200, authorizing the purchase by the said Corporation of the City of Peterborough of a certain manufacturing property in the said City and the leasing of such property to Nashua Gummed & Coated Paper Company; and also fixing the assessment of the said Company in respect of the said property and the machinery and plant thereon, and the business assessment in respect thereto at $10,000, for the purpose of municipal taxation, excepting school taxes and local improvements, for the maximum period of ten years from the date of delivery of possession under lease of the said property.

The application also asks that the said act declare valid and binding as aforesaid the debentures to be issued under the said by-law, the total amount of the said debentures to be issued being for the sum of $57,000.00 in respect of the purchase money of the said manufacturing property and certain repairs to be made to the buildings thereof, all of which debentures are to be made payable within twenty years at the furthest from the date on which the said debentures are to be issued, and the amount to be raised annually to provide for the sinking fund and the interest of the said debt is $3,049.16.

It is further notified that the amount of the existing debenture debt of the said Corporation of the City of Peterborough is the sum of $2,120,062.04 the particulars of which are as follows:—

Waterworks	623,200.00
Hydro-Electric	220,000.00
Total	$2,120,062.04

and the reason for requiring the issue of the said debentures is to raise the necessary money on the credit of the said Corporation for the purposes set out in the said by-law.

Take Your Time, Don't Hurry!

There is no need for so much rushing on baking days, hurrying to get your cakes in the oven—such exhausting exertion adds baking to the list of household drudgeries.

You can take your time yet do more with

EGG-O Baking Powder

than with other brands because the leavening action of Egg-O only ceases when your cakes are properly baked—No matter if you do have to wait several hours for your oven.

And don't worry if your oven does cool off. Egg-O will leaven your baking with less heat than most other brands.

And above all, don't worry about fallen cakes, follow the directions on the label. You will use less Baking Powder, and have better baking.

AMERICAN CITIZENS PAY INCOME TAX.

TORONTO, Feb. 21.—American citizens resident in Ontario must pay income tax to the American Government on the American scale, but are permitted to deduct the amount of income tax which they pay to the Canadian Government. This statement was made here by H. B. Eddy, of the Internal Revenue Department of the U. S. Government, who has established an office in this city to assist the American to make complete returns of their annual incomes.

Mr. Eddy expressed the opinion that there were several thousand Americans who in this way would pay income tax to both Governments, and that a further reduction on the American side of 4 per cent. on incomes of $5,000 and under may soon be effected.

BOARD OF WORKS ESTIMATES FOR 1920 AMOUNT TO $46,850

INCREASE OF $6,590 OVER LAST YEAR'S, BUT ONLY SLIGHTLY EXCEED THE EXPENDITURE---BOARD IN FAVOUR OF APPORTIONING AUTO FEES TO MUNICIPALITIES.

BUSINESS DONE QUICKLY

The Board of Works estimates approved last night and recommended to the Council amount to $46,850, an increase of $6,590 over last year, but only a trifle more than $1,000 in excess of the actual sum expended.

Ald. H. Phelan was in the chair with the following members present: Mayor McIntyre, Ald. J. Hamilton, Ald. R. V. Copping and Ald. R. Morrison.

Canopy For Picture House.

A letter was read from Mr. Schneider requesting permission to erect a canopy in front of his new theatre at 139 Hunter street. It was moved by Ald. Hamilton, seconded by the Mayor, that Mr. Schneider be given this permission subject to the approval of the city engineer.

A letter from the London City Council regarding the readjustment of the motor licenses so that in cities where large sums are paid in fees some portion of this or some grant from such monies should be made to the cities by the government for the upkeep of city roads. This resolution from London brought up much discussion on the point. Ald. Hamilton was strongly in favor of it. "There are 500 cars in Peterborough tearing up our good roads," he said.

One of the members explained, however, that if this was in force big centres like Toronto, where the biggest part of motor fees are paid, would benefit greatly, but the poorer sections would be hard hit. The chairman said it was Peterborough's and the county's own fault if the roads were poor, for she wouldn't join in the good roads scheme.

After the members had all given their view it seemed that the Board was in favor of it, so it was moved by Ald. Hamilton, seconded by Ald. Copping, and the motion carried unanimously, that this Council was strongly in favor that in cities where large amounts are paid in motor licenses that the municipality where such fees are paid in should receive some benefit and that some portion of the fees or some grant from the government should be given out of these fees to the municipality in which the cars are owned, to assist in the maintenance of the roads in the city as well as in the country and that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Minister of Highways and to T. Tooms, M.L.A.

The chairman announced that in compliance with a resolution that went through last year's Council he was given permission to dispose of one of the horses owned by the Board and he had received $115 for the horse. His action was highly commended by the members and it was moved and carried that it be replaced by another one and that it be paid for on the approval of the Mayor and chairman of the Board.

The only stand-by that is always open for discussion—the Downie street creek—was raked over the coals again last night. Ald. Phelan held that the people who lived around the creek and every year had to go through the regular spring washout, should be safeguarded. The old question of being prevented from doing anything because of the private owners came up again last night and finally it was moved and carried that the clerk be instructed to serve notice on D. W. Dimble requiring him to remove all obstructions from the creek which flows through his property and to maintain it and keep it clear from all obstructions of every nature, as required by by-law number 2199 of the City of Peterborough.

The important work of the evening was reached when the appropriations for the year were read. The following are the appropriations for 1920, comparative figures being given for last year:

The different items were each dwelt on separately and the increases explained by the chairman and much comment was forthcoming. On the first item no allowance was made for an increase in wages to the men, so that the City Engineer recommended 10 p.c. be added to it. On the pavemen repairs the City Engineer claimed the guarantee on them had run out and they would have to look after it themselves.

The increased cost of flagging railway crossings somewhat surprised the members but the chairman explained how the wages had gone up and the extra shift put on greatly increased the necessary appropriation. It was explained that the matter should be taken up with the Railway Board to see if the city could not be let down a little on the amount she pays. It seems that the city has been forced by the Board to pay their share and there was no way out. A motion was brought in by Ald. Copping and seconded by Ald. Morrison that the chairman and the Mayor be instructed to apply to the Board of Railway Commissioners of Canada to have the charge against the city for the maintenance and protection at railway crossings be removed or reduced and to take such action for this purpose as they deem necessary. This motion carried unanimously.

According to the schedule the Board of Works horses will have to subsist on a lighter diet this year than last as their appropriation has been cut from $1200 to $1000.

The chairman explained that there was still some money owed them by North Monaghan and the City Clerk suggest that they wait on the North Monaghan Council at their next session. The suggestion will be acted on.

It was moved, seconded and carried that the estimates be approved and referred to the committee of the Whole Council, which meets next Wednesday night.

On the suggestion of Mr. R. H. Parson, the City Treasurer was authorized to issue a cheque to buy two new licenses for the two cars, and it was also moved and carried that the Board of Works motor truck be painted. Mr. Evans urged the necessity of the latter motion.

"Starting in to spend the Board's money already," one of the members remarked.

Next Friday a deputation from the County Council and City Council wait on the Minister of Canals and Public Highways at Ottawa, so this matter was brought in to see who could go.

Ald. Copping, Ald. Crowe and the Mayor volunteered, but what others will represent the city is still a mystery.

The meeting adjourned just at 10 o'clock.

Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Some time ago I noticed in your paper that the Militia Department intended forming again all the batteries that saw service in France, and that Peterborough was to be the headquarters of the Fourth Battery.

I am sure there are many ex-artillerymen who would be pleased if something was started towards forming a battery, and I trust this will interest some person, who will get things going.—Sincerely yours, Recommends Internal Bathing for Piles and Constipation.

If people who suffer from constipation, piles and the many ills resulting from accumulated waste in the intestines would realize what the J.B.L. Cascade is doing for thousands of people who are being daily restored to perfect health by its use, there would be a J.B.L. Cascade in every Canadian home.

Mr. E. Nighswander, of Green River, Ont., writes: "I purchased a J.B.L. Cascade from you about ten months ago and consider it the best money I ever invested. For years I have been troubled with constipation, ulcers in the bowels and piles, which all the money I spent on medicines and doctors only relieved temporarily. My J.B.L. Cascade has completely cured these troubles, and I feel it a duty I owe to my fellow-men to endorse the Cascade in the very highest terms. No amount of money could estimate the value it has been to me. No home should be without one.

The J.B.L. Cascade is the only perfected invention for internal bathing. Keeps the system sweet and clean, cures constipation, headaches, rheumatism, and keeps you fit at all times. It is shown and explained by Warne Drug Co.

MR. F. J. A. MORRIS ADDRESSED HIGH SCHOOL CLUB

Mr. F. J. A. Morris, M.A., of the Collegiate Institute staff, was the speaker at the High School Club of the Y.M.C.A. last evening. His reminiscences and intimate anecdotes of the men of his class who have since attained renown proved especially interesting.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Morris, and Mr. G. H. Roper spoke briefly upon the pleasure it gave the Y.M.C.A. staff to have one of the Collegiate staff at a guest, as the Y.M.C.A. was eager to promote relations between the "Y" and the Collegiate.

SALTS IN HOT WATER CLEARS PIMPLY SKIN

Says We Must Make Kidneys Clean the Blood and Pimples Disappear.

Pimples, sores and boils usually result from toxins, poisons and impurities which are generated in the bowels and then absorbed into the blood through the very ducts which should absorb only nourishment to sustain the body.

It is the function of the kidneys to filter impurities from the blood and cast them out in the form of urine, but in many instances the bowels create more toxins and impurities than the kidneys can eliminate, then the blood uses the skin pores as the next best means of getting rid of these impurities which often break out all over the skin in the form of pimples.

The surest way to clear the skin of these eruptions, says a noted authority, is to get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of hot water each morning before breakfast for one week. This will prevent the formation of toxins in the bowels. It also stimulates the kidneys to normal activity, thus coaxing them to filter the blood of impurities and clearing the skin of pimples.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent drink which usually makes pimples disappear; cleanses the blood and is excellent for the kidneys as well.

WHEN ALL ADVERTISERS demand their money's worth, all publications will provide circulation reports verified by the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

It is one of the mysteries of the advertising world that while all manufacturers demand verification of weight and quality in the material purchased, some of them still buy advertising space without knowing what they are paying for.

Such advertisers, however, are now exceptional. Most of them demand verified A. B. C. circulation statements before placing contracts.

In the case of the EXAMINER the demand is immediately met. The EXAMINER is a member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

PATRONAGE AGAIN.

Patronage is hard to down—especially so long as there are politicians of the type of Sir Sam Hughes around. The ex-Minister of Militia is not satisfied with the present method of making appointments through the Civil Service Commission, and wants the old system restored by which the recommendation of members of Parliament is all that is needed in the filling of positions.

Sir Sam has a motion ready for the coming session of the House to declare that the members shall be consulted in the making of all appointments or other local matters in their constituencies. There will undoubtedly be an interesting discussion on the subject, and the principle involved in the member for Victoria and Haliburton's motion will receive a measure of support from the member for West Peterborough and a few other members.

In the whole, however, members of Parliament are glad to have the responsibility of making appointments in their constituencies off their hands, even if it means that they have less with which to reward the faithful.

MOTHERS' PENSIONS.

The long expected provincial system of mothers' pensions promises soon to be a reality. The details of the plan have been announced in a report made by Dr. W. A. Riddell, Deputy Minister of Labor, and his recommendations will undoubtedly be accepted by the Drury government and made effective during the coming session of the Legislature. The system recognizes the necessity of widows with children being given an opportunity to raise their families according to proper standards and of subsidizing the home in cases where this may be deemed necessary. The report indicates that there are 16,048 widows in Ontario, of which 3,210 are in need of financial assistance and would be included in the system of mothers' pensions. The grants that are to be made are not to be considered as having the slightest taint of charity. They are simply the concrete evidence of the appreciation by the State of the fact that children are a most valuable asset to the community and that every opportunity must be given to mothers to give their families a proper training, unhampered by the necessity of having to go to work to earn enough money to maintain themselves and their children.

A DRASTIC STEP.

The action of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment in summarily cancelling the vocational training courses of a large number of veterans because while drawing vocational training pay they have applied for and received grants from the Federal emergency appropriation, is a drastic step which will cause much distress among many returned men.

The Department justifies its course by pointing out that very clear instructions were posted up where the veterans aplying for assistance could read them, and that men who were taking vocational training must have known that in representing themselves as being without employment and without funds in order to obtain assistance from the Emergency Fund that they were defrauding the Government. But it is doubtful, in spite of this contention of the Department, whether on the part of many of the men involved in the latest ruling, there was any intention of securing money under false pretences. In some cases the men may have been misled by the knowledge that veterans who had been recommended for vocational training and had not begun their courses were receiving assistance from the emergency appropriation, into believing that any soldier taking vocational training was entitled to such grants.

At all events, a blanket cutting off of vocational training courses seems a harsh way of dealing with the situation.

Immigrant Customs Ruling.

Public attention has been drawn by R. B. Angus, of Montreal, president of the Sun Life Assurance company, to the fact that the customs department at Ottawa has been systematically discriminating against British trade with Canada and in favor of American trade with Canada. The discrimination is exercised through the ruling of the department in regard to the method of valuating imported goods. The ruling is that in the valuating of goods no account to be taken of the difference in exchange values between American and British currencies and Canadian currency. The valuation of imports is based on Canadian currency value and duties are levied accordingly. As American currency is at a high premium in Canada and British currency is at a discount, the result is that the duties charged on American imports are proportionately much lower than those on British imports. The preference in favor of British goods is wiped out, and an incentive is offered to Canadian importers to buy in the States instead of in Britain despite the adverse rate of American exchange. While Canadians are urged to curtail purchases in the States, the customs department at Ottawa is facilitating such trade and discouraging trade with Britain.

The Toronto Globe to-day says that this discrimination is not only unwise but is illegal also, and quotes section 59 of the Customs act in support of its contention. The section authorizes the governor-in-council to fix the rate at which the value, for purposes of duty, of foreign currencies shall be computed, subject to this restriction:

> The rate so ordered shall be based upon the actual value of the standard coins or currency of such country as compared with the standard dollars of Canada, in so far as such comparative values are known.

The customs department, for purposes of duty, continues to value the British pound as its pre-war value of $4.86 and the American dollar at 100 cents, ignoring the fact that the value of the first in Canada is much lower than its pre-war value and the fact that the value of the American dollar in Canada is now about $1.15. In other words, the department appears to have ignored section 59 of the customs act.

It is a question whether Canadian importers who have paid duties on goods imported from Britain have not good ground for claims against the government for restitution of excess duty paid. But if they have such a claim, the department ought to have a claim against importers of American goods who have been charged too little.—Hamilton Herald.

IMMIGRATION AND THE SALVATION ARMY.

In the matter of migration and colonisation within the Empire, it is only reasonable to think that the Government should profit by the experience in organisation, which the War provided, declares Commissioner Lamb of the Salvation Army. The scheme set up by the Government in Canada for the regulation of emigration, in conjunction with the Women's Councils for the control and protection of the women brought into the country is excellent in principle, but in detail, as far as my experience of emigration goes—and that is not of yesterday—it leaves something to be desired.

It is generally admitted that in the past the voluntary agencies in the Old Land—the Salvation Army, the Church Emigration Society, the Self-Help Society, the East-End Emigration Society, and others, did good work, and assisted materially in building up Canada and adding to its prosperity by furnishing the Dominion with tens of thousands of industrious citizens of the old stock, and in doing so learned lessons which can only be gained by long practical experience in carrying out such work. And as a sympathetic critic of the Government's plan, I would say that this experience of the voluntary societies should not be ignored.

It will be a long time before any new organisation, no matter how gifted its members may be, or how well intentioned, can fully understand and grapple with the multifarious problems which the transferring of thousands of people from the land of their birth to a new country entail. This is work which can hardly be standardised. In ordinary state social problems it is possible to legislate for the mass, and to govern by general rules, but in migration something more is required. Families are being uprooted from their native soil, so to speak, and the endeavour has to be made to transplant them in new soil in a fresh atmosphere, which not only should not hinder their natural growth, but in the result should show a greater increase in health and prosperity than would have been possible in their old surroundings. Each family presents its own particular problems, and it is in dealing with these separately that the phenomenal success of the Salvation Army has been achieved.

It is not in the escorting of parties of men and women and children from the Old World to the New that the chief merit of organised migration is contained—although this is very necessary and appeals to the popular imagination—but in the careful methodical sifting that goes on from among the thousands who desire to make a change of their habitat before a party can be organised for sailing.

The Salvation Army is not anxious to send overseas every person who wants to go. All along, its policy has been one of strict selection. It has assumed responsibility only for such as could conform to its standards of suitability—and those have always been in advance of the Government requirements—which had been fixed by its experience of the needs of new settlers, and the requirements of the State or district to which they intended to proceed.

The Army has had remarkable success in migrating women, and out of these thousands it has brought across for household service — somewhere about 15,000—less than half of one per cent. has not turned out right. Many of these girls are now partners in happy Canadian homes and the mothers of sturdy Canadian children on whom the future prosperity of the Dominion depends.

Solicitors' Relationship.

Following up Mr. Hall's argument as to the relationship between the two parties, His Lordship said: "What is necessary to constitute a relationship between solicitor and client? You must base the relationship in this case from the time when Mr. Davidson asked him for his advice. You must establish it from that moment. Is that sufficient? In answering a question is assuming a duty, one walks in danger every day."

His Lordship presented an analogy, in which one man asks another for advice about a house he is going to sell, and the latter either neglects to make a valuation or fails to make a proper one. Would he be in any way liable?

Mr. Hall said that was an extreme case.

His Lordship—Extreme cases are often a test of a theory. Mr. Goodwill's advice on the value of the Auburn stock might have been worthless. It doesn't occur to me to come within his duties as a solicitor. As a director, there was no obligation to offer any.

Mr. Hall stated that defendant's breach of duty consisted in his knowledge at the time Mr. Davidson was approached that the company's financial statement showed that the assets were worth two for one of the stock.

His Lordship—It all comes back to the question whether Mr. Goodwill was under any legal obligation to Mr. Davidson.

Mr. Hall—Mr. Meldrum told Mr. Goodwill the property was worth two for one. Mr. Goodwill did not tell Mr. Davidson. Mr. Meldrum refused to take the price.

His Lordship—What do you suggest the damages ought to be?

Mr. Hall—I think the price Mr. Meldrum obtained, two for one, is a reasonable amount.

His Lordship—Mr. Davidson might have been better off not to have sold.

This led to a discussion on the value of the stock. In conclusion, Mr. Hall estimated the damages suffered by Mr. Davidson at $2,000.

Mr. Strickland.

Mr. J. F. Strickland, counsel with Mr. V. J. McElderry, for the defendant, said that there were three questions to be considered: Was there a relationship between Mr. Goodwill and Mr. Davidson? If so, was there negligence? What damages did the client suffer? Mr. E. H. D. Hall said he advised Mr. Davidson that he should take cash.

"It seems to me," said Mr. Strickland, "to be plain that Mr. Davidson has mixed that occasion with the evening Mr. Ormsby and Mr. Goodwill were there. I put forward that the conversation Mr. Davidson says took place with Mr. Goodwill never did take place. Mr. Ormsby is equally positive, and he is not interested in this action.

His Lordship—Mr. Ormsby is interested in upholding the integrity of his transaction with Mr. Davidson.

Mr. Strickland—Mr. Davidson says he consulted no one but Mr. Goodwill.

His Lordship—In view of his failing to recollect his interview with Mr. E. H. D. Hall, it seems possible he was mistaken. I have some concern about Miss Davidson's evidence, however. Miss Davidson is positive that she and Mr. Ormsby left the room together. Mr. Goodwill explained quite clearly and definitely that he left the room first to telephone to Mr. Meldrum's office. I don't think anyone is deliberately mis-stating what took place.

Mr. Strickland — If Mr. Goodwill was acting as solicitor for Mr. Davidson, wouldn't he have got the cheque from Ferguson and Ormsby. The cheque came to Mr. Crane of the Dominion Bank. It all comes back to the question whether there was a relationship between them, and, as far as I can see, no relationship of solicitor and client ever existed.

Mr. Strickland argued that there was no negligence on Mr. Goodwill's part. Mr. Davidson had experience in the Auburn Company. This was the first offer of sale he had received. There was no lower one.

His Lordship—And he knew Mrs. Kendry got $200.

Mr. Strickland—Mr. Ormsby bought 300 shares from Mr. Hayes at $90 a share. He paid $200 to Maurice and Company of Montreal because the wanted the goodwill of that company, who were big people in the textile world. Ferguson and Ormsby felt they were paying through the nose for Mr. Meldrum's stock. They paid that price, not because the stock was worth it, but because they didn't get an agreement with Mr. Meldrum. In regard to damages, Mr. Ormsby's evidence regarding the price of the Hayes' stock disposes of that completely.

Mr. McElderry.

"The relation of solicitor and client didn't exist prior to June 17th," Mr. McElderry stated. "Did anything occur on that date at Mr. Davidson's home that created the relationship of solicitor and client. I submit that nothing did take place there, because the relationship of solicitor and client is a contractual one. It includes the acquiescence of the solicitor to produce it. Nothing was done by Mr. Goodwill to fix that responsibility or relation on him.

"There was no negligence, because the value of the stock could be ascertained only by what was being paid then. The highest price was $200 to Mrs. Kendry, and that was known to Mr. Davidson. There could be no neglect to inform Mr. Davidson on that."

Mr. McElderry pointed out that there was a distinction between different kinds of advice. Assuming that Mr. Goodwill had been asked for advice, he was asked for an opinion that could not be readily obtained. If Mr. Goodwill had been asked to an opinion as to the value of the house and had neglected to value it, or had improperly valued it, he might possibly have been negligent because the value of the house was determinable. In regard to the company he would have to know the competence of the new manager, the policy of the Government in creating business taxes, to consider the possibility of the Government changing the tariff.

Mr. Davidson didn't take Mr. Goodwill's advice, Mr. McElderry continued. He discussed the sale with Mrs. Kendry and spoke to Mr. E. H. D. Hall.

"The onus is on the plaintiff to prove the case and to prove it fully."

Mr. Justice Orde's final comment referred to the manner in which the receipt was obtained from Mr. Goodwill.

SANDRA THE JEALOUS

EVERETT INVITES EDMONDS TO SUPPER

CHAPTER LIII.

"Have you quite finished?" Everett's voice was very calm, dangerously so.

"No, I haven't! I have been afraid to tell you things, but as long as no one knew how I felt, I tried to stand it. I didn't want Mother to know or I should have written her to come. But she didn't want me to marry you—said you were too old to understand a young girl like me. But I thought I knew more than she did. Now that Rose will go home and tell how cruel you are to me, I am not going to pretend any longer.'

"Pretend what?"

"Anything," I replied pettishly.

"You mean pretend to care for me when you do not?"

"No—I—didn't mean—that. I meant pretend to be contented and satisfied. If you were going to treat me like a child why didn't you adopt me instead of marrying me?" When I said that the tiniest bit of a smile played about his lips for just a moment—then he seemed all suddenly to look old and tired.

"Go and dress." He spoke exactly as if we had not been talking for half an hour. "I have tickets for a show—a musical comedy. Wear your sapphires, the white dress if you wish. We shall go to supper with some friends of mine after the theater. I rose at once and left the room. Had he bought tickets to make up for his brutality to me before Rose? That was what I called it in my thoughts—brutality.

I was nearly dressed when he came up.

"You look very nice," he said, then: "There seems to be something unfastened. Turn around. Yes, here it is —Hetty was very careless." He adjusted the hook, then bent down and pressed his lips on my bare shoulder.

"Don't blame Hetty," I replied as carelessly as I could, altho my voice trembled a little because of the unexpectedness of his caress. "I didn't call her. I dressed myself."

"No wonder one hook escaped you. I should have thought it impossible to do yourself up." Then: "Why didn't you call Hetty?"

"I didn't feel like speaking to her —or to anyone."

"Have her look you over after dinner. I should dislike very much to have you improperly fastened."

I went downstairs while he dressed I felt queer, uneasy. Why had he stopped talking to me so suddenly after my outburst. Would he ever forgive me? Then I thought of the kiss and felt a bit comforted.

"I'd love you dearly all the time Everett if you were nice to me," I said to myself. "I love you anyway —I can't help it." I did. I really think that I loved him in spite of everything. I was so terribly proud of him—always had been. Now one source of pride had been eliminated —that Rose should think him wonderful and envy me. But when he came down and sat opposite me at dinner, he looked so distinguished so handsome, that my poor little bruised heart beat faster with pride of ownership.

The play was delightful In spite of my emotional exhibit of the afternoon, I laughed heartily; Everett too often joining me! Contrary to his custom, he asked to be excused during intermission and remained out until after the curtain had gone up. He never had done so before. I was piqued. My jealous fears were aroused too. Whom had he gone out to see? Irma Barton, perhaps.

"I saw Mr. Edmonds in the audience, and I asked him to join us at supper" he told during the next wait, a short one.

"You—what?" I couldn't believe I had heard aright.

"I asked Mr. Edmonds to join us at supper. You aren't displeased I hope?"

"No— it will be very nice." I said demurely, my heart beating wildly both because of the act and because I should be with Barrett—able to talk with him.

"He is young and entertaining. These people I have to meet may not prove interesting to you."

"You are very thoughtful," I felt like saying "for once," but restrained myself. I had said enough —far more than I ever dreamed I should dare to. Too much probably. I felt sure Everett would make me suffer for it in the end—how much I would suffer I could not imagine.

Had I dreamed that Everett had invited Barrett purposely to watch me and see if I were interested in him, I should not have greeted him with such frank pleasure when he joined us in the lobby after the show.

To-morrow—Sandra Is Once More Disappointed.

HOLLAND OPENS GUNS AGAINST ZUYDER ZEE

GOVERNMENT HOPES TO RECLAIM CONSIDERABLE AREA.

AMSTERDAM—Holland's war against her traditional enemy—the sea—is on in earnest. Work has been begun on the huge dyke from the Zuyder Zee, making the latter a lake from which the water will later be pumped. The resulting reclaimed land will be at least 850 square miles.

An army of workmen are engaged on the enormous work, which, it is predicted, will last from 20 to 35 years. The pre-war estimate of the cost was $80,000,000 but it is now believed it cannot be accomplished for less than $125,000,000.

The Government authorized bond issues to raise funds for the work, expecting the revenue from reclaimed land to pay both principle and interest soon after the water has been drawn out and farms established in the old bed of the shallow Zuyder Zee.

The plans call for construction of huge concrete blocks to be laid on the bottom of the sea-arm the entire length of the dyke, from the island of Wieringen to Piaam, on the Frisian coast. The distance is about 20 miles. On this concrete foundation will be piled rock clay, sand and concrete until the dyke is built from seven to ten feet above sea level. It is planned to lay a double-track railroad along the top of the dyke to be used in later construction and finally for traffic from northeast to southwest Holland.

In the meantime similar but smaller dykes will have been constructed through the lake, dividing it into five sections. The water will then be pumped out of each section, the ground allowed to dry and then it will be cut up into farms enough to support a population of 300,000. The reclaimed territory will comprise a new and separate province of the Netherlands.

The picturesque little island of Marken, long known and loved by tourists, will appear as a hill in the flat country that will be left when the water has been driven away. The little villages of fishermen will disappear as such and the inhabitants will either have to enter other trades or move their shanties to another sea.

At peace with men for generations, Holland has been fighting the sea ceaselessly with varying fortunes. Since 1848 the present plans has been under discussion. Dozens of schemes have been proposed since that time and book after book has been printed, filled with data pro and con. The Dutch Parliament passed the bill authorizing the undertaking of the vast work in 1918.

Several times the country has been overwhelmed by the treacherous enemy. In 1421 the sea swept over the dykes and submerged parts of South Holland, formerly one of the richest in the kingdom and to this day the land there has not been reclaimed.

BIG KOOTENAY INDIAN BALL.

OLD DANCES REVIVED WITH OLDEN SPLENDOUR.

(Canadian Press.)

GOLDEN, B.C., Feb. 21.—The old social glories of the Kootenay Indian tribe were revived at a great ball held on the Indian Reservation near Athalmer, at the residence of Lame Joe.

The ballroom was gay with decorations of furs, deer skins, calico bunting, and long lines of deer meat stretching from one end of the room to the other.

Big Louie, the Chief, opened the ball by a lengthy discourse, in which he reminded his hearers of the splendours of old days, and referred touchingly to the humble place which the tribe now occupies compared with its olu-time supremacy in British Columbia. These sad reflections, however, were quickly dispelled by the opening strains of the dance music, which announced the duck dance, led by Moustache Joe and his wife.

Mme. Joe achieved a telling simplicity by her costume, which was a yellow and green kimono. Mrs Lame Joe, now in the whirl of her honeymoon, wore a yellow Mother Hubbard and goatskin moccasins, trimmed with skunk fur. Her hair was becomingly coiffed with eagle plumes, grizzly bear teeth and tails of the white-tailed deer. Other guests were similarly costumed, furs and feathers forming the principal ornaments.

A pleasant interruption to the dance was the supper served at midnight on a saddle blanket spread on the ballroom floor.

The British Government has made it quite clear that they would not support a Polish offensive against the Bolsheviki.

FOUR WAYS IN WHICH FAILURE TO WARN CUSTOMER HURTS STORE

PORTLAND, Ore.—Merchants who in these tense days sell anything but first-class merchandise without giving the customer due warning of what he is buying are simply "murdering" their own good will. This is the warning which the Better Business Bureau, of this city, recently issued to the retail trade. The bulletin puts the case this way:

"'Seconds' has kin, and the names of some are 'used,' 'second-hand,' 'rebuilt.' A short time back it was good form to advertise merchandise not of first quality and not state that it was 'seconds,' or call it by whatever name most appropriate.

"But nowadays to follow in the footsteps of our predecessors is not good form—in fact, it is dangerous, because:

"First. It is misleading advertising and consequently an offense against state law.

"Second. In some cities to do so violates a city ordinance.

"Third. The Federal Trade Commission, that new federal body with a punch, holds such a practice unfair competition and a violation of the federal law.

"Fourth. Of course we all agree that it is the finest little good will murderer ever devised. It is a good way to show a good sized profit on the first transaction and also a good way to show a diminishing if not an absent profit over a space of time.

"We are satisfied that our members and merchants generally understand all this, but we have been surprised at the carelessness of certain advertisers and we want to give them fair warning of the premises and the fact that we are going to enforce the law."

HYPTNOTISM APPLIED TO DANCING IS THE LATEST PARISIAN FAD

YOUNG GIRLS DANCE AT BALL WHO HAD NOT MASTERED THE SIMPLEST STEPS ON THEIR ARRIVAL AT THE AFFAIR.

PARIS, Feb. 20.—Hypnotism applied to dancing is the latest Parisian fad. It was launched here at a fashionable ball by Mrs. Caro Campbell and Senorita Umbra Luigind, two of the most beautiful leaders of fashionable society this season.

The intricacies of the tango and the complications of the fox-trot will no longer be unapproachable by the uninitiated, if the new "art" proves what its patronesses claim it to be. All that is needed, they say, is a few minutes of hypnotism practised upon a willing devotee—she must be willing, for otherwise the "influence" will not work. After that she will be able to perform the most difficult and daring dancing feats with perfect grace.

Those who attended last night's ball say the large fashionable crowd was held breathless by the marvelous performance of girls who had not mastered the simplest steps when they arrived, but went away fully conversant with all the newfangled tricks of the art.

The Dancing Masters' Association has called a meeting to discuss this development, which threatens to ruin their profession.

France has opened her big Peace Loan, which is to be unlimited in amount.

WATERWORKS AND ELECTRICAL DEPARTMENTS SHOW A PROFIT

FINANCIAL STATEMENT SHOWING COST OF OPERATION OF BOTH DEPARTMENTS BY THE UTILITIES COMMISSION.

The financial statements of the Electric and Waterworks Departments for the year ending 31st December, 1919, show the total earnings for the year amounted to $127,401.70, being a decrease of $2,823.28 under 1918. The divisions of the decreases or increases are as follow:

Domestic light revenue increase	$3233.11
Commercial light revenue increase	2936.79
Street light revenue increase	200.94
Total increase	$6370.84
Power revenue decrease	$9125.32
Miscellaneous decrease	68.80
Total decrease	$9194.12
Total net decrease	$2823.28

The Expense Accounts, including Sinking Fund and Interest on Debentures, also allowance of $2000.00 for compensation reserve, depreciation on temporary incandescent street lighting system, depreciation of 20 per cent. on original value of trucks 1 and 2, also depreciation on general plant, amount to $122,136.76, showing a net profit on the operations for the year of $5,264.94.

In connection with the expense accounts, I would call your attention to the amount which we were penalised on the 75 per cent. of previous highest maximum demand clause in our contract with the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, which amounted to $5,626.21, which sum was an absolute loss, as no revenue was received from this expenditure.

Water Department.

During the year $6,250.48 was expended in laying mains and setting hydrants and $1,915.03 in laying services, making a total of $8,172.11 expended in construction.

The purchase of the property for a site for the filtration plant was completed during the year, and on which there has been expended the sum of $7,579.10, also there was constructed a residence for the chief operator at the Pump House, on which there has been expended the sum of $1,655.80.

The net water rates, including special frontage rates, amounted to $63,099.43. To this was added $2000.00 charged for the use of the dam for power purposes and 10 cents profit on material sold, and used in consumers' construction. These made a total revenue of $65,099.53.

The expense accounts, including interest and sinking fund and amount written off tools and plant, also cost of removing 5-inch main and relaying 8-inch main on Water and King Streets, amounted to $63,072.04, showing a profit on the year's operations of $1,027.49.

WOULD PROTECT CONSUMERS WHO ARE UNABLE TO SLICE BACON

TOPEKA, Kan.,—Declaring that it was not yet prepared to fix fair prices on foodstuffs the Shawnee county fair-price board, headed by W. H. Kemper, has issued a warning to Topeka and Shawnee county retailers that prices of bacon, meats and a number of groceries must be reduced immediately or drastic action to force down the prices will be taken.

The board stated that as soon as its investigation was completed a list of maximum prices to be charged would be published and merchants would be "compelled" to observe these prices. In the meantime the board demanded that prices be slashed anyhow.

The board is very solicitous for consumers who shrink from slicing their own bacon. In objecting to a charge made by butchers for slicing bacon, it said it had discovered that some merchants charge as high as fifteen cents a pound for this service. This was condemned as "profiteering," and the butchers were warned that it must cease. The board protested against even a charge of five cents a pound, which was found to be common, stating that the slicing of bacon was a service the butcher should be glad to offer his customers without charge, in view of the very high prices prevailing for all meats.

"Slicing bacon," said Mr. Kemper, naively, "does not increase the cost of doing business one bit. The meat cutters are doing it anyway, because the public wants this service. With the cost of living already far too high, it seems to me that the butchers could do their bit in helping to alleviate conditions by cutting out this charge, which would cost them nothing in the way of lost profits. The only thing they would lose is the five or ten or fifteen cents a pound which, in my opinion, they have no right to exact."

STOP HEADACHES BEFOREHAND

You never had a headache when you were well.

To keep well is to keep clean, inside.

To relieve headache, and to prevent it, keep the liver active and industrious and the bowels as regular as a clock.

Two generations of healthy, vigorous people have done this by taking one pill at bedtime, regularly—a larger dose when nature gives the warning.

HAD TO GO TO BED HEADACHES SO BAD

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS MADE HER WELL

When your liver gets sluggish and inactive, your whole health suffers. Your bowels become constipated, you have aches, your tongue is coated, breath bad, specks float before the eyes, you are bilious, have heartburn, water-brash, pain under the right shoulder, muddy and brown spotted complexion, etc.

Help the liver to resume its proper function by removing the bile that is circulating in the blood and poisoning the system.

Mrs. E. Bambridge, 30 Maple Ave., Amherst, N.S., writes: "I take pleasure in writing you of the good I received by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills for headaches. I was so bad I had to go to bed, and could not sit up. A friend told me about your wonderful medicine, and two vials have made me as well as I can be."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are small and easy to take, do not gripe, weaken or sicken; do not leave any bad after-effects. Price 25c. a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CONCLUDES SERIES ETC.,

ments of the struggling settlers who had nothing to do with public affairs. A large attendance at a Court of Quarterly Sessions was at that time 6, when 23 were suposed to have been on hand. In his report sent in, following his investigation, which was one of the most statesmanlike and comprehensive ever compiled, he put his finger on the centre of the difficulty in advising that local communities should have control of their own affairs.

Municipal Act.

Continuing, His Honour said that in 1849 we have the origin of our now Municipal Act, which comprises most of the better features of our municipal organisation. Since that, it has been a favourite occupation with municipal legislators to tinker with the Act, and for that reason the Act has become more or less bulky and unwieldy—a thing of shreds and patches.

Present Time Municipal.

Every municipality is a body corporate, a creation of Parliament, capable of doing business the same as a person, deriving all its power from the legislature which corporated it. When a community comes to a number of 700 it may be incorporated a village, when 2,000 a town, and when 15,000 a city. A township was originally all the land standing outside a town. A county is a combination of different municipalities formed because there are certain things too unusual to be looked after by every little municipality. It also is made a body corporate, its jurisdiction applied to the maintenance of courts, bridges, and all things of a higher nature. The jurisdiction of villages, towns, etc., is limited by a charter to particular things. Municipal business is done by electing officials—in cities a Mayor, the official head of the institution, and aldermen to look after the business of the city.

Continuing, His Honour outlined the municipal officers of towns, etc. Each official elected must take an oath of office, and should he have any contract or claim upon the municipality he is disqualified for office because each official is a trustee, and the law is exceptionally strict in the matter of trusteeship, and considers that should a person have a claim against a municipality he will favour himself. He instanced the case of Alderman G. N. Gordon, who, before accepting office, disposed of all clients having claims against the city.

Most Important.

His Honour impressed upon the ladies the importance of our own municipality, claiming that they don't take sufficient interest in the election, which in reality affects them more closely than the Dominion or Provincial. The municipal election affects us all more closely, comprising, as it does, the health of the homes, fire and police protection, etc.

Corporate Seal.

In referring to the manner in which contracts are made, His Honour explained the meaning of the corporate seal, which represents the signatures of the whole city. For authenticating the seal, a by-law directing the Clerk to affix the seal must be passed. The speaker then referred to the manner in which taxes are raised, and the meaning of debentures. Schools, he continued, are not in the jurisdiction of the Council, but are under the absolute control of the Board of Education, who find out the needs for the year for the schools, and send notice to the Council, and the expenditure incurred is placed upon the tax bill, resulting in the Council getting the blame for expenditure and the Board of Education going free. The Council has jurisdiction over the health of the city and fire protection, which are purely local affairs. Police protection is not purely local, as the police must work in conjunction with the police of the Dominion, and the Dominion Government appoints the local Judge to the Police Commission ex-officio.

Road Work.

It is the duty of a municipality to look after roads because they are necessary for public safety. For damages suffered by defective roads, a municipality is liable. If in performing a necessary work a person of private property is injured, the city is required to compensate the person through arbitration.

His Honour concluded by outlining the manner in which the voters' list is compiled, and advising the ladies to be very careful in the manner in which they use their new right.

Vote of Thanks.

A hearty vote of thanks was moved to His Honour by Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, and seconded by Miss Linden Hall.

UNITED FARMERS' ORGANIZATION HELD A SUPPER IN LAKEFIELD

WAS FOLLOWED BY AN ENTERTAINMENT---ADDRESS BY MR. WALLACE ANDERSON---LAKEFIELD NEWS.

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 20.—The local branch of the U. F. O. held an oyster supper in Leonard's Hall on Thursday evening from 6 to 8 o'clock. The bountiful supper was a reminder of pre-war days, when a food controller was an unknown quantity.

The waiters were: Misses Edna Braden and Lulu Darling, and Messrs. W. Frankish, Alex. Graham, Richard Graham, and Roland Darling. In spite of the condition of the roads, there was an excellent turnout.

An entertainment followed in the Queen Street Theatre, which was an added attraction. Several pictures of the Fraser-Kidd hunting party were shown, followed by a comedy.

Mr. Wallace Anderson, of Warsaw gave a short address, in which he urged that there should be more social gatherings for the farmers. Lately the farmers have been busy in an organised way in politics, and now it is time that they should revive the social gatherings which the rural mail route and telephones have had their part in stopping.

The Lakefield Club has made a good start, and in addition to the good supper, there is a better feeling engendered by meeting together in this way. There should be Farmers' Clubs at Selwyn and at Bridgenorth, which would tend greatly to better things. There is as good talent in the country as in the city, but it lacks development. These clubs can hold debates, and there is always the benefit of social intercourse. The farmer has kept quiet up to this time, and remained at home attending to his work—(a voice from the rear of the theatre. "That is what the other fellows say we should do.")—but now the time is here when he takes his part in the affairs of the nation. Drury's election, in which he was supported by many non-farmers, showed that the people of Ontario are ready to give the farmer a chance to show what he can do in politics.

He concluded by speaking a word about the returned soldiers. Mr. Anderson is their staunch advocate and wishes to see them receive justice from their fellow-countrymen and the Government.

Agricultural films, showing various stages of sowing and reaping and preparing the land for crops followed.

A film play entitled "A Golden Shower," featuring Gladys Leslie, was the main feature of the programme.

A moving picture of a cheese factory was intensely interesting, more so, perhaps, because it was the Selwyn factory.

A reel of comedy closed the programme.

Personals.

Mrs. Roland left on Wednesday for Toronto. She was accompanied by Miss Mollie Johnson, who has been spending a few days in the village.

Mrs. Thompson Braden, who has been visiting friends in Peterborough this week, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Anderson, of Warsaw, were in the village on Thursday.

Mrs. Osborne was in Peterborough on Wednesday.

On Ash Wednesday there were services in St. John's Church at 10.30 a.m. and at 7.30 p.m.

In St. Paul's Church the Ash Wednesday service was at 8 a.m.

Annual Meeting.

The annual business meeting of the Chancel Guild of St. John's Church was held at Mr. F. J. Tate's residence on Thursday afternoon. The officers were re-elected for the coming year as follows:

President—Mrs. H. G. Fitzgerald.
Vice-presidents — Mrs. Tate and Mrs. Hilliard.
Treasurer—Miss Atwood.
Secretary—Miss Graham.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Jarrell have been guests of honour at several social gatherings during the past ten days since the news of their approaching departure was received. Mr. and Mrs. Jarrell leave for Trenton at the end of the week.

Try Making Your Own Cough Remedy

You can save about $2, and have a better remedy than the ready-made kind. Easily done.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made and saves easily $2. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

LOCAL FORWARD MOVEMENT CAMPAIGN AMONG ANGLICANS

The Anglican Forward Movement is now coming to its close and its promoters are confident that in spite of inclement weather, the influenza, bad conditions in the Northwest, and other obstacles, that the new objective of three millions of dollars is likely to be reached. A tremendous effort is being made in these closing days to effect this.

The local campaign has been steadily pushed and the canvassers have had some pleasant surprises in unexpected pledges, amounts cheerfully given. The regular list supplied to canvassers is now almost exhausted but it is realized that some names have been accidentally omitted or missed.

If those not already called on desire to have their names on the honour roll of those taking part in this national enterprise they may enroll them to-day or on Monday at Kent's drug store.

Archdeacon Davidson, Travelling Organizer, has now pretty well covered his large territory stretching from Collingwood to Brighton. He returned yesterday from work in Ontario County wheer he travelled from Scarboro to Sunderland.

Cavan and Millbrook has come out as the banner parish of the rural districts. Starting with an objective of $2000 increased to $3000, it has reached $5124. Battredges, a little church, standing in the heart of the country, near Aurora, contributed $2380, Fenelon Falls $1064, Newcastle Village $1900, Midland $4160, Norwood $638 on an objective of $400. From Apsley comes $250, a proportionately generous sum; Westwood sends $165 and Minden $65.

The total for the Anglican churches of Peterboro last night stood at $18,400 on an objective of $20,000. Unless at least another thousand dollars is subscribed the Deanery objective of $30,000 will not be reached.

BOOM ON AT BROOKS.

Busy Year Expected as Much Irrigated Land Has Been Taken Up.

BROOKS, Alta., Feb. 21. — This town is looking forward to a very busy spring as many new settlers who have already purchased irrigated land in the district, are coming here with their families to commence farming operations. A quarter section of irrigated land between Brooks and Duchess has been sold for $85 an acre. The prospects are that no additional tracts of irrigated land will be put on the market in this vicinity for another year or so. Hundreds of acres of splendid irrigable land in this district will be not sold for several years yet, and in the meantime work will be rushed to enlarge the system to carry the water to this land.

She Says They Are Surely Splendid

MRS. HILL SPEAKS OUT CONCERNING DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

She Tells Suffering Women if They Use Dodd's Kidney Pills According to Directions They Will Find Relief

Hatchley, Ont., Feb. 20.—(Special.) That Dodd's Kidney Pills are the remedy suffering women are looking for is evidenced by the statement of Mrs. William S. Hill, well known and highly respected here.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are certainly splendid," Mrs. Hill says. "There is nothing better for female trouble and a run-down system.

"If women will follow the directions and rules Dodd's Kidney Pills will help them."

Mrs. Hill speaks out of a full heart and from her own experience. She suffered and found relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills. The kidneys were the cause of all her trouble. The kidneys are the cause of nine-tenths of the troubles of the women of Canada.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are purely and simply a kidney remedy. By strengthening the kidneys they remove the cause of the trouble. That's why Dodd's Kidney Pills are known as suffering women's best friend. Ask your neighbors about them.

FIVE SUNDAYS.

Minneapolis News: The world will experience a five-Sunday February this year for the first time in forty years, and the last time during the coming twenty-eight years, unless the calendar in vogue at the present time should be modified. If 1900 had been a leap year the five-Sunday February would have happened in 1908, but the one day that dropped out then put the five-Sunday February off for twelve years. Since 1800 there was a five-Sunday February in 1824, in 1852, in 1880, in 1920, and the next one will be in 1948. In other words, if the old world didn't slip a cog three centesimal years out of every four, there would be five Sundays in February every twenty-eight years.

THE SWEETEST CHILD PATIENT

London, Eng.—A bequest of $15,000 left to the Hospital for Sick Children, Great Ormond street, is to endow two cots:

"One after my late very dear husband, Walter William Ross; one after the sweetest child patient that ever lived."

The testator, Mrs. Annie Goff, of Upper Norwood, married a second time; but she directs in her will that her ashes be deposited in the grave of her first husband.

The "child patient" was her only child.

A long list of hospitals and charitable institutions benefit from the estate, which is proved at $400,000.

WEDDING RINGS FOR MEN.

NEW YORK. — Wedding rings for men are a protection against "vamps," and as a warning to women against "predatory males," are advocated by Miss Lucille Pugh, prominent New York attorney.

"If men were compelled by pressure of public opinion to wear wedding rings the same as women, they would be less inclined to engage in entangling alliances," Miss Pugh said in an interview. "At the same time, women would be warned that these men were the 'property' of other women."

THE BELATED TRUTH.

The funeral was over, so Sinclair Lewis says. The eldery widower, having returned from the cemetery, sat on the front porch of his small New Hampshire cottage, whistling softly to himself. A neighbor passed, and saw the solitary figure in the shadow of the porch, and halted his team.

"Well, Uncle Gil," he said, striving to put sympathy into his tones, "how air you bearing up?"

"Fust-rate, Eth," said the supposedly bereaved one cheerfully. "Dun't know as I ever felt better."

"I thought mebbe you'd be missin' —her," said the startled neighbor. "She was a good wife—tuck keer of your home and raised your children, and always done migty well by you durin' all the thutty years you lived together."

"Yas; I konw that," stated the widower. "She done all them things and I lived with her thutty years, jest ez you was sayin'; but, gol dern it, I never did like her!"

U.S. FEEDS CHILDREN.

NEW YORK.—Food for more than 1,000 children is now being supplied daily in the Tatabanya mining district of Hungary by the mission working under the direction of the American Relief Committee for Hungarian Sufferers, according to a report made by Major Foster of the British Army to the headquarters of the committee here.

An End to the Suffering!

It has been estimated that one out of every fifteen people in Canada use Gin Pills yearly, the annual sale being between 580,000 and 600,000 boxes and still increasing.

That these Gin Pill users have benefitted is evidenced by the immense number of letters which continually pour into our office, full of praise for Gin Pills and gratitude to us for perfecting the formula on which these excellent Pills are prepared. That formula was only achieved after profound study and patient experimenting. But it was well worth all the time and thought given it, for Gin Pills have done more to relieve pain and to prevent serious Kidney and Bladder Troubles than perhaps any other preparation that can be obtained.

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS

Mr. Frank Ide, a Pullman conductor, suffered intensely from pains in the groins, sore back, and very severely from gravel and sediment. After taking Gin Pills, Mr. Ide wrote us:—

"The pain left me entirely. I have no trouble whatever in urinating and I feel as well as I ever did in my life. I recommend Gin Pills to everybody in any way troubled with kidneys or bladder."

Mrs. Mofford, Galetta, Ont. writes concerning her husband thus:

"After one dose of Gin Pills my husband found them exactly what he needed and after taking two boxes he was completely cured." He had had backache and kidney trouble for a long time.

In writing for more Gin Pills Mrs. Grant Woonsocket, R. I., says:

"I am having good results from them. The doctor says I have consumption of the bladder. The pills seem to keep me comfortable."

Mrs. Percy Halifax N.S., after trying a sample sent for six boxes. She wrote:—

"Before I finished the third box I found myself for the first time in years perfectly free from pain. The fourth box cured me. I wish everybody who suffers from backache and kidney trouble would use Gin Pills. They are great."

If you suffer from pains in the groins or back, rheumatism, swollen ankles, stiff joints, gravel, constant headaches and lassitude, constipation and dizziness, take Gin Pills and nip the trouble in the bud. Send for free sample or get a box from your druggist or dealer, 50c., with money-back guarantee. Act at once—delay is dangerous.

To Ward Off Trouble Build Up With Milk

Says Dr. Leonard Keene Hirshberg

Of Johns Hopkins University: "Morbid states of health and infections are most common among those who have forgotten that there is such an excellent preventative of sickness as milk."

Proofs in abundance show that Pasteurized Milk is probably the greatest factor of safety for your nutrition, and protection against disease."

"Milk used in combination with butter, or each used separately, either cold or warm, are excellent 'warders off' of many physical troubles. They act as preventatives because they build up bodily resistance to the disease."

Use milk liberally, either hot or cold. If you want to get a greater variety, a great number of delicious milk drinks are recommended by Dr. Hirshberg.

F JULIUS CAESAR HAD NEVER MET CLEOPATRA?

(John O'Losdon's Weekly.)

A very modern (and, maybe, a very foolish) writer has said that the whole art of life is to create with the labor of years and then to destroy in the folly of a night. That is exactly what Julius Caesar nearly succeeded in doing; what indeed only his wondrous luck saved him from. Caesar was 52 when he met Cleopatra. He was at the zenith of his fame. He had overcome all the insistent and persistent troubles that accompanied the conquest of Gaul.

The One Great Figure.

He had faced the dangers of the civil war forced on him by Pompey. He had defeated the Pompeian armies in Spain. Finally he had beaten his great rival himself at Pharsalia, and Pompey had been murdered. He was the one great figure left in the Roman world, with the exception of Cicero, who was too old and too weary to bother much with public affairs. There was great work waiting for him to do and no man ever had a more favorable opportunity.

As Ferrero says:

He had only to make use of the enthusiasm of Italy, all the more overwhelming because it was inevitably short lived, to return to Rome, and attack the great problems of the age—to adjust the old republican institutions to a mercantile society, to consolidate liberty with imperialism, Latin traditions with the new demands of Eastern luxury and culture.

But Caesar met Cleopatra, and their meeting profoundly affected the course of Roman and of world history. Caesar wanted money. He always wanted money, for the art of government in Rome during the last century before Christ was the art of bribery. The politician hungry for power was forced to embark on a war of conquest to obtain the wherewithal to buy patrician votes and plebian acquiescence. Caesar was in Syria. Ptolemy owed him money, and was fighting with his sister, Cleopatra. Caesar decided to go to Alexandria to collect the money and settle the quarrel. Thus the meeting.

A Bald-Headed "G.B.S."

Mr. Bernard Shaw has written an entertaining comedy round the meeting. He has drawn Caesar as a bald-headed G.B.S. in a toga, and Cleopatra a reckless hoyden. As a matter of fact, Caesar was a man tired for the moment of wars and conquests and public affairs, and ready to be amused and flattered and cajoled by a pretty woman. He had been in the centre of intrigue since his youth. He had been compelled to fight ceaselessly for his own hand, and his very success had wearied him. He wanted to forget for a while and Cleopatra well knew how to conjure up forgetfulness. Ferrero says of her:

"Herself utterly cold and callous, insensitive by nature to the flame of true devotion, Cleopatra was one of those women gifted with an unerring instinct for all the various roads to men's affections. She could be the shrinking girl, to shy to reveal her half-unconscious emotions of jealousy and depression and self-abandonment; or a woman carried away by the sweep of a fiery and uncontrollable passion. She could tickle the æsthetic sensibilities of her victims by rich and gorgeous festivals, by the fantastic adornment of her own person and her palace, or by brilliant discussions on literature and art; she could conjure up all the with the free and easy jocularity of a woman of the camps."

An Autocratic Empire.

Caesar stayed with Cleopatra, was besieged in Alexandria by her brother, and altogether spent nine months in Egypt. Caesar returned to Rome in the early autumn of the year 47 B. C. But he only stayed there for four months. One more Pompeian army remained to crush, and he had to hurry across to Africa. During those four months he attempted to allay popular discontent by cancelling all rents under a certain figure for one whole year. The campaign lasted six months, and he went back to Rome to consolidate his authority. He had made many promises. Some at least of them had to be kept.

His ambition is very evident. It was to build an autocratic empire on the basis of popular prosperity.

Cleopatra came to Rome at the end of the year 46. She brought the son she had had by Caesar with her. She whispered to him of an empire greater than any that the world had yet seen, ruled by a dynasty that they should found. Meanwhile he distributed largesse with a generous hand and initiated a scheme of sane and moderate social reform.

The Caesarian Dream.

But he lacked capable backing. New difficulties continually arose, and the man himself was worn out. He grew irritable. He never rested. He was overburdned with work, and responsibility. His connection with Cleopatra was bitterly resented by the whole people. The attacks of epilepsy, to which he had always been subject, became more frequent, and more violent. He had been appointed perpetual dictator, which meant in effect that the republic was dead and that the empire had begun, and he became obsessed with the necessity of strengthening his position by the annexation of Parthia.

Caesar was inventing the Caesarian dream which afterwards came to Napoleon I., Napoleon III., and the ex-Kaiser Wilhelm—conquest abroad, social reform at home, as the two props of an autocratic throne.

Caesar was a very great man. Mommsen has said, "No doubt Caesar was a great orator, a great writer, and a great general, but he became all these because he was a great statesman." An Italian writer has described him as "an incomparable oportunist." Certainly he was an amazingly shrewd politician to whom Tammany Hall could have taught nothing. He knew his people and he knew how to manage them. He was tremendously sure of himself. And his self-control was, until the last few months of his life almost superhumanly complete. He suited the means to the occasion. Sometimes he was the very soul of forgiveness. Sometimes he was pitiless. His whole life was governed by considerations of policy, until he met Cleopatra and lost his head at the dangerous age of 52.

He was a man without illusions, even about himself. His personal life was generally abstemious and he cared nothing for luxury. He loved glory but he despised flattery. The difficulties that faced him in 45 and 44 were tremendous. The task that he had set himself was as perilous as Napoleon's invasion of Russia, but he would almost certainly have succeeded if he had not been sick and worn out. Caesar in 44 was a sick man as was Napoleon in 1812. He was only the shadow of the man who had contrived to snatch victory from defeat in Gaul and to write the "De Bello Gallico" in two months.

With Fingers! Corns Lift Off

Doesn't hurt a bit to lift any corn or callus right off. Try it!

For a few cents you can get a small bottle of the magic drug freezone recently discovered by a Cincinnati man.

Just ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone. Apply a few drops upon a tender, aching corn or callus and instantly all soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you lift it off with the fingers.

Just think! Not one bit of pain before applying freezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the surrounding skin.

Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes, also hardened calluses on bottom of feet, shrivel up and fall off without hurting a particle. It is almost magical.

Ladies! Keep a tiny bottle on the dresser and never let a corn or callus ache twice.

BAD COLD LEFT HIM WITH BRONCHITIS

However slight a cold you have you should never neglect it; if you do it can have but one result. It leaves the throat or lungs, or both, affected.

Bronchitis is one of the most common affections of a neglected cold, and neglected bronchitis the most general cause of consumption.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is just the remedy you require to cure the bronchitis. It does this by loosening the phlegm and mucous, and stimulates the weakened bronchial organs, allays irritation and subdues inflammation, soothes and heals the irritated parts and thus prevents it becoming chronic.

Mr. R. P. Sundblad, Francis, Sask., writes:—"I had a very bad cold which left me with bronchitis. I tried several cough remedies and oils of all kinds, but they all failed. At last I got Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and after using two bottles I have never had a sign of bronchitis since. I therefore can honestly recommend it for coughs and colds."

Don't accept a substitute for Dr. Wood's. The genuine is put up in a yellow wrapper; 3 pine trees the trade mark; price 25c and 50c. Manufactured by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

HOTELS FULL, BERLIN WILL USE SLEEPERS.

BERLIN.—Beginning with the new year tourists unable to secure accommodations at hotels will be offered quarters for the night in sleepers side tracked at the main stations. An endeavor will thus be made to meet the increasing influx of strangers.

Travellers arriving late at night and intending to leave the next morning will be given preference in the reservations, which at present comprise 600 berths. The Railroad Administration declares that it is not intended to compete with the hotels, although it is announced the prices for the sleepers will be kept within a moderate range.

DUBLIN.—This city is practically "dry" as a result of the bartenders' strike for better conditions.

The citizens also were without fire protection for part of a sudden [illegible] Brigade. The Lord Mayor, acting as mediator announced that a temporary settlement had been reached whereby the firemen would go back to work.

Ferrible Weeping ECZEMA

Mrs. E. Hayes, of Hamilton, after going South to find relief, finally cured by a local remedy.

"To have suffered with weeping eczema of the hands, so bad that my hands were helpless—to have tried and tried remedies, without relief—to have given up work and come South for help—to have been cured completely on half a bottle of D. D. D." This is the substance of Mrs. Hayes' letter, 21 Sunset St., Hamilton, Ont.

Cases can be sent you from your own vicinity. Write for Canadian testimonials, or secure a bottle of D. D. D. today. Why suffer itching torment another moment? If you don't get relief on the first bottle, we will refund it without question. $1.00 a bottle. Try D. D. D. Soap, too.

EARLY HOME DECORATING

PETERBORO HOUSEHOLDERS BEGIN SPRING PAINTING AND PAPERING EARLIER THAN USUAL.

Peterborough home makers are beginning their decorating for spring earlier than usual this year. Many are wisely taking advantage of the present prices of wallpaper and labour to have their work done before the first of April, when, it is said, the wages of painters and paperhangers are likely to advance. Where this kind of home decorating can be done conveniently in February and March, the thoughtful householder has got rid of part of most discommoding features of the usual dreaded spring house cleaning. One of the most sought-after of our city decorators, Mr. Alexander Heron, states that he and his principal assistant, Mr. Keller, has been kept busy on orders all this month, and the demand for his services continues quite brisk. Mr. Heron had just completed an important contract for the re-decorating of the Nicholls Hospital, which occupied about three months, when orders for spring home decorating began coming in a lively manner. Other instances indicate a general "start early" movement along this line.

WITNESSES WILL HAVE TO APPEAR BEFORE TRIBUNAL

(Canadian Press.)

BERLIN, Feb. 21.—The preliminary proceedings in a number of the cases of Germans accused of violations of the laws of war have already begun, and progress is being made in the collection of documentary material, Dr. Schiffer, Minister of Justice, told a representative of the Zwoelfblatt yesterday.

The Minister said that accused persons would be tried at Leipzic by a Court consisting of the customary seven judges.

German witnesses will be heard in accordance with the prescriptions of criminal trial regulations, and witnesses will be examined abroad if they do not care to come to Germany.

It was indicated that the German examining magistrate would go to other countries to be present at the taking of evidence.

Accused persons who do not respond to the summons to appear before the Imperial Court, will have to be arrested, and German authorities will in any case do everything to expedite proceedings as far as possible.

On the principle that each accused would necessarily have to be tried individually, Dr. Schiffer emphasised the fact that the Government regarded it as an affair of honour to punish those really guilty.

The Government, however, was not obeying the Entente's will in carrying out this trial, he asserted, but was fulfilling the requirements of any ordered state.

PRESENTATION TO MR. J. B. JARRELL

LAKEFIELD CURLERS HAD A NIGHT OUT—THE SPEECHES.

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 21.—On Friday evening a friendly game of curling was played between two rinks in which Mr. J. B. Jarrell's rink defeated that of Mr. C. S. Tanner by a score of 13 to 4. The line up was as follows:

G. G. Connal	D. Simmons
R. J. Ivey	J. B. Jarrell
O. A. Langley	Rev. P. L. Jull
C. S. Tanner	B. Q. Lewis
Skip [illegible]	Skip [illegible] 13

After the game the curlers and a few of their friends adjourned to the Veterans' rooms where a few of the ladies had a supper prepared for them.

After supper the President, Mr. Thompson Braden, in a few well chosen words, expressed regret for himself and also for the club in the loss they were sustaining by the removal of Mr. Jarrell from our midst. He was always a jolly fellow and a good sport and we were sorry to lose him, and on behalf of the club he presented him with a pipe and box of cigars.

Mr. Jarrell, in replying, stated that he had always found the boys first class and was sorry to leave them and would always have pleasant memories of the people of Lakefield.

Mr. C. S. Tanner, when called on for a speech, said he was too full of utterances.

Rev. P. L. Jull, when called on, said he was sorry that Mr. Jarrell was leaving. He was a good curler, he said, that when he played with his rink he was a good sport and he always had such luck curling, that if he played on the opposite rink he thought him a miserable sinner. He was glad to learn of Mr. Jarrell's promotion and would wish him every success, and sorry to see him go, but there was a silver lining to the cloud, as he had an inkling that his successor was a Presbyterian.

Mr. O. A. Langley expressed himself nicely by extolling the good qualities of Mr. Jarrell, and also of his good curling, saying he was the goat, his rink being defeated largely by Mr. Jarrell's play on the opposite rink.

It is generally the way a new manager comes whom we know and like, just commencing to get thoroughly acquainted, when they get promoted. The ability and good qualities he displayed here will stand him in good stead with the people of Trenton.

Dr. J. C. Smith said that he felt in losing Mr. Jarrell he was losing an old friend. He said that owing to his business activies he was unable to curl this winter, but many a good time they had had in the summer on the Tennis Court and he felt from the business ability he displayed here that his success in Trenton was well assured.

Mr. Casement stated that he was not a curler any more, but was glad to be here to wish Mr. Jarrell every success in his new home. Mr. Jarrell before coming here had shown his success by the establishing a flourishing branch of the Royal Bank in Spencerville and the Head Office evidently appreciate that fact by sending now to Trenton to establish a new branch there.

Mr. E. J. Burgess was sorry to learn of Mr. Jarrell's departure and would wish him every success in his new home and welcome the new manager, Mr. Connal.

Mr. J. F. Galvin, who was called on as an O.F.U. man said that he was a farmer and it was up to them to produce and save, producing that others may live and enjoy life.

Saving all they can but one thing and that is daylight, the farmers do object to that.

We have been unfortunate on this and other occasions with regard to our bank managers, we just begin to know them when they are removed not only among the business men is their loss felt but also among the curlers but when we found out that it was a promotion with an added salary we were glad.

This removal means a promotion and nothing would please us better that in a short time he shall have attained the top rung of the ladder as far as the Royal Bank is concerned, then when he has attained that position I hope he will consider farming.

Mr. Jarrell: "I was brought up on a farm.

As in farming there is no such a thing as obtaining the top rung, and that when he does take up farming he will settle near Lakefield, and buy a farm. I will then be eligible to get the grip and password of the U.F.O.

Mr. G. G. Connal was called on and said he was pleased to be here and enjoyed the curling match this evening, and also the social part of it.

He had had his choice of Burleigh or Lakefield and he had elected Lakefield.

I have only known Mr. Jarrell for a very short time yet he seems like an old friend. He wished him every success in his new home. He said that [illegible] attempt a speech but he thought that after hearing [illegible] of utterances a vote of thanks was tendered to the ladies for their kindness in serving the supper to the curlers and their friends.

Three cheers were given for Mr. Thompson Braden, president of the Curling Club, and Mr. Jarrell.

The evening then closed with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" and the National Anthem.

IN THE LITERARY WORLD

INTERESTING ARTICLE BY MR. F. M. DELA FOSSE—BOOK REVIEWS—LITERARY NOTES.

(By F. M. Dela Fosse, Librarian.)

There is a large body of persons whose reading consists entirely of fiction. By them a book is regarded solely as a means of whiling away a quiet hour and it is safe to say that they get very little intellectual value for the time thus expended. For it is obvious that the man or woman who reads a book hurriedly overlooks a vast amount of interesting and valuable material. Such things, for instance, as obscure allusions, quotations from the classics, and words of which the meaning is not known. If everyone were to cultivate the habit of jotting his difficulties down in a note book for future reference it would soon be found that the work of unravelling the knotted threads would grow into a facinating pastime. Fewer books would be read, it is true, but the knowledge that would be attained would be surprising.

A week or two ago reference was made to the Cassiterides. In searching for a book on the history of commerce I chanced upon one in the Sociological section entitled "Merchant Enterprise." In it special reference was made to the Cassiterides, or, as they are now known, the British Isles. It is a very interesting book to read, and strange to say, although it has been on the shelves for years, a legacy from the old Mechanics' Institute, it has never been taken out by a solitary individual. It gives a short and succinct account of the Phoenicians and of the country in which they dwelt, the Bibical Canaan, and shows by what slow degrees these Metditerranean mariners felt their way along the shores till they finally emerged into the Atlantic Ocean. If you are interested in the adventures of Maffio and Marco Polo, those wonderful mediaeval travellers, in the story of the founding of the Hanseatic League and of mercantile enterprise generally, read this book. One of the chapters is devoted to an account of the South Sea Bubble, but a more extended description of that great fraud will be found in "Popular Delusions," compiled by Charles Mackay, who also compiled the well-known "Thousand and one gems of English poetry" and the "Thousand and one gems of English prose". Charles Mackay died in 1889. Marie Corelli, the well-known novelist, spent her childhood days in his house.

"Popular Delusions."

Amongst other subjects that "Popular Delusions" deals with are the following: — Witchcraft, Tulipmonia, The Alchemists, the Gordon Riots, and the Crusades. These are merely mentioned because there are all sorts of tastes in reading just as there are all sorts of tastes in eating and drinking, and when all is said and done, it is an advantage to men and women to learn from what depths they have sprung, for if thereby foreshadows the heights to which they may attain. The story of the Crusades is presented in a form that should appeal to those who have not much leisure for reading, and is of special interest now that Jerusalem is again in Christian hands. As this paragraph is devoted to a certain extent, to horrors, mention may as well be made in passing of three books which will give pleasure to those who have strong nerves and who like something hair-raising to read in bed. These are "Dracula" by Bram Stoker, the friend of Sir Henry Irving; Frankenstein, by Mary Wolstonecraft Shelley, and The Mysteries of Udolpho, by Mrs. Radcliffe. The last mentioned book was greatly praised by Sir Walter Scott and was a favorite of Sheridan and of Fox. Mrs. Radcliffe is generally regarded as the founder of the modern sensational novel, her only peers in this line being two American writers, Charles Brockden Brown and Edgar Allan Poe. She was a celebrity at Bath when that city was in the heyday of its social prosperity and was a friend, amongst others of Mrs. Thrale, or, as she was at that time, Mrs. Piozzi.

The name of Mrs. Thrale brings to mind one of the most notable of English books, Boswell's Life of Dr. Johnson. It is a book which I have not read for years, but at one period I read it through two or three times from cover to cover under conditions which forbade access to any works of reference. It was my sole library provender on surveys around the north shore of Lake Superior and in then untenanted wilds of Northern Alberta. At my school there used to hang in one of the class-rooms, very probably it is there still, a very fine engraving representing the burly Johnson, surrounded by his coterie of friends, Reynolds with his ear trumpet, Oliver Goldsmith, Topham Beauclerk, Mr. Thrale, Edmund Burke, and others. My thoughts often revert to that picture, because our master was a great admirer of Goldsmith and used to tell us in his genial, sarcastic way, that none of us need be despondent as idiocy of expression (instancing Goldsmith) did not always indicate a vacant mind. His favorite impositions were "The Traveller" and the "Deserted Village," varied occasionally with dips into Ovid's Fasti. Most of us knew the first two by heart in a short time. Boswell's Life does not need to be mentioned at great length. It is the best known biography in the language. But the strange thing about the book is that it set a man on a pedestal above all his literary contemporaries who was not by any means the greatest poet of prose-writer of his time. His dictionary showed his erudition, his writings his stern morality, and he was undoubtedly a great critic, but what really marked him out as the outstanding figure of the latter half of the 18th century was the brilliance of his table-talk and his powers as a controversialist.

Boswell's Life of Johnson is a book, which, more than most, lends itself to study with the aid of a biographical dictionary, for the names that crop up on every page comprise almost in entirely all that were most noted in the social and intellectual world of that day.

"THE HOUSE OF BALTAZAR."

By William J. Locke...(Toronto: The Ryerson Press.)...Price, $1.75.

In the vivid portrayal of eccentric characters, William J. Locke presents "The House of Baltazar." It is a war story with new and unique characteristics and is told in the delightful and forceful style of the writer. John Baltazar is the dominating character of the book. He is a strong and lusty person and one which the reader will follow with intense and unabating interest. Unlike the majority of war books it does not deal with the actual fighting but opens in Churton Towers in England, where John Baltazar's only son, Godfrey is recovering from the effects of wounds sustained in the war. Godfrey meets Marcelle Baring, a professional nurse who twenty years previous had loved John Baltazar; a love that was reciprocated. Neither of the two knew whether John Baltazar was alive or dead. Several months before the birth of Godfrey he had vanished. A Zeppelin bomb brought John Baltazar from her permitage into contact with his fellowmen only to find that Europe had been through the consuming fire of war for two years. How John Baltazar converted his dynamic energy to the task of helping the Motherland prosecute the war and the subsequent revival and successful issue of his twenty year old romance that had driven him into seclusion, is told in Mr. Locke's forceful and gripping way. It is a good story, well written and bears all the earmarks of Locke quality.

"THE STRONG HOURS," by Maud Driver...(Toronto: Thomas Allen.) Price, $2.

A book that excells previous works of Maud Driver is "The Strong Hours" which like a lot of new books includes a well developed plot involving a spy and his activities during the Great War. The book has a strong setting and deals interestingly with the life of Lord of Avonleigh and his family. Derek Blount, the second son of Lord Avonleigh shatters some of the deep rooted family traditions which an elder son is destined by his parents to uphold. Derek's mother does all in her power to sustain the superiority of the elder son whose chief desire in life is to give full expression to his selfish and extravagant fancies. In this he is helped along until the war cloud breaks and after successfully evading the recruiting officer he becomes involved with a German spy. The discovery of his association with the spy hastens the death of Lord Avonleigh but not before the latter realizes that the younger son, Derek is really the real man of the two and unlike his brother does not fail his country in its hour of need. After visiting Canada and other parts of the world, Derek returns to England and enlists. While serving in France, Derek is wounded. "The Strong Hours" is a new story told in a new way. It brings out the well developed literary ability of Miss Driver. It is her best offering in the literary world and should be well received.

WITH PIPE AND BOOK

With pipe and book at close of day,
Oh, what is sweeter, mortal, say?
It matters not what book on knee—
Old Izaak, or the Odyssey,
It matters not meerschaum of clay

And though one's eyes will dream astray,
And lips forget to sue or sway,
It is "enough to merely be"
With pipe and book.

What though our modern skies be gray,
As bards aver—I will not pray
For "Soothing Death" to suc cor me,
But ask this much, oh Fate of thee:
A little longer yet to stay
With pipe and book.

GEMS OF NEW VERSE GREY TROTH

The sky's breast is a dream of holden rain,—
Exquisite fulness of soft cups of clouds:
The moor's breast where the heather's pomp has lain
Is now a peace with quiet hues endowed;
Clear stillness is their troth;
And silence out of this
The speech of both:—
A little lovely wind, the nature-kiss:—

—From "The Way of Wonder," by May Doney.

Mrs. Reginald de Koven is the author of "A Cloud of Witnesses," which E. P. Dutton & Co., will publish toward the end of February. The work will recount her experiences in communicating with friends and relatives who have died and will explain why these experiences have convinced her that the spirits of those who die pass on into another form of existence in which it is possible for them to communicate with their friends upon the earth.

The interest in Henry James, which has been growing steadily since his death, will undoubtedly receive a new stimulus from the appearance of a collection of his letters which the Scribners announce they have in preparation for publication. His "Middle Years" and "Notes of a Son and Brother" presage the rich qualities that may be expected in this forthcoming volume of personal letters, and its publication will be eagerly awaited by all lovers of literature.

It is now denied that Lord Haig is writing his war reminiscences. It is a pity. One was looking forward to his book, based, one understood, on the diary which he is said to have kept during the time he was at Montreuil.

"Ae Author's League Bulletin" has started a plebiscite to find out who is the living author most esteemed by living authors, in other words, the author's author. Only authors are to vote: evidently only published authors. The Great Unpublished would, no doubt, be requested to refrain. Contemporary literary fame is hereafter to be controlled by a Soviet form of Government by a Zemstvo composed of literary literati. There will be equal suffrage. And one shilling-shocker's ballot will be as good as another's, or as William Dean Howells's or George Edward Woodberry's. Immortality may hinge on one or two votes. Shakespeare, Dante, and Moliere were lucky to have lived in less democratic days.

Hugh Walpole, the young English novelist who arrived in New York recently, in the judgment of critics here and abroad is one of the figures of greatest promise in English literature, and his proposed lecture tour is looked forward to with great eagerness on the part of those who know the work of this young novelist. He is still in his early thirties, with a record of achievement truly remarkable. An Australian by birth, and a decendant of Sir Robert Walpole, he spent some time in New York as a boy.

WOMEN DO NOT WANT LOW-PRICED SHOES

CHICAGO—Do the women of Chicago want the cheaper grades of shoe merchandise?

No, they do not!

Will they buy the more expensive shoes if offered at bargain prices?

Yes, they will!

This, in a nutshell, describes the attitude of the women in regard to the shoe situation as revealed in the recent sale inaugurated by a shoe store, which, through the medium of some striking advertisements, announced their intention of giving old H.C.L. a wallop and inviting the support of the women of the city in their meritorious efforts.

At the bargain price of $9.85 their high-grade $12 and $13.50 shoes were offered for sale. The women came, saw and were conquered by the wonderful bargains afforded by this sale, which occupied all of one week.

As the advertisement indicated, the sale was designed for the purpose of trying out the sentiment of the women in the city in regard to their attitude on the important subject of moderate-priced shoes.

In discussing this phase of the matter, Carl H. Fleisbach, general manager of the Walk-Over Shoe Stores, said:

"The sale was a big success from the standpoint of the volume of business it developed, but even in the face of the satisfactory condition, I am not convinced that the women want moderate-priced shoes. We have been selling five pairs of high-priced shoes in comparison with one of the cheaper grades for some time, and this is the reverse of what we might expect from the howl about prices at present prevalent.

"The women will always respond to the lure of bargain prices when convinced that the merchandise offered is really as represented, high grade in every detail, but they will not buy the cheaper grade of shoes.

"Nor will they accept even at bargain prices shoes which deviate even slightly from the requirements of the fashionable mode of today, while these latter may be obtained at $4 to $5 more per pair."

Therefore the present "kick" about the cost of a pair of "kicks" must be settled by the "kickers" themselves.

CANADIAN MAY GET LARGE BELGIAN ORDERS

Negotiations Proceeding for the Construction of Locomotives.

OTTAWA, Feb. 20.—Negotiations between Belgium and Canadian firms for the supply of locomotives are proceeding, it is learned, and there is a prospect that large orders may be placed in Canada.

Senator Nichols, head of the Canadian General Electric Company, who was in the city last night, stated that he had received a long cable in connection with this matter, but he refused to comment on its contents, further than to say that negotiations were still under way.

From other sources, however, it was learned that there are good prospects of Canadian firms securing some of the contracts.

INFLUENZA LEAVES THE BLOOD THIN, THE NERVES WEAK

The Danger From the Disease is Seldom Over When the Acute Stage is Passed—Tonic Treatment Strongly Recommended.

Doctors have agreed that Spanish influenza is really a severe form of the grippe which became known in this country a number of years ago under the French name of "la grippe" and which has been epidemic several times since.

The danger from grippe is seldom over when the characteristic symptoms, the fever, the catarrh, the headache and the depression of spirits pass away. The grippe leaves behind it weakened vital powers, thin blood, impaired digestion and oversensitive nerves—a condition that makes the system an easy prey to pneumonia, bronchitis, rheumatism, nervous prostration and even consumption. Too much stress cannot be laid on the importance of strengthening the blood and nerves during convalescence. Until the blood is built up there can be no complete recovery of strength and health.

COULD HARDLY CRAWL ABOUT

Among the many victims of la grippe who proclaim the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Mr. Amos Kaulback, of Petite Riviere, N.S., who says:—"I was taken down with a severe attack of la grippe, or influenza. After a time the early symptoms of the trouble left me, but I did not regain my usual strength, and I had always been a strong man. There were times when I felt I could hardly crawl about, and I was so run down I could scarcely go about my business. I continued taking medicine but it did me no good. Then I found the trouble was effecting my digestion and the disagreeable feeling from this added to my general misery. I was finally advised to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to try them. I had only been taking the pills a few weeks when I found my strength returning, my appetite improved, and still continuing the use of the pills a few weeks more found me restored to my old-time vigor. I can most strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all who have passed through an attack of influenza, as a safe medicine for renewing their strength."

REGAINED FLESH AND STRENGTH

To rebuild the blood, to strengthen the weakened nerves and to get back the lost flesh and strength is the problem of the victim of an attack of influenza. How Mr. Charles Darling, of No. 14 Week street, Bath, Me., accomplished this is best told in his own words:

"My doctor treated me successfully for the grippe," he says, "but he did not seem to help the after-effects of the disease. I had headaches nearly all the time, my strength was nearly spent and I often had to lie down and rest. I was pale and lost in weight and had a dull, languid feeling most of the time. My blood was very thin and poor and my stomach troubled me.

"One day I got a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at the drug store and after taking them for about a week I noticed my health was better. My headache was relieved and I was getting stronger. I continued their use and have a better appetite and can eat anything I want. I no longer have that tired feeling, my color is normal and I am gaining in flesh."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People contain just the elements needed to build up the blood and restore the lost color and vitality. New energy circulates through the system with the enriched blood, the heart stops its alarming palpitating, color returns to cheeks and lips. Nothing more is needed except sunlight, good air, proper food and rest.

WEAK AND RUN DOWN.

Miss Irene Bootes, Portsmouth, Ont., says:—"I take much pleasure in recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, because I have proved their worth in my own case. Last winter I had a severe attack of la grippe and it left me weak and all run down. I had severe pains in the chest and under the arms, palpitation of the heart and attacks of neuralgia which left me with the feeling that life was scarcely worth living. I was taking doctor's medicine, but it did not help me, and I was much discouraged. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and began their use only on the principle that I would try anything that might better my condition. I had only been using the pills a couple of weeks when the pains began to leave me. Gradually my strength returned, my appetite improved, and in a little more than a month I felt my old-time vigor had returned. I am sincerely glad I was persuaded to try Dr. Williams' Pinks Pills, and I shall always have a good word to say for them."

HELPED HIM WONDERFULLY.

Following an attack of grippe, Mr. William Fielder, of No. 132 First street, Albany, N.Y., suffered from stomach trouble. He says:

"I was very much run down after having the grippe and lost both in weight and strength. My stomach was often sour and was very weak. A dull aching pain in the back of my head caused me much distress. An article in the paper brought my attention to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I gave them a trial. Before the first box was finished I felt stronger and kept on with the remedy. I am feeling good and my stomach is as strong as it ever was. I have gained in weight and strength and no longer suffer from headaches. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills certainly helped me wonderfully and I am glad to recommend them."

GRIP VICTIMS NEED A TONIC.

The debility that usually follows the grippe paves the way for serious organic [illegible] a general condition [illegible] generally throughout the entire system. In fact, it must be considered building up the blood which is thin and red, carries renewed health and strength to every part of the body.

Dr. William's Pink Pills are a tonic for a stimulant. They build up the blood and not only cure the disagreeable after effects of grippe, but are also a specific for all troubles due to poor blood, such as anaemia, rheumatism, indigestion, women's ailments and the generally worn out feeling that affects so many people. You can get these pills through any dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

IN THE LITERARY WORLD

(By F. M. Dela Fosse, Librarian.)

There is a large body of persons whose reading consists entirely of fiction. By them a book is regarded solely as a means of whiling away a quiet hour and it is safe to say that they get very little intellectual value for the time thus expended. For it is obvious that the man or woman who reads a book hurriedly overlooks a vast amount of interesting and valuable material. Such things, for instance, as obscure allusions, quotations from the classics, and words of which the meaning is not known. If everyone were to cultivate the habit of jotting his difficulties down in a note book for future reference it would soon be found that the work of unravelling the knotted threads would grow into a facinating pastime. Fewer books would be read, it is true, but the knowledge that would be attained would be surprising.

A week or two ago reference was made to the Cassiterides. In searching for a book on the history of commerce I chanced upon one in the Sociological section entitled "Merchant Enterprise." GEMS OF NEW VERSE

GREY TROTH

The sky's breast is a dream of holden rain,—
Exquisite fulness of soft cups of clouds:
The moor's breast where the heather's pomp has lain
Is now a peace with quiet hues endowed;
Clear stillness is their troth;
And silence out of this
The speech of both:—
A little lovely wind, the nature-kiss.

—From "The Way of Wonder," by May Doney.

Mrs. Reginald de Koven is the author of "A Cloud of Witnesses," which E. P. Dutton & Co., will publish toward the end of February. The work will recount her experiences in communicating with friends and relatives who have died and will explain why these experiences have convinced her that the spirits of those who die pass on into another form of existence in which it is possible for them to communicate with their friends upon the earth.

The interest in Henry James, which has been growing steadily since his death, will undoubtedly receive a new stimulus from the appearance of a collection of his letters which the Scribners announce they have in preparation for publication. His "Middle Years" and "Notes of a Son and Brother" presage the rich qualities that may be expected in this forthcoming volume of personal letters, and its publication will be eagerly awaited by all lovers of literature.

It is now denied that Lord Haig is writing his war reminiscences. It is a pity. One was looking forward to his book, based, one understood, on the diary which he is said to have kept during the time he was at Montreuil.

"Ae Author's League Bulletin" has started a plebiscite to find out who is the living author most esteemed by living authors, in other words, the author's author. Only authors are to vote; evidently only published authors. The Great Unpublished would, no doubt, be requested to refrain. Contemporary literary fame is hereafter to be controlled by a Soviet form of Government by a Zemstvo of Zemstvos composed of literary literati. There will be equal suffrage. And one shilling-shocker's ballot will be as good as another's, or as William Dean Howells's or George Edward Woodberry's. Immortality may hinge on one or two votes. Shakespeare, Dante, and Moliere were lucky to have lived in less democratic days.

Hugh Walpole, the young English novelist who arrived in New York recently, in the judgment of critics here and abroad is one of the figures of greatest promise in English literature, and his proposed lecture tour is looked forward to with great eagerness on the part of those who know the work of this young novelist. He is still in his early thirties, with a record of achievement truly remarkable. An Australian by birth, and a decendant of Sir Robert Walpole, he spent some time in New York as a boy.

WOMEN DO NOT WANT LOW-PRICED SHOES

CHICAGO—Do the women of Chicago want the cheaper grades of shoe merchandise?

No, they do not!

Will they buy the more expensive shoes if offered at bargain prices?

Yes, they will!

This, in a nutshell, describes the attitude of the women in regard to the shoe situation as revealed in the recent sale inaugurated by a shoe store, which, through the medium of some striking advertisements, announced their intention of giving old H.C.L. a wallop and inviting the support of the women of the city in their meritorious efforts.

At the bargain price of $9.85 their high-grade $12 and $13.50 shoes were offered for sale. The women came, saw and were conquered by the wonderful bargains afforded by this sale, which occupied all of one week.

As the advertisement indicated, the sale was designed for the purpose of trying out the sentiment of the women in the city in regard to their attitude on the important subject of moderate-priced shoes.

In discussing this phase of the matter, Carl H. Fleissbach, general manager of the Walk-Over Shoe Stores, said:

"The sale was a big success from the standpoint of the volume of business it developed, but even in the face of the satisfactory condition, I am not convinced that the women want moderate-priced shoes. We have been selling five pairs of high-priced shoes in comparison with one of the cheaper grades for some time, and this is the reverse of what we might expect from the howl about prices at present prevalent.

"The women will always respond to the lure of bargain prices when convinced that the merchandise offered is really as represented, high grade in every detail, but they will not buy the cheaper grade of shoes.

"Nor will they accept even at bargain prices shoes which deviate even slightly from the requirements of the fashionable mode of today, while these latter may be obtained at $4 to $5 more per pair."

Therefore the present "kick" about the cost of a pair of "kicks" must be settled by the "kickers" themselves.

CANADIAN MAY GET LARGE BELGIAN ORDERS

Negotiations Proceeding for the Construction of Locomotives.

OTTAWA, Feb. 20.—Negotiations between Belgium and Canadian firms for the supply of locomotives are proceeding, it is learned, and there is a prospect that large orders may be placed in Canada.

Senator Nichols, head of the Canadian General Electric Company, who was in the city last night, stated that he had received a long cable in connection with this matter, but he refused to comment on its contents, further than to say that negotiations were still under way.

From other sources, however, it was learned that there are good prospects of Canadian firms securing some of the contracts.

INFLUENZA LEAVES THE BLOOD THIN, THE NERVES WEAK

The Danger From the Disease is Seldom Over When the Acute Stage is Passed—Tonic Treatment Strongly Recommended.

Doctors have agreed that Spanish influenza is really a severe form of the grippe which became known in this country a number of years ago under the French name of "la grippe" and which has been epidemic several times since.

The danger from grippe is seldom over when the characteristic symptoms, the fever, the catarrh, the headache and the depression of spirits pass away. The grippe leaves behind it weakened vital powers, thin blood, impaired digestion and oversensitive nerves—a condition that makes the system an easy prey to pneumonia, bronchitis, rheumatism, nervous prostration and even consumption. Too much stress cannot be laid on the importance of strengthening the blood and nerves during convalescence. Until the blood is built up there can be no complete recovery of strength and health.

COULD HARDLY CRAWL ABOUT

Among the many victims of la grippe who proclaim the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Mr. Amos Kaulback, of Petite Riviere, N.S., who says:—"I was taken down with a severe attack of la grippe, or influenza. After a time the early symptoms of the trouble left me, but I did not regain my usual strength, and I had always been a strong man. There were times when I felt I could hardly crawl about, and I was so run down I could scarcely go about my business. I continued taking medicine but it did me no good. Then I found the trouble was effecting my digestion and the disagreeable feeling from this added to my general misery. I was finally advised to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to try them. I had only been taking the pills a few weeks when I found my strength returning, my appetite improved, and still continuing the use of the pills a few weeks more found me restored to my old-time vigor. I can most strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all who have passed through an attack of influenza, as a safe medicine for renewing their strength."

REGAINED FLESH AND STRENGTH

To rebuild the blood to strengthen the weakened nerves and to get back the lost flesh and strength is the problem of the victim of an attack of influenza. How Mr. Charles Darling, of No. 14 Week street, Bath, Me., accomplished this is best told in his own words:
